Walter Kelly left here on the 28 inst. for Falmouth, where he will be installed as gauger. Success to you, Walter.

Misses Vergie Snyder, Lou and Corda Clore, were the guests of Misses Artie, Stella and Ora Ryle, last Wednesday.

Henry Clore was in the city, last Monday, purchasing a supply of goods for their store. While he had the pleasure of meeting his old partner, J. J. Huey, now of Tenn.

Our old friend, Edward Passon, the Rabbit Hash throughbred Democrat, passed here one day last week enroute for the county seat, we suppose for his license, but we have received no invitation to the wedding.

Walton.

Mrs. William Ransler is improving.

Mrs. John W. Grubbs is some better.

Mrs. Geo. Laws is very low with pleurisy.

Miss Effie J. Lermond began her spring school Monday morning, at the Jones school house in Kenton.

Mrs. Libbie Ingram is entertaining Misses Stewart, of Covington, and Nellie Williams, who has been the teacher of the public school in Flemingsburg for a number of years.

C. C. Metcalfe and Ed Mann will spend the summer on Mr. W. H. Metcalfe's farm—keeping batchelor's hall. James Metcalfe and John Fink were out one night last week to see if they were getting along as well as they did while Mrs. James was visiting her mother last Chistmas. In bidding they complained somewhat of the scarcity of feathers in the ticks, each complaining of monoply of the same by the other—being both staunch Republicans they had no right to grumble.

Your readers may remember how a certain Mr. R. A. Welch, representing the "Royal Fraternal Union," of St. Louis, took applications for membership and did not send in the applications after collecting the money required to be paid, when application was made. The Methodist minister here, Rev. J. W. Crates, took the matter in hand and communicated with the officers of the Order with the result that there is a prospect of Messrs. Vanlandingham and Hicks getting their certificates and that the company will stand the loss occasioned by Welch appropriating the money paid by them.

We are promised the greatest intellectual feast of which our country or any other country can boast. Mr. Ralph Rose, recently endowed by nature that he became famous for wouderful oratorical power at the early age of six, will give one of his great exhibitions at the Opera House building on the evening of the 20th inst. He is esteemed the greatest phenomenon of this or any other age. His equal has never before been heard. By Divine right, eloquence is his; and, unlike most youthful prodigies, he has improved and not deteriorated in any respect. Benificent nature has endowed him with all these magnificent powers that the most famous men have spent life times of diligent labor in endeavoring to attain. And the originality of his style is refreshingly charming. His violin playing is marvelous. There are "thousands of fiddlers to one violinist"; he is a Violinist with a big V. The RECORDER could be filled with extracts from the most prominent newspapers all over this broad land; they all concur that he is the greatest prodigy of the age. In other cities the price of admission to his entertainments has always been $1, but as he comes here to aid the Methodist brethern in building a parsonage the prices will be reduced to 25 and 50 cents.

Hathaway.

March 6.—Moving has begun.

D. H. Ryle made a business trip to the city, last Monday week.

George Rue, of Big Boue, passed through this burg one day last week.

Anthouy Rue, of Woolper Heights, was in this neighborhood, last Thursday.

E. C. Franks and Jno. McElroy went to Grant county for a few days last week.

Claud Ryle and wife have moved into the house with his brother, Walter Ryle, on Gunpowder.

Miss Mira Craig, of East Bend, was a guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Ryle the other day.

Those who have had wood sawings are Frank Rue, W. S. White, Robert Clements, Hal Presser and Ed Sullivan.

Persons wanting to know how to make the latest style home-made cigar, should call on or apply to Hal Presser

George Smith, son of C. S. Smith, was taken sick in the Bellevue neighborhood Sunday week and was not able to be brought home for several days.

Joseph Riddell happened to quite an accident last week. He stepped on a large thorn that stuck through his boot into his foot, causing him much trouble.

Gunpowder.

Mrs. L. H. Rouse and daughter are on the sick list.

The mud roads are in a desperate condition—almost impassable.

Mrs. Ada Surface is improving slowly, but she is not able to be up.

W. N. Surface will be out as soon as the groundhog weather Is over.

Bob Houston has about recovered but has not ventured out of the house.

The spring term of school began at the Pleasant Ridge school house, last Monday, with Miss Margaret Riley, teacher.

We are glad to report M. M. Tanner, who had a surgical operation performed at Betts Street Hospital, in Cincinnati, last week, is doing well, and will be able to return home in a few days.

Mr. Tieman, of Ohio, is here in the interest of the Grange. Mr. T. is an extensive farmer and stock raiser near Columbus, therefore a practical Granger. He is very enthusiastic in the work in which he is engaged, and will, no doubt, be instrumental in doing much good for the fraternity in our county.

Mound Field Farm.

Mch. 6.—Davis & Co., invoiced their goods last week.

Elzie Harper has raised steam up in his incubators.

Eight different families in Hebron served an oyster supper last Saturday night.

Ex-Sheriff Beall has parsnips in his garden six inches in circumference and eighteen inches long.

One of the most convincing facts that roads are impassable is to see Manlius Goodridge walking to Hebron.

Saw Courtney Walton the other day on the hunt for cabbage plants. Courtney was always partial to cabbage

Add Riddell was out at Hebron a few days since, the first time since his leg was broken. He is getting along fine.

A great many wild ducks were seen, last week, in corn fields, ponds and flying over, but few were killed by the nimrods here.

Aaron Carder has gone to Mexico to superintend a large Apiary belonging to a man in that country that is extensively engaged in the honey bee industry.

Eleven years ago this winter Dock Manin lost a pair of gold spectacles. A few days since in looking through his Bible he found them where he had left off reading.

There were several of us discussing the honesty of fruit tree agents the other day, when Billy Clore spoke his little piece. He said, "that a number of years ago his father invested $25 in trees, when they came into bearing the apple trees bore black haws, and the pear trees wild crab apples.

The news reached here the latter part of last week that Charlie Tanner had had a miraculous escape from freezing to death during the cold weather. Charlie has no one to share the joys and sorrows of this life with and having to sleep alone did not take the precaution to keep his head covered, and the consequence was, he had the top of his head frozen, and the hair is all sloughing off and it is thought he will loose one ear.

Union.

Pink Lunsford has moved to Covington.

Lee Cleek and wife have been sick for several weeks.

Miss Nanuie Bristow was shopping in Covington, Wednesday.

Miss Mary Berkitt is learning the millinery business in Cincinnati.

Dr. and Mrs. Crouch entertained Prof. Collins one evening last week.

Richard Smith had a wood-sawing, Wednesday, and it rained of course.

Mrs. Asbury, of Mason county, was visiting her parents near here, last week.

Miss Nannie Bristow will begin a spring school at the Grange Hall the 13th of March.

Dr. James Adams and Clay Baker, of Walton, were transacting business in Union, last week.

Lan Norman went "sucker fishing" on Gunpowder, Tuesday. Pray tell us who was the sucker?

Geo. H. Stephenson came near losing a valuable horse, last week, by its eating too many oats.

Granville Rouse and Mike Kualy arrived in town all right, and will soon be fixed up for living.

Mrs. James A. Huey opened the new house cleaning season, last week, by having two rooms papered.

The weather has been very unfavorable for moving, but every body has moved except James Kenney, so far as we know.

John Garrison came in from his farm Sunday evening and looked as if he had been swimming his horse through the mud.

Mr. Ephraim Weaver's health has been such as to confine him to his bed for several weeks, and his condition is now serious.

Mr. M. Houston's son-in-law moved from across Gunpowder to the toll-gate on the Big Bone pike, and he had a tough time getting school.

Miss Quizenberry entertained her class, Sunday morning with a quotation from a lecture heard Saturday in Cincinnati by a missionary just from Africa.

Mr. Lampkin is an artist when it comes to cooking. He can make all kinds of cakes, pies and puddings to a Queen's taste, and "takes the cake" on baked meats and bread.

The O. M. C. A. Club met with the Recorder, Friday night. The junior members had a walk over in a previous meeting, but the seniors sprung a surprise on the boys at the last meeting, much to their discomfeiture.

We saw in last week's RECORDER that ground hogs had attacked a man in upper Kentucky. We have a wholesome respect for the g. h. as a weather maker, but as a battle maker, would guess him to be a regular Spain-yard and sprinter.

Mr. Ed, the first time you see our friend John Crisler, ask him what noted General (one that was in the "hottest old places") never lost a battle, a prisoner, a piece of artillery, a wagon train and never built breast works or used them except when taken from the enemy.

Mrs. T. A. Huey, of Covington, came out Tuesday morning, and is getting their country home in order for the summer season by having paper, painting and other work done. Master Jimmie and Mr. J. Herbert Miller are assisting in the work.

Geo Burkett was showing us some "old time history." The book was printed in old style and a Cincinnati lawyer could not tell the S's from "Hogarth's line of beauty," but it told the story of "Daniel in the lion's den" and "Beziah killing the lion in a pit with a knife" all the same.

Neal Bros., of Hathaway, were delivering tobacco to J. W. Kennedy for Mr. Portwood, one day last week. After laying in a supply of wire and other farm staples, they left on the early train for home due at Buffalo 7:31 p. m., sun time or sooner in case they failed to "hang up" in the mud.

Will some reader of the RECORDER tell how much money can be raised by a chain of letters if each person receiving a letter sends 5c. A sends three letters to B. C. D. and asks each one of these to number their letters a number higher and send three to their friends—this system to continue from 1 to 100.

We were given a subscription paper, last week, that was circulated here in 1877 to build a bridge across the creek in Union. In those days such noble and public spirited men as Joseph Adkison Huey, Robert Jno Conner, Owen C. Utz and Joel B. Frazier were at the helm and it was no trouble to raise $100 by subscription for any laudable purpose.

Elbert Rice has been so busy lately that he could not attend the meetings of the Blade club. James Smith made some kodac pictures of him as he appeared in the "comedy of 80 acts" written by Lamb and bound in sheep—one shows Elbert sitting on a box with a 2-qt. milk bottle in one hand and a copy of "Carbo on the uses and abuses of milk" in the other, and 20 lambs (motherless and cold) waiting to get a whack at the bottle.

Tuesday morning we met J. M. Wilson and told him the Germaus had captured "Ft. Sumpter" at 6 o'clock Monday morning. He grew two inches taller and straight as an arrow with patriotic rage and declared it was incredible. It was credible and true all the same and we proved it. The Germans made it so hot for Col. Derat and 250 other Derats of various kinds and sizes that they abandoned the Fort after a desperate resistance, spiked the cannon with their rat-tail files and jumped into the creek.

Bro. Tolin, your interesting correspondent at Petersburg, tells about ferocious lions roaming over the hills of your country, seeking whom they may devour. We, of this country have very little trouble to keep lions at a safe distance, but find it hard to stand off that "untamable and hard to curry" animal known as the "Wolf at the door." This disturber of domestic felicity and good sound sleep, steals upon us like a thief in the night, but roareth not. The lion attacks people regardless of color or circumstances, but the "wolf at the door" delights to hold high carnival over the shivering remains of a man's home. He will sit on a poor man's door step with a face on him like a comic valentine and stay there until the 25° below zero weather comes and the poor man and his family are no more.

Hume Store.

Our 17th snow fell Sunday morning.

The school at Oak Ridge closed last Tuesday.

Mr. Joe Noell was calling on friends at Verona, last Sunday.

Midway.

Many of our farmers are engaging their lambs at $4 per head, believing it will be as well as they would do by waiting.

M. C. Carroll, one of Midway's most energetic farmers, who has been confined to his bed for some time, we are glad to learn is rapidly improving.

Jesse Slayback, who formerly lived at Science Hill, Pulaski county, has moved into the house recently vacated by Thomas McIntyre near Midway.

M. E. Hance, one of the Spring's most substantial citizens, has engaged in the tobacco trade, of which we are very glad, as farmers were generally fearing they would have to prize their "weed" and wait some time for their money. He is paying very fair prices so far.

Noell & Williford is the firm name, and Mudlick is the place of business. Joe Noell and Ed Williford having purchased store and dwelling at that place of T. J. Hughes. They are worthy business young gentlemen, and have our best wishes for success in their success.

B. B. Allphin, our hustling deputy sheriff, amid a drenching rain last Saturday at 2 p. m., sold on the streets of the Springs, "Duster," a horse which has come into notoriety recently, during the Jump-McIntyre horse swapping case. James Aylor, constable, who had the horse in his possession bought him for $15.

Last Monday as D. Bloch, our cigar and tobacco man, was passing down stream through Midway, he grounded at one of Carroll's bars, and only for the timely arrival of Chas. Carroll and Ed Slayback, with a heavy tug, his advent at the Springs that day would have been questionable. He remarked on leaving the Springs: "My drips un dis roude vill be derrible vide apart dill navigation is declared a perfectly shore ding, uud dot yer forgot dot."

The word navigation will have to be substituted for travel between Beaverlick and the Springs, and only steel hulled crafts are expected to make schedule thue at the present stage of water. Our genial mail carrier has petitioned Uucle Sam to furnish him a steel yacht in which to transport the mail between Beaver and the Springs, Last Saturday the road had swollen clear out of its banks, and navigation was necessarily suspended on account of heavy drift and the absence of government lights.

The grass began to look green again last week.

The sassafras merchants are doing business again.

Wild duck shooting ought to be good on the river now.

There has been considerable gloomy weather this month.

W. R. Miller, of Big Boone, says he has 26 ewes with 28 lambs—three to the ewe.

Saturday was decidedly the wettest day of the season. It rained every minute during the day.

Hear that it is fine duck shooting in the neighborhood of the mouth of Gunpowder and Woolper creeks.

Hubert Rouse's little son, after an illness of nearly seven weeks, of spinal meningitis, died last Wednesday.

Hear that J. J. Huey will locate at Gallatin, Tennessee, where he will engage in the undertaker's business.

Two cases of small pox developed in Carrollton, last week, and a big scare followed. The patients are colored men.

In the County Court, last week, Thos. H. Nead was appointed administrator of the estate of Mary Nead, deceased.

According to reports that reach this office the roads are threatening to be worse this spring than they have for some time.

Notwithstandiug it was claimed that a large number of English sparrows were frozen last month, they cannot be missed about town.

There was a strong demand for corn here last week, and a considerable quantity would have found ready buyers at 40 cents a bushel.

Mrs. Scimes' meat wagon is making frequent trips to Burlington, where it is supplying considerable fresh meat—sausage, backbones, spareribs, &c.

At Grasser's sale down on Woolper, one day last week, corn sold in five barrel lots at from 54 to 63 cents a bushel. Milch cows brought as high as $60.

They tell at the County Clerk's office that Judge Roberts went to the county one day last week to buy a huckster route, and negotiate for a bee course.

Harry Hutcherson, aged 18, was arrested at Corinth, charged with wrecking the express train near that place, last Tuesday night, by placing a tie on the track.

The creditors of Hiram Long will meet in Covington, to-morrow, to take steps looking to the settlement of their claims against him. It is very likely to be a spirited meeting.

Those who contemplate raising tobacco this season would very much appreciate an opportunity to burn and sow their plant beds. It is now time that this work was done.

Mr. Lyons, who used to keep hotel in Walton, remained over night in Burlington, last Wednesday, enroute with several horses to a farm of which he has charge over in Indiana.

Last Saturday J. F. Blyth found about 20 wild ducks on a pond on Willis Adams' land near town, and got one out of the flock. The first duck brought down by any of the local shots this season.

R. A. Brady, Robert Carver and Xen Scott, were in town, last week, with a lot of horses and mules, some of which they sold, and some they brought back home. Mr. Carver sold a pair of small mules for $97.

J. O. Huey replenished his supply of coal at Erlanger immediately after the cold snap. He did his best to supply the demand of his trade at all times but was not quite able to do it when the demand was the strongest.

is the forerunner to consumption. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey will cure it, and give such strength to the lungs that a cough or a cold will not settle there. Twenty-five cents at all good druggists.

The projectors of the electric railroad from Cincinnati to Rising Sun appear to be pushing the enterprise with considerable zeal, and Lawrenceburg and Aurora have been called on to make good their promises as to the right of way.

Geo. Blyth and Tony Bentler went to Richwood, last Thursday, to look at a lot of corn belonging to Mr. B. Long, with a view to purchasing. They say it was as fine a crib of corn as they ever saw, but Mr. Long would not price it to them.

The Eagle, King of All Birds, is noted for its keen sight, clear and distinct vision. So are those persons who use Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve for weak eyes, styes, sore eves of any kind or granulated lids. Sold by all dealers at 25 cents.

LAN MACLAREN.

Lan Maclaren, Rev. Dr. John Watson, will give a lecture on some traits of the Scottish people, and readings from "Bedside the Bonnie Briar Bush" in the Cincinnati Music Hall, Thursday, March 16th, at 8 p. m.

Geo. H. Walton, of the Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, was interrupted in the operation of his sugar camp by the destruction of the evaporator he was using. He thinks someone visited his camp and burnt the evaporator, as it appears to him impossible to have been burnt accidentally.

Coughed 25 Years.

I suffered 25 years with a cough, and spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and for medicine to no avail until I used Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. This remedy makes weak lungs strong. It has saved my life.—J. B. Rosell, Grantsburg, Ill.

Southgate Anderson came to town, Thursday, and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Fred and William Zimmer. This proceedings on the part of Mr. Anderson was the result of the hostilities that developed when an effort was being made a few days before, to locate a line between the lands of Anderson and Zimmer.

Spring work for the farmers is accumulating rapidly. March is here and no land has been broken for corn, and the weather has been such as to almost entirely prohibit the work of preparing land for the plow. When the weather does settle down the farmer will be a very busy man for sometime.

W. M. Rogers, the Boone County Insurance agent, was in our office, Friday morning, and in speaking of farming, he said he had been all over the county, and that the only field he had seen in which plowing for corn had been commenced was a field belougiug to James A. Smith, of the Union precinct. Mr. Smith is generally in a good position in the spring breakaway.

The RECORDER gives its subscribers an advantage which they can receive from no other paper published, and in the course of a year a subscriber might realize many times the subscription price by using the free advertisements. If you have anything you want to sell, or if you want to buy, you can advertise the fact to the extent of five lines in one issue free of charge. A subscriber is not confined to a single advertisement during the entire year.

Mrs. Mary Runyan, of this place, was present at the laying of the corner stone of the Covington Court-house, which is soon to be razed to make room for the new one. Mrs. Runyan does not remember the year, but it was in the early forties. She says that Henry Wiugate, of Frankfort, was the master of ceremonies, and that a bottle of whisky and some newspapers were placed under the corner stone. About the best thing in that building now is that quart of old whisky.

Waller Campbell and Edgar Berkshire have beeu having a series of exciting games of seven-up against W. C. Goodridge und A. C. Porter, this winter. When they began it was the understanding that they should play every day this winter that they could not work on their farms, consequently they have played nearly every day for the last two months. They met at Mr. Goodridge's one day last week, when he and his partner, Porter, got beaten so badly that they have concluded they do not know the first principles of the game.

Esquire Noell held a special session of his court at Big Bone springs, last Saturday, to try two young men charged with disturbing religious worship. When the cases were called the accused saw that the county attorney was not present, and announced ready for trial. A jury was empaneled and one of the cases tried, and the jury returned a verdict, fining the youug man $20. This was a great surprise to the boys, and the one not tried asked for a continuance, which was granted, and the other appealed from the verdict against him.

John Lassing and Elmer Beall went to Rabbit Hash, Friday, taking with them their fowling pieces, expecting to load the Swan with ducks on their voyage to and from the Hash, and had promised several persons a nice duck upon their return home that evening, but like all hunting or fishing excursions that leave Burlington, they were not able to fulfill a single promise, but not at all to the surprise of those to whom they were made. They took with them enough ammuuition for a six months campaign in the Philippines and brought back with them exactly the same amount.

About twenty persons partook of the chicken soup that was served at Geo. Blyth's sugar camp, last Friday night. Geo. Campbell, colored, was the chief cook, and his work was done in a satisfactory manner. Besides the soup there were other delicacies such as sugar-water, syrup and maple molasses. These latter were partaken of freely before the soup was dished out, and the very large quantity of the mixture that was disposed of by some caused their friends considerable uneasiness. The only drawback to the occasion was the smoking of the chimney to the house in which the festival was held, but this inconvenience was endured as long as the soup lasted without a murmer.

Reading the following in the Williamstown Courier, of last week, we at once became concerned about the condition of our friend Conrad, and hasten to recommend for him a four weeks' sojourn at Marysville, Ohio:

"Clay Conrad has been killing snakes lately. Last week when the snow was a foot deep on the ground and temperature bobbing around the zero mark, he run across a snake of the garter variety that was crawling along over the snow as unconcernedly as though it were in a July afternoon. He killed his snakeship and he measured 5 feet in length. There were numerous other paths in the snow that indicated that several other snakes had passed that way."

Wednesday morning, A. M. Speuk tendered his resignation as jailer of Gallatin county. Upon the same day County Judge Jas. S. Browu appointed Jud Edwards to the positiou, who gave the necessary bond and is now filling the office and no doubt will give excellent service as he is an upright, moral young man. The retiring officer, Mr. Speak, was a man of too good heart, and too easily influenced to make the best of jailers, and owing to several recent escapes from the jail and complaint, Mr. Speak concluded to resign. He has moved from the jail to the property of Hugh Montgomery, corner of First and Market streets.—Warsaw Independent.

Do the city papers say anything in regard to your locality? asks an exchange. Do they contain notices of your schools, lodges, and the hundreds of local matters of interests your home paper publishes? Not an item. Do they publish a word calculated to draw trade to your town and your enterprise? And yet there are men who take contracted views in this matter who think if they don't get as many square inches of reading matter in their home paper, they are not getting the worth of their money. It reminds one of the man who took the largest pair of boots in the box because the price was the same as the pair that fitted him. Take the city paper if you want one, but don't let it crowd the local paper out of your home.

ARE YOU A DEMOCRAT?

An old adage reads: "There is a place for everything," and for everything to be in its place, the LOUISVILLE DISPATCH should find a place in the home of every DEMOCRAT in the SUNNY SOUTH. The Dispatch is the people's paper, owned by the people, and is always ready to fight for the cause of the people. IT STANDS SQUARELY ON THE CHICAGO PLATFORM, without the aid or consent of the Gold Bug Monopolies, and a fair comparison of its news service (now being furnished over leased wires by the New York Sun, the Chicago Inter Ocean and the Northern Press Association) with that of any other paper, will fully verify its Motto, "If you see it in the Dispatch it's so, and if it's so it is always in the Dispatch."

The Dispatch also has a staff of over 300 active correspondents in the South, and will POSITIVELY GUARANTEE MORE THAN DOUBLE THE SOUTHERN NEWS of any other Louisville paper. Get the Dispatch; it gives the news and tells the truth about it.

ONE of the interesting studies to persons who have never seen large quantities of game is a visit to a big cold storage plant where it is stored. In one place in New York City there is an old bear, as natural as when first killed, that has been in cold storage for over three years. Every variety of wild game is represented in a big cold storage plant.

FRIENDS of Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, widow of the late Senator Hearst, of California, say that she has spent $2,000,000 in charity during the last five years. The greater part of this princely fortune was appropriated to the University of California to found chairs, and in other ways to elevate the cause of education in the golden country where Senator Hearst accumulated his fortune.

FRANCE has now a law by which marriage may be dissolved without cost to the applicants. The Paris divorce court devotes Thursdays to gratuitous decrees. On one day recently 234 couples were divorced during a session of four hours, an average of more than one divorce a minute. The applicants belonged to the working class, in which divorces were infrequent before the passage of the law.

THE Guards band was playing out on the Windsor Castle terrace during dejeuner recently and the queen was so much struck by one pretty march tune that she desired one of the maids of honor to go and ascertain what it was called. The classic features of that high-born damsel were suffused with blushes as she returned and made answer: "Come Where the Booze Is Cheaper,' your majesty."

WILLIAM E. GLADSTONE, England's Grand Old Man, used to make political speeches in queer places. In fact, it was he who initiated the custom of speaking from railway trains. He pounded out his political principles from the mouths of tunnels, on the tops of mountains—notably his adventures in Midlothian—at pit mouths and deep down in the bowels of the earth, on hays stacks, in chapels, once in a Congregational church and frequently on board ship.

QUEEN VICTORIA and all the adult lady members of the royal family now carry walking sticks, some of which are beautifully mounted with gold knobs. Her majesty's stieks have handles and she uses them for actual support in what little walking she does. Walking sticks among military ladies, too, are now the fashion. Walking umbrellas have also been introduced, and the princess of Wales has one that is no thicker than an ordinary walking stick when folded.

DEVIL'S ISLAND, made famous as the prison of Dreyfus, has a strange species of animal found nowhere else on earth. This odd animal has been called the coati and is a peculiar combination of mammiferous, carniverous plantigrade. It is about the size of a cat when full grown, with a long head shaped like a pyramid, a tremendous nose, making it the Cyrano of animals. The jaws are long, like those of a young alligator, and it uses its fore paws to carry its food to its mouth, as monkeys and squirrels do.

FOUR months ago the English army marched upon Omdurman and Khartum, and with Maxim guns mowed down the brave "fuzzie-wuzzies," who, with unlimited daring, rushed upon the British lines. Now these same British are already building in Khartum the Gordon Memorial college, and recently Lord Cromer laid the foundation-stone. The college is to teach agriculture, engineering, and other technical arts, in the Arabic language, and half a million dollars have been subscribed in England for its support, at the solicitation of Gen. Kitchener.

THE finest military riding school in existence is in Moscow. It is 560 feet long, 146 feet broad and 41 feet high, and, saving only the Midland terminus in London, its roof is the largest in the world unsupported by pillars. It is lavishly ornamented, but in every respect save size it is quite eclipsed by the subterranean riding school in Welbeck Abbey. This wonderful apartment, if it can be called such, is 383 feet long, about 130 feet wide, and its glass roof is nine feet higher than that of the Moscow school.

AN ingenious invention, lately placed on the market by a Glasgow journalist, is attracting considerable attention among those whose daily pursuits strain the eye. The inventor, having overworked his eyes until he could use them only with the greatest difficulty, at last hit upon the plan of putting several strips of different colored paper near his inkstand, so that every time he reached for ink his eyes fell on them. The owners of the patent claims that not only were his eyes relieved, but his sight improved by this simple device. Just why is for an oculist to explain.

KIPLING BETTER.

The Condition of the Celebrated Writer is Improving Very Rapidly.

He Asked for and Was Shown Newspapers —His Two Little Daughters Are Not as Ill as at First Thought and are Getting Along Nicely.

NEW YORK, March 3.—That Rudyard Kipling's condition has improved very greatly during the past 24 hours is evidenced by the fact that but one bulletin was posted Thursday. That was of a very satisfactory nature, and it was announced Thursday night that no further bulletins would be forthcoming until Friday afternoon. The bulletin issued at the Hotel Grenoble at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon was:

"Mr. Kipling has made satisfactory progress. He has a slight fever but is comfortable, though weak, and resolution is taking place in the affected portions of the lungs.

"R. G. JANEWAY,
"THEODORE DUNHAM."

Another indication that the patient is getting along well is that Thursday night he asked to be shown the newspapers, and he seemed to be greatly pleased and affected at the interest in his illness shown by the American people.

Mr. Kipling spent a comfortable night. He slept for some hours and rested well, and again Thursday morning he enjoyed an hour or two of sleep. In this way he has in a great measure recuperated his strength, and the promises are very bright for his speedy recovery.

According to the latest reports Kipling's two little daughters are not seriously ill as was at first thought. The elder, Josephine, a child of six, is being cared for at the home of Miss DeForest, a friend of Mrs. Kipling, and Thursday night Miss DeForest said that the little one was doing "very nicely indeed."

This was after Dr. Janeway had visited the child, with whom he spent a considerable time. She is suffering from pneumonia and it is not known whether she is absolutely out of danger. The younger of Mr. Kipling's daughters, Elsie, a child of 3, was said Thursday by Mr. Doubleday to be suffering from nothing more serious than a severe bronchitis, and he said he hoped the physicians will be able to save her from pneumonia. She is isolated at the Hotel Grenoble.

POPE'S CONDITION BETTER.

His Temperature Has Fallen Several Points —He Left His Bed Thursday Afternoon Without Assistance.

ROME, March 3.—The latest news from the vatican is that the pope's temperature at midnight had fallen several points. It appears that his disinclination to observe the recommendations of his physicians forms an obstacle in the way of prompt recovery. He has full confidence in his own strength and does not readily acquiesce in their advice not to move. During the afternoon he insisted upon leaving his bed without assistance and also read several telegrams. The rise in his temperature, which had given some anxiety, was probably caused in part in this way.

The doctors exclude everybody from his apartments except his personal attendants. Prof. Mazzoni remained in readiness during the evening to proceed to the vatican if needed, but up to 11 o'clock he had not been called, and at that hour he did not expect to go until daybreak.

The pope said during the day: "It is a miracle of God that I am still alive. for He wishes to spare His church a terrible crisis at the present moment."

AL. BECKER'S CONFESSION.

Fishermen Say That the Ice in the Lake on January 27 Was at Least Twelve Inches in Thickness.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Albert Becker, the self-confessed wife murderer, was Thursday taken by the police out on the Randolph street viaduct to the point where he claims he pushed his wife into the lake on the afternoon of January 27. Becker coolly pointed out the spot where his wife stood when he threw her into the water.

The police still have strong doubts of the truth of Becker's confession and they are strengthened by the statements of fishermen and others around the pier that the ice in the lake on January 27 was at least 12 inches thick.

Gen. Toral Arrested and Imprisoned.

MADRID, March 3.—Gen. Toral, who commanded the Spanish troops at Santiago de Cuba, has been arrested and imprisoned, previous to being tried by court-martial, on the charge of capitulating to Gen. Shafter at that place on July 14 last.

Voluntary Increase in Wages.

MARTIN'S FERRY, O., March 3.—The American Tin Plate Co. has notified employes of local plants of the voluntary increase in wages of from five to ten per cent. One thousand men are affected.

Flour Mill Burned.

NORWALK, O., March 3.—Gibson & Sons' flour mill at Wakeman, this county, was burned early Thursday morning. The body of Will Gibson has been found in the ruins, he having been burned to death.

TO REORGANIZE THE SERVICE

The War and Navy Departments Will Soon Take Action Under the Army and Naval Personnel Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Action is being taken by the war and navy departments to reorganize the services under the compromise army bill and the navy personnel bill. Under the latter bill the president will send 300 naval nominations to the senate Saturday.

Under the army bill the president is authorized to appoint five major generals and 19 brigadier generals of volunteers. It is the purpose to continue all those holding the rank of major general in the Philippines in that rank, although some of those in Cuba will have to be reduced to the rank of brigadier.

The list of major generals of the new establishment, besides officers of the regular service holding this rank, will be:

Maj. Gen. William R. Shafter, commanding the department of California.

Maj. Gen. E. S. Otis, military governor of the Philippines.

Maj. Gen. Henry W. Law ton, en route to Manila.

Maj. Gen. Thomas McA Anderson, commanding ... tion, 8th army corps, now at Manila.

Maj. Gen. Arthur MeArthur, commanding second division, 8th army corps, now at Manila.

As a result of the retention of these officers in their present rank it will be necessary for the president to direct the muster out as major generals of Maj. Gen. Thomas F. Wade, who will return to his rank of brigadier general in the regular army; Maj. Gen. H. C. Merriam, Maj. Gen. James H. Wilson, Maj. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Maj. Gen. Jos. Wheeler, Maj Gen. John C. Bates and Maj. Gen. William Ludlow. Some of these officers will be appointed brigadier generals.

This is a partial list of the officers who in all probability will be appointed or retained as brigadier generals:

In Cuba—William Ludlow, Fitzhugh Lee, James H. Wilson, Leonard Wood, John C. Bates, L. H. Carpenter, G. W. Davis and E. B. Williston.

For the remaining five vacancies there will be a political scramble. It is understood that Gen. Wheeler would be willing to accept an appointment as brigadier general.

Brig. Gen. F. D. Grant will in all probability be mustered out in the spring.

Under the navy personnel law these nominations for rear admiral will be sent to the senate Saturday:

E. F. McNair, J. A. Howell, H. L. Howison, Albert Kautz, George C. Remey, N. H. Farquhar, J. C. Watson, J. W. Philip, H. B. Robeson, W. S. Schley, Silas Casey, W. T. Sampson, B. J. Cromwell, F. J. Higginson, H. F. Picking, Frederick Rodgers, Louis Kempf and George W. Sumner.

By the confirmation of Commodore Schley all talk of his being dropped from the service as a result of the promotion of Commodore Higginson will be effectually ended. Of course both Rr. Adms. Sampson and Schley will be returned to the positions they now hold on the naval register should the senate confirm their nominations for advancement for gallant service. Failure to confirm their nominations for promotion for gallant service will result in placing the name of Rr. Adm. Schley ahead of that of Rr. Adm. Sampson, according to their standing before the war.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

A History of the Arsenal and Navy Yard at Cavite by a Spaniard— It Was Started in 1799.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Through the courtesy of a Spanish resident at Manila, the navy department has secured a concise history of the navy yard and arsenal at Cavite. It appears this was started in 1799, just a hundred years ago, by the Spanish admiral M. De Alava, the materials being provided from San Blas, California. The arsenal developed greatly during the command of Gen. Enrile in 1834 when a large frigate, the St. Esperaza was launched there. A great part of the buildings were destroyed by earthquakes in 1825 and 1865. The arsenal and navy yard cover 71.61 square miles, and it is represented, the yard can be made one of the best naval stations in the far east.

An All Night Session.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—At 3 o'clock a.m. Saturday the conferees agreed to report another disagreement on the armor plate and the battle ship amendments of the senate on the naval bill. They agreed upon all the other provisions. These two items will be submitted to a vote of the senate.

Quarantining Texas Ports.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 4.—Gov. Sayres Friday issued a proclamation becoming effective April 1 quarantining Texas ports and border from any person affected with yellow fever, smallpox or cholera.

Elevator Dropped Three Stories.

CLEVELAND, O., March 4.—An elevator in a down town building dropped three stories to the basement Friday morning with six passengers. They were buried in timbers and cement, but only Daniel Moody was hurt.

REBELS SHELLED

They Attempted To Cross the River and Reinforce the Enemy.

The Insurgents' Loss Was Heavy—Our Loss One, Killed and Two Wounded— Transports Senator and Ohio Arrive At Manila.

MANILA, March 6.—At daylight Saturday Gen. Wheaton's outposts discovered a large body of rebels attempting to cross the river for the purpose of re-enforcing the enemy at Guadalupe, and a gunboat advanced under a heavy fire and poured shot into the jungle on both sides of the river and shelled the enemy's position at Guadalupe, effectually but temporarily scattering the rebels.

The enemy's loss was heavy.

Private John T. Oiz, of Battery C, 3d artillery, was killed.

On board the gunboat, Privates Wm. Wheeler, of Company L, and Louis Barrion, of Company G, California regiment, were wounded.

The rebels in the village of San Jose fired on the United States gunboat Bennington Saturday and the war ship shelled that place and other suburbs of Malabon Saturday afternoon.

The United States transports Senator and Ohio have arrived here with reinforcements of troops.

Adm. George Dewey raised his flag as an admiral on board the Olympia Saturday morning and was saluted by the guns of the forts, of the foreign warships, the British cruiser Narcissus and the German cruiser Kaiserin Augusta and by the American ships in port.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The war department has received the following cablegram announcing the arrival at Manila of six companies of reinforcements for the army in the Philippines:

"MANILA, March 4, 1899.—Adjutant General, Washington: "The transport Senator just arrived. Troops in good health. One casualty, accidental drowning. OTIS."

The Senator carries Companies A, B, C, D, H and K, of the 23d infantry and sailed from San Francisco on the 1st of February. The balance of the regiment will soon arrive at Manila on the transport Ohio, which followed the Senator.

The war department has received the following cablegram from Maj. Gen. Otis:

MANILA, March 4.—Adjutant General, Washington: Casualties near Caloocan—First Montana, March 3, band, Private Alfred Cashmore, thigh, slight; near San Pedro Macati, 3d artillery, March 1, Battery G, Sergt. Dennis Shea, hand, severe. Just reported as missing, Grant Cullam, Co. C, 10th Pennsylvania, sent outside lines for information January 27; not seen since.

OTIS.

THE WORST IN MANY YEARS.

The Streets of Charleston, W. Va., Under Water and Five Thousand People Flee Before the Torrent.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 6.—Charleston is half under water, the flood being the worst with one exception in 30 years. The steady rains of Friday and Saturday and Saturday night, all through the Kanawha and New river valleys, have caused a tremendous volume of water to be poured into the Kanawha river, which here has reached the 41-foot stage. The back water from the Elk river, which flows into the Kanawha at this city, has submerged fully half of the city. Elk City, a suburb of 2,500 people, across the Elk, and all the northern section of Charleston, where hundreds of the poor classes live, are submerged from 5 to 10 feet. Scores of families have deserted their homes. The statehouse can only be reached by boats, several feet of water surrounding the building. The Burlew opera house, gas and waterworks offices and many business houses are in a similar plight. At 7:30 Sunday night the electric light plant was submerged. There is not a gas or electric light in the city. The work of saving household goods is a fearful one in the flooded district. Hundreds of citizens are homeless; hundreds of others have no fires, and with difficulty can get anything to eat.

Sunday night there is perfect bedlam in many parts of the city. The streets are full of drunken men, and several serious fights have occurred. George Becker, of the 1st West Virginia regiment, was knocked in the head by Jim Ronan, and is reported at death's door. Several colored men assaulted J. A. Jarrett and dangerously wounded him. The police are powerless and burglars are committing all kinds of depredations, looting private residences which have been deserted by the owners.

Increased Wages.

WHEELING, W. Va., March 6.—Commencing March 12 a 10 per cent. increase of wages goes into effect at every department of the Riverside iron and steel plants here. About 3,000 men are affected.

Forestry Board Appointments.

COLUMBUS, O., March 6.—Gov. Bushnell appointed the following gentlemen as members of the state forestry board: Dr. Dan Millikin, Hamilton; Rev. James Poindexter, Cleveland, and Mr. J. A. Beidler, of Cleveland.

CRISIS HAS BEEN PASSED.

Mr. Kipling's Condition Better—Temperature and Pulse Low and In Every Direction Improvement Is Marked.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The condition of Rudyard Kipling was very much improved Wednesday night. The crisis in the disease was passed Wednesday morning. Tuesday night's dispatches indicated that the crisis was close at hand and that it was because of this the physicians displayed so much anxiety concerning the outcome. At 2:15 Wednesday afternoon the following bulletin was posted:

"Mr. Kipling has gained since this morning. The temperature and pulse are low and in every direction the improvement is noted.

"E. D. JANEWAY,
"THEODORE DUNHAM."

This was the ninth day of Mr. Kipling's illness. In pneumonia the crisis is usually reached by the seventh or ninth day, but it may be delayed until the fourteenth. Therefore, there were 48 hours during which the physicians hardly left their patient's side. During that time Kipling suffered greatly during his conscious moments, but he was frequently unconscious or suffered from attending delirium. It required an iron constitution to bear up against the intensity of the disease, for Mr. Kipling's disease is a double lobar pneumonia, a pneumonia of both lungs.

The most advanced scientific methods have been adopted for the treatment, and for several days oxygen was forced into the lungs to tide over the times that Kipling was unable to breathe sufficient air to sustain life. The oxygen method was abandoned Tuesday, a hopeful sign. The patient began to breathe more freely early Wednesday morning, and after a few hours dropped into a refreshing sleep, the first in days, and the one essential to restore his fast waning strength. Later the temperature dropped rapidly from 104 to 99, which is about normal. This is the ordinary course of the disease.

LORD HERSCHEL IS DEAD.

He Was Stricken By Heart Trouble In Washington—Was Chairman of the Joint High Commission.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Lord Herschel, chairman of the Canadian branch of the joint high commission, died suddenly at the Shoreham hotel, shortly after 7 o'clock Wednesday morning.

About February 4, while returning to his hotel from a visit to Senator Gray, Lord Herschel fell on the icy pavement and broke his hip, and had since been confined to his room. He was recovering from this injury, however. Dr. W. W. Johnston, who was called in Wednesday morning, says the accident to his hip had nothing to do with his death.

Dr. Halstead, of Baltimore, had been attending him for the broken hip, and up to Wednesday his improvement seemed steady and rapid. At 6 o'clock, shortly after he awoke from a refreshing sleep, Lord Herschel complained of difficulty in his breathing. This became rapidly worse, and at 6:30 Dr. Johnston, who had been consulting with Dr. Halstead, was hastily summoned. The physician reached Lord Herschel's bedside shortly before 7. The distinguished patient was then unconscious and died within a few minutes.

In the senate Wednesday afternoon Mr. Fairbanks offered the following resolutions:

"That the senate has heard with profound sensibility of the death of Lord Farrer Herschel, an eminent jurist and statesman of Great Britain, formerly lord high chancellor, a member of the United States and British joint high commission.

"That the president of the senate is requested to convey to her majesty, the queen of Great Britain, the sympathy of the senate of the United States in the great loss which she and the people of Great Britain have sustained by the death of Lord Herschell." Adopted.

An Advance in Wages.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 2.—The long looked for advance in the wages of the coal miners of the Birmingham district has been announced, and will go into effect Wednesday. The advance will be two and a half cents for every ton of coal mined, and it is thought within the next month or two it will be made effective for every coal miner in the district.

The Nicaragua Canal Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The house met at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, and the first interesting move was on the Nicaraguan canal bill. The river and harbor committee, by Chairman Burton, reported the bill to the house Wednesday and moved to nonconcur in the senate amendments and appoint conferees. This probably means the death of the bill.

One Department Transferred.

COLUMBUS, O., March 2.—President Monsarrat, of the Hocking Valley railroad, Wednesday transferred the maintenance of way department from the control of Chief Engineer F. Sheldon to that of General Superintendent M. S. Conners.

Representative Cranford Worse.

WASHINGTON March 2.—Representative Cranford, of Texas, who has been sick for about two weeks at Providence hospital, is again worse and his condition is very precarious.

"Only the First Step is Difficult."

The first step in Spring should be to cleanse Nature's house from Winter's accumulations. Hood's Sarsaparilla does this work easily. It is America's Greatest Spring Medicine. It purifies the blood, as millons of people say.

It makes the weak strong, as nervous men and women gladly testify. It cures all blood diseases, as thousands of cured voluntarily write. It is just the medicine for you, as you will gladly say after you have given it a fair trial.

Bad Blood—"Although past 70 years of age I am thoroughly well. It was three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla that made me so after spending over $60 in medical attendance. My trouble was a raw sore on my ankle." MRS. LOUISA MASON, Court Street, Lowell, Mass.

Running Sores—"After worrying four months I gave my children Hood's Sarsaparilla and it cured them of running sores. Hood's Pills cured me of dyspepsia and constipation." MRS. KATE E. THOMAS, 31 Governor St., Annapolis, Md.

Consumptive Cough—"Five years ago I had a consumptive cough which reduced me to a skeleton. Was advised to take Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did and recovered normal health. I have been well ever since." MATILDA BRIDGEWATER, Cor. Pearl and Chestnut Sts., Jeffersonville, Ind.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, the non-irritating and the only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

STRUCK A BARGAIN.

A Deal in Cow Buying That Created Bad Blood Between Neighbors.

"Blank's uglier than a bear," complained one board of trade man to another, recently. "What's the matter with him, anyhow?"

"Haven't you heard? I'll tell you on the quiet, but never intimate to him that you know a thing. It would be all your life's worth. You know he owns a fine home out north of the boulevard?"

"Off to the right near Highland Park?"

"That's the place. He has a neighbor on either side and one of them owned one of these cows that never wants to stay where she's put. She was constantly breaking into Blank's back yard, trumping the lawn to pieces, breaking the shrubbery and using the side of the house, in lieu of a straw stack, to rub against. No fence that would not deface the property would keep her out, and Blank decided that something must be done. He could not bear the idea of a neighborhood row, so he went to the owner of the cow, told him that she had become an intolerable nuisance and that he would gladly give $20 to have her disposed of. The offer was promptly accepted, and the money paid. A morning or two later the cow was in the yard again, destroying things just as of old. Blank hunted up his neighbor and said: 'I thought you promised me to get rid of that cow at once.'

"'I did and I have. Sold her to your neighbor on the other side for $30. Pretty good deal, wasn't it; $50 for a $25 cow?'

Blank's been mad enough to shoot ever since."—Detroit Free Press.

QUEEN REGENT.

Peace Treaty is Now Up to Her to Sign With or Without Cortes' Consent.

Otherwise Spain Will Lose the $20,000,000 Appropriated for the Philippines—The Queen Has Ample Authority to Ratify the Treaty.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The administration is not worried over the resignation of the Spanish cabinet with respect to the ratification of the peace treaty. The treaty itself provides that the queen regent shall ratify the treaty and no reference is made to action by the cortes.

Unless the queen appoints a commissioner to exchange the treaties within the six months named as the limit for exchange Spain will lose the $20,000,000 appropriated for the Philippines. As the cortes has given her full authority to cede these islands there is no excuse now for the queen regent not signing the treaty.

"The fact of the matter is," said a state department official Thursday, "that Sagasta attempted to play politics. The queen had ample authority to ratify the treaty under the action of the cortes some months ago, but, desiring to shift responsibility to the cortes, Sagasta determined to force that body to ratify the treaty perfunctorily.

"His resignation does not change the situation, for the queen still has the power to direct the exchange to occur, though action of this kind following the rejection of the treaty by the cortes will place her in a more awkward position than would have been the case had the treaty been ratified without submission to that body."

MADRID, March 3.—The political strain caused by the resignation of the ministry Wednesday continues. As a union of the liberal groups in parliament appeared hopeless, the queen regent Thursday conferred with Marshal De Campos and Gen. Azcarragua relative to the formation of a conservative ministry.

MADRID, March 3.—The queen regent is making the most strenuous efforts to avoid a dissolution, which Senor Sagasta asks for. She conferred Thursday with the duke of Tetuan, Senor Romero y Robledo and other leading men.

MYSTERIOUS POISON CASE.

Pretty New York Girl Received Colognes and Candy, Both Containing Vitriol—Crape Hung on Her Door.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The police of Brooklyn are Thursday endeavoring to unravel a mysterious poisoning case. Miss Marie Ethel Timpany, a pretty 17-year-old girl, was the intended victim.

She received poisoned candy and cologne containing vitriol, but became suspicious, thereby saving her life. An examination of the stuff revealed the poison. A curious feature of the case is that crape was hung on Miss Timpany's door and notices of her death were published in the daily papers.

The girl has received threatening anonymous letters for some time past. She has no idea who the miscreant is, nor can she give the police any motive for the intended crime.

CRUISER REINA MERCEDES.

The Spanish Vessel Sank in Channel of Santiago Harbor During Sampson's Bombardment Has Been Raised.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, March 3.—After considerable delay, the former Spanish cruiser, Reina Mercedes, which was sunk in the channel of Santiago harbor during the bombardment by Adm. Sampson's fleet on June 6, has been raised and pumped out, the government tugs assisting the wrecking company. She was brought up to the city Thursday afternoon. Such repairs as can be readily affected will be made here, after which she will probably be towed to Havana, though final orders as to her movements have not yet been received.

SUSPECTS WERE DISMISSED.

Prosecutor, Disgusted With the Acquittal of Young Jesse James, Discharges All the Others Suspected.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 3.—Disgusted with the result of the Jesse James trial, City Prosecutor Reed Thursday dismissed all the train robbery cases on the criminal docket, and W. W. Lowe, the self-confessed robber, Andy Ryan and Charles Polk left the jail free men. The dismissals include John Kennedy, now in jail, at Springfield, Mo., awaiting trial for a second train robbery; Caleb Stone, James Flynn, George C. Bowlin and Evans, alias Ryan, all of whom are under indictment by the grand jury.

Outposts Fired Upon.

MANILA, March 3.—The outposts beyond San Pedro Macati were fired upon by the rebels from the walls of the Guadaloupe church. A gunboat advanced 300 yards beyond the lines and cleared away the enemy with Gatlings. No casualties are reported.

Said to Be Short in His Accounts.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., March 3.—An apparent shortage of $50,000 has been found in the accounts of ex-County Treasurer John C. Lammerts. The grand jury is considering the matter.

REBEL OFFICERS SULKING.

Many of the Disgusted Insurgents Want to Lay Down Their Arms—Good News From Cebu and Other Islands.

MANILA, March 4.—Aguinaldo's army is disheartened as a result of the recent actions. Many companies of the insurgents have retired because the officers skulked and won't lead their men.

One hundred Filipinos ran forward toward the American lines one day recently shouting: "We don't want to fight. Vive Americanos!" The local press comment on Gen. Rios' failure to obtain the liberty of the Spanish prisoners. Aguinaldo refused to liberate the priests unless they give up their landed estates. He also imposed the condition that the pope shall recognize the full rights of the native clergy, who, because rebellious toward their superiors, are liable to excommunication.

The St. Paul has left for Negros, taking the native commissioners and one battalion of the 1st California regiment under Col. Smith and Maj. Sims. The commissioners were delighted with their reception at Manila. They entertained the American officers at a banquet and dined with Gen. Otis at Malacanang palace.

The latest news from Cebu is good. The natives are returning to the town. The coolies are now willing to work at reasonable wages. Under the native government they asked double pay. Vessels are now loading and business has been resumed.

The influential natives of the islands of Mabate and Ticao request Gen. Otis to send troops there. They say that 200 men could easily subdue the rebels. The inhabitants are peaceable. They are disgusted with the extortions of three successive native governors. The two islands contain 80,000 head of cattle, which constitute the food supply of the rebel army of the south.

GEN. OTIS FLAT DENIAL.

The General Cables to the War Department That the Philippine Insurgents Hold No American Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Gen. Otis Friday morning sent the following emphatic denial to the war department of the report circulated by the Hong Kong Filipino junta, to the effect that the insurgents in Luzon hold 600 American prisoners:

"MANILA, March 3.—Secretary of War, Washington: Insurgents have not taken nor do they hold any prisoners of war. They have three soldiers in Malolos, picked up in January, who, without permission, went among them at Cavite and Caloocan. Am looking after them; providing money. Have captured over 1,500 insurgent soldiers since February 4. Hold majority as prisoners of war. Detrimental reports which reach the United States manufactured mostly in Hong-Kong. Troops here in splendid condition. OTIS."

THE PONTIFF WRITES A POEM

ROME, March 4.—The physicians of the pope say they are quite satisfied with his condition. When leaving the pontiff Friday evening they predicted for him a long life. Before going to sleep the pope wrote a poem, which was a description of his case as analogous to one which happened to Clement XII. He read the poem Friday morning to the doctors. The latter urgently advised abstinence from all movement if the patient wished to recover in five or six days.

This being the anniversary of the coronation of the pope, there were the usual ceremonies of flag hoisting and visits from prelates, nobilities and diplomats who inscribed their names in the visitors' book.

DEED OF A JEALOUS LOVER.

Kills His Sweetheart, Wounds a Hotel Keeper and a Woman, Then Gets Drunk and is Arrested.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 4.—In a fit of jealousy Friday night Frank Krauss, a hostler at the Cedarville hotel three miles west of Allentown, shot and instantly Maggie Good, a 20-year-old servant at the hotel. He also shot Owen Kern, the proprietor, in the head and abdomen, and he may die. Then he shot Mrs. Kern in the arm. Krause fled but was found at his brother's house hopelessly drunk.

Harry Orders Sent.

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 4.—The gunboat Wheeling has received orders to proceed with all haste to Manila and report to Adm. Dewey. The Wheeling will sail Friday with all bunkers full, 130 men and three weeks' provisions. The Wheeling has just returned from a six months' cruise in Alaskan waters.

Valuable Gold Bricks.

PHILADELPHIA, March 4.—Over 200 boxes, containing 1,704 gold bricks, valued at $10,121,634.05, were received at the mint in this city from the United States assay office in New York. The gold will be coined into ten and twenty-dollar gold pieces.

Blew Off His Head.

ERIE, Pa., March 4.—Romeyn Olds, a high-school boy, committed suicide early Friday morning in his bedroom, blowing the top of his head off with a shotgun.

TERRIFIC STORM.

Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Visited By Wind, Hail and Lightning.

Four Raftsmen Near Whitesburg, Tenn., Believed To Have Been Drowned—Considerable Live Stock Was Killed By Lightning.

ATHENS, Tenn., March 6.—A terrific cyclone passed over a portion of Madisonville and Monroe county with disastrous results. Early in the evening a strong wind arose, and, several hours later, a cyclone, about 70 yards wide, struck a portion of Madisonville, killing three persons, wounding 10 or 12 others and completely destroying 12 or 15 houses and several barns.

The killed are: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moser, Ed L. Horton. Wounded—Miss Willie Ervin, Miss Della Mason, Mrs. E. L. Horton, Mrs. L. A. Robinson, Mr. L. A. Robinson, Robert Robinson, Miss Rodgers, Mr. Moser, Prof. Charles Kelly.

The Horton and Robinson residences are both complete wrecks, not one timber being left above another on the foundations. The escape of the inmates of these two houses, eight in the Horton and three in the Robinson, seems miraculous, some of them being blown a distance of a hundred yards, yet escaping in some cases without a scratch.

W. F. Erwin's residence had one end torn away; Dillon Rogers' house is also a wreck; Erskine Lowry's residence moved the distance of 10 feet and was almost wrenched out of shape.

Telephone and telegraph wires are blown down and all communication shut off.

DECATUR, Ala., March 6.—A terrific storm of wind, hail and lightning struck this place Saturday night, doing great damage and causing the loss of four lives. The extent of the damage done was not apparent until Sunday. The huge tower of the long distance telephone company, 140 feet high, which carries the wires spanning the Tennessee river, was snapped like a reed. Several manufacturing plants are suspended on account of damage to buildings and machinery. Capt. Sim McKee, of the steamer Luke Pryor, plying between here and Chattanooga, came in Sunday and reports that he found a large raft below Whitesburg which had been broken up. The raft was managed by four white men who were evidently lost in the storm, as their boat was destroyed.

MARIETTA, Ga., March 6.—A terrific storm struck this city Saturday night, causing general alarm for some time. The roofs of several buildings were blown off and considerable damage was done by water.

ELBERTON, Ga., March 6.—Late Saturday night a severe storm struck Elberton. The courthouse was badly damaged and the new Episcopal church, which was just about completed, was totally demolished. Great damage to country property has also been reported.

WINDER, Ga., March 6.—This city was visited by a terrific hail, wind and lightning storm. Considerable live stock was killed by lightning and some damage done farm property.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., March 6.—A severe storm struck this place Saturday night. Large hailstones fell, doing considerable damage to plate glass windows and hot-houses. Several building were also damaged.

BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

One Thousand, Six Hundred and Thirty-Five Were Passed by the House During the Recent Session.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The house of representatives of the present congress has passed 1,635 bills and resolutions against 1,200 by the 54th, 951 by the 53d and 893 by the 52d congresses respectively. The work of the house for its three sessions appears as a new and valuable feature of the house calendar. This covers a recapitulation of the entire work and an appendix of over 50 pages, giving the status of every bill that has been reported to the house during the last two years. Under the title "army" 43 distinct measures are given. It presents at a glance full information on all the house has done on any subject. The appendix, index, etc., were prepared by Tally Clerk Wakefield, of the house staff.

Kipling's Improved Condition.

NEW YORK, March 6.—According to his physicians Rudyard Kipling is now far advanced on the way to recovery. All through the hours of Saturday night and early Sunday morning the favorable conditions increased. He slept peacefully many hours, and, when he awoke, it was clear that he had made another powerful stride toward health.

Ex-Vice President Stevenson's Mother Dead.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., March 6.—Mrs. Sarah Stevenson, mother of the former vice president, Adlai E. Stevenson, died at 2:30 Sunday morning after an illness of several weeks. She was 90 years of age.

Died at Masonic Home.

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 6.—William A. Athy, aged 91 years, of London, O., among the best known masons in the state, died Sunday at the Masonic home.

WINDING UP OF CONGRESS.

The Last Legislative Day Was One of Excitement, Confusion and Work—An All Night Session.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Excitement, confusion, heavy strain and hard work have characterized this, the last legislative day of the Fifty-fifth congress in the senate. At times the confusion was so great in this usually staid and decorous body as to [illegible] transaction of business almost impossible. Business that ordinarily would have the undivided attention of every senator on the floor was transacted amid so much noise that it was next to impossible to follow the proceedings.

Towards midnight order was being evolved from the seeming chaos of the early part of the day and evening and the prospect was fair that congress would adjourn at noon Saturday with its absolutely necessary work completed.

When the senate convened at 11 o'clock Friday morning it faced the task of considering two of the great appropriation bills, those for the army and for supplying the general deficiencies. The former carries appropriations exceeding $80,000,000 and the latter about $30,000,000. With a determination to complete the appropriation bills the senate began immediately at 11 o'clock in the morning to consider these measures, and at 8 o'clock Friday night the army bill was passed, the deficiency bill having been passed nearly three hours before.

A conference report on the Alaska criminal code bill was presented and agreed to.

A partial report on the sundry civil appropriation bill was agreed to but the inability of the senate conferees to secure an agreement on the Hawaiian cable proposition created a heated discussion, in the course of which Speaker Reed was alluded to in uncomplimentary terms.

Friday night when the river and harbor conference report was presented a debate upon the recession of the senate conferees from the senate amendment providing for reservoirs to irrigate arid lands at the headwaters of the Missouri river was precipitated by the advocates of the proposition. An effort was made to recommit the bill to the conferees, but it failed after an impassioned speech by Senator Frye, who submitted the report.

Crowded galleries looked down upon the struggling members of the house Friday, as the closing scenes of the last legislative day of this congress were being enacted. Step by step the leaders in charge of the appropriation bills pushed them through the final stages and during every lull in the consideration of conference reports members clamored for recognition for belated local bills in the vain hope of rescuing them from death on the calendar.

At times the house was like Bedlam. Pound as the speaker would with his gavel, it was almost impossible to preserve order, and to the casual visitor in the gallery proceedings on the floor must have been about as intelligible as an exciting day in the wheat pit would be to a parish priest. The noise and confusion on the floor, punctuated with the constant banging of the speaker's gavel or backgrounded with the droning voice of the clerk, irate members facing each other and talking at the same time, pages scurrying up and down the aisles, all this was utterly distracting. But the people in the galleries stayed on, and there were a dozen persons in line in the corridors waiting for every vacant seat so great is the attraction of a dying congress. Both houses were in session at an early hour Saturday morning.

The house passed the army appropriation bill with all senate amendments, and the bill now goes to the president.

A CONSERVATIVE MINISTRY.

Senor Silvela, Conservative Leader, Has Accepted the Task of Forming a Spanish Cabinet.

MADRID, March 4.—The queen regent, as the result of her consultations with the statesmen, generals and political leaders, informed Senor Sagasta that she desired to retain the present chamber, and she then invited him to reconstruct the cabinet.

Senor Sagasta replied that it would be impossible for him to remain premier without a dissolution.

Thereupon the queen regent referred the same request to Senor Montero Rios, president of the senate, who declined for the same reason.

Finally Senor Silvela, the conservative leader, accepted the task and it is expected that he will submit a conservative ministry to her majesty for her approval.

The newspapers predict that popular demonstrations will greet a conservative ministry.

Death of Daniel Scotten.

DETROIT, Mich., March 4.—Daniel Scotten, the wealthy retired tobacco manufacturer, died here Friday evening from a heart affection, aggravated by his extreme age, 80 years. He had been retired from business but a short time.

Kipling Improves Rapidly.

NEW YORK, March 4.—Rudyard Kipling continues to improve rapidly. His condition was satisfactory in every way and but one bulletin was issued Friday.

FRENCH HORROR.

Naval Powder Magazine At La Goubran Explodes With Bad Results.

Houses Destroyed, Trees Overturned and Distorted Fields Devastated and Covered With Stones and Debris—Tons of Powder Exploded.

TOULON, March 6.—The naval powder magazine of La Goubran between La Seyne and Toulon, in the department of Var, Southern France, exploded at half-past 2 o'clock Sunday morning.

All of the soldiers on duty at the magazine were killed and a number of inhabitants of the surrounding district in the buildings in which were razed also fell victims. Forty corpses have already been recovered. The cause of the explosion is not known.

The 50,000 kilogrammes of black powder exploded. It looks as though a volcanic eruption had occurred, the country being swept almost bare within a radius of two miles, houses destroyed, trees overturned and distorted, fields devastated and covered with stones and impalpable black dust. Some of the stones are enormous. One weighing 50 kilogrammes fell in the suburb of Pons de Las. Signs of the explosion are evident in all the suburbs of Toulon and in the city of itself. Even at St. Jean Dever, five miles distant, windows were shattered and doors battered in. Later reports show that of the seven sentries, four were killed outright and the others severely injured, the corporal being literally scalped and the scalp overhanging his face like a veil.

A large number of soldiers are now employed in clearing away the debris, but the work is very difficult.

It is impossible to ascertain accurately the number killed, but it is believed that no fewer than a hundred were injured.

Although it was a clear night, the explosion was so terrific as to produce a slight rainfall. Fortunately the neighboring magazines escaped. It is now believed that the explosion originated in chemical decomposition in smokeless powder. There is no suggestion of foul play. Sunday the whole city was in mourning, flags were at half mast, the theaters were draped and the casinos closed. Both the government and municipal authorities are forwarding relief funds. M. Lockroy, minister of marine, has telegraphed 10,000 francs toward the maintenance of the families of the victims, and a public subscription has been opened here.

The bodies found or recovered are terribly mutilated. Sixteen were found in the rocks near the shore and it is feared that others were precipitated into the sea. A vehicle moving along a road near the sea was lifted bodily into the water by the force of the explosion, two of its occupants being drowned.

Telegrams from Nice say the explosion was distinctly felt there.

THE END OF THE CONGRESS.

All the Appropriation Bills Were Passed and the National Legislature Adjourned Sine Die Saturday.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The river and harbor bill was agreed to and sent to the president, who signed it.

All the important appropriation bills were passed.

The Honolulu cable amendment in the sundry civil bill was stricken out by the conferees, enraging Stewart.

The armor plate amendment, limiting the price to be paid, was accepted.

Foraker amendment to the army appropriation bill was adopted.

At 12 o'clock the house and senate each turned the clock back 10 minutes. The vice president declared the senate adjourned without day at 12:08 p. m.

The house adjourned sine die at 12:10.

The house unanimously voted thanks to the speaker and the latter made a suitable reply, amid one of the most dramatic scenes in congress. The house closed by singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," cheers for Dewey, and the singing of the Doxology.

The senate voted thanks to Vice President Hobart and President Pro-tem. Frye. Mr. Hobart made a speech congratulating the senate and country on the history-making congress just closed.

Director of the Census.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Wm. R. Merriam, of Minnesota, was nominated by the president to be director of the census. The senate confirmed the nomination.

Anti-Scalping Bill Dead.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The bill providing that employes of government contractors shall not work more than eight hours a day and the anti-scalping bill were both defeated by not passing the senate and die with congress.

Died at the Age of 112.

ONEMEE, Ont., March 6.—Mary Ann Hanna died here Friday, aged 112. She was born in Ireland. She never married and was never photographed until last summer, when an excellent picture of her was secured.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—SENATE—The republican members of the senate military committee have agreed to accept the German amendment to the army reorganization bill. The army reorganization bill passed the senate at 7:45 Monday evening by a vote of 35 to 18. Monday night the senate took up the sundry civil bill and completed its reading, all the committee amendments being agreed to except those relating to the district of Columbia.

HOUSE—The house was in session seven hours Monday and sent to the senate two appropriation bills—the army, which has been [illegible] for several days, and the fortifications. The former carried about $70,000,000 and the latter approximately $47,000,000.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—SENATE—A frenzy of bill passing set in on the senate Tuesday. The bills passed were principally public building measures and at times during the day and night, the scenes in the senate were remarkable. Senators, usually staid and dignified, stickiers for order and decorum in the chamber, clamored for consideration of bills providing for the erection of government buildings in which they were interested.

HOUSE—The house spent practically the entire time of the seven-hour session Tuesday, passing the public building bills favorably acted upon by the committee on the whole. The opposition sought in vain to consume time by roll calls and other ministerial tactics at various times Tuesday, but their numbers were so slim that in no case could they secure a roll call.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—SENATE—The naval appropriation bill was passed Wednesday afternoon. The price to be paid by the government for armor plate was fixed in the bill at $300 a ton, a reduction of the amount fixed by the house of $345 a ton. In addition the secretary of the navy was authorized, in the event of the refusal of the armor plate companies to supply armor at $300 a ton, to proceed to the construction of an armor factory to cost $3,000,000, and placing in the secretary's control 30,000,000 with which to operate the government plant. The senate adopted resolutions of regret at the death of Lord Herschell, and concluded the day's session by pronouncing eulogies upon the late Representative Dingley.

HOUSE—The senate army reorganization bill was passed Wednesday. The decks were also cleared of many other important matters. The general deficiency appropriation bill, carrying with it $21,000,000, was passed under suspension of the rules without a word of criticism. This is the last of the appropriation bills. The senate amendments to the river and harbor bill were nonconcurred in and it was sent to conference, the friends of the Nicaragua canal amendment having decided to postpone their fight until the conferees report. The conference reports on the omnibus claim bill, the naval personnel and many other less important measures were agreed to. The senate bill making Dewey a full admiral was passed. The bill now goes to the president for his signature.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—SENATE—During almost the entire session Thursday the senate was engaged in routine business. Three score or more of minor bills were passed, the calendar being cleared entirely of private pension bills and of measures covering military and naval records. Two measures of national importance were passed, the fortifications' appropriation bill and the bill providing a code of criminal laws for the district of Alaska. A provision for the high licensing of the liquor traffic in the latter measure created considerable discussion and an effort was made to incorporate an absolute prohibition amendment, but is failed by a decisive vote.

HOUSE—No conference reports on appropriation bills were pressing at 5 o'clock Thursday evening, and the house therefore paid its last tribute of respect to the memory of the late Representative Hurley (N. Y.) by adjourning until Friday at 11 o'clock. An attempt was made to consider the resolutions reported by the judiciary committee declaring that Gen. Wheeler and the three other members who accepted commissions in the army had thereby vacated their seats, but the house, by an overwhelming vote, refused to consider them. The vote stood 77 ayes, cast by 51 republicans, 43 democrats and 13 populists, and 146 nays, cast by 101 republicans, 44 democrats and 1 populist. A half million dollars was appropriated for the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, and the Ohio Centennial at Toledo. The senate bill carrying $1,600,000 for a new building for the department of justice was passed, and two public building bills attached by the senate to bills for public buildings in other cities were agreed to.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—SENATE—The senate held an all day and night session Friday and Saturday morning. With a determination to complete the appropriation bills, the senate began immediately at 11 o'clock in the morning to consider the measures, and at 8 o'clock Friday night the army bill was passed, the deficiency bill having been passed nearly three hours before. A conference report on the Alaska criminal code bill was presented and agreed to. A partial report on the sundry civil appropriation bill was agreed to, but the inability of the senate conferees to secure an agreement on the Hawaiian cable proposition created a heated discussion, in the course of which Speaker Reed was alluded to in uncomplimentary terms. The Toledo exposition bill, carrying an appropriation bill of $500,000, was passed without debate.

HOUSE—The house held a night session lasting ong after midnight. The motion to concur in the Pacific cable amendment, modified so as to include the other amendment appropriating $250,000 for a cable steamer, was defeated, 77 to 102. Resolutions to give some house employes extra compensation developed some good-natured debate, which culminated in a sharp exchange between Mr. Grosvenor, and Mr. Talbert (dem., S. C.). But the ire displayed on both sides cooled rapidly, and the incident of fire with assurance of distinguished consideration on both sides. The motion to concur in senate amendment for a government armor factory was lost, 88 to 127, and the measure went to conference.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—SENATE—Vice President Hobart declared the senate of the Fifty-fifth congress adjourned Saturday at 12:08 o'clock. It was after a continuous session, beginning at 11 o'clock on Friday, with the exception of one hour's recess during the forenoon. All the appropriation bills were disposed of by the senate. The resolutions thanking Vice President Hobart and President Pro Tem Frye were adopted, the vice president responding in an appropriate address, and then the senate, which had been in a turmoil for several days, quietly came to an end.

HOUSE—The last legislative act of the house was the passage of a joint resolution authorizing the acceptance by the United States of the cession of a tract of land from the state of Massachusetts needed to extend the lines of the Boston navy yard. It was now 11:45 by the clock, but the assistant doorkeeper, with a long pole set back the hands ten minutes. This occasioned a loud laugh. Suddenly some members down near the rostrum began singing, and above the din rose the strains of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty." The air was taken up, the galleries caught the inspiration and, as if by a man, everybody rose and joined in the singing until, as one grand chorus, thousands were voicing the beautiful words of the national anthem. The house adjourned sine die with the singing of the doxology.

Adm. Dewey's Thanks.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Adm. Dewey Saturday cabled Secretary Long as follows:

"MANILA, March 4.—Please accept for yourself, the president and congress and my countrymen my heartfelt thanks for the great honor which has been conferred upon me.

"DEWEY."

Omnibus Claims Bill Signed.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The president has signed the omnibus claims bill.

N. S. Riley has a ewe that gave birth last week to a lamb that weighed 17 pounds.—Owen Herald.

Ollie Beatty, of Ohio county, was arrested on the charge of making counterfeit money. He gave bail in the sum of $300.

The county election commission has declared the local option election held at Richmond last November and won by the temperance people, null and void.

There is no doubt about the quail. Hundreds of them pirished, being unable to keep warm and support themselves during that ten days of weather.—Anderson News.

R. Lelan Moore, son of editor C. C. Moore, went to Washington, last week, bearing petitions asking the President to pardon his father, who is in the penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio.

On its way to the cemetery in Bracken county, a funeral procession discovered a house on fire, and stopped until those following the corpse put the fire out and saved the man's home.

Near Leitchfield, Tim Crail, 16, and a man named Hunter were getting out railroad ties one day last week. Both had axes and were cutting on the same tie, when Hunter's ax struck the tie, glanced and struck Crail's neck, almost severing the head from the body. Crail ran fifty yards to a fence, where he fell exhausted and expired.

The first report of the new Prison Commission has been presented to Gov. Bradley. It shows both prisons to be in good condition, and the Frankfort penitentiary, it is claimed, will soon be self-sustaining, while it is hoped to reduce the deficit at Eddyville so that profits at Frankfort will cover it. Several improvements are recommended. There are 1,352 prisoners at Frankfort and 499 at Eddyville.

A good many Stanford people have concluded they don't like bologna sausage as well as they used to, since Dr. O'Bannon says a medical journal reported a case where some fellow in the East went mad after eating a piece of bologna made from a dog that was killed with hydrophobia. I hope this paragraph will not interfere in the sale of bologna by Harrodsburg merchants.—Harrodsburg Sayings.

In one of the lower counties recently a ragged, dirty, disreputable tramp stole a pair of oxen and sold them. A shrewd young lawyer undertook his defense, and when the case was called a well dressed, clean shaven, good looking man took his seat in the dock. The change was so great that none of the men who had sec[illegible] with the oxen were able to completely identify him and he was acquitted.—Winchester Democrat.

CROP AND STOCK.

The winter wheat crop of North Nebraska was badly damaged by the recent cold.

Richard May, a large grower of Breckinridge county, says it is a mistake to plow tobacco.

The annual spring meeting of the Kentucky Swine Breeders' Association will be held at Hopkinsville on April 18th.

The Continental Tobacco Co., made a purchase of about 200,000 pounds of tobacco in the county last week.—Owen News.

Farmers of Shelby county report that more lambs were frozen to death during the recent below zero weather than ever before.

The tobacco growers of Owen county have organized a permanent league for fighting the trusts. The league will meet regularly.

Wheat in Madison county has been so badly damaged by the hard freezes that many acres of it will be plowed for corn this spring.

Nearly 50 horses have died of cerebro spinal meningitis, in Breckinridge county. In a few hours after the horses are taken they die with great agony.

About 400 cattle at Danville on court day. There was a good demand and good cattle sold from 4 to 5½ cents. Seventy-five good two-year olds, of 650 lbs. weight, sold at $1.75.

Nothing has ever improved the cattle of America like the importing of shorthorns. They have raised average weight 200 to 300 pounds, reduced the selling age a whole year, and have also increased the selling price.

A well-known cattle trader of Clark county informed us that he had heard of endeavors to buy cattle for delivery this summer at five cents per pound, but the offer was refused by the farmers.—Winchester Democrat.

The farmers in Christian county are divided in opinion in regard to the prospect for a peach crop this season. Some report the buds are apparently killed and the trees greatly damaged, while others claim they are unhurt.

John Dickerson, the well-known horseman of Goshen, N. Y., purchased from Warren Stoner, Robert G. Stoner, a brown horse, by Baron Wilkes, dam Stella Belmont, 2:19½, for $5,000. This horse is very fast, having been miles below 2:10, and is without a record.

It is a significant fact that every year just about the time farmers begin to burn their tobacco beds the market becomes animated and prices rapidly advance. The same old racket is now being played in the leaf markets with a vengeance. Let not growers again be caught by this game.

Christian county farmers are agitating the question of building a grain elevator in this city. At the last meeting of the Church Hill Grange a resolution was passed in favor of a movement being set on foot looking toward the organization of a company to undertake the work.—Hopkinsville New Era.

Kansas farmers have recently been buying horses in Chicago, at $50 to $75 per head, designated as plain business purpose chunks. A recent consignment from Iowa of Shire and Percheron horses sold at Chicago at high prices, at $200 and over; a pair of Norman geldings weighing 3900 lbs. sold at $475. A cross of Shire and Percheron for draft purposes is deservedly popular, especially for export.

While sprouting of potatoes under ordinary conditions is very objectionable they may be so sprouted as to materially advance their earliness. This is done by placing them end down in single layers in shallow trays on the floor in a light and moderately warm room. Thus placed they will send out short, stubby green sprouts which will remain in that condition for weeks. Such potatoes planted without breaking the sprouts, will grow immediately and produce an early crop.

Farmers intending to raise tobacco the coming season ought to have fresh new seed and then sow a big bed so as to have plants sufficient to put out their crop at one setting, and early by all means. Most of the seed used the past few years is run out, and is old seed that has been used for years. Get the best seed, have the best of plants all set at one time and then you will have the finest tobacco, good in color, uniform, and of superior quality. Only the best crops ever pay a decent profit.—Warsaw Independent.

F. H. Dean, of Dean Bros., who have an orchard of 40,000 peach trees at Marble Hill, near Madison, Ind., reports that all seed fruit was killed during the recent cold wave—peaches, plums and cherries [illegible] common fate. Mr. Dean says the buds begin to form in February, and he never knew them to stand more than 12 degrees below zero at this time of the year. It is possible, in his judgment, that apples are not seriously injured, as they are seldom "winter killed." Not only was the fruit killed, as stated, but Mr. Dean reports that many trees were destroyed.

E. M. Coots, coroner of Clark co., Ind., is probably the only man in Southern Indiana who owns a genuine live horned horse. The animal is of thoroughbred Kentucky stock and was bought by Coroner Coots in this county when it was a colt. At that time nothing particular was noticed about the colt, but as it matured a small bump appeared under each ear. Horns sprouted and are now about four inches long. They curl like those of a ram. They are flexible and look like leather. Each succeeding spring the horns disappear, to be renewed with a new and slightly larger pair. The animal is eight years old and a handsome bay, and is used by the coroner in his travels.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier.]

The Fiscal Court, by its County Attorney, has filed suit in the Grant Circuit Court to oust the City and Suburban Telephone Company from the right of way of the Covington and Lexington turnpike road. Several years ago the Fiscal Court granted to this Telephone Company the right to erect poles and string wires along the right of way of this old road. provided the company would maintain a station at Williamstown, Corinth and Crittenden. The company erected nearly 500 of their poles on the right of way of said road without paying one cent for the privilege of doing so, but have utterly failed and refused to erect and maintain the local stations within the county and Grant county is to-day without telephone connection of any kind, although there is a long distance line through the heart of the county. The petition of the county court is to compel the company to specifically perform their contract, and if that cannot be done that they be compelled to remove their poles and wires from the right of way of the county's highways, and it also asks for $1,000 damages for their failure to perform their contract under the original contract.

Henry Bonar finished delivering his large crop of tobacco last week. The crop made nearly 23,000 and was one of the best delivered this season, and brought over $1,700. This together with the other crops grown by him this year amount to over $2,000.

The Chain gang from the jail was put out on the 'pikes' again last Monday, and will be continued at work as long as the weather will permit. They are accomplishing quite a good deal of good work. Llewelyn Sims and James Gouge are guarding the prisoners and putting in their own time at road work.

THE impression in Congressional circles is that the administration did much more hurrahing than there was any occasion for over the action of the German government in announcing that it had ordered the single warship it had at Manila away and its request that this government take all German citizens in the Philippines under its protection. It is a good guess that this move on the part of Germany was actuated by a desire to make it easy for its citizens in the Philippines to collect money from the U. S. for damage done to their property by the Filipinos.

"Senator Gray, of Deleware," says the Dispatch, "is to be rewarded for his services to the administration by a life place on the Federal bench. He is one of the few gold Democrats 'recogized' by McKinley."

SETTLE and Reah have made their reputations as orators in the House, and they are recognized as among the greatest orators Kentucky ever sent to the national capital.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1899. NO. 21.

As no one has accepted our invitation to present the constitutional amendments indicated by us in our former articles published in your paper, recently, we will now suggest the following act, resolutions and sections for that purpose:

An act amending the present constitution in relation to the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

Whereas, The present inferior Court System of the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the practice therein has become burdensome and very expensive to, and too far removed from the people, who pay the costs and expenses thereof by taxation and otherwise. Now, for the purpose of simplifying the said court system and reducing the costs and expenses thereof and bringing it near to the people,

That so much of the present constitution of the Commonwealth of Kentucky as relates to the inferior courts thereof, to-wit: Sections Nos. 125 to 141 inclusive, be abolished and held for naught and void, after the enactment and adoption of the inhereafter set-out provisions to be substituted therefor, and in lieu thereof, and the enactment of the necessary acts thereunder to put said new system in operation, be passed in relation to the inferior courts of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, which said provisions are as follows, to-wit:

County Courts.—Establishment of in each county.

§ 1. A county court shall be established in and for each county now existing or which may hereafter be created in this Commonwealth.

§ 2. Jurisdiction regulated by legislation: The jurisdiction of said county court, shall be the same in every particular as now established, as the jurisdiction of the present circuit, quarterly and county courts of each county in the Commonwealth of Kentucky, hereby giving to the General Assembly the power to change it.

§ 3. Appeals, writs of error, legislature to regulate: The right to appeal or sue out a writ of error from said county courts to the Court of Appeals, shall be the same as now exists in relation to the right of appeal and writ of error taken from circuit, quarterly and county courts to the Court of Appeals, hereby giving the General Assembly the right to change or modify said right.

§ 4. Election, term of office, removal from county, vacates: At the general election in 1897, and every six years thereafter, there shall be an election held for judges of the county courts, who shall hold their offices for six years from the first Monday in January succeeding their election. Said county judges shall be commissioned by the Governor, but shall be removed in the same manner as the Judges of the Court of Appeals. The removal of a county judge from his county shall vacate his office.

§ 5. Qualifications of county judge: No person shall be eligible as judge of the county court who is less than thirty years of age when elected, who is not a citizen of Kentucky and a resident of the county in which he may be a candidate, two years preceding his election, and who has not been a practicing lawyer five years.

§ 6. Terms of county court: There shall be at least a regular term of the county court held in each county, every month of the year and same may be continued from day to day, if the business of said county demand it, until the end of each month.

§ 7. Salary of county judges: The judges of the county court shall, at stated times, receive for their services an adequate compensation to be fixed by law, which shall be equal and uniform throughout the State, so far as the same shall be paid out of the State Treasury.

§ 8. Courts provided for in constitution: No courts save those provided for in this constitution, shall be established.

§ 9. Special judges, legislature to provide for: The General Assembly shall provide by law for holding county courts where from any cause the judge shall fail to attend, or, if in attendance, can not properly preside.

§ 10. Counties entitled to four judges, clerk, criminal cases: Each county having a population of 150,000 or over, shall be entitled to four county judges. Additional judges for said county may, from time to time, be authorized by the General Assembly, but not to exceed one judge for each increase of 40,000 population in said county, to be ascertained by the last enumeration. Each judge in said county shall hold a separate court, except when a general term may be held for the purpose of making rules of court or as may be required by law: Provided, no general term shall have power to review any order, decision or proceeding of any branch of the court in said county made in separate term. There shall be one clerk for such county, who shall be known as the county clerk of the county. Criminal cases shall be under the exclusive jurisdiction of some one branch of said court, and all other litigation in said county of which the county court may have jurisdiction, shall be distributed as equally as may be between the other branches thereof, in accordance with the rules of the court made in general term or as may be prescribed by law.

§ 11. Additional judges: Each county having a city of 20,000 inhabitants, and a population, including said city of 40,000 or more, when its population reaches 75,000 the General Assembly may provide that said county shall have an additional judge, and said county may have a judge for each additional 50,000 population above 100,000; and in such counties the General Assembly shall, by proper law, direct in what manner the court shall be held and the business therein conducted.

It is said that the administration no longer has any use for Tom Reed as Speaker of the House, and has set about to defeat his reelection. Reed is in the habit of doing his own thinking and forming opinions of his own, regardless of the occupant of the White House, and they are very often in direct conflict with the desires of the party bosses, to whom he will not yield. Being somewhat of a boss himself Reed will not be bossed, and for that reason the administration wants him replaced by a putty man.

The President has added nothing to his strength in Kentucky by appointing Walter Evans, of Louisville, United States District Judge in preference to ex-Judge W. H. Holt. Holt is recognized by Democrats and Republicans as an able, conscientious man, while Evans has no record other than that of a politician who has made it his study how to reward friends and punish enemies.

The Georgetown Times says that "some general plan, better than now prevails for keeping the pikes in order must be adopted." They have free turnpikes in Scott, a county where they can be kept up as easily as anywhere in the State, yet in one year's time the roads are in a very bad condition.

The pardon seekers' carnival will shortly be held at Frankfort. Gov. Bradley intends to leave the State for a few weeks' vacation, and Gov. Worthington will have another full swing with the pardon mill, which he generally operates at its full capacity.

President McKinley will spend his vacation in Georgia, the guest of Senator Hanna. While in seclusion the President and the Senator will lay a few plans for landing Mr. McKinley in the White House for a second term.

Some of the county papers use too much abuse in their efforts to assist their friends in their canvass for the nomination for State offices. They do not pursue that course in the matter of local campaigns.

"Thank you, good lady, I am not a Hobson," said W. J. Bryan to a woman who sidled up to him in a crowd at a depot where his train stopped, the other day, and asked to be kissed by him.

The Alabama Legislature has appropriated $5,740,000 to be used in building good roads and for sewer and sanitary purposes in that State. The money is to be handled by the counties.

The war on canned beef has deposed it as an army ration.

Two Democratic Leaders.

We reprint the following article from the Washington Post, because it was an opponent of Mr. Bryan's in 1896, and doubtless will oppose him next year, but there is manliness about the Post to do an opponent justice. Contrast this article with what you read daily in the Louisville papers that oppose Mr. Bryan and you can guage their so called independence in politics. The "Independence" they boast, is of that variety that finds nothing among Democrats to commend, and nothing among Republicans to condemn. Read these ringing words from a manly opponent.

"Perhaps it would be better to describe them as one leader and one back number—we refer to William J. Bryan and Grover Cleveland—for the former is alert, ... instinct life and vigor, strenous, enthusiastic, virile, and the latter reeks with dullness and got gangrene of mugwumpery. Cleveland left his party weaker, more incoherent, and more discordant than he found it. Bryan took up the dying embers of its spirit and fanned them into raging flames. He gave his party inspiration, fervor, hope. He animated and revived it. Despite the desertions and the treacheries wrought by vanity and avarice in 1896, he developed some 700,000 more votes than had ever been cast for any Democratic candidate before, including Mr. Cleveland, and he gave to the country the spectacle of an ardent, united, and homogenous party organization. While Mr. Cleveland, thrice the nominee of a Democratic National Convention and indebted to the party for all his eminence and prosperity, Mr. Cleveland sat apart, a sullen conspirator against his quondam benefactors, encouraging infidelity, and lauding party wickedness. Bryan flamed in the forefront of battle, a striking and invigorating figure, the incarnation of youth and strength and ardor. He relit the fires of Democratic zeal. He gave the party life, put the blood into its veins and set its pulses throbbing. He held thousands in the grasp of his imperious eloquence and sent them from him tuned to loyalty and heroism. He took the dead carcass of the Democracy from the ground upon which his predecessor had contemptuously flung it, and filled it with the fire and the joy of youth.

"Say what one may as to the soundness of the doctrine of Mr. Bryan, there can be no two opinions as to the quality of his leadership. Mr. Cleveland hid himself in the temple of his party, solemn, owlish, heavy as a pagan idol, but Mr. Bryan took the vanguard of his army and led it a palpitating and inspired force, into the red vortex of the fight. The one was an oracle, hid away in caves, veiled in mystery, manifesting himself in rumblings and strange noises. The other an impetuous apostle with bright sword and flashing armor, cleft the war for those that followed him. No doubt there are doting and infatuated idolaters who still await another advent of the mugwump fetch. But the Democracy on the fighting line have done with ecstacy and superstition. He who leads them next year must be a thing of flesh and blood—warrior himself."

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier.]

As Clark Littell was returning to his home on Wednesday afternoon of last week, after finishing some work on his farm near Cherry Grove, he was astonished to find in a field a very large lamb, and to satisfy his curiosity he weighed and measured the youngster, resulting as follows: weight 23 pounds, height 22 inches. It is still living and gives promise of making a valuable animal.

It is out at last. One of Williamstown's oldest old bachelors is going to take unto himself a wife and become a benedict. He has been contemplating this step for the last 30 years, but has never had sufficient courage up to this hour to cross the Rubicon. But the die is cast and the day is set and the deed will be done. The Courier is not at liberty to announce the wedding nuptials, but suffice it to say that the Colonel belongs to the "old guard" and is one of the most popular and affable of the bachelor fraternity of Williamstown. He is also very rich and very jolly and has friends without number. He and his bride will take a six months trip to the Pacific slope, stopping two weeks at Salt Lake City, and a similar period at San Francisco and Los Angeles.

In the last three weeks three children have died in Grant county of a disease resembling leprosy.

Condition of Crops and Live Stock March 1st, 1899.

Reports were received this month from 153 correspondents, representing 98 counties.

It may be well to restate in this, the first report of the year, the boundaries of the sections into which the State, for the sake of convenience and accuracy, is divided and the reasons for the separation. The irregular contour of the counties makes it impracticable to divide upon straight lines in any given course. Again, it is advisable to separate the "dark tobacco" district in the west part of the State from the Burley district of the central and eastern portion. Likewise it is desirable to separate the counties in the eastern and southeastern portion, where the production of any crop rarely exceeds the home demand and where the percentage of increase or decrease affects in a small measure only the actual production of the State, from the other sections producing a large surplus. To meet all these varied conditions the following divisions appear to us as the best to be devised:

The western sections composes 39 counties west of an irregular line drawn from the eastern boundary of Allen on the south, the intervening counties of Larue, Hart and Barren being placed in the western section. The central, or to be more accurate, the north central section, embraces 40 counties lying east of the above described boundary and northeast of an irregular line drawn from the eastern boundary of Lewis county on the northeast of Laure county in the southeast, the intervening counties of Bath, Montgomery, Clark, Madison, Lincoln, Boyle and Marion being in the central section. The eastern or southeastern section is composed of the remaining 40 counties lying southeast of the above-described lines.

Wheat.—The condition of the wheat crop December 1st, the date of the last report, was 94, compared with average years. As set out in that report there was a lengthy interval between the early sown and the late sown wheat due to an unusually wet October, wheat sowing being suspended for the greater portion of the month. The early sown wheat attained a growth that promised to withstand any weather test to which it might be subjected. This promise has been realized, and at this date early wheat is generally reported in excellent condition. Late sown wheat was barely above ground at the advent of winter, and the severe weather it has encountered, both in the early and latter parts of winter, has left it in a condition that may be aptly described as a "blue prospect." Whole fields now appear without a vestige of growth above ground and, while a few correspondents venture the opinion that the roots are uninjured, it will take some weeks of warm growing weather to develop the full extent of damage. As a rule there was an ample covering of snow during the extreme cold weather of February, but, falling as it did on almost solid sheet of ice, the benign effects of the protection was in a measure lost.

Answer to the question "Has wheat suffered from any cause during the winter? If so state cause," resulted in replies from 115 correspondents, of which number 97 state that wheat suffered from "freeze," and 18 say it has not been appreciably damaged during the winter.

The condition for the State as a whole, compared with average years is 80, which is a loss of 14 points since December 1st. For the three preceding years the condition on March 1st was as follows: 1898, 92; 1897, 88, 1896, 88.

The three sections separately show the following average condition as of this date: Western, 70; central, 85, and eastern, 88.

The per cent. of crop of 1898 still in the hands of farmers is estimated at 26. On March 1st, 1898, it was estimated that 17 per cent. of crop of preceding year was then in the hands of farmers. On March 1st 1897, a similar estimate showed 9 per cent. of the old crop in farmers' hands.

The price of wheat March 1st averages 68c. On March 1st, 1898, the average price was 90c., and March 1st, 1897, the price was 84c.

Corn.—Estimate on the percentage of corn crop of 1898 still in farmers' hands gives the amount at 42 per cent. On March 1st, 1898, the per cent. of crop of preceding year in hands of farmers was 44.

Livestock—The trying effects of the unusually severe winter on live stock has to some extent been mitigated by the abundance of feed. Still, among young stock and stock unprovided with shelter, the loss has been heavy and the suffering intense. The heaviest loss has been with lambs and young pigs. Some correspondents estimate the loss of lambs at 33 1-3 per cent. of the crop. Recent experience should impress upon farmers the economy of providing ample shelter for stock during the months of bad weather.

The condition of the various classes of live stock averages as follows: Horses, 94; cattle, 90; sheep, 89, and hogs, 90. The condition March 1st, 1898, were 96, 95, 88 and 91 respectively.

Replies to the question "Have you hog cholera?" show a notable absence of this common disease. 113 correspondents answer in the negative and but 31 in the affirmative.

The period from February 6th to 14th will be long remembered as a season of phenomenal low temperature. Remarkable not only for the low temperature recorded, but also for pertinacity with which this temperature was maintained. Covering a period of some ten days the mercury rose above the zero mark. Minima of 10 to 25 and even as low as 30 degrees below zero were reported during this time. In addition to the loss and suffering of live stock already noted the injury to the fruit crop is far reaching. Peaches will not only be a failure this year, but the damage to trees is such that the crops for several years to come will be affected. The same is true of cherries and plums, with the possible exception of sour cherries. Pears, though injured to some extent, still promise a fair yield. Apples have escaped injury save the injury to trees from heavy sleet in some sections.

Of the small fruits raspberries have suffered most and will probably be a failure. It is feared, too, that the injury extends to the wild blackberries. Strawberries have escaped injury so far.

CROP AND STOCK.

William R. Woods' tobacco barn at Fairview burned. Loss $5000.

Madison farmers, from all sources claim that owing to the hard freezes the wheat crop will be almost an entire failure; only that sown very early will be worth harvesting.

It is the prevailing sentiment of many breeders that the sow that farrows on an average eight pigs is more profitable than one that will drop a dozen or more.

Let the pigs take exercise. Have charcoal, salt and sulphur where they can get it, taking due caution at first lest they get too much. Feed lighter and usually there will be no more trouble.

A prominent hog buyer in Cincinnati in answer to an inquiry as to his observations on this point, said: "The Berkshire hog has the best back of any hog that lives, but a poor belly as it is too thin."

A Southern exchange tells of a farmer who keeps a flock of geese for the special purpose of paying his taxes, which they easily did with their feathers and goslings. The same man kept a flock of sheep which paid his grocery bills.

Sheep are very fond of salt and should have what they want of it. The sheep are the best judges, however, of how much they want; so do not make the mistake of mixing it to excess with their food. Give them some lumps of rock salt under shelter where it will not dissolve by rain, and let them take what they will.

Mr. W. S. McCord, the well-known fruit grower of the Gratz neighborhood, was in Owenton last Thursday, the first time in a long while, having just recovered from a spell of grip. He is very despondent about the fruit prospects, and says there will be practically none. He has over 8,000 peach trees, none of which will bear this year, and they are apparently all killed. He examined a number of the trees and found them entirely killed. Of his 122 pear trees the tops of nearly all are killed, but may possibly bud out again. Plums are mostly killed and apples badly damaged. The May cherries are about the only fruit that Mr. McCord expects anything from. He says the blackberries and raspberries are killed beyond redemption.—Owen Herald.

It's said that the Filipino army has been cut in two by the American forces, and a big capture of prisoners will soon result.

POLITICAL.

It is said that the proposed Republican harmony jubilee may not materialize.

Railroad men will meet at Louisville March 19 to discuss gubernatorial candidates.

It is strongly intimated that Senator Lindsay will not be a candidate to succeed himself. In fact, there is a certainty that Senator Lindsay will not succeed himself in the United States Senate from Kentucky.—Henderson Journal.

The "Born in Ohio' label," muses the Washington Post, "is becoming as numerous as the 'Made in Germany' trade-marks." And each class of goods, it might be added, has the common characteristic of cheapness.—Courier Journal.

The esteemed Commercial hopes that "Col. Evans" will remember the Republicans who defeated him in his race for Congress last November. Since he is now "Judge Evans," every right-minded citizen hopes he may do nothing of the sort. Judge Evans will disgrace the office if he endeavers to avenge the wrongs done to Col. Evans.—Dispatch.

"Kentucky Republicans never entered upon a State campaign under such favorable conditions as they will this year," says the Hartford Republican. Yes, indeed, there are great chunks of harmony in the Republican ranks. There's John D. White scattering tacks in the bicycle path of Congressman Boreing; John Henry Wilson vowing vengeance on Congressman Pugh; the Governor referring to Senator Deboe as a d—n fool; Evans and Todd carrying knives for each other; Jolly putting trouble in the way of Franks' crowd, and factions of the Republican party in all parts of the State ready to fly at each others throats. There are many reasons for believing the Republicans will get together when the Kilkenny fight is over.—Paducah News.

The Third Railroad District Committee met in Lexington on the 8th inst., and issued the following call for a convention to nominate a Democratic candidate for Railroad Commissioner. The convention will be held in Winchester on the 26th of April:

"Resolved, That a district convention shall be held in the Third Railroad District of Kentucky on Wednesday, April 26, 1899, for the purpose of nominating a Democratic candidate for Railroad Commissioner in said district. Said convention will meet in the city of Winchester at 10 o'clock p. m. Delegates to said convention shall be chosen at county mass conventions, to be held at various county seats in the district at 2 o'clock p. m., Saturday, April 15th, 1899.

"That the basis of representation from each county to the district convention shall be one delegate for every 200 votes and each fraction over 100 votes cast for the head of the Democratic electoral ticket at the Presidential election in 1896."

"That all known Democrats and others who will pledge themselves to support the nominee of said district convention shall be entitled to participate in the county conventions to select delegates.

CHURCH NEWS.

As soon as the weather will permit work will be resumed on the colored Baptist church at Providence.

The meeting at the Mt. Sterling Baptist Church, conducted by Dr. W. K. Penrod, of Paducah, closed with 15 additions.

On March 1st, Prof. J. W. McGarvey, of Lexington, was 70 years old. The faculty and students of the Bible College presented him with a reclining chair.

The Central Methodist, of Louisville, has established a branch editorial office in Paris for Kentucky Conference news, which will be in charge of the Rev. E. G. B. Mann.

A movement is on foot at Santiago to persuade the United States Government to buy San Juan Hill for a public park. It is said the land can be had for a reasonable figure.

The First Christian church of Louisville, made a great showing in their offering for missions on Sunday week. The church has a membership of something over one thousand. Their offering amounted to about $2,500, or more than $2 per member.

BITTERNESS OF LIFE.

Dr. Talmage Draws a Contrast Between Selfishness and Kindness.

Should Make the World a Pleasant Place—Scatterers of Wormwood Are Likened to Attila the Hun.

The contrast between a life of selfishness and a life of kindness is set forth by Dr. Talmage while discoursing upon the baleful character of a conqueror of olden time; text, Revelation viii. 10, 11: "There fell a great star from heaven, burning as it were a lamp, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers and upon the fountains of water, and the name of the star is called Wormwood."

Patrick and Lowth, Thomas Scott, Matthew Henry, Albert Barnes and some other commentators say that the star Wormwood of my text was a type of Attila, king of the Huns. He was so called because he was brilliant as a star, and like wormwood, he embittered everything he touched. We have studied the Star of Bethlehem and the Morning Star of Revelation and the Star of Peace, but my subject calls us to gaze at the star Wormwood, and my theme might be called "Brilliant Bitterness."

A more extraordinary character history does not furnish than this man Attila, the king of the Huns. The story goes that one day a wounded heifer came limping along through the fields, and a herdsman followed its bloody tracks on the grass to see where the heifer was wounded, and went on back farther and farther until he came to a sword fast in the earth, the point downward, as though it had dropped from the heavens, and against the edges of this sword the heifer had been cut. The herdsman pulled up that sword and presented it to Attila. Attila said that sword must have dropped from the heavens from the grasp of the god Mars, and its being given to him meant that Attila should conquer and govern the whole earth. Other mighty men have been delighted at being called liberators, or the Merciful, or the Good, but Attila called himself and demanded that others call him "the Scourge of God."

At the head of 700,000 troops, mounted on Cappadocian horses, he swept everything from the Adriatic to the Black sea. He put his iron heel on Macedonia and Greece and Thrace. He made Milan and Pavia and Padua and Verona beg for mercy, which he bestowed not. The Byzantine castles, to meet his ruinous levy, put up at auction massive silver tables and vases of solid gold. When a city was captured by him, the inhabitants were brought out and put into three classes. The first class, those who could bear arms, must immediately enlist under Attila or be butchered; the second class, the beautiful women, were made captives to the Huns; the third class, the aged men and women, were robbed of everything and let go back to the city to pay a heavy tax.

It was a common saying that the grass never grew where the hoof of Attila's horse had trod. His armies reddened the waters of the Seine and the Moselle and the Rhine with carnage and fought on the Catalonian plains the fiercest battles since the world stood—300,000 dead left on the field. On and on until all those who could not oppose him with arms lay prostrate on their faces in prayer, then a cloud of dust was seen in the distance, and a bishop cried: "It is the aid of God," and all the people took up the cry: "It is the aid of God." As the cloud of dust was blown aside the banners of reenforcing armies marched in to help against Attila, "the Scourge of God." The most unimportant occurrences he used as a supernatural resource. After three months of failure to capture the city of Aquileia, when his army had given up the siege, the flight of a stork and her young from the tower of the city was taken by him as a sign that he was to capture the city, and his army, inspired with the same occurrence, resumed the siege and took the walls at a point from which the stork had emerged.

Since on the evening of his marriage by his bride, Ildico, who was hired for the assassination, his followers bewailed him not with tears, but with blood, cutting themselves with knives and lances. He was put into three coffins, the first of iron, the second of silver and the third of gold. He was buried by night, and into his grave were poured the most valuable coins and precious stones, amounting to the wealth of a kingdom. The gravediggers and all those who assisted at the burial were massacred, so that it would never be known where so much wealth was entombed.

The Roman empire conquered the world, but Attila conquered the Roman empire. He was right in calling himself a scourge, but instead of being "the Scourge of God" he was the scourge of hell.

Because of his brilliancy and bitterness the commentators might well have supposed him to be the star Wormwood of the text. As the regions he devastated were parts most opulent with fountains and streams and rivers, you see how graphic my text is: "There fell a great star from heaven, burning as it were a lamp, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers and upon the fountains of waters, and the name of the star is called Wormwood."

Have you ever thought how many embittered lives there are all about us, misanthropic, morbid, acrid, saturnine? The European plant from which wormwood is extracted, Artemisia absinthium, is a perennial plant, and all the year round it is ready to exude its oil, and in many human lives there is a perennial distillation of acrid experiences. Yes, there are some whose whole work is to shed a baleful influence on others. There are Attilas of the home, Attilas of the social circle, Attilas of the church, Attilas of the state, and one-third of the waters of all the world, if not two-thirds the waters are poisoned by the falling of the star Wormwood. It is not uncomplimentary to human nature that most men, as soon as they get great power, become overbearing. The more power men have the better, if their power be used for good. The less power men have the better, if they use it for evil.

Birds circle round and round and round before they swoop upon that which they are aiming for. And if my discourse so far has been swinging round and round, this moment it drops straight on your heart and asks the question: Is your life a benediction to others or an imbitterment, a blessing or a curse, a balsam or a wormwood? Some of you, I know, are morning stars, and you are making the dawning life of your children bright with gracious influences, and you are beaming upon all the opening enterprises of philanthropic and Christian endeavor, and you are heralds of that day of gospelization which will yet flood all the mountains and valleys of our sin accursed earth. Hail, morning star! Keep on shining with encouragement and Christian hope!

Some of you are evening stars, and you are cheering the last days of old people, and, though a cloud sometimes comes over you through the querulousness or unreasonableness of your aged father and mother, it is only for a moment, and the star soon comes out clear again and is seen from all the balconies of the neighborhood. The old people will forgive your occasional shortcomings, for they themselves several times lost their patience with you when you were young, and perhaps whipped you when you did not deserve it. Hail, evening star! Hung on the darkening sky your diamond coronet.

But are any of you the star Wormwood? Do you scold and growl from the thrones paternal or maternal? Are your children everlastingly pecked at? Are you always crying "Hush!" to the merry voices and swift feet and to the laughter which occasionally trickles through at wrong times and is suppressed by them until they can hold it no longer, and all the barriers burst into unlimited guffaw and exclamation, as in this weather the water has trickled through a slight opening in the mildam, but afterward makes wider and wider breach until it carries all before it with irresistible freshet? Do not be too much offended at the noise your children now make. It will be still enough when one of them is dead. Then you would give your right hand to hear one shout from the silent voice or one step from the still foot. You will not any of you have to wait very long before your house is stiller than you want it. Alas, that there are so many homes not known to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, where children are whacked and cuffed and scarified, and senselessly called to order, and answered sharply, and suppressed, until it is a wonder that under such processes they do not all turn out Nana Sahibs!

What is your influence upon the neighborhood, the town or the city of your residence? I will suppose that you are a star of wit. What kind of rays do you shoot forth? Do you use that splendid faculty to irradiate the world or to rankle it? I bless all the apostolic college of humorists. The man that makes me laugh is my benefactor. I do not thank anybody to make me cry. I can do that without assistance. We all cry enough and have enough to cry about. God bless all skillful punsters, all repartecists, all propounders of ingenious conundrums, all those who mirthfully surprise us with unusual juxtaposition of words. Thomas Hood and Charles Dickens and Sydney Smith had a divine mission, and so have their successors in these times. They stir into the acid beverage of life the saccharine. They make the cup of earthly existence, which is sometimes stale, effervesce and bubble. They placate animosities. They foster longevity. They slay follies and absurdities which all the sermons of all the pulpits cannot reach. But what use are you making of your wit? Is it besmirched with profanity and uncleanness? Do you employ it in amusement at physical defects for which the victims are not responsible? Are your powers of mimicry used to put religion in contempt? Is it a bunch of nettlesome invective? Is it a bolt of unjust scorn? Is it fun at others' misfortune? Is it glee at their disappointment and defeat? Is it bitterness put drop by drop into a cup? Is it like the squeezing of Artemisia absinthium into a draft already distastefully pungent? Then you are the star Wormwood. Yours is the fun of a rattlesnake trying how well it can sting.

But I will change this and suppose you are a star of worldly prosperity. Then you have a large opportunity. You can encourage that artist by buying his picture. You can improve the fields, the stables, the highway, by introducing higher style of fowl and horse and cow and sheep. You can bless the world with pomological achievement in the orchard. You can advance arboriculture and arrest the deathful destruction of the American forests. You can put a piece of sculpture into the niche of that public academy, you can endow a college, you can stocking 1,000 beneficent from the winter frost, you can build a church, you can put a missionary of Christ on that foreign shore, you can help to ransom a world. A rich man with his heart right—can you tell me how much good a James Lenox or a George Peabody or a Peter Cooper or a William E. Dodge did while living or is doing now that he is dead? There is not a city, town or neighborhood that has not glorious specimens of consecrated wealth.

But suppose you grind the face of the poor. Suppose when a man's wages are due, you make him wait for them because he cannot help himself. Suppose that, because his family is sick and he has had extra expenses, he should politely ask you to raise his wages, and you roughly tell him if he wants a better place to go and get it. Suppose, by your manner, you act as though he were nothing and you were everything. Suppose you are selfish and overbearing and arrogant. Your first name ought to be Attila and your last name Attila, because you are the star Wormwood, and you have imbittered one-third if not three-thirds of the waters that roll past your employes and operatives and dependents and associates, and the long line of carriages which the undertaker orders for your funeral, in order to make the occasion respectable, will be filled with twice as many dry, tearless eyes as there are persons occupying them. You will be in this world but a few minutes. As compared with eternity, the stay of the longest life on earth is not more than a minute. What are we doing with that minute? Are we imbittering the domestic or social or political fountains, or are we like Moses, who, when the Israelites in the Wilderness complained that the waters of Lake Marah were bitter and they could not drink them their leader cut off the branch of a certain tree and threw that branch into the water, and it became sweet and slaked the thirst of the suffering host? Are we with a branch of the tree of life sweetening all the brakish fountains that we can touch?

Dear Lord, send us all out on this mission. All around us imbittered lives—imbittered by persecution, imbittered by hypercriticism, imbittered by poverty, imbittered by pain, imbittered by injustice, imbittered by sin. Why not go forth and sweeten them by smiles, by inspiring words, by benefactions, by hearty counsel, by prayer, by gospelized behavior? Let us remember that if we are wormwood to others we are wormwood to ourselves, and our life will be bitter and our eternity bitterer. The Gospel of Jesus Christ is the only sweetening power that is sufficient. It sweetens the disposition; it sweetens the manners; it sweetens life; it sweetens mysterious providences; it sweetens affections; it sweetens death; it sweetens everything. I have heard people asked in social company: "If you could have three wishes gratified, what would your three wishes be?" If I could arrive at three wishes now I tell you what they would be. First, more of the grace of God; second, more of the grace of God; third, more of the grace of God.

In the doorway of my brother John, once a missionary to Amoy, China, there was a tree called the emperor tree, the two characteristics of which are that it always grows higher than its surroundings, and its leaves take the form of a crown. If this emperor tree be planted beside a rosebush, it grows a little higher than the bush and spreads out above it a crown. If it be planted by the side of another tree, it grows a little higher than that tree and spreads above it a crown. Would God that this religion of Christ, a more wonderful emperor tree, might overshadow all your lives! Are you lowly in ambition or circumstance, putting over you its crown? Are you high in talent and position, putting over you its crown? Oh, for more of the saccharin in our lives and less of the wormwood!

What is true of individuals is true of nations. God sets them up to revolve as stars, but they may fall wormwood. Tyre—the atmosphere of the desert, fragrant with spices coming in caravans to her fairs; all seas cleft into foam by the keels of her laden merchantmen; her markets rich with horses and camels from Togarmah; the bazar filled with upholstery from Dedan, with emerald and coral and agate from Syria, with mines from Helbon, with embroidered work from Ashur and Chilmad. Where now the gleam of her towers? Where the roar of her chariots? Where the masts of her ships? Let the fishermen who dry their nets where once she stood, let the sea that rushes upon the barrenness where once she challenged the admiration of all nations, let the barbarians who set their rude tents where once her palaces glittered, answer the questions. She was a star, but by her own sin turned to wormwood, and has fallen.

Hundred gated Thebes, for all time to be the study of the antiquarian and hieroglyphist; her stupendous ruins spread over 27 miles; her sculptures presenting in figures of warrior and chariot the victories with which the now-forgotten kings of Egypt shook the nations; her obelisks and columns; Karnak and Luxor, the stupendous temples of her pride. Who can imagine the greatness of Thebes in those days, when the hippodrome rang with her sports and foreign royalty bowed at her shrines and her avenues roared with the wheels of processions in the wake of returning conquerors? What dashed down the vision of chariots and temples and thrones? What hands pulled upon the columns of her glory? What ruthlessness defaced her sculptured wall and broke obelisks, and left her indescribable temples great skeletons of granite? What spirit of destruction spread the lair of wild beasts in her royal sepulchers and taught the miserable cottagers of to-day to build huts in the courts of her temples and sent desolation and ruin skulking behind the obelisks and dodging among the sarcophagi, and leaning against the columns, and stooping under the arches, and weeping in the waters which go mournfully by, as though they were carrying the tears of all ages? Let the mummies break their long silence and come up to shiver in the desolation and point to fallen gates and shattered statues and defaced sculpture, responding: "Thebes built not one temple to God. Thebes hated righteousness and loved sin. Thebes was a star, but she turned to wormwood and has fallen."

HOW ONE MAN GOT RICH.

The Method Cannot Be Indorsed, But It Has the Value of Quickness.

The richest man in Turkey is an Armenian who is a naturalized American citizen, and lived in this country for several years. If the stories told in the diplomatic circle of Constantinople are true he came by his money in a peculiar manner. It will be remembered that Sultan Aziz was assassinated in 1876. For several years prior to his death he accumulated all the money and bonds he could obtain, which he stored away in his palace as a reserve fund in case of a war with Russia, which had been impending for some time. The amount of his accumulations has been variously estimated from $10,000,000 to $40,000,000, and was undoubtedly considerably in excess of the latter sum. Most of it was in English, French and German securities that drew interest and were easily convertible at any bank in any city in Europe.

Although the assassination was a mystery, it is believed to have been inspired, if it was not actually accomplished by Midad Pasha, the minister of finance, from avaricious motives. He alone was aware of the magnitude of the sultan's hoard and the place of its concealment, and after his sovereign's death, by virtue of his position, took charge of the fund and pretended to deposit it in the public treasury. But it is believed by those most familiar with Turkish affairs that he retained for his own benefit a large part—perhaps one-half of it—which, for motives of self-protection, he intrusted to the American banker I have named, and directed him to take the bonds to London and Paris and there deposit them in such a manner that their ownership could not be traced to Midnd Pasha. It is also believed to have been the latter's intentions to withdraw a portion of this money from concealment as soon as he was safe in doing so.

But not long afterward Midnd Pasha was himself assassinated in the boldest and most astounding manner. He was attending a meeting of the ministry, when he was informed that a messenger was awaiting him in the ante-room with a confidential communication that must be delivered immediately and to himself alone. Midad left his colleagues and entered the ante-room, where an unknown man immediately plunged a dagger into his heart. The palace guard, hearing his death-cry, and the fall of his body, immediately rushed to the room and shot the assassin before he could escape. Although the police continued their investigations for months, they were never able to identify the assassin or associate anyone else with the crime, but the knowing ones believe he was a ruffian imported from the mountains by the Armenian banker referred to, and was handsomely paid to commit the deed. On the evening of Midad's assassination the Armenian merchant went to Midad's palace and informed his widow that there were concealed in a certain strong box certain papers that would connect her husband with a conspiracy against the crown, and would undoubtedly cause the arrest and imprisonment of the entire family and confiscation of the property if they were discovered. The frightened widow, already beside herself with excitement because of the assassination, begged him to search her husband's papers and destroy all questionable or suspicious documents. He spent the night at this work, and among the papers burned that night are believed to have been the evidence of Midad's ownership in the bonds that have made the Armenian the richest man in Turkey.—Chicago Record.

SPADEFISHES AT MEALS.

They Tamely Take Their Food from the Hand, and, One After Another, in Order.

There are many fishes at the Aquarium so tame that they will take food from the hand; and often they are seen waiting for it when the man with the food comes along. They are fed at regular hours, to which they become accustomed, and they hear his footsteps as he approaches, moving from tank to tank, along the platform, in the corridor back of the exhibition tanks, from which the fishes are fed; or it may be, sensitive as they are, they feel the slight vibration caused by his movements, and so come up near the surface to meet him.

Among the fishes that take their food in this way are the three spadefishes, all fine specimens of a species rare in these waters, which were, however, taken at one time and another in Gravesend bay. When the pan containing the food, which is perhaps cut-up clams, is set down upon the coping stone of the masonry rear wall of the tank, one of the spadefishes comes to the surface, takes the mouthful of clam that is held down to it, and sweeps off in the water, to be followed by another spadefish, and then by the third. By this time the first one has swept around in the water and come up for another piece, which it takes from the fingers as before and swims on, to be followed in turn by No. 2 and No. 3.

Sometimes a fish will make a shorter circuit than usual in the water and so come in for another piece ahead of its turn; but they don't do this often. They don't always start with the same fish taking the first mouthful, but, whatever order they start, so they usually continue, swimming around and taking one after another the morsels handed down to them, until all have had their fill.—N. Have You Tried Swamp-Root?

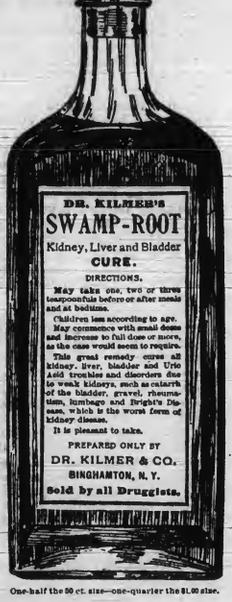
To Prove for Yourself the Wonderful Merits of This Great Discovery Every Reader of This Paper May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

Statistics prove that more people are brought to the grave by diseases of the kidneys and bladder than by any other disease.

Kidney trouble is in itself so insidious and deceptive that thousands have some form of it and never suspect it.

For many years medical science has been trying to discover some remedy that would positively overcome these dangerous troubles.



But not until recently was the discovery made. Dr. Kilmer, the eminent physician and scientist, after years of study and research, and after test on test that never varied in the grand result, announced the discovery of Swamp-Root, which has proven itself a most wonderful cure for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

While Swamp-Root has proven such a remarkable success in curing kidney and bladder diseases, it has also proved equally invaluable in the cure of blood diseases, rheumatism, liver and stomach troubles, and in the regulation and cure of all uric acid troubles.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling, or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

This great modern discovery is for sale at most drug stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. Don't make any mistake, but make a note of the name SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember that it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Modern Science Recognizes RHEUMATISM as a Disease of the Blood

There is a popular idea that this disease is caused by exposure to cold, and that some localities are infected with it more than others. Such conditions frequently promote the development of the disease, but from the fact that this ailment runs in certain families, it is shown to be hereditary, and consequently a disease of the blood.

Among the oldest and best known residents of Bluffs, Ill., is Adam Yungundy. He has always been prominently identified with the interests of that place. He was the first President of the Board of Trustees, and for a long time has been a Justice of the Peace. He says: "I had been a sufferer of rheumatism for a number of years and the pain at times was very intense. I tried all the proprietary medicines I could think or hear of, but received no relief.

"I finally placed my case with several physicians and doctored with them for some time, but they failed to do me any good. Finally, with my hopes of relief nearly exhausted I read an article regarding Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which induced me to try them. I was anxious to get rid of the terrible disease and bought two boxes of the pills, I began using them about March, 1897. After I had taken two boxes I was completely cured, and the pain has never returned. I think it is the best medicine I have ever taken, and am willing at any time to testify to its good merits."—Bluffs (Ill.) Times.

CHEAP POULTRY HOUSE.

A Serviceable Design Showing Comfortable Quarters, Roost House and Scratching Shed.

No one can give a design of a poultry house that will be acceptable to all for the reason that ideas differ regarding poultry houses, as they do of dwelling houses. The kind of poultry house to be constructed depends upon the cost—or rather how much one is willing to invest in it. A person can have any luxury preferred if he is willing to pay for it.

But how much room can one get at the lowest cost? A poultry house should have, first of all, the most room possible on the floor. It should be ventilated without draughts of air, and it should be warm in winter and cool in summer. The size depends upon the number of fowls in the flock. Bear in mind that while a house may afford a roosting place for a large lot of fowls, yet the main point is to afford plenty of room for exercising in winter, and another point is that fowls will remain outside exposed to the storms before they will seek refuge in a dark house. They love the light and they are partial to the open air if they can have a "windbreak."

With these facts impressed upon the reader, we give a design (not the "best," as there can be no best), which shows a roosting-house and scratching shed. It should be, for a flock of 15 fowls, about 10 by 20 feet, the roosting place being 8 by 10 feet, and the shed 8 by 12 feet. If made deeper it will be an advantage. The roosts may be placed along the rear or at the east side, the house supposed to be facing the south. It should be 8 feet high at the front, and 6 or 7 feet at the rear, tarred paper roof. The nests should be under a platform with the roost over the platform.

The advantages of this house are as follows: While not elaborate, it costs but little (according to locality); the front of the shed can be inclosed with wire netting in summer, and used as a cool roosting place; it is warm in winter, the shed serving as a windbreak for the roosting portion when the wind is in the west; the hens can work and scratch under the shed in winter, being really in the open air, and a muslin curtain (which admits the light) may be suspended in front during stormy days. The floor of the house may be of dirt, boards, or cement, but the floor of the shed may be of dirt, covered with cut straw, leaves, or other litter.

It may be claimed that we allow but a small flock for such a house, but the way to get eggs is to give plenty of room. It is better to have a few hens that lay than to have a crowded flock that produces nothing. The design is of a house that is simple, cheap, can be built by almost anyone, and in some places can be built for $20, but we give only the design, as it may be made larger, extended, or more elaborate, as preferred.—American Gardening.

WEEDING OUT FLOCKS.

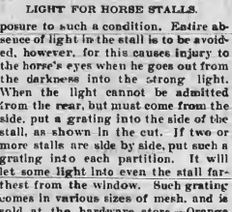
In No Other Way Can the Standard of Farm Poultry Be Elevated Legitimately.

Weeding out the flock improves it every year, as a higher standard will result. By an observation of the individual mate can be learned, says Mirror and Farmer. The good hens become pets, and pride in their individual excellence on the part of the owner results. The young stock will be hatched only from the best producers, instead of from eggs taken indiscriminately from the egg basket. No farmer who will carefully cull out the drones need depend on breeders to produce breeds for him. Pure breeds should be used, however, and especially pure-bred males. Even with the choicest stock the matter of selection should not be overlooked. There are drones and idlers in aristocratic flocks as well as in the flocks of low degree. There is room for improvement in every direction. The object should be to impress upon poultrymen and farmers the importance of a close scrutiny of the stock, and to teach the fact that a profitable flock can be made up of what may look like unpromising material.

Successful Egg Storage.

An interesting experiment in egg storage was recently tried in Scotland. At Leith last June 50,000 Scottish-Irish and Danish eggs were sealed up in a storage apparatus, says the Scientific American, and were opened and examined four months afterward, and only a small proportion of the eggs were found unfit for use. In this method the eggs are kept cool and the air is allowed to have free access around each egg, which is kept in an upright position. The eggs are turned periodically, so that the yolk of the egg is constantly embedded in albumen. This is accomplished by placing the eggs in frames, which, by the action of a lever, can be inclined in different directions as needed. In this way 23,000 eggs can be turned over in a minute without any chance of breakage.

HIGHLY UNSATISFACTORY.



The Ordinary Farmer Can Make No Money Out of Feeding Cattle for His Neighbors.

A correspondent asks us to advise him what compensation a farmer should have for fattening cattle belonging to another man, says the Homestead. He wishes to know what would be just and fair to both feeder and owner, the feeder furnishing everything in connection with the fattening of the cattle. The question is one that we could not answer with any reasonable hope of furnishing a basis for such a contract as would be equitable to both feeder and owner, without seeing the cattle, and even then it would depend upon how good a guess we were able to make about what the cattle would probably do in view of their condition when they go on feed, their breeding, the length of time they were to be fed, the price of feed, and the other conditions surrounding the undertaking. If there is any one proposition in regard to cattle feeding that has been more completely established during the past couple of years than another, it is that there are cattle and cattle, and that while some will respond to feed promptly and continuously and be regular and steady gains in a satisfactory way, there is a large percentage of the cattle going into the feed lots that will do nothing of the kind. The usual basis on which such contracts are made consists of the payment of so much per pound for the gain that is put on. The cattle are weighed in to the feeder and weighed back when delivered back to the owner. What a given lot of cattle will do in a given period, however, is a matter that no one can positively tell in advance, and even the expert feeder who has handled cattle all his life can only form an opinion that will be of any value, in any given case, after a careful examination of the lot of cattle it is proposed to feed. Speaking generally of contracts of this kind, however, it may be said that they are particularly hard on the feeder as a rule. The owner puts in his cattle at given weights, and they may be either good, bad or indifferent; they may be of a kind that will respond readily to feed, and gain anywhere from two to three pounds per day, or they may be of a kind that will make only a pound a day gain, or less. The cost of making the gain may be as low as four dollars a hundred, or it may be twice as much or even more. All these risks the feeder takes, and when the owner receives his cattle back he pays for just what the feeder has accomplished. In other words, the man who feeds another's cattle takes all the risks of the transaction without receiving as compensation any of the occasional speculative gains that cattle feeders now and then make, by reason of striking a good market. It is not a contract that we would advise anyone to make unless he is so poor and so destitute of credit as to be unable to raise money to buy cattle and thus entitle himself to all the possible gains in the transaction, as well as to take its risks of loss.

LIGHT HORSE STALLS.

Mistaken Construction Is Responsible for the Loss of Many a Good Animal's Sight.

Many unwisely put a small window at the front of the horse stall, causing the light to fall directly into the horse's eyes. It is a wonder that a horse has any eyesight after a few months' ex-posure to such a condition. Entire absence of light in the stall is to be avoided, however, for this causes injury to the horse's eyes when he goes out from the darkness into the strong light. When the light cannot be admitted from the rear, but must come from the side, put a grating into the side of the stall, as shown in the cut. If two or more stalls are side by side, put such a grating into each partition. It will let some light into even the stall farthest from the window. Such grating comes in various sizes of mesh, and is sold at the hardware store.—Orange Judd Farmer.

The Bite of a Hog.

There is great danger of blood poisoning if a hog bites the flesh. There is no poison in the hog's teeth as there is in the fangs of a poisonous snake. It is rather the poison which comes from the saliva, as the hog is a very indiscriminate feeder and not at all cleanly. When a hog is made angry the amount of its saliva is greatly increased, and the danger is greater. Even a slight contusion from a hog's tooth should be promptly washed out with some antiseptic. Dilute carbolic acid, one part of the acid to 2,000 of water, is good and always a reliable antiseptic. Some should always be kept where it can be handily procured, to put on cuts or outside injuries received on any part of the body. It will greatly hasten their healing.

Nitrogen can be obtained cheapest by means of thorough tillage (to promote nitrification) and nitrogenous green manures.

Creeping Consumption

Do not think for a single moment that consumption will ever strike you a sudden blow. It does not come that way. It creeps its way along. First, you think it is a little cold; nothing but a little hacking cough; then a little loss in weight; then a harder cough; then the fever and the night sweats. The suddenness comes when you have a hemorrhage. Better stop the disease while it is yet creeping. You can do it with

HIS MORNING TRAIN.

Mr. Suburbanite Was in a Hurry and Got His Commission Mixed.

He had reached the door in his usual morning sprint for the train, when his wife called for him:

"Oh, Tom!"

"Yes," he answered, with his hand on the knob.

"I had the garden dug over yesterday," she cried, "and I want you to bring some plants from town."

"All right," he snapped; "what do you want? Hurry up; I must catch my train."

"Well," came the reflective voice from the dining-room, "you might bring me—"

"Oh, hurry!" he retorted, with a show of impatience.

"Well, I think—"

"Quick," he shouted, with the door open; "I hear the whistle. What is it?"

"R—roses," was the answer that reached his ears, and he was off like a madman.

At noon he feared he might have been a little harsh in the morning, so he went out and bought two dozen varieties of rosebushes, and carried the thorny, scratchy things home in the evening, to the peril of anyone who approached him.

Then he laid the offering at his wife's feet, and was surprised to see her burst into tears.

"What is the matter?" he asked, wonderingly. "Are not these all right?"

"N—no," she sobbed; "I don't want roses."

"But, my dear," he protested, "you certainly said roses this morning."

"I—I know," was the answer. "You made me—you were in such a hurry, and 'roses' was the shortest word I could think of at the moment. I've wanted chrysanthemums and rhododendrons, but you would not give me time to say them!"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Private Butter.

I am reminded of an incident on one of the Atlantic steamers which took place not so long ago, and in which a married member of a family to whom it is not necessary to allude was a party. The husband and wife approached a meal flanked on either side by a large dish of butter.

As it was an English ship and butter was not served at any of the meals, some Americans who were neighbors were delighted to see that the hor d'oeuvre had at last a place on the table. They helped themselves bountifully at luncheon.

At dinner they were surprised to see little sticks stuck in the middle of the mound of butter with a pasteboard card attached. The card read:

"Private Butter. Keep Off the Grass."

It is needless to say that the hint was taken.—N. Y. Journal.

"Doctor," said he, "I'm a victim of insomnia. I can't sleep if there's the least noise—such as a cat on the back fence, for instance." "This powder will be effective," replied the physician, after compounding a prescription. "When do I take it, doctor?" "You don't take it. Give it to the cat in a little milk."—London Tit-Bits.

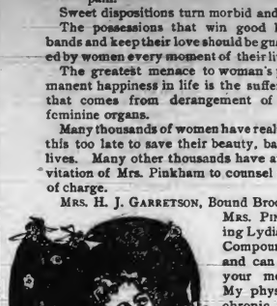
PERFECT WOMANHOOD



PERFECT womanhood depends on perfect health. Nature's rarest gifts of physical beauty vanish before pain.

Sweet dispositions turn morbid and fretful.

The possessions that win good husbands and keep their love should be guarded by women every moment of their lives.

The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from derangement of the feminine organs.

Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their beauty, barely in time to save their lives. Many other thousands have availed of the generous invitation of Mrs. Pinkham to counsel all suffering women free of charge.

MRS. H. J. GARRETSON, Bound Brook, N. J., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with the best results and can say from my heart that your medicines are wonderful. My physician called my trouble chronic inflammation of the left ovary. For years I suffered very much, but thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and kind advice, I am today a well woman. I would say to all suffering women, take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and your sufferings will vanish."

MRS. MAGGIE PHILLIPPE, of Ladoga, Ind., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For four years I suffered from ulceration of the womb. I became so weak I could not walk across the room without help. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wrote for special information. I began to improve from the first bottle, and am now fully restored to health."

War Was a Blessing.

"This here last war," remarked the old lady, "has been a blessin' to my family; John drawin' of a big pension fer one ear an' three fingers; the ole man's writin' a war history; Moll's engaged to a sergeant, an' Jennie's gwine to marry a feller that come within an ace of bein' a gin'ral!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Theodore Groger moved from here, last week, to the farm he rented of Rev. Buffington, and Chas. Chipman now occupies the house he vacated.

Misses Nellie and Stella Thomas, of Glencoe, were the guests of their brother, A. M. Thomas and family, from Wednesday till Friday of last week.

Ed Corbin has severed his connection with W. J. Cody and has started a butcher shop of his own. Florence now has three meat stores, but the price of meat remains the same.

Our city council passed an ordinance at its last meeting compelling all property owners to repair and build sidewalks in front of their property. This is a step in the right direction and the people of Florence ought to push it along.

Utzinger.

Mrs. Emily E. Rucker has been visiting friends and relatives in this neighborhood the past week.

W. D. Cropper and his mother were called to Louisville, last week, on account of the serious illness of little Mable, daughter of Perry Cropper.

If news from here becomes a little scarce in the next two months it may be attributed to the writer being too much engrossed in the pressing duties of the farm and garden.

Last Saturday was plant-bed day in this section. The air was filled with smoke from many a log-heap and brush pile. There is about the usual acreage making for a crop of tobacco this year.

If Mr. W. M. Rogers had traveled in this part of the county he would have seen that plowing had been done. We have some farmers who are always up with the earliest. Mr. John Cropper has been plowing.

It now looks like the hardest pull we ever made is now about over. The winter out of which we are just coming has been remarkable for length and severity and there will scarcely be enough hay and corn left this spring to make the heus' nests.

Hathaway.

March 13.—The back water is falling.

No plowing has been done yet.

Bert Clore still makes frequent visits to this vicinity.

The mud roads are almost impassable in some places.

W. S. White made a business trip to Walton, last Thursday.

T. J. Stephens, of Buffalo, was visiting on Gunpowder last Friday.

Your correspondent had a wood-sawing last Wednesday, which resulted in a large pile of wood for him.

There has been seven foxes caught this winter in this and adjoining neighborhoods, in a radius of 8 or 10 miles.

Some times as high as 100 wild ducks are seen in one flock along the river shore.

Robt. M. Cox, of Pittsburg, P., is visiting his mother here. Bob is on the sick list.

Augustus Passons has moved to Indianapolis where he has a good job in the car shops.

Cary Carpenter, of Gallatin county, has moved to town and occupies the old parsonage property.

On account of the high water the Str. Workum did not make her regular trips down the river last week.

When a boy will wash his neck without being told it is a sure sign that he is in love with a pretty girl.

A jar from the Str. Workum knocked the pump at the distillery house in the river Thursday morning.

There is five generations of the Helms family living. The grandfather of Everett lived to be 133 years old.

Capt. Alex Hyatt, an old retired river man, has moved to town and occupies the Clifford Terrill property.

The Columbia Lady Minstrels of Lawrenceburg gave an exhibition at Gordon's Hall, last Saturday night.

The vacant house of Mrs. Ella Sullivan was totally destroyed by fire, last Sunday night week. How it caught fire is a mystery.

Billy Passons has a violin that is over 100 years old, and Paderewski, the great musician used it when in Cincinnati several years ago.

The literary department of the Epworth League met at the residence of Mrs. A. P. Olds, last Thursday night, and all present had a good time.

Miss Bessie Hurd and brother, Glen, went to Covington, Saturday, to attend the funeral of their uncle, John Spann, who was struck by a train and killed.

They go in pairs—Frank Geisler and Pap Alloway; Dr. J. M. Grant and J. J. Ferris; John Early and Billy Casey; Gene Berkshire and Hubert Walton.

Philip Swing, son of Judge Swing, of Cincinnati, was here one day last week, in a life insurance case of F. H. Schwll, who was drowned off the Pauline one day last summer. He took a portrait of the boat.

The Correction Society was out last Saturday night and flung several boulders through Mr. Kittle's windows. You can't tell from whence they come and whither they goeth.

The spring poet has thawed out, listen to him:

The Workum's the boat for the trade,
She can lay all other crafts in the shade.
Be the weather foul or fair,
She will always be there.

For that is how the Workum is made.

Mrs. Theetge, wife of Ira Theetge, engineer of the Pauline, died last Friday morning at 11 o'clock of stomach trouble. She leaves a husband and six children, some of them grown, besides a host of friends to mourn her sudden demise. After a short funeral sermon by Rev. Harris, Sunday evening at 2 o'clock, the remains were placed in the vault to await final interment.

North Bend.

Mch 12.—T. W. Baisly shipped a lot of wheat on the Bonanza, Thursday.

Jerry Moore has typhoid fever.

W. H. Cropper has been very sick for the last few days, but is better now.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley spent Thursday with his daughter, Mrs. W. O. Kirtley.

Ralph Baisly has been buying apple tree timber through the neighborhood, and is now cutting trees on the Joseph Chambers place.

Miss Bernice Duncan's school closed last week. She could not be prevailed on to stay with us longer, so went to her home near Bullitteville, Friday.

Wednesday, John Wearer moved to Ohio. The ferry boat had great difficulty in crossing the river, the water was very high and the wind blew a gale, but the noble little craft with her cargo of four heavy loaded wagons and several horses and cows, safely made the trip.

Bellevue.

Mch. 11.—Many were rejoicing this morning when the learned the river was falling.

Small grain is looking well.

Cyrus Kelly has been confined to his home for two weeks.

Bob Malory was a guest of Joe Bickle and family on the 12th.

Robt. Clore and family were guests of relatives here Saturday and Sunday.

T. L. Utz and family have returned after a two-weeks' visit to the parents of himself and wife.

The most of the osier crop is harvested. The yield is greater than it has been for several years.

Mrs. W. B. Adams has returned from Petersburg, where she has been the guest of Ben Sturgeon and wife.

We recently met our genial friend, Jas. Setters, with two fine ducks which he captured while going to Aurora and returning.

John Sandford, who has been confined to his room for three weeks, is not much better. He went out too soon and took a relapse.

Elder G. W. Watkins will fill the pulpit in the Christian church here on Monday and Tuesday evenings, the 20th and 21st Inst. Baptizing on Tuesday.

Joseph Satchwell and family have moved to the Aylor property at Waterloo, while Tony Cook has taken possession of the property vacated by Satchwell.

John Deck, jr., and a daughter of John Zimmerman, were married last Wednesday. The boys did not forget to bring their bells and pans with them to congratulate John and his fair bride.

By request T. L. Utz preached on the 12th on the subject: "Possibilities of Wealth," taking for his text, "ye can not serve God and Mammon." He presented and discussed the subject in a way that was highly edifying and instructing to Christian people.

Richwood.

Mr. John Matson and family have left Kensington and gone on a trip to Florida.

There is a great deal of excitement in Richwood over the appearance of small pox at Walton.

Married at Richwood Manse, by Rev. W. H. Davis, March 9th, Mr. W. H. Lancaster and Miss Annie Belle Marsh.

Mr. Mann has moved to the Charity Rice farm and Mr. John W. Carpenter has moved to the Buddie Carpenter farm, vacated by Mr. Mann.

Mr. Robert Ashcraft, who has been sick with typhoid fever since December last, died on March 7th and was hurled at Richwood church March 9.

Verona.

Tearing down of the M. E. Church began Monday.

The dirt roads leading to this place almost impassable.

Rev. Hughes preached a week with us on his last appointment.

N. B. Hamilton has a position with H. F. Blase, in Covington.

The report that Ollie Cotton, colored had smallpox, turned out to be a fake.

Wheat is very much damaged on account of the severe cold weather.

It seems there will be no spring term of school here which is badly needed.

J. G. Hudson and others attended the Alliance convention at Cincinnati, the 3 and 4 Inst.

A. C. Roberts has moved to the residence lately vacated by Everett Baker, on Mrs. T. A. Johnson's farm.

A. K. Johnson, son of Rev. Lafe Johnson, was knocked down in Covington, one day last week and relieved of $235.

Frank Callahan sold one hogshead of tobacco on the Cincinnati breaks, a few days since, at 16 cents per pound. Who can beat it?

Denton Cotton left a few days since for Elwood, Ind., where he will make his home, and clerk for Chas. Horrell, in the hotel business.

Lawrence Ryan and Tom Maloney became envolved in a difficulty, last Friday which resulted in Ryan receiving a very ugly knife wound within a hair's breadth of the jugular vein. Dr. McCormac was summoned and dressed the wound, taking three stitches.

Food for thought!—One year ago Spain was murdering men, women and children to make them submit to their government. One year later, by authority of a Republican administration, the army and navy of the United States is on the opposite side of the earth mowing the Filipinos down in their own streets by gattling guns, to make them submit to our government.

The young ladies of The League Institute will give an entertainment on the evening of the 24th, followed on same evening by a social—Literary Games. A prize will be awarded to the most successful. The evening's exercises in full from 7 to 10. Admittance, 5 cents.

On the afternoon of the 29th the young gentlemen of the League will entertain their friends, free of charge upon "The Geography of the United States," after which the music class of 23 pupils will give a concert without notes, playing from memory.

The following people deserve mention for visiting the sick of Verona during the past month: Pearlie Allphin, Tillie Cohen, Elmer Griffith, Amy West, Grover Ransom, Lorena Cotton, Irene Hudson, Claris Franks, Clara McCoy, Mollie Fullilove, Showers Hamilton, James Turner, Will Waller, Foreman Myers, Elmer Myers, Ethel Myers.

Union.

Hal Blanton attended church in Union, Sunday.

Small pox has not hit Union yet and hope it wont.

Mrs. Oscar Huey, of Carrollton, with the children, are guests of Mrs. J. W. Kennedy.

Esq. Bannister is with us again after a pleasant stay of six weeks in Covington, and looks well.

Ben Riley passed through town Sunday evening and reported Mrs. J. H. Corbin suffering with nerverous prostration.

Mr. John Green, a successful farmer of the Big Bone precinct, was delivering tobacco here, Friday. He confines his travels to the pike.

J. W. Kennedy made a business trip to Owen county, last week, and Theodore Green has received considerable tobacco during his absence.

Lynn Wilson and George Clarkson floated a load of tobacco in Thursday evening, and seemed tickled that they did not strike a snag and sink in the mud.

James Gatson and family seem delighted to be in Union again. They are getting things arranged for living after a most trying ordeal of moving through rain and mud.

H. A. Hicks has bought of L. W. Lassing, the famous White Haven property and 114 acres of land more or less. He bought it as a home for Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hicks, and it will certainly make a splendid one for the young people.

Mrs. James A. Huey was visiting in Warsaw, last week, and had a delightful time in the Gallatin county capital, but came home to find a fine collection of flowers (that had been saved from freezing during the zero weather by great care) paralyzed with frost.

The junior members of the O. M. C. A. Club buckled on new armor, selected strong lances and sallied into the ring Friday night, asking no quarter, or giving any. They met the seniors and now they go around saying to themselves "Blessed is the man that knows a buzz saw when he sees it and is willing to let it alone."

Rev. Adams preached Saturday and Sunday at the Baptist church. We heard him Sunday and enjoyed the sermon very much. The Dr. said he had seen a letter from a citizen of Carrollton saying small-pox was so thoroughly scattered in the town that it would be a miracle if every person in the town did not have it.

Esq. Byland, the lightning talker and all around insurance manipulator, of Walton, stopped in our town, Friday, a few hours, to look after business interests and have a chat with the boys. Mr. B. thinks impeachment is having its day and when the people get a whack at it in 1900 it will go down into the valley of the shadow of defeat and its obituary will be written on the pages of forgetfulness.

The veteran Democratic hustler and popular citizen, William Grimsley, of Hamilton precinct, accompanied by Mr. Walsh, proprietor of the Normansville flouring mill and a good, sound free silver, West Virginia Democrat, stopped in Union Monday to warm up, and take a fresh start for Erlanger. They reported everything all right in their country, with the river rising and mud fathoms deep and general prosperity likely not to appear until W. J. Bryan becomes President with a full Democratic congress to back him up.

We were pleased to have Rev. Davis visit us, one day recently, and his coming will remain a bright spot in our memory for many a day. Mr. Davis is a southern man in the fullest sense, loves the south, loves its institutions and loves to talk about its people and their peculiarities. In his youth he entered the confederate army and followed the fortunes of war four years in defense of "constitutional rights" dearer than life to every southern man. He told us of the General that never lost a battle, a prisoner, a piece of artillery, &c.; told us of Petersburg, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, of the Wilderness and its battles; told about seeing 15,000 cavalry (the finest of fine) under full charge before the surrender of Gen Lee at Appomatox; told us that more North Carolina soldiers are buried on Virginia soil than Virginia soldiers; told us of social life in the Carolinas and Virginia and many other interesting things that we were glad to learn.

Midway.

The sale of the effects of Lucretia Rich, deceased, last Saturday, was well attended and things sold very well.

Mrs. Minnie Slayback paid her father's, Folks, T. J. Coyle and family, a visit last Sunday at Crescent Springs.

Mr. Thomas Bennett, who has been living among us for some years, left last Thursday, to try his fortune in Ind.

James Carroll is now in full possession of the pike leading from Beaver to Southfork, having purchased the toll house property near Beaver. Jim understands his business and will give the people a good road.

J. L. Jones, one of Midway's most prosperous farmers, is busily turning over his clover sod on the hillside, while he watches his pretty little lambs gambolling in the valley. He also hurried and sowed two large tobacco plant beds last week, the first of the season about these parts.

"Uncle Jeems" Marksbury is manufacturing an excellent brand of salve at Normansville, which no well regulated family can afford to be without at this season of the year, when cuts, sprains and sores are so prevalent and for all of which Jeems' salve is a panacea. Everybody should get a trial box and be convinced.

There is strong talk of running a telephone line right plumb through Midway and connecting Walton and Hamilton for the purpose of letting them hear from each other occasionally, as they are shut off as far as the mud road is concerned. By all means let us have the telephone, then a turnpike and the electric railway will follow, and we will be right in town.

John Brown and Clarence Gregory were given a hearing before Squire J. Sam Noell at the Springs, last Friday, for disturbing religious worship at the M. E. Chapel, recently. D. E. Castleman defeuded the boys while J. M. Lassing attended to the Commonwealth. After hearing the evidence and the bloviating of the attorneys the jury returned a verdict of $20 and cost each.

Henry Underhill, one of Midway's oldest and best teamsters, has succeeded in getting his wagon and team off the road leading from Beaver to the Springs, and says he will go out with his "rig" no more till the overseer sends him word the road is passable. Henry says his experience extends over a long stretch of time, but the road hereinbefore mentioned is the worst he ever tried to "navigate."

Constance.

Wm. Price was sworn in as assistant postmaster, last week.

Wm. Zurella's oldest boy was bitten by a dog a few days since.

Miss Pheobe Price, of Price's Hill, is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. L. Reeves.

Wm. Price received a scalp wound, accidently, while handling some goods.

Capt. H. Kotmeyer went to Pittsburg, Pa., last week, to visit his brother, Louie.

The electric railroad from Anderson Ferry to Aurora, Ind., will be built this summer.

C. Zimmer, jr., has accepted the sextonship of Evergreen cemetery and will take charge soon.

C. T. Davis & Co., have completed their invoice. They were assisted by J. C. Hankins and H. Quick.

Capt. C. Kotmeyer contemplates building a much larger boat than the one he has, so he can run in the ice.

Miss Carrie Collier, of Petersburg, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. A. L. Loder; Mr. Davis, of Lawrenceburg, is also visiting A. L. Loder.

Nice cow and calf for sale.

Cornelia Jane Gordon.

Local News.

Fishing poles have begun to show up.

Go to A. Corbin & Sons for wall paper.

Plant your potatoes as soon as you can.

J. D. McNeely, of Hathaway, has a sow and pigs for sale.

There are from 800 to 1,000 cases of small pox in Cincinnati.

E. W. Randall, of Utzinger, has 250 bushels of white (seed) oats for sale.

Bands of marble players blocked the streets on several occasions, last week.

Constance was up in full force, last Saturday, giving the town an unusually lively appearance.

Three or four teams went from Burlington down to Ernest Grant's, Monday, to get 40 cent corn.

Saturday was a bloody day with the Rice and Stephens boys, of Utzinger. They dehorned 33 cattle that day.

The Hunt boys delivered their crop of tobacco, 14,000 pounds, to Riley & Hogan, at Bullittsville, last week, at $8 and $3.

The weather calendar had the black flag up for two days in March, but as it missed the first storm period the second cannot be relied on.

The Louisville Building Association that swiped so many persons in this and adjoining counties, has paid a second dividend—ten per cent.

Last Saturday was Mrs. Julia Clore's seventy-eighth birth day, and all her children took dinner with her that day, and it was a happy reunion,

The death of Wm. McDonald, of Aurora, who it was thought was possessed of very little wealth reveals the fact that he was worth a cool $100,000.

The best indication that we have seen that bad weather is about over for this winter, was the crowd of marble players that appeared on the street last Thursday.

Mr. Oscar Gaines, secretary of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, sent out notices, last week, of the assessment to pay the $375 loss of Wood Sullivan at Petersburg.

Circuit Court will be here again in a few weeks. Very little business has accumulated since the last term, and the Long bankruptcy proceedings cut off a very large slice of that.

Two negroes at Walton have small-pox. We understand that they were negro soldiers who returned a few days ago. Great precaution has been taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

B. H. Snyder, of Florence, made us a brief call, Monday. Mr. Snyder is a chicken fancier and handles fine fowls. A free ad. in the RECORDER sold a lot of chickens for him a few weeks since.

Lasseing and Castleman were at Big Bone, last Friday, looking after business in the criminal division of Esq. Neoll's court, where two young men were each fined $20 for disturbing religious worship.

S. W. Bruce, of Clinton county, Mo., sends us a copy of the Democrat-Levers, which contains an extensive write-up of his county, and shows conclusively that it is the garden spot of the great State of Missouri.

The Court of Appeals has decided that ordinances passed by fourth-class cities to prevent live stock from running at large, and providing for selling said stock when taken up and impounded, are valid.

Bills for J. C. Bedinger's fine stallion, Timothy Bob, and mammoth jack, Netwood, were printed at this office last week. These animals will be found at the stable of D. Bedinger, three miles west of Richwood, this season.

Attys. S. Gaines, D. E. Castleman, S. W. Tolin, G. G. Hughes and J. M. Lassing, attended the meeting of the creditors of Hiram Long, held in Covington, last Thursday. There was a full attendance of the creditors, and J. M. Lassing was appointed trustee to take charge of the bankrupt's estate.

When the fiscal court meets next month it ought not to fail to take steps to have the floor in the court house hall at the back door repaired. It has been in a bad condition for about two years, and is as a matter of course growing worse, and endangering the stair way leading to the circuit court room.

Marce Riddell has made a great record as a batter-cake exterminator, 19 good sized cakes, with a very liberal supply of coffee, ham and eggs, and other articles of food consumed, constitute his record. Marce is small in statue, but were he a six-foster and eat in the same proportion that he now does, he could command a big salary at a dime museum.

Miss Edna Cowen gave a carrom party, last Wednesday night. It was attended by a large number of her friends who pursued the pleasure until the dawn of another day was breaking in the east, and even then the party was dissolved over the protest of Mr. Cowen, who urged the guests to continue the fascinating game until a later hour in the morning.

Thirteen dairy cows belonging to R. S. Richardson, were driven through here, last Thursday, enroute to Delaware, Indiana, where Mr. Richardson's son-in-law, Hubert Nead, resides. Just outside of town the cattle were taken in charge under an attachment sued out by Dr B. A. Dulaney, of Florence, on a $125 note on which Richardson is security for Nead. Mr. Richardson came over last Friday and replevied the cattle and sent them on to Indiana. He proposes to contest Dulaney's claim.

Dr. A. A. Murat, of Constance, was in Saturday, but did not tarry long.

Rev. Davis, of Richwood, is attending the Presbytery in session in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Clutterbuck entertained with an euchre, last Friday night.

Dr. U. C. Ambrose, of Berkshire, was transacting business in Burlington, Saturday.

Scott Myers, of Verona, was in town last Saturday, full of fun and in a good humor as usual.

Wm. Moore, of the Big Bone neighborhood, was among the visitors to town Monday.

W. W. Adams and wife, of Aurora, were visiting their Boone county relatives last week.

Rankin Revill and wife, of Covington, were visiting J. C. Revill and family, Sunday.

H. W. Blyth came up from Petersburg, Saturday, and remained until Monday morning.

Mrs. H. C. Lassing and son, Walter, of Union, were guests of Mrs. J. M. Lassing Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Riley, of the Bullettsville neighborhood, were calling on friends in Burlington, Friday.

E. W. Randall, of the Utzinger neighborhood, was attending to business at the temple of justice, one day last week.

Tony Rue, of the Plattsburg country, was in town one day last week. He is getting anxious to begin his spring work.

Mr. Bullock, the Hebron tailor, was over, one day last week, and took several orders for spring suits. His work speaks for itself.

Joseph Bradford, of Florence, was in town Monday. He is carrying his age well, and few would guess it to be as great as it is.

Chas. Westbay reached home at noon, last Saturday, from Fayette county, to which place he assisted J. E. Rouse to move.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cornelius, of Kenton county, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kreyleich, of the Utzinger neighborhood, last Saturday and Sunday.

T. B. Mathews, the efficient superintendent of the Boone County Distilling Company at Petersburg, was in town Saturday on business pertaining to the company.

Prof. A. C. Collins, of Union, was in town Sunday afternoon. He is well pleased with his professional work in Union, and is a living testimonial of a good table provided by Supt. and Mrs. Voshell.

A letter received from J. J. Huey, a few days ago, directed his paper sent to Gallatin, Tennessee. In the letter he said: "I have engaged in the undertaking business. Got through the embalming school last week. Give my regards to all my old friends."

COUNTY COURT.

Lawrence Ryan was appointed administrator of Mellcent Dwyre. J. T. Roberts, J. R. Johnson and J. T. Hind were appointed appraisers.

W. W. Tarvin allowed $12 for holding postmortem on Joe Michaels.

A strong delegation of Constance people was in town, last Saturday, as witnesses in the case of the commonwealth against F. Zimmer, on a peace warrant sworn out by Southgate Anderson. Judge Roberts heard the several witnesses, and dismissed the proceedings, stating although there had been some trouble between Anderson and Zimmer he did not think it grave enough to justify putting Mr. Zimmer under a bond to keep the peace. The trial consumed a greater part of the day.

I noticed in a late issue of the Boone County RECORDER a call requesting me to make the race for Representative of Boone county. Friends, while I feel highly complimented by the honor you have conferred upon me, and above all, am proud to know I have so many friends who deem me competent to fill such a responsible position at this the most critical period in the history of our country, since our forefathers gained for us our independence, but, sorry to say, although it is with reluctance, yet it is impossible for me to accept your kind and very much appreciated request. Desiring you will not be offended at my refusal and hoping to be able to reciprocate in the near future, I am most respectfully, E. B. MORSE.

Died—March 4th, 1899, at her home in Mexico, Mo., of a complication of diseases, Mrs. Maria Gaines Graves, aged 70 years, wife of C. C. Graves.

Mrs. Graves was born in Boone county, Ky., Dec. 12, 1828; she was the only daughter of William and Jennetty Gaines; she has three surviving brothers in Boone county—Oscar, Templeton and J. A. December 24, 1847, she was united in marriage with C. C. Graves, of Woodford county. To them were born nine children, two of whom preceded her across the river. She was a devoted, self-sacrificing wife and mother, and her sweet, sunny disposition won for her the hearts of all with whom she came in contact—to know her was to love her. Early in life, under the preaching of Rev. J. A. Kirtley, she professed faith in Christ, and became a member of Bullittsburg Baptist church. A beautiful christian character accompanied her through her entire life. About 18 years ago she moved to Missouri, where the remainder of her life was spent. For months she has been a great sufferer, but she bore her affliction with patience and christian fortitude. She leaves a husband and seven children, and many friends and relatives to mourn her death. May God comfort them in their sorrow. L. G. K.

The above is a good picture of Prof. M. A. Cassidy, of Lexington, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Superintendent of Public Instruction. He is President of the Kentucky Educational Association, has been Superintendent of the schools in the city of Lexington, and twice elected Superintendent of public schools in Fayette county. He is credited with being the first Superintendent in Kentucky to hold commencement exercises and grant diplomas to common school graduates, and is well equipped for the duties of the office to which he aspires. He conducted the Institute at Walton, last year, and the teachers of this county are well acquainted with him.

The RECORDER spent a few hours at Limaburg, last Friday morning, where it found several persons enjoying the fine weather of that day. Dr. Rouse was taking a rest in his nicely equipped office, conscious of having kept his numerous patients all in good health during the severe weather of the past few months. S. J. Rouse was marking an invoice of spring goods he brought from the city the day before, and occasionally adjourned his work a few minutes to swap jokes with the bystanders. Ex-Sheriff Beall, of Hebron, who had spent a day or two in the town, hoping to restore his health by drinking creek water, was in custody of Mayor J. M. Utz, who intended to give him his passport and escort him beyond the city limits at high 12, because of suspicious action of which he was guilty. T. B. Aylor, Everett Dixon and W. H. Crawen, three farmers of the neighborhood, appeared on the scene at an early hour to discuss the weather, young lambs, the mudroads and numerous other interesting topics. Geo. Baker seemed to be the happiest man in the town, and took pleasure in showing the RECORDER through his new shop which is complete in all its appointments, there being nowhere in this part of the country a shop that approaches it in arrangements for convenience. George throws open the massive folding doors early every morning and receives his patrons with a smile.

Chas. Garnett, the Lickskillet lightweight, was seen trying to navigate the North Bend road in a one-horse-power craft. He was proceeding slowly, and appeared to be doubtful as to the success of his undertaking.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Bro. Crates wishes to file his demurrer to the charge made by Bro. C. G. Jones at the District meeting of the North Bend Association of Baptists, recently held in Burlington. As the remarks of Bro. Jones were published in the RECORDER, Bro. Crates should be heard through the same medium.

Mr. Edior:—Some erroueous statements were made concerning Methodists at the District Board meeting of the North Bend Association of Baptists at Burlington. In answer I wish to say that Rev. C. G. Jones had better inform himself before he speaks so positively. I flatly deny the charge that Bishops, Presiding Elders and Preachers in the Methodist church do not belong to the church. As instances: Bishop Hendrix is a member of Central Methodist church, Kansas City, Mo. My membership is retained at Eleventh Street Methodist church, Covington, Ky. I wish also to ask Bro. Jones to give through the RECORDER, page and paragraph in the Discipline, 1898 being the last edition, where he finds the followig, or any such language: "No one who luveighs against the doctrines of the Methodist church has a right to commune. It is certainly not a Discipline of the M. E. Church South.

Concerning Bro. T. L. Utz's gush of Methodist and close communion, I have this to say: "The proof of the pudding is in the eatiug," and I hereby extend to him a personal invitation to commune with the Methodist of Walton, at my church, Easter Sunday, April 2d. Hesitate not to come, for I am responsible to my Confereuce.

J. W. CRATES, Pastor
in charge of Walton Methodist Church.

Walton.

Edward Holder started for Grant county on Sunday morning.

Miss Lora Diers will have the honor of representing Walton in the Sangerfest Chorus in Cincinnati this spring.

Mrs. N. M. Northcutt came out from her home in Covington, last Wednesday, to see her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Holder.

Clifton Botts is now the happy possessor of a new bicycle. He is spending much time explaining all its perfections to his mother.

Miss Lucy Rice has returned from a pleasant visit to her sister in Louisville. It is said that Miss Lucy returned so soon in order to hurry up some quilting requisite to complete a house keeping outfit.

Remember that the world renowned Ralph Bingham will give one of his wonderful entertainments at the Opera House, on Monday night, the 20th inst. There has been none like him as far as the world's history is known.

Albert Brittenhelm has sold his one-half interest in the Opera House to A. M. Edwards for $1,400. A corps of painters will begin operations on it this week, and try to make it a thing of beauty and a joy for several years.

H. C. Diers sold to Mr. J. C. McNey, of Crittenden, a separator for $550, and a wind blower for $250. There are some animated, not machine wind blowers, around town that the citizens would be glad if the said Diers would make some disposition of so that the place would be rid of them forever. It is not thought, however, that they would be of any use in stacking straw.

Mrs. Geo. Laws, nee Miss Lucy Glenn, died on Monday, the 6th inst., at 2 p. m. She was one of the oldest inhabitants, and beloved by all who knew her. She leaves a husband, who was devoted to her, and three sons, Edward, Jesse and Dudley, and one daughter, Alice. Her remains were interred in the Baptist Cemetery. The Rev. Lafayette Johnson preached a pathetic sermon to a large concourse of friends and acquaintances.

A former correspondent with whom the RECORDER'S present one at Walton hoarded up to the time the former one moved to Covington, furnishes the following extract from a letter received from the latter. It is characteristic and easy of recognition: "You were so thoughtful about my comfort that you did not want me separated from that jewel of a stove. How thankful I am you can never learn. Sombody was in my room this morning and thought to do me a favor, and threw in a shovel full of coal. Don't you think the old darling resented the familiarity from a stranger—choked up in a minute as it were, and positively refused to burn? At this I punched and shook it until, worn out by exhaustion, I made up my mind to put in a bunch of excelsior, when supper was over and make it burn, "will ye, will ye." It must have been conscious that I was in the mood for something desperate, for when I went to my room the blessed relic of other days was burning as if it was a blast furnace."

Neighborhood news on three pages this week.

J. T. Marshall, the tombstone man, was in town yesterday, the picture of happiness and contentment.

THE emperor of Austria has just received a piece of tapestry, representing an allegorical design, that was woven by a new process in a few hours. It is 80 inches square, and represents over 200,000,000 crossings. Three hundred silk threads fill one inch. By the ordinary process the work, including designing —which is not necessary in the new method—would have taken three years.

IN Nagasaki, Japan, there is a fireworks maker who manufactures pyrotechnic birds of great size that, when exploded, sail in a life-like manner through the air and perform many movements exactly like those of living birds. The secret of making these wonderful things has been in the possession of the eldest child of the family of each generation for more than 400 years.

PRINCE SESSERI, a nephew of the prince of Siam, has been placed in a railroad shop in England, where he is learning the principles of mechanics. His elder brother, Prince Boveradez, has been for some time in another huge concern learning gunmaking and shipbuilding. The king of Siam is keenly alive to the advantages of such a training, and in this way western ideas are civilizing the east.

THE German government is making an experiment in the feeding of artillery horses by feeding them on a patent food. This is composed of fresh blood from the slaughter houses, mixed with sugar refuse and the screenings of barley, wheat and the like. It is claimed that the albumen in the blood, aided by the other two ingredients, makes the new forage very strengthening. As the new production is very cheap, the cost of maintenance will be sensibly decreased.

EVERY Siamese girl who reaches a certain age without marriage is ticketed and labeled and placed in a privileged class, under the special care of the king, who binds himself to find husbands for them all. His method is delightfully simple. A prisoner in any of the Siamese jails may gain his pardon and release by marrying one of the ineligible class. Whether he is already married or not is not of great consequence, for in Siam it is not necessary to draw the line at one wife.

"THERE are two counties in Washington," says Senator Wilson, of that state, "each nearly as large as the state of Massachusetts, and one of them is as great a gold field as South Africa. The camp of the Republic mine will be a city of 10,000 inhabitants in a year and a half. In this wonderful country there are mountains full of gold, and back of the mountains are magnificent agricultural lands. Washington is the place for making money now.

A HAMPDEN (Me.) woman, Mrs. E. B. Maddocks, has in her possession a sugar bowl which was once the property of Napoleon Bonaparte. It was given to her mother in 1813, when Napoleon was in camp at Strasburg. The bowl is made of earthenware, and is silver-plated, and is considered no less valuable because of a nick in the cover of the bowl, as the story runs that Napoleon was passing it to a friend one day, when he accidentally dropped it on the floor, making the aforesaid nick.

THE oldest lighthouse in existence is believed to be that at Coruna, Spain. It was built in the reign of Trajan and reconstructed in 1534. England and France have lighthouses which have been built by the Roman conquerors. The famous Cordovan tower of France, at the mouth of the Gironde, in the bay of Biscay, was completed in 1611, in the reign of Henry IV. After standing 287 years it was still considered to be one of the best lighthouses in the world, although its height has been increased.

THE clock at Greenwich, Eng., which records "Greenwich time," used by navigators—and in this country by the railroads, with allowances in differences in longitude—has a dial with three circles. One circle is for seconds, one for minutes, one for hours. It is a 24-hour clock, but does not have the numeral XXIV. The time starts from 0 in all cases—seconds, minutes, hours. Scientists and those who have to mark the lapse of seconds accustom themselves to count "Naught, one, two," and so on. The first second is not completed until 1 is reached.

PEOPLE Cuba bound must remember that, while only one-tenth of the island is under cultivation, there are no large tracts of vacant public lands. Every inch of ground is owned by some individual. Cuba, therefore, offers but small opportunities for "boomers." The opening of Cuba for colonization and investment is not like the opening of Oklahoma, where the first man to drive a stake has a "claim" on a portion of land. Cuba's acres may be cheaply acquired from the present impoverished owners, but nevertheless each acre must be paid for.

WITHIN eight more centuries leap year will have become a relic of the present time. By that time the extra 11 days lost to make up the changes from the old Julian calendar to that of the present day will all have been duly accounted for, and the world will run around in just 365 days, and no more. The ladies of the coming century will be forced to devise some other scheme for forcing the unwilling swain to take a wife. Nineteen hundred, while one of the even years ending a quartet, will not be a leap year simply because in arranging the dates it was purposely left out.

TENTH IMMUNES RAN AMUCK

They Showed Ill Temper as Soon as Mustered Out at Macon, Ga.—Indiscriminate Firing From the Cars.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 9.—The 10th immunes, colored, Col. Jones, who were mustered out at Macon Wednesday began to show their ill temper as soon as the train bearing the Negroes home began to move out of Macon. Producing revolvers and other arms, which they in some way managed to smuggle with them, they began firing from the windows. Bullets flew in every direction as the train sped on and passers-by were compelled to seek shelter. Luckily only one person was shot in Macon, Will Goodyear, a 16-year-old white boy, whose arm was fractured by a ball. As the train passed the various stations on the road the rioting was renewed, shots being fired from the train at the people standing on the platforms to see the train go by.

At Griffin, Ga., where the first section of the train stopped at 2:30 Thursday afternoon, occurred the most serious trouble of the day.

The regiment came over the Central Georgia railroad in three sections. When the train stopped at Griffin, the Negroes who, by this time, had filled up on whisky, began firing their pistols and yelling like Indians. Over 200 shots were fired and the police were powerless to resist. The city was at the mercy of the Negroes, who kept up a fusilade of shots until the train was carried beyond the city limits. The news of the outrageous conduct spread rapidly over Griffin and it was determined that the next section of the regiment should be held in check.

Mayor Davis ordered out the Griffin rifles on his own responsibility, as there was no time to lose. In addition to the militia the mayor deputized nearly a hundred citizens to assist the officers in preserving the peace and protecting the city. About 5:10 the second section came in sight and above the roar of the train could be heard the rattle of the firearms which were being discharged indiscriminately.

When the train came to a standstill, the Negroes saw 200 heavily armed men who commanded them to keep quiet. The Negroes were awed and with a few exceptions were as docile as lambs. To those who proved fractions cracked heads were administered. When the train pulled out from the depot and the Negroes thought they were out of reach of the citizens, they began firing at houses. At the first shot a volley was poured into the disappearing train by the citizens and militia. Unfortunately George Agee, a trainman, was shot in the abdomen and fatally wounded and one Negro was clipped on the shoulder by a bullet.

As the several sections came into the Union depot here they were met by the police reserve, heavily armed. The Negroes were evidently awed and gave the police no trouble. The 10th was recruited from all parts of the country. The Negroes for the most part, however, are from North Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri and Ohio. Nearly all of them were sent out of Atlanta to their destinations before the night was over.

TALKING OF NEXT CENSUS.

A Host of Applicants for Positions—Director Merriam Announces That Applicants Must Be Examined.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Ex-Gov. Merriam, of Minnesota, the new director of the census, was busily engaged at the temporary offices of the census Wednesday going over preliminary matters. There was a host of applicants for places, but few of these had personal interviews. Many applications have been filed, but it will be impossible to give them consideration for a considerable period.

Director Merriam furthermore made the announcement Wednesday that these appointments must be preceded by an examination. Assistant Director Fred H. Wines is en route to Washington and Thursday will have a conference with Gov. Merriam looking to preliminary plans.

THE RICHEST GOLD ORE.

Sensational Strikes of Gold Made in the State of Washington—Ore That Assays $18,987 to the Ton Found.

SPOKANE, Wash., March 9.—The richest gold ore yet found in Republic camp, on the Colville reservation, was discovered in the Flag Hill claim Wednesday. Telluride ore was encountered in the shaft at a depth of 20 feet, which assays $18,987 per ton. A sensational strike of gold ore has also been made in the Bunker Hill mine on Palmer mountain in Okaganon county. The face of the tunnel is now in remarkably rich ore, and from 60 pounds of rock taken from the waste dump and pounded out in a hand mortar, 14 ounces of gold was taken.

Probably His Last Dive.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Thomas Donalson, of Bath Beach, L. I., known the world over as a champion high diver, dove from the roof of Madison Square garden, a distance of 85 feet, Wednesday afternoon with probably fatal results.

New Courthouse at Akron.

AKRON, O., March 9.—The county commissioners Tuesday authorized a special election on the proposition to issue $250,000 bonds for the erection of a new courthouse.

PRICE OF ARMOR.

The Navy Department Making Figures in Regard to Its Supply.

Officials of the Navy Department Considering the Feasibility of Constructing a Government Plant—Can Armor Be Made for $300 Per Ton?

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The navy department has been making some figures regarding the supply of armor and the prices to be paid. At present there has been authorized 23,000 tons of armor and there is available for the purchase of this armor, $8,000,000. At the time the Bethlehem armor plant was erected there was only 6,000 tons of armor authorized by the government, and there has been purchased by the government in all only 33,674 tons of armor, 10,000 tons more than the government is now authorized to buy. The average price for armor per ton has been $557.57, the minimum being $552.50 and the maximum, $677.13, the higher price being when nickel was being introduced. It is estimated by the officials of the department that in case the estimate of $400 per ton as a sufficient price for armor are correct that the difference from the price asked, $545 per ton, would, in the manufacture of 95,000 tons of armor, be sufficient to build a government plant. If the government could purchase the entire amount of armor authorized with the $8,000,000 available the average price would be $342. It is said that these figures are being considered by large iron and steel concerns. Officials at the department say that if armor can be manufactured for $300 per ton, and the government has money to pay an average price of $342 per ton that the manufacturers are likely to look into the matter pretty closely, as the profit of $58 per ton will be worth considering. In making these estimates the price of $400 per ton is allowed for the ships already authorized under the naval appropriation act for the year ending June 30, 1898.

The figures given above have been discussed by officers of the department and representatives of the armor plate manufacturers. It has also been pointed out that the government will not need any of the armor until next February and meanwhile the armor plants of this country will be making Krupp armor for Russia. All this armor will be tested at the government grounds at Indian Head, and the navy department will have the knowledge of all the experiments and be ready to take advantage of all improvements which may be affected.

RECOMMENDED FOR MERCY.

Mrs. Margaret E. Cody Convicted of Attempting to Blackmail George and Helen Gould By a Jury.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 10.—Mrs. Margaret E. Cody has been convicted of attempting to blackmail George and Helen Gould. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty Thursday night after being out eight hours. A recommendation to mercy was made. The court will convene at 10 o'clock Friday morning when the usual motion will be heard and sentence will be passed. It is likely that Mrs. Cody will receive a light penalty, on account of her age.

The jury balloted seven times before agreeing, the first ballot standing: Guilty, 8; not guilty, 3; blank, 1.

Mrs. Cody, who had remained in her chair in the court room most of the afternoon after the court adjourned, waiting to hear her fate, gasped and all but fainted when she heard the verdict of guilty. It was a quarter of an hour before she had recovered sufficiently to allow herself to be conducted back to jail.

SEGMENTAL TUBE WIRE GUN.

READING, Pa., March 20.—An official government test of the Brown segmental tube wire gun took place Thursday at Birdsboro, this county, where 50 of these guns are being built for the government. The gun is five inch caliber, weighs three and one-half tons and is 19 feet long. The tests are made under the supervision of Capt. Ira McNutt, of the ordnance department, and Edward M. Gage, government inspector, had charge of the loading and firing. The highest pressure reached was over 30,000 pounds with a velocity of nearly 3,000 feet a second. These tests will be continued for some days until probably 500 shots are fired. So far they have been highly satisfactory to the inventor, J. H. Brown, and the government officials.

Buys a Palatial Winter Residence.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 10.—Col. Oliver Payne, of Ohio, son of ex-Senator Payne and brother of the first Mrs. Wm. C. Whitney, has purchased from S. R. Vanduzer, of New York, the latter's palatial residence at Thomasville, Ga.

A Strike Settled.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 10.—The strike at the Pittsburgh Forge & Iron Co.'s plant has been settled and the works are in full operation. The men went back at the old rate.

ARRIVED SAFELY AT MANILA.

Transport Grant, With Reinforcements in Good Condition, Reaches Her Destination—Gen. Lawton on Board.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—A cablegram received at the war department Friday, dated Manila, March 10, says that the transport Grant arrived with troops in good condition. The Arizona and Newport left Friday for San Francisco—the Arizona via Hong Kong and the Newport via Nagasaki. The Grant carried to Manila the 4th infantry and four companies of the 17th infantry.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—This adds to the troops under the command of Gen. Otis 42 officers and 1,716 enlisted men. The Grant, with Gen. W. H. Lawton in command, sailed from New York January 19.

MANILA, March 11.—The remains of Col. W. E. Smith, Maj. E. McConville, Capt. David S. Elliott and Second Lieut. Eugene S. French, who were killed in action, were shipped home Friday by the United States transport Scandia with military honors, the 2d Oregon volunteers furnishing the escort through the city.

Maj. Gen. Lawton, who arrived here Friday on board the United States transport Grant from New York on January 19, landed and formally reported to Maj. Gen. Otis, after which he returned on board the Grant. The troops that reached here on board the Grant (the 4th infantry and a battalion of the 17th infantry) will be disembarked immediately.

At 3 o'clock Friday afternoon the temperature was 80 degrees and the weather was showery.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—George P. Holden, of Washington, who returned from the Orient on the Hong Kong Maru, has in his possession 1,100 claims of the officers and men of Dewey's fleet for head money. The claims are to be filed with the court of claims in Washington for final action. The head money for Adm. Dewey and his officers and men will aggregate $187,500, or $100 per head for the 1,875 officers and men of Adm. Montejo's fleet.

The prize money for the officers and men under Adm. Dewey will amount to $400,000, plus the salvage of three vessels recently raised. This money will be distributed by the United States district courts.

Speaking of Adm. Dewey, Mr. Holden said: "While somewhat worried owing to the exacting duties and responsibilities of his position, he said his health was good. He looked fairly well, too."

THE GOVERNMENT OF CUBA.

The Administration Is Contemplating a Change In Some of the Features—Civil Government.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The administration is contemplating a change in some features of the government of the island of Cuba. It is probable that the military government will, to a certain extent, be replaced with civil government. The head of the government must, of course, remain military, but the change in contemplation is to have civil officers in place of military men in the cabinet and subordinate positions. It is believed that experts in different lines, such as finance and revenue, and in the management of much of the business of the land and the different municipalities, will get along more smoothly than the army officers. It is said that the officers, being brought up under strict military discipline, hold not only the statutes, but the army rules and regulations as the guide in all things, while the civilian officers would hold the statutes as the supreme guide and endeavor to get along under them in the best manner possible and with more diplomacy than is possessed by the army men. It is not known whether the contemplated change has reached a point further than discussion in the war department and with the president, but its advantages have been pointed out, and the authority of the government to establish such a civil government under control of the military government has been determined.

PRESIDENT'S SOUTHERN TRIP

McKinley and Party Will Leave Washington Monday Afternoon—They Will Visit Thomasville, Ga.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Senator Hanna saw the president Friday, and final arrangements were made for the president's trip to Thomasville, Ga. The party will leave here at 6 o'clock next Monday afternoon by way of the Atlantic coast line, and will consist of the President and Mrs. McKinley, Vice President and Mrs. Hobart, Senator and Mrs. Hanna, and Assistant Secretary Cortelyou. It is probable that the party will remain at Thomasville for a couple of weeks or longer if the public business will permit.

TO TAKE CENSUS

An Army of Forty Thousand Men Will Be Employed to Do the Work.

All Applications for Office Will Receive Attention, But the Applicants Will Be Subject to a Rigid Examination Before Appointment.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The policy that will govern the task of taking the census of 1900 was outlined in an official statement made Saturday by Director Merriam and Assistant Director Wines. Director Merriam starts for Minnesota Saturday afternoon, leaving Assistant Director Wines in charge. On Gov. Merriam's return Dr. Wines will go home to settle his private affairs. Meantime there will be no consideration of appointments and it will be at least 30 days yet before another selection of a staff officer is made, with the probable exception of Prof. Henry Gannett, of this city, as geographer. This is in accordance with a decision of the director Saturday that in his absence there must be no promises of office nor assurances nor encouragement for any given. Several of the officials selected Thursday night have qualified and the active preliminary work will begin at once. The statement of policy follows:

"As to prospective appointments to office the services of no more staff officers can be utilized at present, and there will be no others selected within certainly 30 days. Prof. Henry Gannett, the well known geographer of the geological survey, who was the political and statistical geographer of the last census, has been asked to take charge of the same work for the coming census, and if the geological survey is willing to spare him sufficiently to undertake this work he will be entrusted with it and given an absolutely free hand. Until the schedules come back from the enumerators in July, 1900, there will be no clerks wanted save such a small skeleton force as would be needed to take care of the correspondence and office work preliminary to taking of the census. When the schedules come back there will be a large force of employes appointed. All applications for office will receive consideration and a large number already have been received and placed on file. While the impression has gone abroad that the census is to be a refuge for incompetency, the truth and the actual facts are that all applicants will be subjected to examination before appointment, which will be as rigid as the examinations before the civil service commission. No political influence will be sufficient to put an employe on the census payrolls of whose competency to do the work to be assigned him the director is not satisfied in advance. And, furthermore, if any employe is found to be incompetent on trial such employe will be discharged regardless of his or her political backing. The examinations of employes will be directed not so much for the testing of their general information and capacity as it will be their fitness for the work to be done, as for example, no copyist who can not write or spell satisfactorily will be appointed nor calculators who can not calculate. First of all, after the general administrative officers are selected, there must be 300 supervisors appointed and in their selection consultation will be had with senators and representatives in the respective states. It may be announced also that senators and representatives who do not belong to the republican party will receive the same fair treatment and consideration along this line that is given republicans.

This will be no small task. Assuming the population of the United States at this time to be, in round numbers, 80,000,000 people, there must be 400,000 sheets issued for the population schedule alone. Adding to these the other schedules, there will have to be in the aggregate not less than half a million such sheets in printed form issued. All this mass of paper will have to be manufactured and printed without delay. In counting the population every individual will be represented by a separate card and there will have to be manufactured and printed not less than 100,000,000 of these cards. The probability is that a system of machine calculating which admits of counting facts in combination and which worked so well in the last census will be adopted for that of 1900. The office will have to select from the various devices the one most satisfactory, and a sufficient number to do the work must then be manufactured. The work will be pushed with all possible speed consistent with accuracy and every effort made to avoid dragging the work along unnecessarily. Taken all in all, the complete number of appointments that will be made in the course of the census will be over 45,000.

Fire at Mountain Grove, Mo.

MOUNTAIN GROVE, Mo., March 13.—Eight brick business buildings with contents were destroyed by fire Saturday. It was only by the most heroic efforts the remainder of the business portion was saved.

Walter H. Loomis, editor of the Advertiser, fell from the roof of his two-story building, sustaining injuries which may prove fatal.

Loss to stocks of goods will aggregate $100,000. Green & Hughes, general merchandise, alone lose $40,000. Loss to buildings, $50,000, half insured.

In other months we forget the harsh winds of Spring. But they have their use, as some say, to blow out the bad air accumulated after Winter storms and Spring thaws. There is far more important accumulation of badness in the veins and arteries of humanity, which needs Hood's Sarsaparilla.

This great Spring Medicine clarifies the blood as nothing else can. It cures scrofula, kidney disease, liver troubles, rheumatism and kindred ailments. Thus it gives perfect health, strength and appetite for months to come.

Kidneys — "My kidneys troubled me, and on advice took Hood's Sarsaparilla which gave prompt relief, better appetite. My sleep is refreshing. It cured my wife also." MICHAEL BOYLE, 3473 Denny Street, Pittsburg, Pa.

Dyspepsia — "Complicated with liver and kidney trouble, I suffered for years with dyspepsia, with severe pains. Hood's Sarsaparilla made me strong and hearty." J. B. EMERTON, Main Street, Auburn, Me.

Hip Disease — "Five running sores on my hip caused me to use crutches. Was confined to bed every winter. Hood's Sarsaparilla saved my life, as it cured me perfectly. Am strong and well." ANNIE ROBERT, 49 Fourth St., Fall River, Mass.

MRS. COOPER,

MRS. M. C. COOPER.

Mrs. M. C. Cooper, of the Royal Academy of Arts, London, England, is undoubtedly one of the greatest living sculptors. She has modeled busts of half the nobility of England, and is now in Washington making busts of distinguished Americans. Mrs. Cooper has just completed a bust of Mrs. Belva Lockwood, which is now in the Corcoran Art Gallery. Ruskin, the great artist, placed Mrs. Cooper as one of the greatest sculptors and painters of this century. Mrs. Cooper is an ardent friend of Pe-ru-na and in a letter dated January 26, written from Washington, says the following: "I take pleasure in recommending Pe-ru-na for catarrh and la grippe. I have suffered for months and after the use of one bottle of Pe-runa I am entirely well."—Mrs. M. C. Cooper.

GOMEZ OUSTED.

The Cuban Assembly Dismissed Him as Commander-in-Chief of the Army.

The Assembly Has Never Been Officially Recognized by Our Government, and Its Action is Strongly Censured by Cubans on All Sides.

HAVANA, March 13.—After six hours of violent session the Cuban assembly Saturday evening dismissed Gen. Gomez from his position as commander-in-chief of the army. The vote was 24 to 6. The first motion to abolish the position was amended to one dismissing Gen. Gomez, and leaving the post open for appointment of a successor. Many exciting scenes occurred. During the sitting on one or two occasions the deputies almost came to blows. Emanuel Sanguilly was the principal arraigner of Gomez. He charged him with being a traitor to Cuba, characterized him as a cardboard Napoleon and likened him to Marie Antoinette, who, a foreigner, raised revolt among the people of the country of her adoption.

Gov. Gen. Brooke was notified Saturday night of the deposition of Gomez, and when seen Sunday morning he was much interested to learn the details of the assembly's proceedings. He said he could not express an opinion as to the effect of the assembly's action upon the future relations between Gen. Gomez and the United States, particularly in the matter of disbursing the $3,000,000 offered by Washinton to the Cuban troops as a condition of disbandment, but the impression seems to be among the American authorities that as the assembly has never been officially recognized by the United States government, its action so far as Washington is concerned will not amount to more than the resolutions of any other body of individuals.

The assembly is being strongly censured by Cubans on all sides and there were popular demonstrations Sunday afternoon in favor of the deposed commander-in-chief, the crowds shouting, "Long live Gomez!" and "Death to the Assembly!"

There is no doubt that a majority of the people support him as against the assembly. The local press will probably attack the assembly, urging its dissolution as the best thing that can happen, and insisting that there is no reason why the United States authorities may not continue to treat with Gen. Gomez in the matter of the payment to the troops. It is said on good authority that the pay rolls Gomez is preparing to hand Gen. Brooke are most complete, full and fair and that when the army learns he can aid the troops in procuring $3,000,000, whereas it is problematical whether the assembly can obtain anything, there is little doubt as to the side the army will take in the controversy. The troops are tired of the field and insufficient food and the indications are that they would readily disband on receipt of the $3,000,000, unless deceived by the assembly with promises of a larger payment in the event of refusing to disband.

Gen. Gomez enjoys the confidence of the American military authorities and although he says he is glad of his new found liberty since it will enable him to return home, it is not believed that he will leave Cuba at present. He has always insisted that an active share in distributing the money would fall to him and there seems no good reason why he can not continue to act as Gen. Brooke's advisor and helper.

The patriotic clubs have decided to abolish the junta patriotica, the members of which are elected by them and to establish a patriotic league in its place. Gen. Gomez, it is said, will be asked to accept the presidency of the new organization.

Gen. Gomez Sunday issued a statement to the Cuban people and army in regard to his deposition as commander. Among other things he said:

"As a sincere man, I confess I thank them, because they relieve me of great political obligations and also leave me free to return to my abandoned home, which, during 30 years of continual strife for the good of this country, that I love so much, has been my own aspiration. Foreigner as I am, I did not come to serve this country by helping it to defend its just cause as a mercenary soldier; and, consequently since the oppressive power of Spain has withdrawn from this land and left Cuba in freedom, I have sheathed my sword, thinking I had finished the mission which I had voluntarily imposed upon myself. I am owed nothing. I retire contented and satisfied at having done all I could for the benefit of my brothers. Wherever destiny rules that I make my home."

To Colonize in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 13.—A large number of Spanish officers and soldiers who participated in the recent war in Cuba are to be colonized in the districts of Moctezuma and Arizpa, state of Sonora, where a tract comprising 33,000,000 acres has been secured.

Will Be Reorganized.

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 13.—In accordance with orders from the adjutant general's office, Company A of the 9th battalion, O. N. G., will be reorganized.

THE PAY OF CUBAN SOLDIERS

Only Obstacle in the Way Is the Completion of the Rolls—The Work Is Being Hastened.

HAVANA, March 11.—The only obstacle now in the way of paying off the Cuban troops is the completion of the rolls, a work which is being hastened by Inspector General Roloff. He says that in some cases the rosters of the commands must be created, as the old rosters are either missing or too defective to be useful. He points out that the insurgents often have no paper, pens or ink.

Gen. Gomez explains that 6,000 commissioned and 10,000 non-commissioned officers are relatively large numbers in an army of 32,000 private, but that these officers in many cases received their appointments because the Cubans have no other way of recognizing bravery and stimulating enthusiasm. "It may seem," he says, "a cheap sort of promotion, but it meant a good deal to the Cubans."

Gen. Gomez continues to produce an excellent impression upon the American military authorities.

The stories printed here and elsewhere to the effect that Gov. Gen. Brooke intends to require the Cuban military assembly to discontinue its meetings are officially denied. Another secret session, thought it is said there was no quorum, was held Friday.

Friday morning the committee appointed Thursday by the assembly called upon Gen. Gomez to ask an explanation of his conduct and a definition of the understanding reached between him and Gen. Brooke, which the committee declared had prevented a successful issue of the assembly's financial project. Gen. Gomez declined to comply with the request.

Whether Gen. Brooke's message declaring that the United States will not recognize any financial obligation entered into by any persons claiming to represent the people of Cuba, without the president's authorization was delivered to the assembly has not yet developed, but it appears that members of the assembly fear that this message will be followed by others of a more stringent nature. The session Saturday will be public and the business will be an explanation of what has been done in secret session and a discussion of the course of Gen. Gomez.

At 3 o'clock Friday afternoon the temperature was 76 degrees Fahrenheit.

HUGE REFRIGERATING PLANT

CHICAGO, March 11.—Chief Quartermaster Lee, of the department of the lakes, will open bids March 30 for the erection of a large refrigerating plant and ice-making machine at Manila under the plans and specifications recently revised by experts. Proposals for constructing the plant were received a month ago and forwarded to the authorities at Washington, but were rejected because the specifications were not explicit in describing the style of apparatus desired.

The revised plans call for a refrigerating plant with a capacity for 1,200 tons of beef, 400 tons of mutton, 50 tons of butter, 50 tons of canned goods, 100 tons of potatoes and 100 tons of bacon.

The ice-making plant will be capable of turning out 40 tons of ice daily. The bidders will be expected to ship their material to Manila to be put together. The refrigerating house will be divided into 12 rooms, separate rooms being provided for each class of provisions. The estimated cost of the plant is $150,000.

WILL OF JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

He Bequeaths the Sum of $150,000 For Public Purposes—Was a Member of Chicago Board of Trade.

CHICAGO, March 11.—In the will of John Quincy Adams which was filed for probate Friday, the sum of $150,000 is bequeathed for public purposes. Of this amount the American Sunday School union gets $20,000; Rockford college, Rockford, Ill., $50,000; Red River Valley university, Wahpeton, N. D., $10,000; Fargo college, $10,000 and the American Bible society $10,000. The remainder is divided among local seminaries and societies. Mr. Adams was a prominent member of the Chicago board of trade. He was born in Massachusetts in 1834.

ARMY ADVANCES

Gen. Wheaton's Divisional Brigade Will Attempt to Corral Filipinos.

Rebels Had Apparently Planned an Attack Upon the Lines of Gen. Otis and Hale Sunday Morning But Their Courage Seemed to Fail Them.

MANILA, March 13.—Gen. Wheaton's newly formed divisional brigade advanced at 7 o'clock Monday morning from San Pedro Macati for the purpose of corralling the enemy. It is now moving on Pasig, meeting with slight resistance as the rebels are in full retreat.

A gunboat is clearing the jungle along the river banks, which have been carried as far as Guadslupe.

The purpose of the move is to clear the country to Laguna de Bay.

The Filipinos apparently had planned an attack upon the lines of Gen. Otis and Gen. Hale Sunday morning but their courage seemed to fail them, though they fired signals and afterward kept up the fusilade along the American front for an hour. Our troops, in obedience to orders, refrained from shooting, with the exception of two companies of newly arrived men who replied until they had suppressed a regiment of Aguinaldo's Red brigade. This body of rebels seemed under better leadership than most of the others, and a white man was among the officers endeavoring to lead them to the attack, but apparently all efforts to induce them to leave the trenches were futile.

The American authorities in Manila say the city is now so effectively policed that a serious outbreak is impossible. They believe that the natives are cowed.

The presence of the families of officers is discouraged, and many are leaving on the United States transports, some going to Japan for temporary residence. Gen. Otis has remarked: "Manila is no place for women. This is a war, not a picnic."

Sunday afternoon the 20th and 23d infantry and seven companies of the Oregon volunteers marched to San Pedro Macati to join Gen. Wheaton's new divisional brigade which is to consist of the 20th and 23d infantry, eight companies of the Washington volunteers, seven companies of the Oregon volunteers, three troops of cavalry (mounted) and a battalion of light artillery. Although the rain which fell Sunday morning has cooled the temperature to 82 degrees, many dropped from the ranks overcome by the heat.

THE CATILIAN GOES ASHORE.

The New Allan Line Steamer Fast at Gannet Rock Light, Near Yarmouth—Two Compartments Full of Water.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 13.—The new Allan line steamer Castilian from Portland for Halifax, went ashore near Gannet Rock light, near Yarmouth, at 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning at low tide, in a fog, her compasses being deranged. Two compartments are full of water and tugs have gone from Yarmouth to the scene. The Castilian arrived at Halifax from Liverpool ten days ago on her maiden voyage, and went to Portland to load cargo for return. She is 8,200 tons net register, being the largest Allan line steamer afloat. The ship is in charge of Capt. Barrett and officers, formerly of the steamer Parisian, the entire crew of the Parisian having been transferred to the new boat. The steamer was due to embark mails and passengers here for Liverpool.

PORTLAND, Me., March 13.—The Castilian sailed from this port at 1 p. m. Saturday. The ship itself is valued at about $700,000, and her cargo at $450,000. This is the most valuable cargo the Allans have ever shipped from Portland. The principal items were grain and provisions.

There were 16 second cabin and about 25 steerage passengers.

AMERICANS' HEROIC CHARGE.

The Bravery of Our Soldiers May Be Kept in Memory by Establishing a Public Park at San Juan Hill.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, March 13.—A movement is on foot here to pursuade the United States government to purchase San Juan hill to be used as a public park. The idea is that a certain portion could be set apart to be used as an American cemetery and the site of a mortuary church. A few thousand dollars spent upon the rest would make a beautiful recreation ground, including a half mile race track, a base ball diamond and tennis grounds.

Gen. Leonard Wood, military governor, and other prominent Americans favor the project, believing that if the land can be obtained at a reasonable figure, the suggestion should be carried out in memory of the heroic charge of the American troops.

Franchise Question Settled.

AKRON, O., March 13.—After a long and vigorous fight the city commissioners Saturday granted a 25-year franchise to the Akron Street Railway company. In return the company gives four-cent fares.

The Deal Made Him Insane.

BUCYRUS, O., March 13.—William Dininger bought a farm for $5,000. He went home after his purchase, but was so wrought up over the matter that he went insane. He has been adjudged insane and taken to the asylum.

THEY ARE ANXIOUS TO FIGHT

The Troops Now in the Philippines, Whose Terms Have Expired, Are Willing to Re-Enlist.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—One of the paragraphs of the army re-organization act contained authorization for the enlistment again of the volunteer troops now in the Philippines. It was stipulated that these troops should be re-enlisted only for a period of time necessary to replace them by regular troops, in no case longer than six months. The question has been presented to the war department of whether or not it was able under this provision to avail itself of the services of the officers of the volunteer regiments as well as of the enlisted men until the troops can be replaced by regulars.

The law officers of the department have concluded that the word "enlist" employed in the act was used in a broad sense, and that, therefore, the president has authority to take over all the volunteer regiments now at Manila and other points in the Philippines into the service of the United States in organizations with their full complements of officers and men. It has been represented that the volunteers there are longing to return to the United States and to private life. The officials say that this is a mistake. Gen. Otis has reported that the men, volunteers as well as regulars, do not want to come home, but are anxious to fight and crush the insurgents. Nearly every company has suffered through the wounding of some of its members at the hands of the sharpshooters, and they are anxious to make the account even.

ADM. DEWEY'S UNIFORM.

He Was Been Instructed to Select One for the Exalted Rank to Which He Has Just Been Appointed.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Adm. Dewey has been instructed to prescribe his own uniform for the exalted rank to which he has just been appointed, although it is not believed he has given much attention to the matter of uniform of late. His flag is blue with four stars set in the shape of a diamond. His uniform under former regulations, when the navy had an admiral, would be four stars on his shoulder straps, the end stars being only anchors. Upon his sleeves he would wear two very broad bands of gold, between which would be a band of yellow half the width of the outside bands. The yellow on his sleeves would extend nearly to the elbows. By a special act of congress passed in the closing hours, Adm. Dewey will receive the pay of the last general of the army.

ON HER OWN RECOGNIZANCE.

Mrs. Margaret E. Cody, Who Was Convicted of Blackmailing the Gould Heirs, Set Free by Judge Gregory.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—Judge Gregory announced Friday afternoon that he had decided to suspend sentence in the case of Margaret E. Cody, who was found guilty of blackmailing the Gould heirs by the jury here Thursday. In announcing his decision, he said: "Mrs. Cody, the evidence has convinced me that you are guilty beyond question, yet I feel that in view of the jury's unanimous recommendation for mercy and the popular sentiment which favors it, that I am justified in following their suggestion and in suspending sentence in your case. You are free to go on your own recognizance."

"Poor Little Joe."

NEW YORK, March 11.—Unable longer to keep Rudyard Kipling in ignorance of his favorite daughter Josephine's death, the news was broken to him Friday night by Dr. Dunham. The blow was a heavy one, but the father bore up bravely. "How long was she ill?" he asked. He was then told as much as the attendants thought wise. Tears stood in the poet's eyes and he murmured, half to himself, half aloud: "Poor little Joe." It was thus he always called the little one.

Broad Sword Contest.

COLUMBUS, O., March 11.—Twenty-five hundred people witnessed a mounted broad sword contest Friday night at the Columbus auditorium between Duncan C. Ross, of New York, champion broad swordsman of the world, and Capt. Peter Nagle, of Tiffin. Ross won the contest, being awarded 8 out of 14 points.

Another Victim at Lexington.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 11.—Another death resulted Friday after six hours' illness from cerebro spinal meningitis. Physicians report a number of persons ill from fear of contracting the dread disease. It has broken out among the Negroes. The board of health has ordered the isolation of all cases.

Madman's Fearful Leap.

LONDON, March 11.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Malaga, Spain, says a madman leaped Friday from the highest tower of the cathedral of Malaga—a distance of 250 feet from the ground—and was dashed into an unrecognizable mass. A large crowd witnessed the leap.

Hon. J. Fount Tillman Dead.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 11.—Hon. J. Fount Tillman, ex-register of the treasury, died at his home near Shelbyville Friday, after a brief illness.

THE RETIRING CONGRESS.

Its Course Throughout Was Marked by Extravagance and Ignorance.

The congress which expired March 4 will be memorable in the history of the country. The war with Spain commenced during its first session and the fruits of the struggle had to be gathered as far as possible during the session which has just closed. The country has taken a new departure since the late congress was elected in 1896. Whether the change in the direction of our national progress shall be for good or evil the future years must demonstrate. We have gone in a direction from which we cannot turn back and which we must pursue to the end, accepting all its consequences.

What is most striking in the congress which has just adjourned is its perfect self-abnegation in claiming power and in using it. The congress which adjourned two years ago, at the close of President Cleveland's administration, was in a constant wrangle with the executive department in regard to the extent of its prerogatives. Repeated efforts were made to guide the diplomacy of the country by instructions to the president on the subject of foreign affairs and by attempts to legislate directly in relation to other nations, especially in relation to Spain and Cuba. The administration of President Cleveland resented these attempts to interfere with the discharge of its legitimate duties, and hostile sentiments between the two departments of the government were excited. Some heated republican partisans in congress threatened the president with impeachment because he would not submit to congressional usurpation in international affairs. This attitude of opposition on the part of the executive and congress remained to the last.

The late congress assumed and retained a decidedly different attitude toward the president. At first there were some symptoms of attempts at nagging McKinley as Cleveland had been nagged. But they were only temporary. After the war began congress became almost servile in its relations to the president. The mob of congressmen were not taken into the confidence of the president, and they did not resent the slight, as they did in the case of the previous president. McKinley conducted the war through his naval and army boards, negotiated peace, confiscated Porto Rico and bought the Philippines for $20,000,000, parleyed with Gomez and contracted to pay him $3,000,000 for his Cuban soldiers—never asking the opinion, wishes or approval of congress until he sent the treaty with Spain to the senate for ratification and demanded the appropriation of the money that he had agreed to pay for his bargains. Two different nations could not have displayed conditions of greater difference between the two departments of the government than was displayed by this country under the two administrations of Cleveland and McKinley.

The late congress appropriated four times as much money for the expenses of this year as any previous congress appropriated for any one year. Ten years ago, when the appropriations for two years amounted to nearly $1,000,000,000, it was regarded as monstrous extravagance and profligacy. The appropriations for the present fiscal year amount to $1,750,000,000, or 75 per cent. more than for the two years of the "billion dollar congress." Much of this sum was for war and other extraordinary purposes. But that fact does not lighten the burden nor remove the probability that new issues of government bonds will be required to meet the obligations of the treasury.

There has been no currency legislation to answer the demand of a very great proportion of the people. The fact is that congress did not know what should be done in order to avoid future dangers to the financial system. Ignorance and timidity prevented action. So congress stood still, like a man in the dark surrounded by pitfalls. The country was permitted to drift wheresoever the currents should lead, trusting to luck and Providence for a happy escape in the end.—Chicago Chronicle.

PRESS COMMENTS.

——Secretary Alger and Mark Hanna have occasion to congratulate each other on their new coats of whitewash.—Illinois State Register.

——The Fifty-fifth congress had three sessions, and even then couldn't recall the foremost issue in the campaign of 1896.—Detroit Free Press.

——Let us quit all this hypocrisy about the Philippines being forced on us by Providence, and tell the plain truth that we are wresting sovereignty from the natives by the ironclad and the eight-inch gun.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

——Many republican journals show that they are outgrowing Dingleyism. Possibly their course is not influenced so much because they are enamored of a partial or entire abandonment of the traditional party doctrine as it is by the evidence that a radical change is inevitable and that party expediency demands submission. But whether returning reason is forced or not, it still is returning reason and must be accepted as encouraging.—Sioux City Tribune.

——To compare the comparatively smooth sailing career of Mr. McKinley during less than a single year of his term with all the long years of strife and struggle, hope and despair, and the treachery of supposed friends and supporters experienced by Washington and Abraham Lincoln, the disappointments over defeat in battle, the nagging of influential personages of unbalanced minds and unreasonable views as to policy, and at last the agony, even "the bloody sweat" endured by Lincoln in his martyrdom, is like exhibiting clay in competition with marble. Mr McKinley is coming in for altogether too much admiration.—St. Paul Globe.

THE TRUSTS IN CONTROL.

Republican Rule Characterized by Subservience to Monopolies.

That the republican party is entirely controlled by the trusts is a fact which is made apparent every day.

But it is not every day that a leading republican in an address to the people acknowledges this fact and deplores it.

In a speech delivered at Toledo, O., Hazen S. Pingree, governor of Michigan, said:

"I have no hesitation in saying that the leadership of the republican party is now within the control of the bondholders. This does not mean that the republican party is the party of the monopolists, by any means. It simply means that the course of the party is dictated too much by commercial greed, by men like your Ohio boss, who rules from Cleveland, wielding a scepter which does not belong to the republican party. It is foreign to its history and to its principles.

"Trusts, corporations and money must not rule our party. It was created as a party of the entire people. It was such in Lincoln's time. But it is slipping away from its original principles. Its leadership is largely in the hands of corporate wealth.

"I do not condemn corporations and rich men, but I would keep them within their proper spheres. The republican party is not their property, to use as they see fit. Money-getting is not the sole aim in life. It should not be the principal object. It is not safe to intrust the government of the country to the influence of Wall street. This is the common statement, I know, but it has a serious meaning.

"I do not believe I can too vividly paint the evils that must result if the trusts and monopolies are permitted to rule the land. These evils cannot be too bluntly or forcibly stated. The more you can shock people with the strength of your condemnation of these things, the sooner they will come to a realization of their seriousness.

"Nobody intends to confiscate property. There need be no waving of red flags and bonfires of stocks and bonds. There is no likelihood of howling mobs and wild-eyed anarchists. The remedy is within the power of the majority of the republican party. It must send its honored leaders into political obscurity. It can do no better than to commence with the dictator of Cleveland, whose open hand is already over this city, ready to come down into it tomorrow."

This is all right, so far as its statements of facts are concerned, but Pingree is mistaken when he says the remedy is within the power of the republican party. The republican party is bound hand and foot by the trusts. It can do nothing for the people.

The remedy must be applied by the democratic party. It is opposed to trusts. It owes no allegiance to corporations. Its leaders have not been bribed and corrupted by the money power. Democracy is of and for the people, and through it and it alone can freedom from slavery to the plutocracy be secured.—Chicago Democrat.

RIOTOUS EXTRAVAGANCE.

The Unsavory Record Made by the High-Handed Fifty-Fifth Congress.

In calling attention to the unprecedented extravagance of the Fifty-fifth congress Mr. Dockery lays stress upon the fact that the unusual demand made upon a country's revenues to carry on a foreign war ought to have impressed upon the majority party the necessity of exercising the most rigid economy in making appropriations for all other purposes. He thinks that his carefulness in expending the public money should have been all the more considered because of the cheerfulness shown by the people in acceding without a murmur to the additional burdens imposed on account of the war.

This patriotic willingness of the people has not produced a restraining and considerate influence upon the republicans in congress. It seems to have produced an opposite effect. They have indulged in an orgy of spending which will not only drain the treasury of its resources, but bring on a deficit of alarming proportions. This deficit, Mr. Dockery estimates, will reach nearly $100,000,000 by the first of the coming month and aggregate at least $150,000,000 by the 30th of next June.

When the Fifty-first congress, of odorous memory, spent over a billion dollars for the expenses of running the government, the people promptly repudiated the republican party at the ensuing election on account of this inexcusable and criminal waste of public revenues. Prudence ought to have deterred the republicans from repeating the practices which led to their former overthrow.

It is not in the nature of things that the people should fail to be aroused by these riotous appropriations to the necessity of sending representatives to the national capital pledged to reduce the burdens imposed by the republican majority.—St. Louis Republic.

——Mr. McKinley's ambition to succeed himself to the presidency gives Ohio republicans a conspicuous standing in the national party. Senator Hanna is Mr. McKinley's authorized manager. But in Ohio certainly Mr. Hanna has lost much of his hold upon the machinery of his party, and the fight to eliminate him entirely from the top shelf of authority is likely to grow more vigorous as the campaign for national convention delegates approaches. Undoubtedly Mr. Hanna has overreached himself, but how deely the war upon himself may involve Mr. McKinley remains to be seen. Unless signs and insinuations go for nothing, Mr. McKinley will not escape the bullets of hatred that are being shot at his manager.—Kansas City Times.

STATE NEWS.

Eleven companies of the new State Guard have been formed.

Floods in Kentucky streams destroyed a large amount of property last week.

A gourd four feet eight inches long was raised on the farm of Jas. H. Bowers, of Laurel county.

The Daviess county Fiscal Court has decided to work the county roads by a system of taxation.

State Prison chair contract was let to the Albion Company of Louisville, at 40 cents a day for each convict.

John Nicols, of Harrodsburg has recently discovered that his heart is on the right side, and his liver on the left.

Small pox is distributed all over the State. In most cases its appearance in a town chargable to negroes who have been traveling from place to place.

Central City had a scare over a supposed case of smallpox, but the physicians pronounced it a severe case of measles.

An old memorandum book has been found at Hopkinsville, disclosing the names of the 101 heretofore unknown Confederate dead who are buried there.

A land slide in Clay county, last week, destroyed the mountain home of John Smallwood, and killed three members of the family. Mr. Smallwood was at the county seat serving on a jury at the time.

Jack Chinn, the Harrodsburg horseman, and Atty. J. C. Bronston of Lexington, are enemies, and created considerable excitement in the Pheonix hotel in Lexington, where they met. Chinn asked Bronston if he had a pistol and he said he had not, when Chinn told him he had better get one pretty quick, which he did, but friends interfered and prevented what bid fair to be a killing.

Our roads will never be in good condition until the tread of wagons is regulated. To allow a wagon with a tire only two inches wide to haul a load of five or six thousand pounds over our roads in the condition they have been in this winter is the height of folly. Public roads should be managed by the State, and a law enacted regulating the width of tires on wagons to correspond with loads they intend to haul—no wagon being allowed to haul more than four thousand pounds unless its tires are at least six inches wide and no two horse wagon to have tires narrower than four inches.—Nicholasville Democrat.

The local option law received a knock-out blow in the Jessamine Circuit Court, last week. The Nicholasville Democrat says:

"On Monday afternoon Judge Scott rendered a decision that is of vital interest to every man, woman and child in the county. In the case against J. N. Abraham for selling whisky in a local option precinct it was decided that the local option law in civil district No. 5 is invalid on the ground that the petition was filed and the order made for the election at the same term of court. The local option laws were voted for under the act of 1874, and elections were held in the various precincts during the summer and fall of that year. This decision renders invalid the local option law in all precincts in the county, as the same state of facts exists in all precincts. Judge Scott's decision is in accord with the decision of the Court of Appeals in a similar case that was taken up from Lee county. This decision, which is a just one according to law, is, nevertheless, a very severe blow to those persons who voted to oust whisky from their respective precincts. Whisky can now be sold in any precinct in the county just as it was before the act of 1874. A little want of conformity to law has rendered invalid the wishes and decision of the people in every precinct in the county save one."

The examining trial of Henry Hutcheson, of Corinth, Grant county, charged with wrecking the Q. C. express train at Corinth, one night about ten days ago, resulted in his being held over to circuit court, and permitted to give bail in the sum of $2,000, which he did. The evidence was circumstancial but very damaging. A pair of gum boots half soled with leather constituted the most important piece of evidence. It is claimed that the boots exactly fitted the tracks made near the place, where the tie was placed. When called upon to produce the boots Hutcheson, acting on the advice of his counsel, refused to do so, and was fined for contempt of court and ordered sent to jail for one hour. Ed Linn, J. A. McDonald and the Town Marshal of Corinth, Charles Adams, claimed they were in a house near the scene of the wreck, that they heard something fall in the vicinity where the the tie was placed; that some one left the place hurriedly and went toward Hutcheson's house and that they heard a door shut apparently in his house. The defense tried to establish an alibi, but failed. There were 250 people on the wrecked train, among them some prominent railroad men. The tie was placed on a fill, forty feet high, and if the train had immediately left the track the loss of life would have been fearful. The train ran, however, twenty yards with the engine on the ties, then struck a switch rail and overturned. The engineer and fireman were the only persons injured and both are recovering.

Dispatches from States in which the crops have been injured by the severe weather of February show the following conditions:

Michigan—Potatoes in pits, 40 per cent. crop; peaches, 60 per cent. crop.

Nebraska—Peaches, pears and apples badly damaged.

Missouri—Meagre fruit prospects.

Kansas—Small apple crop; strawberries killed.

Florida—Citron fruit and trees damaged 15 per cent; general fruit crop 30 per cent. better than last year; 90 per cent. of vegetable crop destroyed.

Louisiana—Loss to orange crop $800,000 to 1,000,000; truck farmers' loss $500,000; sugarcane damaged.

West Virginia—Wheat crop all right; potatoes, 60 per cent. crop; apples 20 per cent. crop; live stock suffered severely.

Alabama—Market gardens complete loss; wheat prospects fine.

Sorth Carolina—Wheat, oats and fruit trees safe; damage to vegetables and fruit blossoms in State $100,000.

California—Lemon and orange crops short; apricots damaged; rain needed.

Delaware—Peach crop almost a total loss, pear crop short; plums, raspberries and blackberries killed.

A Nebraska farmer says that he has been able to cure his hogs of the cholera by starving them. He says that he noticed that they always wanted water when they became sick and many of them died at the watering trough, so that he took them away from both food and water.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Pt. Pleasant.

March 13.—Miss Carroll White has returned from En Fauia, Ala., where she spent the winter with her sister.

Miss Mary Walton is the guest of Mrs. Frank Russell.

Mr. John Henke and wife, who have been ill with the grip, have about recovered.

Mr. Silvers Riggs was the guest of Mr. Webb McClasson and wife on Saturday and Sunday.

Misses Maggie and Flora Youell attended the party at Mr. Wm. Cloud's in Kiddville, last week.

Mrs. Ella Hood has returned from New Orleans, where she spent the winter. Her health is much improved.

Married—On March 8th, at the home of the bride's parents in Home City, Ohio, Miss Loula J. Hood, daughter of Robert Hood, formerly of this county, to Mr. Isaac Davis, of Taylorsport, Ky.

We wish them a prosperous and long life.

Hebron.

John Clore has been ill of a severe cold.

Madam Rumor reports two weddings on the program for the near future.

One of J. W. Clore's horses was badly kicked by another, one night last week.

The beautiful weather the past week made a person feel like donning a straw hat.

Mrs. Bart Aylor has been staying with her sister, Mrs. Kittie Dye, since last Monday.

The teacher and her pupils had a delightful time last week playing "black man out of doors."

The young folks enjoyed very much the party given by Walter Crigler and wife, last Wednesday night.

Edgar Surface Graves, we are sorry to say, is very much troubled by the turbulent Ohio, this winter.

Misses G. R. Bullock and Daisey Harding were the guests of Chas Clore and family, Thursday night.

Mesdames Rucker, Riley, Watkins and Dye attended the C. W. B. M. meeting at Bullittsville, last Saturday afternoon.

Ex-Judge Ben Stephens, of Florence, and several young people from Petersburg, attended church at Bullittsville, last Sunday.

Callie Lee Clore has a pet lamb that has no fore feet. They were frozen so badly during the recent severe weather that they came off.

From the size of some of the letters that pass between here and the city, the postmaster ought to collect more than two cents postage on them.

Rev. Watkins delivered an excellent sermon on Foreign Missions, at Bullittsville, last Sunday morning. He showed that the field is open, the harvest ripe, the laborers are few, and the master workers to thrust in the sickle and gather in the golden grain. He spoke of China, Japan, India and Africa as being the largest fields. Forty one missionaries now labor in China and 29 in India. We know that every one can not go to the foreign countries, but we can spread the news of a Savior's love here, for when he said, "Go ye into all the word, preaching the gospel to every nation," he did not mean that we must all leave our homes, but let it be not said in that great day, "We called and thou wouldst not heed."

Gasburg.

Mrs. Klopp is quite sick at her father's in Petersburg.

Wheat has wintered well and is greening up nicely.

Jane Burns has moved to Frank Cason's farm on Ashby's Fork.

Considerable breaking was done in the sand land the latter part of last week.

Mrs. Ella Terrill, of Home City, O., was here, last week, looking after her landed interest.

On account of the probable failure of most kinds of fruit, the melon crop will be enlarged.

Jake and John Klopp prized their crop of tobacco, last week. Tom Wingate bossed the job.

Joe Bachelor has gone to Switzerland county, Indiana, to work on a new pike to be built this season.

Jake Cook had to move to Bellevue by water on account of the backwater in Woolper, and the bad roads.

Joe Baner has moved from near the Lawrenceburg ferry into the tenant house on Frank Hartman's place.

Your correspondent, wife and daughter, Lizzie, have been considerably under the weather with colds and coughs, lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Berkshire visited Mrs. Berkshire's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Norris, of Osgood, Indiana, a couple of weeks ago.

Your Petersburg correspondent, in giving the ages of old people in this precinct, omitted three of the oldest, viz: Mrs. Polly Wingate, 86; Peter Hartman and William Bowman, each 83.

For Mothers!

THE discomforts and dangers of child-birth can be almost entirely avoided. Wine of Cardui relieves expectant mothers. It gives tone to the general and strengthens and puts them in condition to do their work perfectly. That makes pregnancy less painful, shortens labor and hastens recovery after child-birth. It helps a woman bear strong healthy children.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

has also brought happiness to thousands of homes barren for years. A few doses often brings joy to loving hearts that long for a darling baby. No woman should neglect to try it for this trouble. It cures nine cases out of ten. All druggists sell Wine of Cardui. $1.00 per bottle.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. LOUISA HALE, of Jefferson, Ga., says: "When I first took Wine of Cardui we had been married three years, but could not have any children. Nine months later I had a fine girl baby."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1899. NO. 22.

WHERE has Jack Chinn buried all the men he has killed?

THE Chicago Democrats have nominated Carter Harrison to succeed himself as Mayor.

GEN. EAGAN is going to Hawaii to invest a salary he does not earn, in a coffee farm.

THE Georgetown News followed its custom and was a sheet of green on the 17th inst., St. Patrick's Day.

THE Jefferson Democratic Club of Covington, has launched Judge Tarvin's boom for the Vice Presidency of the United States.

OF course the North and the South—the blue and the gray—are thoroughly united. Have not they been eating of the same embalmed beef for a year?

AN army official testified before the investigating commission, one day last week, that he saw dead maggots in the canned beef that was furnished the army.

THE Democratic State Convention to nominate candidates for State offices will be held in Louisville, June 21st. The delegates will be selected by county mass conventions.

IF the Filipinos are so easily whipped and with such small loss on the part of the American force what the necessity of sending such an immense army over to the Philippines?

THE sun crossed the line, coming north, Monday, and it is to be hoped that henceforth the weather will be more favorable for the advancement of the farmers' spring work.

THE committee investigating the army beef can not run away from testimony it does not want to hear. Everywhere the committee goes it hears the same old story—the beef furnished the army was not fit to eat.

THE wheat plunger, "old Hutch," Benjamin P. Hutchinson, died at the Lakeside Sanitarium, Wisconsin, last week. At one time he counted his wealth by the millions, but at the time of his death he was a poor man.

THE Queen Regent of Spain has signed the treaty of peace between her country and the United States. Diplomatic relations between the two countries will be resumed at an early date, and Spain will pocket the $20,000,000 present from Uncle Sam.

THERE is a very considerable element in the Republican party that is thoroughly disgusted with Algerism, and it would rejoice to see the Secretary step aside and make room in the cabinet for some one who is in accord with certain policies Mr. Alger does not sanction.

GENS. BROOKE and Gomez are ignoring the Cuban Assembly, and they will proceed to distribute among the Cuban soldiers the $3,000,000 which the United States has advanced for their pay without the advice of the Assembly which appears to be alone in its opposition to Gomez.

JOHN WHALLEN, the Geo. B. Cox of Louisville politics, has succeed ed in his manipulation of the political wires, until he now has absolute control of the Democratic organization in that city and Jefferson county, and he will use it to suit his own pleasure, regardless of the interest of the party.

THEY had a hot time at Hot Springs, Arkansas, one day last week, and when the count was made five dead men and one man badly wounded were ascertained as the result. The fight grew out of municipal politics. Among the dead were the Chief of Police, Police Sergeant; one detective and a son of the Sheriff.

THE RECORDER received a marked copy of the Covington Weekly Commonwealth containing the full text of Judge Tarvin's charge to the grand jury on the subject of trusts. There was no necessity whatever, for marking the columns containing the charge, as it was so hot as to attract a person's attention by roasting his fingers as soon as the paper was touched.

THE contemporaneous sojourn of President McKinley and party, and the Louisville base ball club at Thomasville, Georgia, is making the little town a very prominent place for the present.

THE Covington Commonwealth calls the Democrats' attention to the political trust in that city, which it says is composed of "snide Democrats and Republicans," who expect to control the next city election. A Republican member of the trust is to be made Mayor.

COVINGTON is worried over the possibility of having its electric lights shut off on and after the first of next month. The business men are in favor of the lights being continued, regarding their discontinuance as a step backwards. Covington's merchants are enterprising men and desire that their city shall keep up with the progress of the age, and naturally deplore any indication of retrogression.

THE people in Cuba do not indorse the action of the Cuban assembly in its effort to relieve Gomez of the command of the army. He has been fighting for Cuban liberty too long for them to believe any charges against his patriotism. The old man has spent many of his best days trying to advance their cause, and now they propose to stand by him instead of those who desire to put him aside that they may have complete control of affairs on the island.

ONE of the strong proofs that the Republicans have no faith in achieving success in the State election this fall is the fact that there is no contest being waged for the nominations. Attorney General Taylor is a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, with a clear track and no prospect of any opposition, while for some other nominations there are no candidates. This would not be thus was the outlook for success in the least promising.

THE forests are considered one of the most valuable national possessions in the old countries. In Bavaria the forest area is about one-third of the total area of the kingdom. One-third of this area is owned by the government which has spent since 1830, about eight million dollars in acquiring forest land. A regular system of forest culture is employed. The yield per acre is generally large, valued at about $1.92 and the net income of the state amounting to about $4,000,000 per year.

THE farmers who cultivate tobacco in this county have had an opportunity to prepare their plant beds, and it is presumed that work is done. Before it is time to pitch the tobacco crop for this year the producers over the country ought to consider well and decide in favor of cultivating a smaller crop than usual. By this means the supply would be reduced to such an extent that an increase in the price would result. Plant a smaller crop, cultivate and handle it well and a good profit on the labor expended will be realized.

COL. BRYAN says he expects a Democratic majority of 25,000 in Kentucky this year, and he must have heard that Goebel has been laid, not too gently, in his political grave.—Louisville Post.

Not that. The Colonel has learned that the Courier-Journal, the Post and some of the other heretofore leaders in the Democratic party in Kentucky are now without influence among Democrats, and that most of those they lead astray have returned to their first love; and it is under these conditions he expects a Democratic majority of 25,000.

THE testimony on the army beef question shows that many of the newly made graves in Cuba and Porto Rico, contain canned beef instead of the bodies of soldiers who fell in battle, the putrid condition of the beef when issued to the soldiers making its interment necessary as a sanitary measure. It also shows that the investigating commission of which Dr. Conner, of Cincinnati, was a member, called as few witnesses as possible on the meat question, not desiring to develop the crime that had been committed against the men who were in the service of their country.

THE War Department begins to realize the magnitude of the job it has on hand in the war with the Filipinos, and confesses that the hardest fighting is yet to come. Malolos, which is the seat of Aguinaldo's government, is of about 15,000 population. It is 30 miles from Manila and in the Province of Bulacen. The province has a population of 230,000 and towns are thickly dotted over it, ranging in population from 2,000 to 20,000, though most of them are under 10,000. But they are so thick in this province of only 945 square miles that the natives can be called together for warfare very promptly. The uncultivated lands are covered with the dense jungles that furnish hiding places for the Filipino sharpshooters, who have so successfully been picking off our troops when they expose themselves.

SINCE the building of the pyramids, few such gigantic tasks have been undertaken as the construction of the new reservoir dam at Assuan, the foundation stone of which was laid by the Duke of Connaught recently. This dam will be a mile and a quarter in length, and for 140 miles the Nile River will feel the influence of this great impounding of waters. The dam will be of material taken from the quarries at Assuan. Upon its completion the reservoir will hold 250,000,000,000 gallons of water, millions of acres will be irrigated, 2,500 square miles of land will be reclaimed from the desert, and the dam will increase the country's productive capacity by 25 per cent. As a result of it, Egypt's output of raw sugar will be doubled and perhaps trebled within a year or two. This work will cost $25,000,000, and it will take 20 years to complete the dam.

DEMOCRATIC candidates for the legislature are announced in a large number of counties in the State, and with unanimity they declare themselves for W. J. Bryan, and Joe Blackburn, or for free silver and Joe Blackburn. So far as this goes it is well enough, but it does not signify as to a candidate's positions on questions in which the people of the State and counties are directly interested. If it is important that the people should know how a candidate stands in regard to national issues it is equally important that they should have some information as to where they may expect to find him in local matter. These bold declarations on matters about which the Democratic party in Kentucky is a unit, will have very little virtue as vote catches at present, as every Democratic candidate will endorse these declarations—in fact no one would have the temerity to do otherwise. If candidates want to acquaint those they desire to represent in the legislature with their positions on State affairs let them speak out on the educational laws, tell what laws they think necessary for the development of the State, what kind of a road law would be better than the excuse now on the books, it having proven a failure; what they think of the new election law; the McCord railroad bill; to what extent is legislation against trusts necessary; how can the present law against carrying concealed weapons be improved, &c., &c.

So far the candidates for the Legislature, in this county, have been making a very still hunt. The still hunt campaign is occasionally the better, but how it will pan out in this county, time only will tell, if some aspirant does not grow enthusiastic over his prospects and break the silence.

THUS far over nine thousand pension claims on account of the Spanish war have been filed. Of these claims three hundred and forty are made by officers and men of the navy. Up to this time forty-five pension claims have been allowed and the pensions issued.

EDITOR MEDILL, of the Chicago Tribune, died on the 14th inst. He was one of the organizers of the Republican party in 1854, from which time until his death he had been prominent in its councils, although not in accord with it on the tariff question. He was born in New Brunswick, in 1823.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

We noticed in the last issue of the RECORDER a communication from Bro. Crates, in which he challenges the statement, of Bro. C. G. Jones and myself. Jones is of age and is fully compitent to answer for himself, therefore I will notice only that which refers to what I said in the meeting referred to.

It will be remembered by all who heard my paper on the communion subject, that in referring to the Methodists I said nothing in reference to their practice; but quoted from their Discipline their theory. Now, if their practice does not conform to the theory laid down in their Discipline, they are responsible and not I. Bro. Crates will now please turn to page 234 of the 1886 edition of the Methodist Discipline, and he will find these words, which I quoted in my paper: "No person shall be admitted to the Lord's Supper among us, who is guilty of any practice for which we would exclude a member of our church." Then if my dear brother will turn to page 26, and read the "general rules" of his church to page 33, he will find a long list of rules, which, if the communicant persists in violating any one of them, he is to be excluded; and this means that he is not to be admitted to the Lord's Supper.

Then again, on pages 157 to 160 inclusive, there is a list of special rules to be observed. Any one failing to observe any of these rules is to be dealt with. If language means anything it is clear that the theory of the Methodist Discipline is, that any person who is guilty of violating any ot these rules is excluded from the communion.

On page 158, paragraph 128, we read, "If any member of our church be found guilty of inveighing against the doctrine or discipline of our church, he shall be dealt with." Now, Bro. Crates, I must plead guilty to the charge of inveighing against your doctrine and against portions of your discipline, and how can you consistently invite me to commune in your church?

It may be that the revised edition of your Discipline has eliminated the foregoing principles. If so your theory may conform to your practice of unrestricted invitations to the Lord's Table. But if the Discipline adopted only 13 years ago, by the M. E. Church South, was then in accord with Bible teaching and if it suited itself to the needs of the M. E. Church, why the necessity of a late revision? Pray, tell us why.

As for me, in reference to the communion question, I am perfectly willing to stand on the Methodist platform of 1886, and as it forbids my communing with my Methodist brethren, I must respectfully decline the generous invitation of Bro. Crates.

Respectfully, T. L. UTZ.

The Condition of Cuba.

William Willard Howard, General Manager of the Cuban Industrial Relief Fund, of New York, and who returned from the island last week, gives some interesting information concerning the present condition of the people there. He says: "The condition of Cuba, so far as my observations have gone, is really worse than it was at this time last year, when I made my first observation. In the rural districts little has been done to restore the island to its normal condition. The fields are vacant and the farmers idle. The people still remain in the towns and cities, where army rations are issued to them. They can not return to their abandoned farms because they have nothing to return with.

"The condition of Cuba is a reproach to American people and a blot upon civilization. We are going to do something to improve the condition, and we invite all lovers of humanity in the United States to help us, for the good name of the American flag. Our flag should mean something to those poor, homeless, helpless orphans and destitute country people. Money for the orphans or for our industrial relief work should be sent to the Continental Trust Company, 30 Broad street, New York City, marked 'For the Cuban Industrial Relief Fund.'"

UNDER the head of "What shall the Democratic party do to be saved?" last Saturday's Courier-Journal contained a double-column, double-leaded editorial. The Courier-Journal knows by this time, if it knows anything, that the Democratic party does not ask of it any advice along that line, but expects it to volunteer advice quite to the contrary.

Poultry Notes.

Sweet milk is good for chicks of any age.

Guard against rats among your young chicks.

Weak or deformed chicks should be killed at once.

Remove and burn all nests as soon as brood is hatched.

Geese and ducks should never be kept in the poultry house.

Adult ducks do better if allowed a pond or creek to swim in.

Do not put kerosene on the roost during the hatching season.

Chicks do not require any food for the first twenty-four hours.

Nice, clean wheat straw makes the best nests for layers or setters.

Do not grease the hen when chicks are first hatched at this season.

When chicks are hatched be sure to keep them in a warm, dry coop.

Ducks can be raised where there is only sufficient water for drinking.

Do not try to raise fifty fowls where there is room for only twenty five.

Pekin ducks have about supplanted all other breeds for market purposes.

Do not put moth balls in the nests of setters. Results are always disastrous.

Keep the coops and yards clean and avoid gapes, which are sure to follow filth.

Nests should be renewed every few weeks, as the hens seem to appreciate a clean, new nest.

THE policy that will govern the task of taking the census of 1900 has been outlined in an official statement made by Director Merriam and Assistant Director Wise, as follows:

"All applications for appointments will receive consideration, and a large number already have been received and placed on file. While the impression has gone abroad that the census is to be a refuge for incompetency, the truth and the actual facts are that all applicants will be subjected to examination before appointment, which will be as rigid as the examinations before the Civil Service Commission. No political influence will be sufficient to put an employe on the census pay-rolls of whose competency to do the work to be assigned him the Director is not satisfied in advance. And, furthermore, if any employe is found to be incompetent on trial, such employe will be discharged regardless of his or her political backing. The examinations of employes will be directed not so much for the testing of their general information and capacity as it will be their fitness for the work to be done, as, for example, no copyist who cannot write or spell satisfactorily will be appointed, nor calculators who cannot calculate. There will be 45,000 people required to complete the census."

THE puzzled old gentleman from Upcreek, who had been watching the switch engine at work up and down the side-track, on the occasion of his first visit to a railroad town, scratched his chin and remarked to the lounger on the station platform: "I can understand how the ingine pulls the cars, I've got that all figgered out. But I'll be durned if I can see how the cars pulls the ingine back.—Chicago Tribune.

A COMPARISON of the prices of American farm labor with that of Sweden shows that there are conditions worse than those to be found in the United States, despite all that is said of the absolute lack of opportunity on the American farm. According to Consul General Winslow, of Stockholm, the average price paid for farm labor in Sweden is about $48.25 per annum, or $4 a month. Boys can earn about $26 a year. And yet, even with these what appear to be low wages, the condition of the laboring class in Sweden is said to be much improved and good help scarce.

THE Governor of Georgia attributes the crime that recently lead to the lynching of several negroes in that State, to bad behavior of the negro soldiers that have been quartered in Georgia during the past year. He says the negroes of the State, previous to the arrival of the negro soldiers at their several camps, had been causing no trouble, nor would they had the colored soldiers not been brought among them.

The experiment of State aid in the construction of county roads seems to be growing in favor wherever it is tried. New York passed a law last year making an appropriation for this purpose, with the result that a large mileage was put down in 1898, and many more towns will make improvements in 1899. New Jersey was the first State in recent years to take this step, and last year eighty-five miles were built under the provisions of the legislative act, which makes a contribution of one-third the cost from the State funds. In 1895 about forty-six miles were built, and in 1896 about fifty miles and in 1897 about seventy miles, so it can be seen the law is working well.

The indirect benefits of the act are perhaps greater than have come from the mere construction of roads that would not otherwise have been built. The State Commissioner of Public Works has charge of the building, and, besides the encouragement that the State movement has given to private efforts, the commissioner's investigations have thrown much light upon the economical and durable construction of highways. Even wealthy communities are deterred from turnpike building because of the cost, and the man who shows how the expense can be lessened does a public benefit. State Commissioner Budd appears to have done a great deal in this line. His experience has satisfied him that the earth, properly drained, is as good a foundation for the superstructure of the road as can be desired. Consequently, it is unnecessary to put more than a few inches of metal on the surface, because the roads have to be re-surfaced, anyhow, in a short time. Hence he is now building roads which are only four, six and eight inches thick, and are, comparatively, very cheap. He has built a continuous gravel road thirty-four miles in length at a cost of only $1,400 a mile, and is confident that renewals and repairs will amount to no more than on roads of expensive foundations costing $2,000 to $3,000 a mile. He is showing how good roads can be cheaply built, and is thus encouraging improvements of this kind everywhere in the State.

The other day a telegram from a county in the western part of this State said that a certain candidate for the Legislature was making the race on a good roads platform. No mention was made of his views on the currency or the tariff, but it was said he wanted good road laws. That man ought to be elected without opposition if his character gives evidence of sincerity, and it would be a blessing if other candidates would make the race as he is doing. The time is ripe for Kentucky to take hold of this important work. An appropriation of $75,000 to $100,000 a year to be used in helping counties build roads would start the movement fairly, and, properly handled, not a dollar would be lost. Every mile of road so constructed would be a clear gain to the State, and the influence of the movement, once it fairly started, would add more millions to the wealth of Kentucky than could be obtained in any other way. It would make life more pleasant and farming easier and more profitable. The experiment should be made.

THE richest person in India in private life is a six-year-old boy, who has just inherited an estate of $9,000,000. He is the son of the late Sir Asman Jah, and his mother has been appointed sole executrix of the estate until he becomes of age. The estate is estimated at 37 crores, which is equivalent to £1,300,000.

THOSE who only casually look at the map are seldom impressed with the enormous size of our northern cousin. Canada needs only 237,000 square miles to be as large as the whole continent of Europe; it is nearly 30 times as large as Great Britain and Ireland, and is 400,000 square miles larger than the United States.

THE smallest perfect watch ever made is owned by a Russian princess. It was first placed in an exquisite gold case, covered with the most minute but literally perfect Watteau scenes in enamel; then at the princess' desire the works were removed and placed inside a splendid diamond, scarcely two fifths of an inch in diameter.

ICELAND is the oldest colony possessed by any European country. It has belonged to Denmark since 1389. Originally colonized by Norwegians in 874, it remained a republic till 1262, when it became subject to the Norwegian crown. In 1389 Norway and Denmark were united, and when these two kingdoms separated Iceland remained Danish.

IT is said that Rudyard Kipling never carried any money with him when he was in Brattleboro, his wife attending to everything in the financial line, and he is said to have placed under her control even his own income, which has been estimated at over $20,000 a year. One day when he had no tobacco he asked his coachman to buy him a plug, and said to him: "You can collect of Mrs. Kippling."

A BROKEN wooden headboard and a neglected mound of earth in the Ft. Yates (N. D.) military cemetery mark the resting place of Sitting Bull, the great Sioux medicine man, whose wily brain planned the deathtrap of the Little Big Horn into which Gen. Custer's command fell. On the broken headboard is written: "No. 54. Sitting Bull, Indian." Relic hunters have cut most of the headboard away.

ALL deep-sea sounding records are believed to have been broken by the British cruiser Penguin, which reports having sounded to a depth of 4,763 fathoms, or 28,573 feet, in the Pacific ocean, between New Zealand and the Tonga islands. The Penguin also found out that Falcon island, which was formed during a volcanic eruption in 1885 and disappeared last September, has sunk 18 feet below the surface.

THE president of the London Institute of Civil Engineers reaches the conclusion, in a recent address, that a good seat in a first-class train is about the safest place in the world. In the same period, he says, in which 34 persons were killed on the railroad by accidents for which they were not responsible, 1,800 people were suffocated in bed, 148 were choked by food in dining rooms, and 925 fatalities resulted from falling down stairs.

THE Montana legislature has passed over Gov. Smith's veto a bill empowering the owners of two-thirds of the stock of a corporation to compel the holders of the rest of the stock to sell at an appraised valuation, or accept stock in another corporation in exchange for their holdings. The bill will enable the Montana copper companies to go into a trust if owners of two-thirds of the stock so wish, and many people think that this is the purpose of the bill.

MANY persons, if asked how long it takes the earth to turn once on its axis, would answer 24 hours, and to the question, "How many times does it turn on its axis in the course of the year?" the answer would be 365¼ times. Both answers are wrong. It requires not 23 hours and 56 minutes for the earth to make one complete turn, and it makes 366¼ turns during the year. The error springs from a wrong idea of what is meant by a day. The day is not, as is commonly supposed, the time required by the earth to make one turn on its axis, but the interval between two successive passages of the sun across the meridian.

A RECENT deer hunt in England possessed some unusual features which demonstrate the remarkable accuracy of great developed in the intelligent stag hounds. The deer they were running dashed through a herd of over a hundred of its kind, but the highly trained animals followed the line of their quarry through this immense herd, and after a four and half mile run brought down the right one. A few of the young hounds were tempted from the path of virtue by the deer that were skurrying wildly in every direction, but the body of the pack with remarkable steadiness never wavered from the true scent.

A GERMAN authority has recently announced the discovery of a tree in the forests of Central India which has most curious characteristics. The leaves of the tree are of a highly sensitive nature, and so full of electricity that whoever touches one of them receives an electric shock. It has a very peculiar effect upon a magnetic needle and will influence it at a distance of over 70 feet. The electrical strength of the tree varies, it being strongest at midday, and weakest at midnight. In bad weather its powers disappear altogether. Birds never approach the

It Is Believed That the Bottom Is About to Drop Out of the Rebellion—Officials Advise to That Effect.

MANILA, March 18.—The Filipinos have reoccupied Taytay and have strongly intrenched themselves there.

A gunboat has shelled Binangonan, destroying the native huts and driving the insurgents from the place.

Gen. Lawton has been assigned to the command of the 1st division, 8th army corps, succeeding Gen. Anderson, who has been ordered back to the United States, where he will take command of a military department. Gen. Anderson came here almost with the first of the American troops to reach the Philippines.

Company G, of the Washington regiment, has captured 150 additional prisoners near Taguig and also seized some ammunition. Most of the rebels' arms were hidden or thrown into the river.

The engineers threw a temporary bridge across the Pasig river for the artillery and commissary trains.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Advices have been received from Manila, which indicate that the climax may occur at any hour. The officials here are very well pleased with the condition of affairs, but will not at present discuss the details of the dispatches. The indications are that hostilities may end in a very short time. President McKinley has been advised.

The war department has ordered sent to Gen. Otis three light batteries and a half a dozen Hotchkiss guns, to be used as mountain batteries. The general cabled Thursday evening for these saying that 72 horses should accompany the three batteries. These batteries are needed where it is impossible to move the heavier artillery now in the Philippines. The Hotchkiss guns can be mounted on mules which can be secured in Manila and taken through the paths and over the mountains where it is impossible to move heavy armament.

AN ISLAND FLOATED AWAY.

It Sailed Down the Illinois River and is Between One and Two Acres in Extent—Stranded at Havana.

HAVANA, Ill., March 18.—A floating island, between one and two acres in extent and from one to five feet thick, has come down the Illinois river. It collided with a cabin boat and smashed in the keel and landed it ashore.

The island next struck a pier of the wagon bridge, violently shaking the structure and throwing crossing horses from their feet.

The island is now stranded between the pier and the shore, and the city authorities contemplate blowing it up with dynamite.

WORK OF A MOB.

They Attack a Jail in Georgia and Fire on Nine Negro Inmates.

Four Were Instantly Killed and the Others Wounded—Troops Asked of Gov. Candler—The Governor Offers Rewards for the Leaders.

PALMETTO, Ga., March 17.—A mob of masked men stormed the little house doing service as a jail here at an early hour Thursday morning, and shot nine Negroes. Four were killed outright, and the other five are badly wounded.

The mob rode into the town about 1 o'clock. The little house which is being used as a jail since the fire was near the center of the town. The guard was called on to turn over the nine negroes held there for trial on the charge of arson. He refused and awakened his assistants. They were quickly overpowered, however, and with a rush the whitecaps made for the prisoners, who had been awakened by the noise outside. They began begging for mercy, but were shot down quickly.

Gov. Candler was called on for troops about 4 o'clock to allay the apprehension here and put down any uprising.

The Capital City guards, under command of Col. John S. Candler, who laid aside his judicial duties in Atlanta for the day, arrived at 11 o'clock and reported to Mayor Arnold. They were put on patrol duty in different parts of the town, and together with the 75 armed citizens constitute a force sufficient to quell any distnrbance. The citizens are decidedly nervous over the affair and apprehensive of an uprising of Negroes Thursday night in an effort to have revenge.

At noon friends of the wounded arrived at the warehouse and were given those injured. Clem Watts, one of those who had put in the morning groaning loudly, was carefully carried to a wagon and taken home. Upon his arrival there it was found that he did not bear a scratch. Isham Brown, another of the supposedly wounded Negroes, who had remained all morning on the bloody warehouse floor, was not hurt, and made an attempt to get away on reaching the cabin of his friends. John Bigby is badly wounded and can not recover.

The four dead Negroes lie in Johnson's warehouse. Beside them, groaning in agony, are five of their race, all victims of an assault made by white men of this neighborhood at an early hour Thursday morning. This little city has had two incendiary fires, which have almost destroyed it, since January 1.

Mayor Arnold has summoned a guard of 75 citizens to patrol the streets and warehouses, and every citizen seen on the streets is armed with a gun. The situation is believed to be practically under control owing to the good work of Mayor Arnold.

The mob was composed of 150 men. Where they came from is a mystery so far as the people of the town know. That some of the people of Palmetto, but not the better class, were in the mob goes without saying. Every face was masked, and when the warehouse was reached, the special guard of five men were covered without a word. In a minute the mob was in the big warehouse, and the fusilade opened. The frightened Negroes sent up yell after yell, begging for mercy, but it had no effect on the mob. When its work was finished the masked mob turned and quickly disappeared.

Two fires of incendiary origin have occurred here this year, one on February 25 and the other five days later. Fourteen business houses in all were destroyed.

Nine Negroes were arrested on suspicion and taken to Johnson's warehouse to await preliminary trial, which was to have taken place Thursday morning. Wednesday the leader of the gang, Bud Cotton, is said to have made a written confession of the guilt of himself and associates. He was the first to die in the mob's bloody work.

The Negroes of this community have threatened in the past week to burn Fairburn, the county seat, and it is reported that the mob came largely from that town.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 17.—Gov. Allen D. Chandler Thursday issued a proclamation offering a reward of $500 "for the apprehension and delivery of the first member of the mob and a further reward of $100 for each additional person implicated" in the killing of the four Negroes at Palmetto Thursday morning.

Engineer and Fireman Badly Scalded.

WATERLOO, Ind., March 17.—Engineer James Winney and Fireman Bert C. Ward, in charge of a Lake Shore passenger train, were nearly scalded to death near Ray, Ind., by an arch flue on the engine blowing out. They will recover.

The Cortes Dissolved.

MADRID, March 17.—The queen regent signed the decrees dissolving the cortes and convoking the new parliament and authorizing the payment of arrears of pay to the repatriated troops.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S CYCLONE.

Eleven People Were Killed and Fifteen Wounded, Some of Whom Will Likely Die.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 20.—Additional details of Saturday night's cyclone near Edwardsville were received here late Sunday night. The following is a list of dead and injured so far as known:

Dead—Lewis Coffo, aged 55, tax assessor of Cleburne county, and the following members of his family: Mrs. Coffo, aged 46; Lila, aged 22; James, aged 20; Lula, aged 18; Jacob, aged 13; Dervoe, aged 8; Dollie, aged 10; Grover, aged 6; John, aged 4; unknown woman near Hoffin.

The wounded: Bessie Coffo, aged 12, daughter of Lewis Coffo, will die; Mrs. Runnells, aged 75, will die; Micilin Stansell, aged 5, will probably die; Mrs. J. H. Cason, Wm. Runnells, Wood Stansell, Andrew Steipan, all seriously hurt; Mary Steipan, Lizzie Runnells, J. H. Cason, Georgia Stansell, Gainesville Stansell, Tosh Stansell and Coleman Stansell.

Several other persons were more or less seriously injured but their names are not known. The path of the storm was about 200 yards wide and it traversed the country for 12 miles beginning in the northern part of Cleburne county near Iron City and moved southward.

Lewis Coffo's residence, a strong, double log house situated on a little hill, was in the path of the storm. It was swept away and the timbers scattered for a mile. Ten of its 11 occupants were instantly killed. Except the body of the baby, which was found under the ruins of the chimney, the corpses of the victims were carried half a mile, and nine of them were found heaped together. Every body had been stripped of its clothing. One was twisted around a stump and two others were headless. Beside the body of the father lay Bessie Coffo, the only member of the family not instantly killed. She was unconscious and her arms were around her dead father's neck. She is unable to talk and will die.

THE SENATORIAL DEADLOCK.

Gov. Wells Decides That for the Present He Will Not Appoint a Successor to Senator Cannon.

SALT LAKE, Utah, March 20.—Gov. Wells has decided, for the present at least, not to appoint a United States senator to succeed Senator Cannon, whose successor failed of election in the joint assembly which closed its session in a deadlock March 9, last.

The governor states that should a senator be appointed from one of the states which, like Utah, have failed to return a successor to its retiring senator and the United States senate should act favorably upon the appointment he will then appoint Senator Cannon's successor, but otherwise he will allow the matter to be settled by the next legislature.

WHOLE FAMILY WIPED OUT.

W. H. Lewis, His Wife and Eight Children Killed By a Cyclone At Edwardsville, Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 20.—The family of W. H. Lewis, consisting of his wife and eight children, were killed in the cycloue which swept over Edwardsville, Ala., Saturday. At daylight a party of farmers recovered the bodies from the ruins of the house. The funerals of the victims were held Sunday afternoon. The bodies were placed in pine boxes, placed on ten wagons and were followed by the farmers of the vicinity to the little cemetery at Edwardsville. Great damage was done by the storm although it was of brief duration.

EX-SECRETARY SHERMAN.

His Health is Steadily Improving, Though He is Still a Very Sick Man—Arrives at Kingston, Jamaica.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, March 20.—The American line steamer Paris, Capt. Frederick Watkins, with the party of Americans touring in West Indian waters, arrived here Sunday.

John Sherman is steadily improving, though he is still a very sick man and can not with safety be transferred Monday to the United States cruiser Chicago. Great interest is manifested in his recovery on board the Paris.

Eighteen People Killed.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 20.—Reports from different points in Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama indicate that in the storms which swept over these states Sunday 18 persons were killed outright and 21 injured, as follows: Alabama, 16 killed, 4 injured; Arkansas, 1 killed, 7 injured; Mississippi, 1 killed, 10 injured. The property loss will run into the hundreds of thousands.

Seven Lives Lost.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 20.—Two cyclones have occurred in Cleburne county in which seven lives were lost and perhaps more. Great damage was done. Meager details have been received.

Prof. Marsh Dies of Pneumonia.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., March 20.—Prof. Othniel C. Marsh, of Yale university, of the chair of palaeontology and curator of the geological collection of the university, died Saturday of pneumonia. He was 65 years old.

Railroad Across the English Channel.

The English Parliament is considering the plan of connecting that country with France by railway. Engineers say a roadbed can be laid on the bottom of the English channel, and by mounting treadlework on wheels, so that it projects above the water, the railway can be operated. This seems beyond belief but it is perhaps no more remarkable than some of the cures accomplished by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in bad cases of dyspepsia, indigestion and constipation. This is an age of wonderful achievements.

INDULGENT MOTHERS

The mother suffered and she thinks her daughter must suffer also. This is true only to a limited extent. No excessive pain is healthy. Every mother should inform herself for her own sake and especially for the sake of her daughter. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for her advice about all matters concerning the ills of the feminine organs.

Many a young girl's beauty is wasted by unnecessary pain at time of menstruation, and many indulgent mothers with mistaken kindness permit their daughters to grow careless about physical health.

MISS CARRIE M. LAMB, Big Beaver, Mich., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—A year ago I suffered from profuse and irregular menstruation and leucorrhœa. My appetite was variable, stomach sour and bowels were not regular, and was subject to pains like colic during menstruation. I wrote you and began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used two packages of Sanative Wash. You can't imagine my relief. My courses are natural and general health improved."

MRS. NANNIE ADKINS, La Due, Mo., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I feel it my duty to tell you of the good your Vegetable Compound has done my daughter. She suffered untold agony at time of menstruation before taking your medicine; but the Compound has relieved the pain, given her a better color, and she feels stronger, and has improved every way. I am very grateful to you for the benefit she has received. It is a great medicine for young girls."

DIGGING FOR THE DEAD

The Terrible Conflagration in the Windsor Hotel, New York.

Sixteen People Are Known to Be Dead and Forty-Four Are Missing.

A Long List of Mangled and Burned Victims---Several Will Die.

Little Progress Made in Removing the Debris From the Ruins of the Hotel.

Abner McKinley's Family, Who Were Guests of the Hotel, Miraculously Escaped.

Daring Rescues, From Windows to Death. Scenes of Heartrending Intensity Described—Financial Loss of Almost One Million Dollars on Hotel.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Flames which originated from the igniting of a lace curtain burst forth from the second floor of the Windsor hotel at 47th street and Fifth avenue, shortly after 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, just as the St. Patrick's day parade was passing the building and in a few moments they had leaped up to the roof and enveloped the entire Fifth avenue and 47th street fronts of the hotel. Ten minutes later the flames were roaring through the interior of the hotel, and all escape by means of stairways and elevators was cut off. There was the wildest scene of excitement within and without the building. Hundreds of guests and employes were in the hotel when the fire broke out, and for many of them to escape with safety was impossible.

Soon after the first alarm was given people in the lower floors of the hotel, those who had easy access to the street and the stairway, commenced to pour out of the building in great numbers, but it soon became very apparent that a great majority of the occupants of the hotel were either panic stricken or unable to make their way to the ground floor. Windows were thrown up on every side of the building and the guests, mostly women, in all stages of terror, made their appearance and uttered frantic appeals for assistance to the crowd below. As the flames gathered about them they became more and more terror stricken, and presently some of them stood upon the narrow window sills and beckoned to the spectators that they were about to leap. The men collected upon the sidewalks ready to render any assistance they could, and in the meantime some of the women left the window sills and dropped to the streets. In most instances the efforts to catch them and break their awful fall were unavailing, for they struck the sidewalk and in most cases broken limbs were the result.

As soon as the firemen could get their scaling ladders into position they climbed the sides of the building and entered at every window where there was an unfortunate guest appealing for assistance, and many cases of heroic rescue were witnessed by the throng in the streets. At the corner of 47th street and 5th avenue, directly across from the hotel is the home of Miss Helen Gould, and at her direction many of the injured were carried there and were treated by physicians and nurses whom she had sent for. In the meantime the chief of police had telephoned to every hospital in the city, asking that assistance be sent. Ambulances forced their way through the crowds as quickly as possible and the injured people who had made the frightful leaps from the hotel windows were placed in them and removed to the hospitals. Several occupants of the hotel appeared at the windows of the sixth and seventh stories and even on the roof and leaped to the streets from those points.

Very few of them escaped either instant death or injuries which resulted in their death a short time later.

One of the most daring rescues effected by the firemen occurred on the fifth floor on the 5th avenue front. An elderly woman was seen at a window and two firemen succeeded in reaching the window immediately underneath. One of them climbed to the coping of the window on which she was standing and then swung the woman clear of the window and landed her safe in the arms of his companion, who with the assistance of several other firemen, passed her down to the street.

The first horror occurred just 15 minutes after the fire broke out. A handsome woman appeared at the window of a room on the fourth floor. She held out her arms to the crowd below. Then she raised her hands as if in supplication, and in a moment climbed to the window and leaped. She turned about like a top and struck the iron railing in front of the hotel. Her body seem to be impaled there, but fell off and into the area way. She was dead. The woman was identified as Mrs. Amelia Paddock, of Irvington, N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The most complete list of casualties at the Windsor hotel fire shows that 14 persons were killed and possibly 15, without attempting to speculate on the bodies in the ruins. Forty persons missing. Fifty-two names are in the list of injured whose whereabouts are known.

Three fire engines and a hundred policemen remained all night about the burning building. Those engines poured six large streams of water on the flames, which would start up at intervals in spite of the firemen. Little explosions occurred every once in a while from escaping gas, the pipes having been smashed all over the lower part of the building, the only part that was left. Citizens were kept a block away from the ruins, as pieces of wall were falling every now and then and there was danger that the portion of wall at the back of the building and that on the 46th street side might fall at any time. The bit of wall on the 46th street side tapered to a point and still held two chimneys in place. It was pulled down during the day. The wall on the rear side, seven stories high, was still standing, but it looked as though it might fall with the first stiff breeze. The wall on the 47th street side was about two stories high, and that in front on Fifth avenue about the same height. The walls had breaks in them and had jagged tops, adding to the hideous appearance of the ruins behind them, which smoked and steamed and emitted a bad stench.

Fifth avenue and 46th and 47th streets were impassable. They were covered with debris from the walls of the hotel and in many instances flagstones were broken by the great crash of stone and brick.

The home of Helen Gould, on the northeast corner of 47th street, was surrounded by a cordon of police all night and morning, while detectives guarded the interior. A policeman accompanied every person who entered the house. Beyond a few windows being broken, the house was scarcely damaged at all, except very slightly on top where the fire caught Friday. The interior was in great confusion. All bodies and all the injured had been taken away. Miss Gould and her brother Frank slept in the house all night.

The surviving daughter of Warren Leland, Fanny, remains at the residence of ex-Gov. Flower. She is prostrated by the calamity that has fallen on the family. Warren G. Leland, jr., stated emphatically Saturday morning that though his father is prostrated with grief, he is not at all insane as had been reported. "He is grief-stricken, but sane as he ever was," said young Leland.

He added that he thought the books of the hotel, including the register, could be gotten at some time Saturday; also, the safe, in which there was considerable money and valuables of those staying at the hotel. The register will be invaluable in clearing up the list of dead, missing and injured.

A. A. Nimis, of this city, said he went to the hotel Friday afternoon arriving at 3 o'clock. He went up in the elevator to go to the rooms of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wichelmann, who are missing. At the third floor he and the other persons in the elevator heard the shouts of fire, and the elevator stopped at the third floor. He got out and ran to the front of the house to a fire escape. As he passed the end room he saw a man, a stranger, and one who did not appear to be a guest of the house, grabbing up valuables in the room, like a miser. He said he was astounded at the sight.

"I caught the man," said Mr. Nimis," and said: "Why don't you try to save some lives instead of robbing dead people? The man turned his face to me and gave me a look that seemed to be a murderer's. Then he dashed out. He was about 29 years old and dark. I'm sure he was not a guest of the hotel."

John McGuire, of this city, was looking for his niece, Mary Clair, who is 23 years old, and was employed as a chambermaid on the sixth floor of the hotel. He had seen nothing of her since the fire.

REVISED LIST OF DEAD.

John Connolly, employe of hotel, died at Flower hospital; Mrs. Addie Gibson, 35, Cincinnati, O., shock, died at Murray Hill hotel; Eleanor Louise Goodman, 17, daughter of Samuel Goodman, of this city, died at Bellevue hospital; Miss Lasella Grandy, of Elizabeth City, N. C., were on a shopping tour, burned to death; Mrs. Maurice P. Henry, of this city, who died at Roosevelt hospital at 9 o'clock Saturday morning from burns and injuries; Nancy Ann Kirk, widow of James S. Kirk, soap manufacturer, Chicago, died at Bellevue hospital; Mrs. Warren Leland, wife of the proprietor of the hotel, burns of body, died at Flower hospital; Miss Helen Leland, daughter of the hotel proprietor, found dead. Amelia Paddock, aged 35, of Irvington, N. Y., died at the fire. Mary Sullivan, died at Bellevue hospital, of this city. Unknown man, who jumped from roof at rear of hotel. Unknown woman, who jumped from a Fifth Avenue window, died at Helen Gould's house. Unknown child, thrown from window by mother. Unknown woman, mother of child above mentioned, who jumped from hotel window. Unknown woman, jumped from window, died at 19 East 46th street.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Little progress was made Sunday in removing the debris of the Windsor hotel fire in the effort to discover the bodies that are supposed to lie buried there. All day long 200 men labored as much as the misty, muddy, steaming mass of broken stones, twisted iron and crushed brick would admit. A heavy, stifling vapor arose continually retarding progress of the workers and keeping them for the most part away from the center of the ruins. From Fifth avenue much of the debris that had fallen into the street had been cleared away and the men were able to reach a portion of the first floor. What small portions of wall could be blasted down were leveled, but the great pillar of brick at the 47th street end still stood. It was in such a threatening condition that the police notified the residents of the houses across the street to remain in the rear of their dwellings to prevent any fatalities when the crash came.

Up to midnight no bodies had been discovered and no more deaths from injuries received at the fire were reported from the hospitals, but a number of the injured were still in a serious condition. The death list remains the same as Saturday—sixteen—and the list of missing has been reduced to 44, as a number of those previously unaccounted for reported in person or had been located by friends.

Just before midnight two sections of the rear or eastern wall of the hotel fell in with a mighty crash. Fortunately no one was near and the collapse was more beneficial than otherwise.

Two engines were still on the ground at a late hour throwing streams on the wreck.

The only things found during the early part of the night were a set of artificial teeth on a gold plate and some articles of clothing.

Sunday night the persons living in the three houses nearest to the wall on 47th street were ordered out by the police because of the danger of its being blown down by the high wind.

The ruins still smoulder and the smoke and gases blowing in the faces of the workers made their task one of great toil and hardship. From time to time men were compelled to desist for a few minutes. By midnight the laborers had excavated back from the front building line and to the sub-basement for a distance of fifteen feet. The great value of jewels and jewelry in the wreck made the men work carefully. Each shovelful of the refuse was carefully examined before being placed in the carts. Policemen both in uniform and in the guise of foremen mingled with the workingmen and carefully watched their every movement. More than that the men were searched at the end of their shifts. Many of the men resented this, saying that it was unnecessary and protesting that no man would think of taking such property, and especially under the circumstances. The contractors and the officials of the building department were obdurate, however, and said they would take no chances and that every one must be searched.

JOS. HAWORTH, THE ACTOR.

It Was Feared That He Perished in the Windsor Hotel—He is in Philadelphia Safe and Sound.

CLEVELAND, O., March 20.—The relations in this city of Joseph Haworth, the actor, are fearful that he perished in the Windsor hotel fire. They have heard nothing from him since the burning of the hotel. His sister, Mrs. J. E. O'Connor, received on Thursday a letter that was mailed at Atlantic City on Wednesday. In the letter Mr. Haworth said he would start that day for New York and would stay at the Windsor hotel. He said he was going in company with Rev. F. P. Moore, of No. 83 Fulton street, Wakefield, N. Y. A telegram has been sent to Mr. Moore, but no reply has been received. Mr. Haworth's relatives have not given up hope, but they can not understand why no news of his whereabouts has been received if he is still alive.

Later—A special from Philadelphia says: Joseph Haworth arrived here Sunday night and registered at the Hotel Lafayette. He came direct from Atlantic City.

Tennessee Damaged by a Tornado.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., March 20.—The tornado which struck the northern part of Madison county Saturday night did a great deal of damage to houses and farm property, but so far no lives have been reported lost. The damage in the extreme southern part of Tennessee can not be estimated. Passengers who arrived Saturday night on a train from the north reported that people were coming into the railway stations in quest of physicians to tend the injured.

Stranded Speculators.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 20.—Miners who have arrived here from Copper river, Alaska, say that Gov. Brady has been requested to ask the government to send a vessel to Copper river for the purpose of bringing home stranded prospectors. There are between two and three hundred of these men who are without means to secure transportation. Many of them are suffering from scurvy.

Accepts the Call.

OWENSBORO, Ky., March 20.—Dr. C. P Luce has accepted a call to the First Presbyterian church, at Anderson, Ind

REORGANIZED.

Our Force in the Philippines Divided Into Two Divisions.

Col. Smith, at Negros, Has Drafted a Constitution on Simple Lines—The Government is Placed in the Natives' Hands Except Certain Reservations.

MANILA, March 20.—The entire American force has been re-organized, two divisions, of three brigades each, being formed. Gen. Lawton Saturday assumed command of the first which consist of the Washington, North Dakota and California volunteers, under Gen. King; six troops of the 4th cavalry, the 14th regulars, the Idaho volunteers and a battalion of the Iowa troops, under Gen. Overshine; the 3d and 22d regular infantry and the Oregon regiment, under Gen. Wheaton, and Dyer's and Hawthorne's light batteries.

Gen. McArthur's division consists of two batteries of the 3d artillery, the Kansas and Montana volunteers, under Gen. H. G. Otis, the Colorado, Nebraska and South Dakota regiments, and six companies of the Pennsylvanians under Gen. Hale, the 4th and 17th regulars, the Minnesota and Wyoming volunteers and the Utah artillery.

A separate brigade will be assigned to provost guard duty, consisting of the 20th and eight companies of the 23d regular infantry.

Gen. Anderson, now in command of the 1st division of the 8th army corps, will return to the United States in accordance with the orders of January 28.

An attack was made by the rebels Friday upon the battery at Loma church, but were repulsed by the Pennsylvania advance, with heavy loss. Lieut. Thompson and Privates McVay and McCanse, of Company C, were wounded.

A gunboat, with a company of the 23d regulars on board, is now on the lake attacking the small towns. She was last heard of off Morong and Santa Cruz.

At Negros island a committee, with Col. Smith presiding, is drafting a constitution on simple lines, placing the government in the hands of the natives, excepting the customs, postal and telegraphic services, military and police matters and external politics.

Telegrams from other portions of the islands betoken friendly sentiments toward the Americans. It is likely that there will be a peaceful resumption of all business.

Senor Lacson, the president of the native government, desires to retire to private life, in which event Juan Araneta, a prominent native planter, will become president.

The native troops will become gendarmerie, at a fixed scale of wages and with special stations and barracks. They will hand over their Mausers and Remingtons and receive Springfield rifles for arms.

Col. Smith is popular and is displaying much tact in his conduct of affairs. Everything there is satisfactory.

The Boston has gone to Zamboanga, formerly the refuge of the Spaniards from the southern islands, to assume peaceful control. After a conference here between Gen. Miller Commander Walter, of the Concord, Lieut. Commander Cowper and prominent natives on board the Plover, it was decided that Cowper should cross the lines and negotiate a settlement with the rebels, who are much reduced in numbers, owing to desertions.

Should this result be reached the bottom will be knocked out of the revolution. The only thing left will be for Otis to tackle Luzon, and his troops would soon reduce Aguinaldo and his faction to suing for peace.

Only Three Houses Left.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 20.—At Selma the spire of the First Methodist church was blown down, crushing through the roof and doing much damage. At Sellers, a small station on the Plant system south of Montgomery, the entire town except three houses was destroyed. Luverne also suffered greatly.

Tornado in Mississippi.

IUKA, Miss., March 20.—A severe tornado passed over a part of this county seven miles south of here at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, blowing down three buildings on the Hodge farm and injuring two persons. The storehouse of John Hastings, at Riverton Junction, was destroyed and a box car was blown from the track.

Mrs. Leland and Daughter Buried.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Funeral services over Mrs. Warren Leland and Miss Helen Leland, wife and daughter of the proprietor of the Windsor hotel, and who died from injuries received at the fire, were held Sunday morning at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Rev. Dr. F. Parker Morgan officiating.

Coming to the United States.

HAVANA, March 20.—The United States transport Thomas, formerly the Minnewaska, sailed Sunday morning for the United States with the 202d New York volunteers. The Ward liner Havana, specially chartered for this purpose, will sail Monday with the 2d Louisiana volunteers.

Sick One Day.

OWENSBORO, Ky., March 20.—Jesse Taylor, colored, aged 19, died here of cerebro spinal meningitis. He was sick less than 24 hours.

MACK MARK'S MARK.

Mark Hanna and the syndicate association with him devoted their untiring energy and money without limit to secure the nomination and election of McKinley. He has proved to be an ideal occupant of the executive chair, viewed from the standpoint of the corrupt gang of republican managers who placed him there. This syndicate was not seeking a "leader." What it required was a "mask." McKinley was certainly their man. He has a face that beams like a harvest moon, and a tongue that never wearies in uttering bland but meaningless platitudes. His policy is not much criticised, for the good reason that he evades committing himself to any specified policy.

To comprehend, or rather to detect, the lack of explicit meaning of McKinley's utterances, one must first understand that he is simply a "mask," and his mission is to cover and shield the "gang" behind him, partly by that beaming face, and when necessary by utterances susceptible of double meaning. The only way to get an accurate understanding of what McKinley means is to wait and see what he does.

Reviewing McKinley's record, we find that he very easily relieved his conscience of the promises made to hundreds of thousands who supported him in the belief that he would make earnest, continued and effectual efforts to bring about international bimetallism. A review of his utterances will not recall any direct promises in regard to bimetallism. These promises, like most others made by him, were strong only by implication. Fate intervened to give the gang behind him its golden opportunity.

After opposing the war at the suggestion of his stock jobbing backers, until nearly a majority of his own party accused him of adjusting his patriotism to the fluctuations in prices of stocks, he finally found himself compelled to carry out the instructions of congress, and to appear as the figure-head in the war against Spain.

The record of the war is one of appointments to responsible staff offices of untrained and unimportant relatives of the politicians behind him.

The result was that our soldiers were sent to Cuba with worse than ordinary cattle accommodations, without adequate medical or surgical attendance or supplies, with low grade and improper ammunition, and then fed on "embalmed" beef.

Inferentially, at least, McKinley declared at the beginning of the war that it was to be a war of liberation, of humanity, and not a war of conquest and extension of territory.

The unscrupulous bandits behind him, however, are not given to any kind of humanity that does not pay six per cent. annual dividends. Having saved the Cuban and Philippine lambs, the present proposition seemed to be to take their hides in payment for salvation.

During the war, however, was the period of the gang's most successful achievements. When the incomparable Dewey won his matchless victory at Manila and flushed with pride the hearts of his countrymen, the gang behind McKinley seized this opportune diversion of public interest to launch the great iron trust.

The brilliant victory at Santiago gave us free Cuba through the thrilling valor of our forces and the steel and tin plate trusts by the gang behind McKinley. Every victory by land or sea has found its response in the joyous plaudits of our people and the launching of new trusts by this gang.

In the end, that smiling face rises up to beam on an applauding nation and, also, to detract attention from the fact that the hands of his backers are plunged into the pockets of the people.

President McKinley can truly say: "My face is my fortune."—Chicago Democrat.

——"Wages are being raised!" shrieks a republican organ. Yes, and factories are being shut down by the trusts, throwing thousands of men out of employment. The alleged raise in wages, when properly realized, is simply a reduction in pay. The trusts are endeavoring to pave the way for four years more of Hanna.—Illinois State Register.

M'KINLEY'S POLICY.

Double-Dealing Methods and Cant Phrases of the Foremost Republican.

"The future of the Philippine Islands," said President McKinley in his Boston speech, "is now in the hands of the American people. I have no light or knowledge not common to my countrymen. I do not prophesy. The whole subject is now with congress, and congress is the voice, the conscience, and the judgment of the American people."

Sounds fine, doesn't it? But where are "the voice, the conscience, and the judgment of the American people," just at present; and how are they to have opportunity to make themselves felt? What sort of a policy and leadership is this which relegates the Philippine question to "the hands of the American people," and then proceeds to tie those hands, by refusing to convoke congress in special session?

If President McKinley spoke in good faith at Boston, why is not the Fifty-sixth congress sitting at Washington to deal with the Philippine question, and to outline a Philippine policy? The president is like Orator Puff; he has two tones to his voice. To the people he says: "I leave it all to congress." To congress he says: "Leave it all to me."

Until December next, for two-thirds of a year likely to be prolific of events of the most momentous character with relation to the Philippine question, the "voice" of the people will be silent, the "conscience" of the people can effect no quickening touch, the "judgment" of the people will have no way to make itself felt. The president will have absolute power, with no congress on hi hands, to deal with problems, as t which he says he has "no light u knowledge not common to my country men."

Is this deep, calculating design? O is it mere vacillation of purpose on th president's part? Think of the infam of good Americans being called traitor because they lack confidence in such president's policy of shreds an patches!—Albany Argus.

The neighbors gave M. M. Tanner a surprise, last Saturday night, and finished stripping his tobacco.

There has been some tobacco beds sowed, and the acreage will be about the same as last year, if we succeed in raising plants.

Mrs. Julia Smith, of near Richwood, who had a surgical operation performed some time ago in Cincinnati, is very sick, and her friends entertain some doubts as to her recovery.

Mr. Thos. Stevenson, of Erlanger, was in the neighborhood last Thursday and purchased several crops of tobacco for which he paid fair prices. Mr. S. is a good judge of the weed.

Hathaway.

Several plows were started last week.

C. S. Smith had a wood sawing last Monday week.

Jno. T. Davis made a nice lot of maple molasses last week.

Jas. K. Sebree made a business trip to Rising Sun, last Tuesday.

Mrs. Ella Clements and little daughter were visiting on Gunpowder a couple of days, last week.

Misses Mary and Pearl White were visiting their brother, of the Wooiper neighborhood, last Tuesday and Wednesday.

The several nice days last week caused the fishermen to bring forth their fishing tackles and try the finny tribe. We hear of no results.

Miss Maud Sullivan and James Arrsmith were married in Rising Sun, last Wednesday. The bride's costume was of a bright novelty goods, while the groom wore the conventional black. Their attendants were Miss Sallie Sullivan, sister of the bride, and George Horton. A bright and happy life for them is the wish of the writer.

North Bend.

Mrs. W. P. Cropper gave a turkey dinner to her neighbors, last Wednesday. All had a pleasant day, which was spent in sewing carpet-rags.

It is reported that the ice pond at North Bend is to be turned into a Lagoon, and when it is completed will be a Ludlow Lagoon on a larger scale.

Mr. W. R. Adams, of Missouri, who was visiting in this neighborhood, left here for Bullittsville Monday morning, from where he would go to Cincinnati, then to Danville, Ky., and then home.

The survey is being made from Cincinnati to Aurora, Ind., for the electric road. It will be completed by January, 1900. It will be very convenient for every one near it. Each car will have a baggage coach attached, which will make traveling easier.

Petersburg.

The river is rising again.

It rained and hailed and snowed and blowed Saturday night.

Earl Walton will go to New York, next week, to work for a big storage company.

Misses Pheobe and Katie Jones, of Hamilton, Ohio, are visiting Mr. Dol Evans and family.

Thanks to the editor of the Lawrenceburg Register for favors while in his city, last Wednesday.

Two or three young gents from the country seem to be preparing to sow a very large crop of wild oats.

Taters are selling at $1.25 per bushel, yet there is going to be a big crop planted in the bottoms this spring.

Elder Finnely, pastor of the Christian church, preached an interesting sermon on missions, Sunday morning.

Nearly all of our citizens observed St. Patrick's day by wearing the three leafed shamrock or some other green ornament.

Arthur Alloway and Tobe Collier caught a gar-fish in the slough below town that was 5½ feet long and weighed 35 pounds.

W. E. Vest, of Burlington, was here several days last week, surveying the Distillery property. The transfer will soon be made.

The men who give the most to charity in this town say the least about it, and one or two of them are not members of any church.

The M. E. Church elected Andrew Buchanan and Earl Whiting delegates to the District Conference which meets at Augusta in May.

Mr. R. Y. Randall was in town one evening last week, the first time for several months. He is looking remarkably well for a man of his age.

Jonas Stephens, one of the nicest young men in the county, and who hails from the Utzinger neighborhood, attended church here Suuday.

Will Fenton had a narrow escape from drowning Wednesday night. He fell between two coal barges and was so exhausted when taken out he could not walk.

While Terrence McSweeney was taking a nap on board the Str. Workum while she was laying at the wharf at Cincinnati, some fellow relieved him of his watch.

J. J. Ferris had one of his best horses to die very suddenly, one day last week. Joe has been unlucky with horses, as several years ago he had seven head burned to death in a barn.

While driving down the big hill into town, last Wednesday, T. E. Randall's horse became unmanageable and ran off, breaking the buggy all to pieces. Luckily Ras escaped injury.

Several of your correspondents have mentioned good men to represent the county in the legislature. Some in this vicinity think M. T. Garnett a good and reliable man for the place.

Bro. Fall, of Union, speaks of the wolf staring some of the residents of his place in the face. He has been chasing us for the last fifteen years and came nearer catching us this winter than he ever did.

One of the most prominent streets in Clifton, the aristocratic suburb of Cincinnati, is named Wooiper Ave., after Wooiper creek in this county. Abigail and Cutter streets in Cincinnati are named for old residents of the Plattsburg neighborhood.

One dark, drizzly night last week, some inebriated citizen hailed the Str. Workum just above Warsaw. Clerk Ben Smith went out and said, "where do you want to go?" "To h—l," said the fellow. "Take him up to Sugar creek," said Capt. Fentou, "and put him off."

Walton.

The Johu Church Co. music store generously loaned "The Everett Piano" used at the entertainment of the M. E. Church on Monday night.

Mrs. W. O. Rouse and Mrs. Fannie Lee Johnson, formerly of Walton, late of Zion, have removed to Richmond, Ind., where Mr. Rouse will couduct a grocery business.

Joe Glenn dug some beets last fall and plied them up in his back yard, intending to take care of them "manana" (to-morrow). They laid there for some time until Joe had hulled his beans, when he covered them with bean vines and hulis. The other day he concluded to move the trash pile, when he found the beets, and was greatly surprised that so many of them were in good condition, the bean vine covering having been somewhat scant.

Last Saturday night about 10 or 11 o'clock some daring scoundrels made an attempt to burglarize the store of W. B. Norman altho there was a crowd of youngsters in the barber shop just across the street, and Marshal Hance and two acquaintances were sitting in Diers' office, when the breaking of glass was heard. They paid but little attention to it, thinking that the boys had broken a bottle in the street. Hance, however, went to the door and looked out. Seeing the barber shop lighted up and hearing the boys talking and laughing, concluded that everything was all right, and went home for the night. This morning when he went to the office and saw that a large pane of glass was broken out of Norman's front window, he went across the street and found the robbers had taken all the candy, oranges and canned goods they could reach from the sidewalk, probably about $1 worth in all. It is supposed the deed was done by the same party who attempted to rob John Watson's butcher shop a short time ago.

The great majority of your numerous subscribers from here to Big Bone, Verona and generally all the country are anxious that you should publish what is known as the Ellison Turnpike Law, which was presented at the last session of the Legislature. There are a number of proalluent and able gentlemen willing to represent the county at Frankfort, next winter, and the one that shall present the best plan for building good roads will have the best show for being the next representative of the county. Of course it will be imperative that the candidate shall be an out and out free silver man, and that he shall pledge himself to vote for J. C. S. Blackburn for U. S. Senator, first, last and all the time. And another thing, Mr. Editor, it is apparent that the people are almost unanimously favorable to a primary election, and diametrically opposed to precinct mass meetings of any kind. It has been patent to every thinking person for some time past, that the precinct mass meeting is generally favored by these who have some scheme to work that is not favored by the majority of Democratic voters, and they give the Republicans such a chance to get in their fine work and control the Democratic majority by nominating some one not the first choice of that majority. Some Democrats have been so disgusted with precinct mass meetings that they will not even go to the polls when the nomination has been made by these mass meetings. Our men want the primary regardless of expense; it is the only Democratic way to make a nomination. The voters can not be brought to a precinct masser (it should be called a master), but all will come to the primary.

Rabbit Hash.

March 18.—Mrs. Mollie Ryle entertained quite a number of the young folks, last Saturday evening.

James A. Wilson was at the store, last Friday, the first time for over six weeks.

Robt. Wilson is now managing Dr. Owen's fine farm in East Bend. Success to you, Bob.

E. L. Clements, of Cincinnati, was visiting his family here, this week. He returned to the city Sunday.

James Kent moved from the Harris place to his own farm two miles back of Patriot, Ind., last week.

Last Saturday night as Bert Scott was returning from Mrs. O'Neal's his horse ran against a snag and crippled itself badly, and it is doubtful if the animal lives.

Last Thursday, a flue cow belonging to Benj. Wilson, died. She was buried on the banks of the beautiful Ohio, within the limits of the town.

Rev. Mr. Fosher failed to fill his appointment at this place, Sunday afternoon, owing to the roughness of the river. He expects to meet with better success the first Sunday in April.

Last Thursday morning Jas. K. Pope packed his grip and started down the river, some one asked him if he was going to see his daughter at Carrollton. He said yes, and farther, and rumor saith not where his destination is.

Last Wednesday was about as windy a day as we ever have, and tolerably early Mr. Arsmith and Miss Sullivan came here to cross the river to be married. Towards night the wind calmed down a little and Capt. Wilson ventured to cross with them and they were made happy and sent on their way rejoicing.

Bellevue.

March 20.—R. A. Brady, of Middle Creek, was among friends here, Sunday.

Weed Williamson was in swimming, last Sunday morniug, the first one of the season.

W. T. Ryle was running a furniture car, last Saturday, laden with household goods.

Harry E. Acra, of Scattersville, was in town Saturday. He reports his boy unmanageable.

Al Rogers and family, of Diamond Ridge, were visiting his parents, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Patty Seimes and Miss Sallie Wooley butchered their last lot of hogs for this season, last Monday.

John McConnell, of East Bend, was up last Friday, and purchased a fine milch cow and calf of J. J. Walton.

Miss Virgie Snyder, after several days visit at her uncle Oriando's, near Petersburg, returned home Wednesday.

Miss Mary Snyder, of Petersburg, came down with her cousin, Albert Snyder, last Saturday, and stayed with her grandma Corbin until Sunday evening.

Frank Voshell and Miss Essie Acra, of Woolper Heights, drove quietly to town, last Wednesday, and were united in marriage by Bro. T. L. Utz. They will go to housekeeping this week. May peace and prosperity be their lot through life.

Verona.

Work is going on racing the old Methodist Church

Rev. Sam Adams filled his regular appointment here, Saturday and Sunday. On account of bad roads he held services on Sunday night in the school hall.

The young ladies of the League Institute will give their entertainment on the evening of the 24th, and the young gentlemen, an entertainment on the evening of the 31st, instead of the 29th, as our Union Prayer Meeting is held on the 29th.

Union.

Warner Senior has moved to Erlanger.

Mrs. P. T. Fall has been ill for several days with la grippe.

Peter Adams has contracted to clear one acre of land for L. W. Lassing at $50 per acre.

Uncle Ephraim Weaver was improving up to Friday morning, when he had a relapse.

Jack Berkshire, Esq., of Florence, was putting the finishing touches on Perry Aylor's barn, last week.

M. L. Utz, of Big Bone, delivered tobacco here, Wednesday, and was a member of the Union fire brigade for 20 minutes.

Mrs. James Gatson and Mrs. Dora Bannister were having paper hanging done this week as an introduction to spring house cleaning.

Prof. Collins has purchased of Tom Burkett an imported, go-as-you-please saddle and harness horse, and proposes taking morning and evening rides for his health.

Wm. Vest, the popular and efficient county surveyor, was in Union Saturday evening, after surveying the White Haven lands. Lan Norman carried the flag and otherwise assisted Mr. V. in the work.

Christian Becker, our village shoemaker, is improving his property by building a road to High street, putting in culvert, grading outlet and building fence. Zeley Taggart & Co. did the grading, Granville Rouse built the fence, and Mr. Becker is putting the high lights on himself.

Mr. and Mrs. Knaley are pleased with their new home in Union, and it is likely that they will never move back on to the mud roads. The RECORDER extends them a kind welcome, and believes the longer they stay here the better they will be pleased, for there is no better town than Union on earth to live in.

J. H. Corbin has a remarkable facility for making cats and dogs take to a tree or under the house, like the old Nick is after them, and has enjoyed seeing them "carry the mail" for many years, but not long ago Uncle John tried his hand on a bull dog belonging to Miss Lizzie Aylor, and today he laments the loss of good pair of pants and sundry other drygoods to numerous to mention.

The principal of Speedwell Academy has a faculty for bringing sunshine and gladness into any home honored with her presence. The weather may be gloomy, like last Suuday, and rheumatism cutting capers over the body, but no use of talking, when wit, humor, laughter, poetry and prose begin to take a walk over the remains of gloom and rheumatism, then the sun begins to shine, and we are glad our home is honored by her presence.

The O. M. C. A Club held a called meeting Thureday night. The juniors came with fire in their eyes and vinegar in their souls. The seniors stood their ground, and after a battle lasting three hours, in which clubs were thrown, hearts broken, spades turned, diamonds flashed, the seniors returned with their shields battered, armor pierced in many places, lances broken, bouquets of liquid gloom hanging to each eyebrows, and wreaths of disappointment around their coat collars. Chas. Voshell, Prof. Collins and Miss Lillian Corbin were guests of the club and it is a question whether they enjoyed the hospitality of the club more than the senior's defeat.

Tuesday, about noon, David Hicks, accompanied by Misses Lou Williams and Anna Rice arrived at the Eagle Hotel, from Covington. After partaking of luncheon tendered by Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Voshell, the party was joined by Miss Rose Stansifer, when they were driven to the home of Elder E. Stephens, at Erlanger, were Mr. Hicks and Miss Stansifer were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. Mr. and Mrs. Hicks were guests of the St. Nicholas until the 16th, when they returned to Richwood, and on the evening of the 18th they were guests of the Eagle Hotel again, where they received a cordial welcome, when David made the boys a nice speech. The RECORDER wishes them happiness, and believes time will deal as gently with them in the future as it has in the past.

Fortunate indeed were those who met with the Excelsior Club at Miss Alva Williams', Friday night, for it would be hard to find a more charming hostess than Miss Alva. Interesting recitations were given by Misses Martha Lassing, Alva Williams and Bessie Bedinger, and Messrs. Elbert Rouse and J. C. Bedinger. Then came the debate, "Resolved that man is more influenced by money than woman." The principal participants were, affirmative—Messrs. J. C. Bedinger, Marion Johnson; negative—Walter Lassing, Miss Cleek; judges—Messrs. Conner, Rice and Williams, who decided in favor of the negative. Delightful refreshments, consisting of white and rose colored ices and angel food, were served. At 12 o'clock the Club adjourned to meet in two weeks with Miss Mary Norman in Union. J. C. Bedinger, Miss Emilie Cleek and Mr. Delahaunty, were respectively elected President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Harry Riley sounded the alarm of fire, Wednesday, and had our usually quiet village in a state of wild excitement in short order. The fire was located on the roof of Mr. Clements' store, and was just beginning to start out for business. The wind was blowing a gale and the prospect was good for all the north end of the town to burn if the store went. Geo. H. Stevenson climbed to the seat of danger first, and was followed by Sol Long and Ernest Clements. A strong bucket brigade was formed, and soon pushed up water in abundance, and the fire was put out in ten minutes.—Notes: Mr. Clements was in the city; George Burkett made a fire truck of himself; Geo. Stevenson was as cool as a veteran fireman; Matson Rachel brought down a load of new buckets, and soon pushed the brigade; they say one fellow was climbing up and down a shutter in his frantic efforts to get on top of the house; the fire was started by soot from the chimney; the bucket brigade did the best of work—did it calmly, and each member deserves credit. Our village could have some effective fire protection if the proper men would make the move and hustle a little. Cheaper insurance would result if nothing else.

The river has gone back to decent proportions and the low lands are from under water, but much of the wheat on low bottoms is badly injured.

The frogs that were conducting a spring jubilee Saturday night had to discontinue their festivities rather unexpectedly before Sunday morning.

The new steamer, City of Cincinnati, is due to begin splitting open the Ohio river in about ten days. She will be a floating palace with speed equal to the best.

A couple of Burlington green hunters invaded Geo. Hughes' reserve out on the Gunpowder, last week, and as a result George has a supply of hog joles for sale.

A Republican from Walton, was in town, one day last week, and while here made some interesting revelations concerning Democratic politics in this Judicial District.

Several of the jurors at the last term of the Circuit Court have not called on the trustee of the jury fund for their money, which he has in his hands and desires to pay them.

The preparations under way over at Judge Roberts' are calculated to lead the public to believe he expects to engage in the production of vegetables on an extensive scale this year.

John Pate, of Rising Sun, has sent for a dozen pair of pheasants to be freed in Ohio county. The Indiana legislature has passed a law protecting quails two and pheasants for five years.

Having purchased a shop in Erlanger, Mr. John Bentler will shortly move to that place, and he desires those who are indebted to him to come forward and settle their accounts.

is the forerunner to consumption. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey will cure it, and give such strength to the lungs that a cough or a cold will not settle there. Twenty-five cents at all good druggists.

The teamsters who hauled provender for stock to the city, last summer and fall, are hauling some of the same class of goods back, the supply kept by them and others not equalling the demand of the winter.

Harry Hamlin, who languished in the jail here so long, appeared in Covington Police Court, last week, charged with threatening to shoot his wife, for which he was given $25 and 60 days, and for disorderly conduct 90 days.

An invitation received at this office reads: "Professor C. A. Fowler will close the dance season with a Select Dance at the Armory, Athens, Ohio, Wednesday, March 22, 1899." We can not make it convenient to attend.

John G. Oelsner, of Florence, has a new advertisement in this issue to which your attention is called. He has a complete stock, as shown by his ad., and will make you prices on his goods that are so reasonable you can not resist buying.

Rev. William Penn, of Constance, was in town one day last week, and was authorized by the County Court to solemnize the rites of matrimony. The Constance couples contemplating matrimony can now have the ceremony performed by home talent.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Circuit Clerk Duncan was in Cincinnati, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Bruce have bought a piano for their daughter.

Samuel Buchanan, of Petersburg, was in town a few hours, Thursday.

John Bentler and wife were visiting at Florence and Erlanger, Monday.

Miss Catharine Furiong was visiting friends in Cincinnati, a few days last week.

Michael Deundy, of Florence, was calling on young ladies in Burlington, Thursday.

Mr. James E. Duncan, of the Bullittsville neighborhood, was in town last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Rouse entertained at crokinole and carroms one night last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Eddins, of Florence, were guests of their relatives here, last Sunday.

C. W. Myers, of Florence, was in town, last Friday, looking after some of his business interests.

Marce Riddell and wife spent Sunday with J. A. Riddell and family in the Hebron neighborhood.

Edward Stott, the laundry man, and J. B. Tolin, our racy Petersburg correspondent, were in to see us Monday.

Miss Rhoda Underhill, who has been living at Erlanger for quite a while, is now visiting her parents near here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ott Scott passed through town, Monday morning, enroute to the city for a day's shopping.

E. Manning, president of the Hebron Building and Loan Association, made the RECORDER a pleasant call, last Thursday.

Miss Bessie Hughes left for her home in Nebraska, last Thursday, after having spent several months with her relatives here.

Miss Sadie Crisler entertained a large number of her friends at crokinole and caroms, Friday night. All present had a most delightful time.

Elder E. Stepheus, of Erlanger, was in town last Friday. He is one of the oldest citizens of this part of the State, and one of the most remarkable for the perfect retention of his faculties.

C. G. Smith, of the Hebron neighborhood, called on the RECORDER, last Friday. Clint has not been able to shake off an attack of the grippe which got a hold on him some time since.

W. C. Respass, of Newport, was in town one day last week, meeting quite a number of his old friends. A few days before he was here his son, Jerome, sold his great race horse, Judge Tarvin, for $6,000.

The RECORDER is under obligations to R. L. Bradford, of Hebron, for favors extended. By the way, Robert makes a hustling agent for the Keystone Buggy Co., and has taken several orders this year.

B. H. Berkshire, of the Petersburg precinct, was in town Thursday. He is one of the industrious, thriving young men of the Petersburg bailiwick. He has lived where he now resides, for seventeen years.

W. R. Rouse, of Limaburg, and president of the Burlington and Florence Turupike Company, was in town, Friday, on business in connection with the road. The annual election of officers will be held on the first Saturday in next month.

Capt. W. H. Baker, of Erlanger, has had a serious time trying to shake off the grippe which attacked him several weeks ago, and is considerably emaciated. Dr. S. S. Scott, of the same town, has not been able to be out much for several months. The many friends of each of these gentlemen, in this county, hope to see them regain their health with the approaching spring.

Oscar Ryle and Ed McKim were the first Burlingtonites to show up on Gunpowder this year with rod and hook, and they brought home a consiederable string of nice fish. When they were seen entering the town via one of the principal streets the word went along the line "they have caught some fish today."

Just about the time a person is pursuaded that good weather is a go, the weather clerk gets rattled or puts the machine into incompetent hands, when everything goes to pieces again, much to the chagrin of those who need good weather in which to prepare for another crop.

Ed Hawes got some dirt on his face, one day last week, that he could not remove with soap, and concluded to test the efficacy of a washing tea, which not only removed the dirt, but took the skin off as well, and now he declares that hereafter he will perform his ablutions with soap and water, whether the dirt is taken off or not by them.

Some fiend in human form attempted to wreck a passenger train on the Q. & C. at Arnold's pond near Walton, one night last week. The commuter, running at a low rate of speed, struck the iron rail which had been placed across the track to wreck the fast express, and fortunately no damage resulted. A person who would attempt such a dastardly deed is a wholesale murderer and ought to suffer capital punishment when apprehended and his guilt is established.

A Grant county girl deserves the cake for conundrums. A few evenings since she put the question to her sweetheart, "Why were the boys who left here for the late war like the seat of a man's trousers?" This was a poser, but the young fellow made an effort. "Because," he ventured, "they were worn out in the service." No; that was not it. Then he thought he had it. "Because they were so repeatedly sat upon," he said. The young lady shook her head. He gave it up, and then the young lady informed him that it was "because they were never intended for the front."

The funeral of Mr. A. F. Crigler was preached at the Lutheran church here last Friday morning. He had been in feeble health for a long time, when last Wednesday the summons came, that called him to his reward.

We failed to mention, last week, the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. T. Hafer, the occasion being the 25th anniversary of their marriage. The day was pleasantly spent, and the guests wished that many such occasions may be the happy lot of the host and hostess.

Quite a number here have been solicited by Mrs. Cullen, of Elmo, Texas, for subscriptions to aid in building a Union Church in that vicinity. The plan is a church chain of letters, and as far as we have heard, all those who were solicited will respond. Let the good work go on.

The second class in Elementary Arithmetic is progressing nicely, not only in figures but also in statements. The class in physiology is also doing well. The diacritical spelling match, Friday afternoon, between the primary spelling class and the two little First Reader boys, Frank Hossman and Frank Sayre, resulted in Frank Sayre winning first honor and Edna Beall, second, while Frank Hossman did exceedingly well.

ON THE CITY STREETS

The Contrasts of Splendor and Woe Seen Upon Them.

Dr. Talmage Says They Are Unlike the Democratic Gospel of Christ—Their Shams, Pretensions and Temptations.

In this discourse Dr. Talmage, who has lived the most of his life in cities, draws practical lessons from his own observation; text, Proverbs 1:20: "Wisdom crieth without, She uttereth her voice in the streets."

We are all ready to listen to the voices of nature—the voices of the mountain, the voices of the sea, the voices of the storm, the voices of the star. As in some of the cathedrals in Europe there is an organ at either end of the building, and the one instrument responds musically to the other, so in the great cathedral of nature day responds to day, and night to night, and flower to flower, and star to star in the great harmonies of the universe. The springtime is an evangelist in blossoms preaching of God's love, and the winter is a prophet—white-bearded—denouncing woe against our sins. We are all ready to listen to the voices of nature. But how few of us learn anything from the voices of the noisy and dusty street. You go to your mechanism, and to your work, and to your merchandise, and you come back again—and often with how different a heart you pass through the streets. Are there no things for us to learn from these pavements over which we pass? Are there no tufts of truth growing up between these cobblestones, beaten with the feet of toil and pain and pleasure, the slow tread of old age and the quick step of childhood? Aye, there are great harvests to be reaped, and now I thrust in the sickle because the harvest is ripe. "Wisdom crieth without. She uttereth her voice in the streets."

In the first place, the street impresses me with the fact that this life is a scene of toil and struggle. By ten o'clock every day the city is jarring with wheels and shuffling with feet and humming with voices and covered with the breath of smokestacks and a-rush with traffickers. Once in awhile you find a man going along with folded arms and with leisurely step, as though he had nothing to do, but, for the most part, as you find men going down these streets on the way to business, there is anxiety on their faces, as though they had some errand which must be executed at the first possible moment. You are jostled by those who have bargains to make and notes to sell. Up this ladder with a hod of bricks, out of this bank with a roll of bills, on this dray with a load of goods, digging a cellar, or shingling a roof, or shoeing a horse, or building a wall, or mending a watch, or binding a book. Industry, with her thousand arms and thousand eyes and thousand feet, goes on singing her song of work, work, work, while the mills drum it and the steam whistles fife it. All this is not because men love to toil. Some one remarked: "Every man is as lazy as he can afford to be." But it is because necessity with stern brow and with uplifted whip stands over you, ready whenever you relax your toil to make your shoulders sting with the lash.

Can it be that passing up and down these streets on your way to work and business you do not learn anything of the world's toil and anxiety and struggle? Oh, how many drooping hearts, how many eyes on the watch, how many miles traveled, how many burdens carried, how many losses suffered, how many battles fought, how many victories gained, how many exasperations endured—what losses, what hunger, what wretchedness, what pallor, what disease, what agony, what despair! Sometimes I have stopped at the corner of the street as the multitudes went hither and yon, and it has seemed to be a great pantomime, and as I looked upon it my heart broke. This great tide of human life that goes down the street is a rapid tossed and turned aside and dashed ahead and driven back—beautiful in its confusion and confused in its beauty. In the carpeted aisles of the forest, in the woods from which the eternal shadow is never lifted, on the shore of the sea over whose iron coast tosses the tangled foam sprinkling the cracked cliffs with a baptism of whirlwind and tempest, is the best place to study God, but in the rushing, swarming, raving street is the best place to study man.

Going down to your place of business and coming home again I charge you to look about—see these signs of poverty, of wretchedness, of hunger, of sin, of bereavement—and as you go through the streets and come back through the streets, gather up in the arms of your prayer all the sorrow, all the losses, all the sufferings, all the bereavements of those whom you pass and present them in prayer before an all sympathetic God. In the great day of eternity there will be thousands of persons with whom you in this world never exchanged one word who will rise up and call you blessed, and there will be a thousand fingers pointed at you in Heaven, saying: "That is the man that is the woman, who helped me when I was hungry and sick and wandering and lost and heartbroken. That is the man, that is the woman." And the blessing will come down upon you as Christ shall say: "I was hungry and ye fed me; I was naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick and in prison, and ye visited me. Inasmuch as ye did it to these poor waifs of the street, ye did it to me."

Again, the street impresses me with the fact that all classes and conditions of society must commingle. We sometimes culture a wicked exclusiveness. Intellect despises ignorance. Refinement will have nothing to do with boorishness. Gloves hate the sunburned hand, and the high forehead despises the flat head, and the trim hedgerow will have nothing to do with the wild copsewood, and Athens hates Nazareth. This ought not so to be. The astronomer must come down from his starry revelry and help us in our navigation. The surgeon must come away from his study of the human organism and set our broken bones. The chemist must come away from his laboratory, where he has been studying analysis and synthesis, and help us to understand the nature of the soils. I bless God that all classes of people are compelled to meet on the street. The glittering coach wheel clashes against the scavenger's cart. Fine robes run against the peddler's pack. Robust health meets wan sickness. Honesty confronts fraud. Every class of people meets every other class. Impudence and modesty, pride and humility, purity and beastliness, frankness and hypocrisy, meeting on the same block, in the same street, in the same city. Oh, that is what Solomon meant when he said: "The rich and the poor meet together. The Lord is the Maker of them all."

I like this democratic principle of the gospel of Jesus Christ which recognizes the fact that we stand before God on one and the same platform. Do not take on any airs, whatever position you have gained in society; you are nothing but man, born of the same parent, regenerated by the same Spirit, cleansed in the same blood, to lie down in the same dust, to get up in the same resurrection. It is high time that we all acknowledge not only the Fatherhood of God, but the brotherhood of man.

Again, the street impresses me with the fact that it is a very hard thing for a man to keep his heart right and to get to Heaven. Infinite temptations spring upon us from these places of public concourse. Amid such affluence, how much temptation to covetousness and to be discontented with our humble lot! Amid so many opportunities for overreaching, what temptation to extortion! Amid so much display, what temptation to vanity! Amid so many saloons of strong drink, what allurement to dissipation! In the maelstroms and hell gates of the street, how many make quick and eternal shipwreck! If a man-of-war comes back from a battle and is towed into the navy yard, we go down to look at the splintered spars and count the bullet holes and look with patriotic admiration on the flag that floated in victory from the masthead. But that man is more of a curiosity who has gone through 30 years of the sharpshooting of business life and yet sails on, victor over the temptations of the street. Oh, how many have gone down under the pressure, leaving not so much as the patch of canvas to tell where they perished! They never had any peace. Their dishonesties kept tolling in their ears. If I had an ax and could split open the beams of that fine house, perhaps I would find in the very heart of it a skeleton. In his very best wine there is a smack of poor man's sweat. Oh, is it strange that when a man has devoured widows' houses he is disturbed with indigestion? All the forces of nature are against him. The floods are ready to drown him and the earthquake to swallow him and the fires to consume him and the lightnings to smite him. But the children of God are on every street, and in the day when the crowns of Heaven are distributed some of the brightest of them will be given to those men who were faithful to God and faithful to the souls of others amid the marts of business, proving themselves the heroes of the street. Mighty were their temptations, mighty was their deliverance, and mighty shall be their triumph.

Again, the street impresses me with the fact that life is full of pretension and sham. What subterfuge, what double dealing, what two-facedness! Do all people who wish you good morning really hope for you a happy day? Do all people who shake hands love each other? Are all those anxious about your health who inquire concerning it? Do all want to see you who ask you to call? Does all the world know half as much as it pretends to know? Is there not many a wretched stock of goods with a brilliant show window? Passing up and down the streets to your business and your work, are you not impressed with the fact that society is hollow and that there are subterfuges and pretensions? Oh, how many there are who swagger and strut and how few people who are natural and walk! While the simper and fools chuckle and simpletons giggle, how few people are natural and laugh! The courtesan and the libertine go down the street in beautiful apparel, while within the heart there are volcanoes of passion consuming their life away. I say these things not to create in you incredulity or misanthropy, nor do I forget there are thousands of people a great deal better than they seem, but I do not think any man is prepared for the conflict of this life until he knows this particular peril. Ehud comes pretending to pay his tax to King Eglon, and while he stands in front of the king stabs him through with a dagger until the haft went in after the blade. Judas Iscariot kissed Christ.

Again, the street impresses me with the fact that it is a great field for Christian charity. There are hunger and suffering and want and wretchedness in the country, but these evils chiefly congregate in our great cities. On every street crime prowls and drunkenness staggers and shame winks and pauperism thrusts out its hand asking for alms. Here want is most squalid and hunger is most lean. A Christian man going along a street in New York saw a poor lad, and he stooped and said: "My boy, do you know how to read and write?" The boy made no answer. The man asked the question twice and thrice: "Can you read and write?" and then the boy answered with a tear pleshing on the back of his hand. He said, in defiance: "No, sir; I can't read nor write neither. God, sir, don't want me to read and write. Didn't He take away father so long ago I never remember to have seen him, and haven't I had to go along the streets to get something to fetch home to eat for the folks, and didn't I, as soon as I could carry a basket, have to go out and pick up cinders and never have no schooling, sir? God don't want me to read, sir. I can't read nor write neither." Oh, these poor wanderers! They have no chance. Born in degradation, as they get up from their hands and knees to walk, they take their first step on the road to despair. Let us go forth in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ to rescue them. Let us ministers not be afraid of soiling our black clothes while we go down on that mission. While we are tying an elaborate knot in our cravat or while we are in the study rounding off some period rhetorically we might be saving a soul from death and hiding a multitude of sins. Oh, Christian laymen, go out on this work. If you are not willing to go forth yourself, then give of your means, and if you are too stingy to help, then get out of the way and hide yourself in the dens and caves of the earth, lest when Christ's chariot comes along the horses' hoofs trample you into the mire. Beware lest the thousands of the destitute of your city, in the last great day, rise up and curse your stupidity and your neglect. Down to work! Lift them up!

One cold winter's day, as a Christian man was going along the Battery in New York, he saw a little girl seated at the gate, shivering in the cold. He said to her: "My child, what do you sit there for this cold day?" "Oh," she replied, "I am waiting—I am waiting for somebody to come and take care of me." "Why," said the man, "what makes you think anybody will come and take care of you?" "Oh," she said, "my mother died last week, and I was crying very much, and she said: 'Don't cry, dear. Though I am gone and your father is gone, the Lord will send somebody to take care of you.' My mother never told a lie. She said some one would come and take care of me, and I am waiting for them to come." Oh, yes, they are waiting for you. Men who have money, men who have influence, men of churches, men of great hearts, gather them in, gather them in. It is not the will of your Heavenly Father that one of these little ones should perish.

Lastly, the street impresses me with the fact that all the people are looking forward. I see expectancy written on almost every face I meet. Where you find a thousand people walking straight on, you only find one man stopping and looking back. The fact is, God made us all to look ahead, because we are immortal. In this tramp of the multitude on the street I hear the tramp of a great host marching and marching for eternity. Beyond the office, the store, the shop, the street, there is a world, populous and tremendous. Through God's grace, may you reach that blessed place. A great throng fills those boulevards, and the streets are a-rush with the chariots of conquerors. The inhabitants go up and down, but they never weep and they never toil. A river flows through the city, with rounded and luxurious banks, and the trees of life, laden with everlasting fruitage, bend their branches into the crystal.

No plumed hearse rattles over that pavement, for they are never sick. With immortal health glowing in every vein, they have not how to die. Those towers of strength, those palaces of beauty, gleam in the light of a sun that never sets. Oh, Heaven, beautiful Heaven! Heaven, where our friends are! They take no census in that city, for it is inhabited by "a multitude which no man can number." Rank above rank. Host above host. Gallery above gallery sweeping all around the heavens. Thousands of thousands, millions of millions. Blessed are they who enter in through the gate into that city. Oh, start for it to-day! Through the blood of the great sacrifice of the Son of God take up your march to Heaven. "The Spirit and the bride say, Come, and whosoever will let him come and take the water of life freely." Join this great throng marching Heavenward. All the doors of invitation are open. "And I saw twelve gates, and the twelve gates were twelve pearls."

HEAD OF A NUMEROUS FAMILY

To be the head of a family of 102 persons is a record seldom falling to the lot of man. But such is the case with John Chandler, who resides in Allen county, Ky.

This gentleman is the father of 29 children, 21 of whom are now living and have families. These 21 children have an average of five children to each family, thus making Mr. Chandler the grandfather of 105 persons. But this is not the full extent of his offspring, for he has 35 great-grandchildren. So it will be seen that Mr. Chandler stands paterfamilias of 162—an achievement rarely equaled.

Mr. Chandler is a remarkable man in several other respects. Although 73 years of age, and residing in the hills of Allen county, he reads current literature and keeps himself informed on the leading topics of the day. He is an expert rifle shot, and spends a great deal of his time squirrel hunting.

Want May 14 Specially Remembered.

The Floyd Memorial association, with headquarters at Sioux City, Ia., wants May 14 set aside by all the public schools in the Missouri river valley for special services and addresses in honor of Sergt. Charles Floyd, the first United States soldier who died on the "New Louisiana purchase."

WHY IT IS "SHE."

Simple Explanation of a Puzzling Use of the Feminine Pronoun.

When one applies the third personal pronoun to a city, ship, car, country, to any one of a thousand different things, why is the feminine form so generally selected? Why does Kansas City invariably rejoice in "her" unrivaled location, never in "his?" To say of Missouri: "He is a noble state" would be a frightful solecism. Why? Why shouldn't a state be a he, or at any rate an it? Why should Germany, Russia, France, the United States, China, all the nations, be without an exception personified as she? Why should a ship, even when her sides bristle with the reeking tubes of war, invariably plow "her" away across the deep; never "his" way? Often the vessel's name will be distinctly masculine, as the Admiral Oquendo, or the Alfonso XIII., but both are shes in type and speech just the same. Is it not a puzzle?

Of course, it is no trouble at all for the superficial student to explain. A ship is a she because the Latin word for ship, Navis, was feminine. Germany and other countries are shes because in Latin they were Germania, Britannia, etc., all feminine. Cities are feminine because the Latin urbs was feminine, and so was civitas. It is too easy. Proof? Why, there is the Latin for sun, sol; that is masculine, and to this day the only object in nature that gets a masculine personification is the sun.

But this is only moving the question back a few centuries. It is not an answer. On what theory did the old Romans base their selection of genders for these inanimate objects? It is useless to talk of their having received the idea in turn from the Greeks, or other peoples. Where did these get it from? How did its originators hit upon it? Of a certainty, at some time or other, away back in the misty past, there was a reason, but it would seem that now this reason has been forgotten. One man has about as much right to speculate on what it was as another, whether he is a linguist or not.

In fact it will probably be futile to attempt to be too scientific. For example, nine people out of ten nowadays will call a car she. Yet the old Roman word was carrus, or carrum, either he or it, never she. Such a change is difficult to account for. It is probably well not to bother much about it.—Kansas City Star.

MOUNT VERNON TO-DAY.

Interior of the Old Mansion in Which Washington Lived Unchanged Since His Day.

Those who go to the old world make a point of visiting every house and tomb associated with the name of a great man. The smallest number put into practice this same habit at home.

By comparison few are the pilgrimages made to Mount Vernon, though the old estate of Washington is fuller of interest to the American than the Castle of Chillon on the field of Waterloo. The old mansion, with its heavy brass knocker, stands to-day with its living rooms nearly as they were in the days of the master.

Of true colonial architecture, upon entrance the broad paneled hall, with its platform stairway, is a prominent feature. The music-room, to the right, with its harpsichord and quaint bits of handwork, is teeming with memories of its distinguished mistress, as well as of Nellie Custis—the sunshine of the house. The carpet in the family dining-room, a gift of the French king, is as bright as though but just woven, and adds splendor to a room full of odd bits of china and glass. In the guest chamber there is a strange device for holding lights, consisting of an upright wrought iron, about three feet high with outstretched arms, in each of which is held a candle.

The view from the broad old portico, over the deer park and the hedge-grown garden, past the old family tomb, overgrown with clinging mosses and vines, down to the Potomac below, that lies like a ribbon of silver, is one at once so peaceful and picturesque that you can well realize why this was the favorite home of President Washington.

The tomb of Washington is as simple as was his life, only a bricked vault, trimmed in limestone; within the two painfully plain sarcophagi, bearing only the names and dates of burial. On the walls are slabs indicating the resting places of other members of the family. There is a story to the effect that so many applications for burial in the tomb were received from persons claiming to be of the Washington family that the key to the gates of the vault was thrown into the Potomac, and the vault itself is never to be opened again.—N. Y. Herald.

Unique New Year's Greeting.

This is the New Year's address of the Porto Rican band of San Juan to Gen. Henry: "The portorican band of music who translate from the soul that loves dream the harmony of the sun and the light of day; who interpret with sweetness the high sentiments of that who devoted his fondness to the native land, respectfully and filled with fervor, take pleasure in congratulating you, and ask from the Creator everiasting happiness for you. In this dawn of our new era, full of deep solicitude, long for the praise of the whole world to make of it a present for you. Porto Rico, January 1, 1899."—Chicago Chronicle.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

NEW WISCONSIN BARN.

In Its Construction Every New and Progressive Idea Has Been Carefully Considered.

The Wisconsin experiment station people have built a new barn after studying carefully the best to be found in various parts of the country. They have decided to use metal in making the stalls, and a sample stall is shown in the cut. The stable is arranged for 36 cows; 18 on each side of the center passage, with the two rows of cows facing this center passage, which is ten feet wide, so that a team may be driven through to feed the crops taken directly from the fields. The stalls are constructed of gas pipe posts with a framework of gates and panels of channel iron supporting a mesh of No. 7 woven steel wire. In the picture, C shows the framework extending to the length of each row of stalls to support the front part of the side panels; D is a swinging panel, which may be moved to suit the length of the cow; thus a small cow may be forced to stand well back in her stall, over the gutter. The side panels of the stall are hinged so as to accommodate the milkers and let the cows pass out without backing.

The floors of this stable are made of Portland cement and crushed granite with the surface sloping gently, so as to lead all water to the sewer drains. The manure gutters behind the cows are 16 inches wide, with the bottom sloping three-fourths of an inch to the rear side and 1½ inches of slope to the center of the stable. The floor of the cow stalls is raised four inches above the other parts of the stable floor. The mangers are composed of the same material as the floor and are built up from it. The side of the manger nearest the cow is eight inches high and three inches thick, rounded down at the bottom. The front of the manger is 16 inches high; the manger is two feet six inches wide and reaches from one end of the stable to the other. It is used both for feeding and for water. The water is turned into the manger on either end from a pipe, and as the mangers slope towards the center from both ends it is readily drained into the sewer by opening a valve, after the cows have had sufficient time to drink. It is said that this means of watering cows is just as convenient and satisfactory as any of the individual watering devices, while it is more cleanly and more wholesome.—Rural New Yorker.

LIGHT ON SPRAYING.

A Recent Discovery That Will Add to the Hope of the Average Fruit Grower.

At a recent farmers' convention Prof. Burrill, of the University of Illinois, gave to his hearers a piece of information that he said had not yet got into the books. It has relative to the first spraying of fruit and trees for fungous diseases. It has been believed that in the case of most of these pests the spores lived over on the twigs of the trees. It was advised to spray before the blossoms were open, for the purpose of killing these colonies of spores. Fruit raisers have been religiously carrying out instructions in this regard, and the experiment stations have been sending out spraying calendars year by year in which the fruit raiser is advised to spray before the opening of the blossoms. But now it has been found that the theory of the spores living over on the twigs is erroneous. The spores live over in the leaves that fall to the ground and lie there till spring. With the first breath of spring these spores ripen sufficiently to float in the air, and as soon as the young leaf begins to expand they find a lodgment there and begin their life work. It is, therefore, useless to spray at the earliest time indicated in most of our books on spraying. This discovery will add much to the comfort of the orchardist, for it will decrease his times of spraying. It also adds greatly to his hopes, for if the spores live over on the dead leaves the proper way to get rid of them is to destroy the leaves. This may be done by clean cultivation, plowing under the leaves that escape the burning.—Prairie Farmer.

How to Line Butter Tubs.

The lining should be put in dry. First place circle in position, then bring the two ends of the side together and put lining in the tub, then with one circular movement of the hand the lining is well in contact with the wood to which it must adhere before the packing is commenced. Hold the lining against the tub with one hand, throwing water between the lining and the tub with the other, turning your tub from left to right until the circuit is made. To make it more complete pour about a quart of salt water into the tub and hold in such position that by a rotary motion the water comes in contact with the entire inside surface of the tub. You will find your lining in perfect position and that it has been done with dispatch.—Daily Reporter.

Use only pure water from a well.

THE ROTTING PEACHES.

Spraying Should Be Begun Early, Long Before the Disease Makes Its Appearance.

The loss to the peach crop by rot the past season was a great drawback in not a few cases, and if there is any way to avoid it in the future it should be adopted without delay. Limited experiments in spraying with Bordeaux mixture seem favorable. But the spraying should be begun early enough, before the disease makes its appearance. And, considering the danger from leaf curl also, the time to begin would seem to be before the buds expand, nil which time the solution should be stronger than in subsequent applications when the leaves are unfolded.

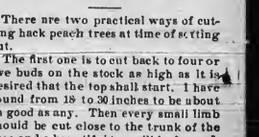
Then again, in setting out orchards, the varieties that are liable to rot should be discarded. Some of these would be valuable but for this constitutional fault. Champion, an excellent variety otherwise, will not sustain itself on this account. So with Alexander, Amsden, Rivers and quite a number of others. But their loss need cause no regret, for there is a large list of choice varieties that have good resisting power to the malady, and that will more than fill their places.

But the planter who goes at his work haphazard and buys cheap trees—most likely from some one he knows nothing about—will be left. "Serve him right!" was the remark made years ago by Mr. Colman, first United States secretary of agriculture; not very complimentary, but perfectly in place.

As in any other business, the peach growers who are successful are careful, painstaking men who keep clear of all unnecessary risks. That peach rot can be controlled by such persons—just as black knot is—there can be no doubt. And every point must be looked after. Just now one of the things to be done is to gather and burn the diseased peaches sticking on the trees or lying under them. These dried-up peaches contain the seeds of another crop of rot, and everyone burned now lessens the danger.—National Stockman.

BUTTER-MAKING TESTS.

Cleanliness and Attention to Details Give Better Results Than Commercial Cultures.



The discovery of the important part played by various bacteria in producing the flavor and aroma of butter has led to the introduction of what are known as commercial butter cultures, and dairymen have been led to hope that by the use of such cultures and of the process of pasteurizing, the quality of their butter might be materially improved. Recent trials at the Pennsylvania experiment station, however, reported in bulletins No. 45 and No. 46, now in press, seemed to indicate that cleanliness, the careful selection of milk and close attention to details promise to effect more in improving the flavor of our butter than pasteurizing and the use of commercial cultures. With pasteurized cream, the acid-forming cultures were found to give slightly but distinctly better results than were obtained from unpasteurized cream ripened spontaneously, while non-acid-forming cultures gave results, if anything, slightly inferior to those obtained by spontaneous ripening. With unpasteurized cream, as might have been expected, the results were less marked. A home-made starter, however carefully prepared from skim milk, was found to give as good, if not better, results than the more expensive commercial cultures, and this was true both with pasteurized and with raw cream. No distinctly beneficial results were observed from pasteurizing, although the experiments were not specially planned to test this point. These results are similar to those recently published by the Wisconsin experiment station and the two taken together do not seem to indicate that, under present conditions, marked advantages are to be anticipated from the use of the commercial cultures. Trials were also made of heating milk to a temperature of about 165 degrees Fahrenheit before separating, but without any marked effect on the flavoring of the resulting butter.

PRUNING PEACH TREES.

How to Cut Back the Limbs When the Budding Trunks Are First Set Out.

There are two practical ways of cutting back peach trees at time of setting out.

The first one is to cut back to four or five buds on the stock as high as it is desired that the top shall start. I have found from 18 to 30 inches to be about as good as any. Then every small limb should be cut close to the trunk of the tree and a beautiful top will be formed, the bark in the top becoming perfectly healthy and making a strong body that will keep the top from breaking in case of high winds.

One of the greatest mistakes in planting peach trees is to leave the old top on. The second method is adopted when the trees are very large and overgrown and when the other method would make too large a wound to heal over nicely; also when the limbs are too large to cut close to the body. In such a case the limbs should be cut back to the first two buds, as in the illustration.—American Gardening.

Rabbits cannot gnaw through wire cloth if it is placed about the fruit trees.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water, and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder, and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention that you read this generous offer in this paper.

THE HOTEL POTENTATE.

"When I was in business with W. C Coup, the famous circus man," said Mr. J. A. Whyte, the impresario, "we once had occasion to make a business trip to the northwest, and stayed a week or so in a certain big city, the name of which isn't essential to the story. We put up at the leading hotel, which is one of the finest and best known in the United States, and would have enjoyed ourselves if it hadn't been for the head clerk. He was one of a breed that has since become obsolete—thank heaven!—a haughty, disdainful potentate, who considered it beneath his dignity to show the slightest courtesy to any of the guests of the house. Mr. Coup, as all who knew him will confirm, was a polished man of the world, totally careless of money, never complaining, but accustomed to punctilious service. He bumped against the majestic ruler of the register several times and endured his affronts in silence. At last he told me quietly to secure quarters at another hotel, which I was only too glad to do. I reported that arrangements had been made, and he went down to settle our account. 'What is our bill, Mr. King?' he asked suavely. 'My name's not King,' snapped the clerk, and proceeded to figure up the amount. Coup took out his pocketbook. 'Strange,' he said pensively, 'but I have been under the impression all along that your name was King.' 'Well, my name ain't King,' retorted the clerk, 'and I don't know how you got that idea.' 'Nor I,' said Coup, 'unless it was because you set so much like one.' "—N. O. Times-Democrat.

THE ROUGH RIDER, BUCK TAYLOR, SAYS:

Sergeant Buck Taylor.

Sergeant Buck Taylor, one of the famous Rough Riders, is a personal friend of Governor Roosevelt, of New York. He accompanied Governor Roosevelt on his great stumping tour through upper New York state. He was promoted through gallantry in the field during the late war.

The Sergeant has the following to say of Pe-ru-na: "I think there is no better medicine on earth than Pe-ru-na, for catarrh. It has cured me. It would take a volume to tell you all the good it has done me. Pe-ru-na is the best catarrh cure on earth, and I know, for I have tried nearly all of them. Respectfully,

"Buck F. Taylor."

Winter weather causes catarrh. Everybody knows this. But everybody does not stop to think that winter weather delays the cure of catarrh. It takes longer to cure a case of catarrh in the winter generally, than in the warm season. Spring is here. Now is the time favorable to the treatment of old and especially stubborn cases of catarrh.

MEXICO'S QUEEREST CITY.

Catorce, So Named Because It Was the Stronghold of Fourteen Robbers.

Eight miles due east over the mountains from Catorce station, on the Mexican National railroad, is the city of that name, a city along whose steep, winding streets neither wagons nor cart, neither stage nor bus, nor any other wheeled vehicle was ever known to pass, although it has often boasted of a population of 40,000 souls.

The city takes its name from once being the stronghold and property of a band of 14 of the most daring, desperate, dangerous and successful robbers that ever laid tribute on roads of Mexico. They discovered, and for many years worked, the rich deposits of silver that abound in this entire section of the country—deposits, the value of which, if current reports be true, for hundreds of years outrivaled the mythical riches related of Ophir. Strange to relate, every piece of machinery, every pound of freight, and every passenger to and from Catorce is transported today, as for centuries past, either on the backs of men or mules.

Catorce is one of the most interesting places in Mexico. Here are found the customs of Mexico in their purity, unaffected by the influence of the stranger. Difficult of access, the town can be reached only by horseback or on foot. Catorce has seldom been visited by any except those making business trips. The ride up the mountains into the town is something once accomplished, always to be remembered, partly from its element of personal peril, but more because of the beauty of the landscape encountered at every turn. Glancing down, as you near your journey's end, you catch a gleam of the white walls of Los Catorce outlined against the green of the mountain side. Thousands of feet below shimmer the waters of a mountain stream. The shifting coloring of the mountains as light and shade chase each other over their rugged expanse, the browns and greens of the valley below, and the hills in the hazy distance are "beautiful exceedingly."

The Real de Catorce is built on the side of a ravine near the top of the range, and has a varying population of 6,000 to 40,000, as the mines are paying well or poorly. Here are found all varieties of silver ore from carbonates to refractory ore, assaying $15,000 to the ton. Catorce has a fine cathedral, richly decorated, and a pretty plaza, the only level spot in the place. To use a railroad phrase, it is a combination of cut and fill, so that to tumble into it on one side and out the other would be extremely disastrous. The streets are neatly paved, and run up and down hill, many of them at an angle of 45 degrees. Altogether this is one of the show places of Mexico.—Modern Mexico.

SOME CURIOUS RECORDS.

Singing 59 Hymns in 58 Minutes and Making 2,000 Sandwiches a Day.

A unique record has lately been made at Bruges—not with the view of proving who should smoke the greatest quantity of tobacco in a given time, but the more economical way of finding out who could make four grammes of tobacco last the longest without allowing the pipe to be extinguished. The holder of the record contrived to keep his pipe alight for 67 minutes.

A German, aged 40, has made a curious record. He told a friend that he was going to make a record, and did so by swallowing 250 fruit stones. Having made his record, he experienced excruciating pain. While under treatment, on the first day of sojourn in the hospital, the medical men succeeded in removing 200 stones.

A very curious record was made recently by the head carver in a cafe, situated in one of the boulevards of Paris. A visitor from Cuba offered a prize of 1,000 francs to the man who could make 2,000 complete sandwiches in 24 hours. The carver accomplished the extraordinary feat in 19 hours and 4 minutes, thereby establishing a record in sandwich cutting.

A record was made a few weeks ago in stealing, by a French lady. She is a middle-aged lady, with a passion for smoking, which has caused her to make a record in stealing. She has succeeded in pilfering 2,600 pipes (all meerschaums), which were found in her lodgings.

An extraordinary record has lately been made by an adjutant of the Salvation Army. He has achieved the marvelous record of singing 59 hymns in 58 minutes.

A very curious record was that made by a Manchester servant girl. She had just completed, a few weeks ago, her sixth month in the service of her mistress, in the capacity of "general," and in that time she had succeeded in breaking 23 cups, 20 glasses, two washing basins, a complete dinner service and half another besides.—Tit-Bits.

Learned Bird.

Two hundred and sixty-two pontiffs have preceded Leo XIII., and of these only seven have occupied the papal chair for twenty-one years, as Pope Leo has done.

The Universalist Register for 1899 reports 737 churches, with 48,856 members; 732 meeting-houses; value of church property over $10,000,000. Massachusetts is the leading state, New York second.

Rev. Alexander Maclaren, D. D., the great Manchester preacher, although over 73 years of age, preaches every Sunday and conducts every detail of the service without fatigue, and also preaches a short sermon on Wednesday evenings.

The Congregational Church Building society aided 102 churches last year in building to the amount of $123,675; loaned $76,260 to 42 churches; gave $28,025 to 57 churches on parsonages; and made grants to 83 churches amounting to $47,414. Out of 158 churches aided all but 22 were west of Ohio.

RAIL AND TIE.

During 1898 the railroads ordered a total of 132,425 freight cars, as against 61,000 in 1897.

The ordinary headlight on an engine fails to fulfill its mission when the train is rounding a curve. A western man has evolved a plan by which the light is made to follow the line of the track.

In view of recent railway accidents the French minister of public works has decreed that all trains must carry requisites for prompt surgical aid to the injured. The practice has been followed by several roads in this country for some time.

The president of the London Institute of Civil Engineers reaches the conclusion, in a recent address, that a good seat in a first-class train is about the safest place in the world. In the same period, he says, in which 24 persons were killed on the railroad by accidents for which they were not responsible, 1,500 people were suffocated in bed, 148 were choked by food in dining-rooms, and 923 fatalities resulted from falling downstairs.

The recent purchase of 28,000 tons of 85-pound steel rails by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad brings the total amount of rail bought since March 1, 1896, up to 115,300 tons, enough to relay 870 miles of track. Of the new rail ordered, 8,000 tons is to be laid on the lines west of the Ohio river, and 20,000 tons is to be used on the Philadelphia, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Connellsville and Pittsburgh divisions. Much of the rail that will be taken up is still good enough to be relaid on branches where traffic is not heavy.

AN EXCELLENT COMBINATION

THE pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well-known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company, illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative,

CLEANSING THE SYSTEM EFFECTUALLY, DISPELLING COLDS AND HEADACHES, PREVENTING FEVERS, OVERCOMING HABITUAL CONSTIPATION PERMANENTLY.

Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, gently yet promptly, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but

by a method known to the California Fig Syrup Company only. In order to get its beneficial effects, and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

Consumers of the choicest products of modern commerce purchase at about the same price that others pay for cheap and worthless imitations. To come into universal demand and to be everywhere considered the best of its class, an article must be capable of satisfying the wants and tastes of the best informed purchasers. The California Fig Syrup Company having met with the highest success in the manufacture and sale of its excellent liquid laxative remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, it has become important to all to have a knowledge of the Company and its product. The California Fig Syrup Company was organized more than fifteen years ago, for the special purpose of manufacturing and selling a laxative remedy which would be more pleasant to the taste and more beneficial in effect than any other known. The great value of the remedy, as a medicinal agent and of the Company's efforts, is attested by the sale of millions of bottles annually, and by the high approval of most eminent physicians. As the true and genuine remedy named SYRUP OF FIGS is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only, the knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties.

Waiter in a Dilemma.

It was in one of the large downtown restaurants that the short little woman and her tall husband went to dinner one night.

"Will you have oysters?" asked the man, glancing over the bill of fare.

"Yes," said the short little woman, as she tried in vain to touch her toes to the floor.

"And, John, I want a hassock."

John nodded and, as he handed his order to the waiter he said: "Yes, and bring a hassock for the lady."

"One hassock?" asked the waiter, with what John thought more than ordinary interest, as he nodded in the affirmative. Still the waiter did not go, but brushed the table cloth with a towel and rearranged the articles on it several times, while his face got very red. Then he came around to John's side and, speaking sotto voce, said: "Say, mister, I haven't been here long, and I'm not on to all these things. Will the lady have the hassock boiled or fried?"—Chicago Chronicle.

In Clay county, one of William Comack's little boys accidentally discharged a shotgun, instantly killing one of Thomas Comack's little girls.

Near Pittsburg, while William Kuhn and young William Chumley were scuffling over a pistol, the weapon was discharged in Chumley's abdomen, wound mortal.

Governor Worthington has fixed April 13th as the date for the hanging of Wm. Tutt, colored, at Mayfield. Tutt killed his wife for disobeying him by going to a game of base ball.

A great many insurance companies have been prosecuted out of business in the central part of the State, where they were heavily fined for entering into a conspiracy to increase rates.

During the past season Dr. A. H. Hampton, of Clark county, has had a flock of high grade ewes, forty in number, entirely destroyed by dogs, inflicting a loss of two hundred dollars or more.

The Lexington grand jury indicted Jack Chinn for using profane language to provoke a breach of the peace. It is generally understood that the provoke was intended to beget an excuse for a killing.

The State Prison Commissioners awarded a contract to the Albion Company, of Louisville, for all the unemployed convicts now in the penitentiary at 40 cents a day for each convict. They will manufacture furniture at Eddyville.

Hon. Carroll Wilson showed us a piece of metal which was picked up near the mouth of Marble Creek. He says it has been analyzed and found to contain quite a large per cent. of silver. If there has no mistake been made the eastern end of Jessamine county will soon be a New El Dorado.—Nicholasville Democrat.

Two hundred sports from Lexington, Georgetown, Paris, Frankfort, Nicholasville, Covington, Maysville, Harrodsburg, Danville, Louisville, Newport, Winchester and other points held the biggest cocking main of the season Thursday and Friday near Newtown, just over the line in Fayette, says the Paris News.

A pardon issued by Acting Governor Worthington, last week, developed a remarkable case of misplaced justice. James Maricle, of Knox county, was convicted of manslaughter in 1884, and sent up for life. He served 15 years, but it has now been proved by unimpeachable witnesses that he was innocent, and he has been set at liberty.

Mr. S. P. Gooch, of Waynesburg, who is on the jury, showed us some old tax receipts held by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ermine Padgett, that were dated November 11, 1799, and are for 200 acres of land on the south side of Green river upon which £6 were charged. She also has the discharge papers of Rice McMullen, who served in the war of 1812.—Stanford Journal.

We worked for Bryan, shouted for Bryan and voted for Bryan, but we find that we made an idol but to find it clay. A pretty girl at Brenham, Texas, asked him to kiss her and he declined, saying, "My dear Miss, I am not Hobson." That settles it. The man who could refuse so delightful a request is not built our way and hereafter we will not speak as we pass by.—Stanford Interior-Journal.

The crusade started two years ago by the Gleanor against the book trust and in favor of cheaper books for the people of Kentucky has begun to bear fruit. When the Democratic State convention meets a few months hence, not only will all the candidates be pledged in favor of cheaper books, but there will be inserted in the platform a plank pledging the party to drive the school book trust from the State. Let there be no truce with this trust which places a premium on ignorance by monopolizing the source from which the public intelligence springs.—Henderson Gleaner.

Acting Governor Worthington pardoned before trial the Owingsville Electric Light Company, of Bath county, under indictment in the Franklin Circuit Court for failure to make proper report to the State Auditor for franchise tax purposes. He gives the following reasons for the action taken: "The undisputed facts in this petition show most conclusively that the company has not been guilty of willfully violating the law, but on the contrary has manifested considerable zeal in endeavoring to comply with the law. For these reasons the offense charged in the indictment is pardoned.

The insurance companies were fined $400 each at Versailles, last week, the total sum amounting to $15,000. Attorney Franklin will bring them to a realizing sense of their duties under the law after a while. These companies could have settled with a nominal fine of $25 each if they would agree to disband the combine, but their answer was that they had plenty of money and would fight it out. The best legal talent in Kentucky has not been able to save them from the verdict of a jury. They are violating the law daily, and are playing a high hand, but they will soon halt. Already judgments amounting to $55,000 have been found against them.—Frankfort Argus.

Jackson Cox, "the baby convict" has been paroled. Cox is 13 years old, and was received at the penitentiary about six weeks ago to serve two years for burning a barn in Pike county. In granting the pardon Acting Governor Worthington wrote on the papers: "It would be a most flagrant and palpable violation of both the moral and civil law to consign a mere child for a period of two years to association and influence of the most hardened criminals, where every moral that a beneficent Creator had placed in his youthful breast would be blighted and paralyzed, and would be little short of moral murder. So long as the power remains in my hands and the great commonwealth of Kentucky with her boasted civilization, millions of wealth and christian influence, fails to provide a suitable reformatory for her young, ignorant, offending children than this den of iniquity, I shall turn them out so fast as they may be sent here."

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[Herald.]

After being in session nine days the grand jury adjourned on Thursday, having returned 41 indictments, mostly for minor offenses.

The case of J. N. Beck against Frank Fullilove took up most of the time Saturday and Monday. The jury, after several hours' deliberation, brought in a verdict for the defendant.

Mrs. Ruth Swope was awarded a divorce from W. P. Swope. She was restored to her maiden name, Miss Ruth Stamper, and was given alimony in the sum of $50 a month for three years, as well as $250 attorney's fee. An agreement to this effect had previously been signed.

Cal Riddle, the well-known colored tobacco handler, is one of the best workers in the State, and probably the very best to be found anywhere. In the last six weeks he has packed 380 hogsheads of tobacco, and in five days the past week he packed 100,000 pounds.

In the case of the Commonwealth against John Woolums, charged with carrying a concealed deadly weapon, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty, which the Court refused to accept and ordered the indictment filed away. The defendant admitted all that the proof disclosed, that he had upon his person a pistol, but claimed that it was out of repair, the mainspring being broken, and it was not loaded hence not a deadly weapon. The Court's instructions were to the effect that it was the character and not the condition of the pistol that should be taken into account, in accordance with a decision of the Court of Appeals.

The prediction has been made that corn will go to $2,50 per barrel.

Corn is selling at 85 a barrel at Cynthiana, but it is a very extra variety for seed.

A bench warrant for Jack Chinn was issued at Lexington and sent to the Sheriff of Mercer county. Bail was fixed at $300.

Trenton voted on the whisky question Saturday. The result of the contest was 21 majority for Prohibition. Prohibition has prevailed there for a number of years.

Tremont "the unbeaten," broke his sfifle and had to be killed at Belle Meade farm, near Nashville. He won 11 stakes as a two-year-old and changed hands twice at $25,000 and $17,500.

From the reports before the Kentucky Millers' Association in session at Lexington, last week, it was decided that the outlook for the wheat crop in this State is better than usual at this time of year.

The curious fact that corn, potatoes and other plants thrive better when placed in rows running north and south, has now been proved. Planted thus, they obtain more uniform and regular light.—Mayfield Monitor.

Reliable seed corn of mature growth is reported to be scarce by reason of the injury done to the crop by continued wet weather last fall both before and after corn harvest. A large per cent. rotted in the shuck throughout the State. Therefore look well and get your seed corn from reliable parties if you have to buy.

There is a tendency among certain farmers to abandon crops or stock just as soon as they begin to depreciate in value or property, and to take up with something else that appears more profitable. Such farming begets a shiftless and restless habit which works great harm. In time the changes are made so frequent that the farmer is a good deal like the proverbial rolling stone.

A fatal disease has broke out among the horses in Meade county, and everybody is at sea as to how it should be treated. It is certainly contageous and seems to affect the brain very much in the form of a violent attack of the grippe. The farmers in that section are very much alarmed about it as so far none of the horses that have taken the disease have gotten well.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1899. NO. 23.

THE Alger whitewashing committee ought to be investigated.

IF the proper thing is done, all these army officers who have been trying to have Gen. Miles fired will be rewarded by being fired.

IT is strange that a candidate for a State office will hesitate to express himself on issues with which the office to which he aspires has to deal directly.

LAMOR FOUTAN, a prominent civil engineer of Mississippi, claims to have discovered in Arkansas, what he declares was once the metropolis of the prehistoric mound-builders, and the largest city in the world. "On a direct line east and west for thirty-five miles," he says, "and as far as my eye could reach, the ruins continued. Computing the area surveyed by me, estimating that each dwelling contained five inhabitants, I found that 11,000,000 people had their homes in this great city. The city is spread over three counties Desha, Drew and Ashley."

SOME of the high protection papers have at last got their eyes opened to the fact that under such tariff laws as those known as the McKinley and the Dingley bills, trusts have been fostered to such an extent that they have about throttled the country, and they are demanding the repeal of all tariff laws that encourage the forming of trusts and sustain them after being formed. These papers that endorsed to the full extent the above mentioned tariff laws are now advising the Republican party that it must get rid of the trusts if it expects to remain in power. When the trusts are disorganized there will no longer be any Republican party. When its offspring ceases to exist the parent will be gone before it.

BEFORE the army beef question is disposed of Eagan may wish he could get further away from the United States than Hawaii, and the sickening odor of rotten beef that envelops him will make the people concur with him in that wish. The testimony taken by the investigating committee shows conclusively that some person other than Gen. Miles "lied by every hair in his head," and everybody knows who that liar is. Gen. Miles is to be congratulated for the quiet, business-like manner in which he has exposed the beef business in connection with the army. He cared not who was volved in the scandal, he turned the light on, and by so doing has done the country a great service.

ANXIOUS to know the opinion of Ohio county's favored son in Congress, Hon. Richard Parks Bland, upon the current issues of the day and the prospects of Democracy in particular, the editor of the Hartford Herald wrote him, and the following is his reply:

"House of Representatives U. S., Washington, D. C., March 10, 1899,—Heber Matthews, Editor Hartford Herald.—My Dear Sir The issue in 1900 will be the money question. The Democratic party will, no doubt, nomitate Mr. Bryan and readopt the Chicago platform, especially that part that favors the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 of gold. When this platform is announced it will make a sharp issue that will overthrow all others. There is a greater necessity for a broader basis of money now than there has been heretofore. Our national debt has been largely increased by the issuing of bonds by Cleveland and McKinley. Our taxing system has become very enormous, and extravagances of the Republican party in appropriating money require immense exactions from the people in the way of taxes. If the McKinley programme of colonization and the ruling of colonies by the military is to be carried out, the burdens that will be heaped upon the people will require an immense expenditure of money. The policy of the Republican party is enormous taxation and at the same time contraction of the currency."

"The people demand more money and less taxation, and this, in my opinion, will be the winning cry in 1900. Yours truly.

"R. P. BLAND."

JONES TO CRATES.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

My attention has been called to an article by the Rev. J. W. Crates, of Walton, appearing in a recent issue of your paper. In as much as Bro. Crates asks me to give him information "through the RECORDER" I suppose you will grant me that privilege.

Possibly a few words of explanation will not be amiss. I wish to say to the public that I am not responsible for this discussion. I, a Baptist preacher, made an address at a Baptist meeting in the Baptist church in Burlington, at the request of the pastor and members of said church. They requested me to discuss "Baptist Polity." This being a free country I thought I had a privilege to make said address without being called to account for it by Bro. Crates, or any one else, either in the Boone County RECORDER or elsewhere. But Bro. Crates "files his demurrer" and says I ought to "inform" myself before "speaking so positively." Besides he "flatly denies" what I said, and publicly challenges me to make good my assertions. I could not quietly rest under such charges and retain my self-respect or the respect of my brethren. While I am not out seeking controversies I wish to inform Bro. Crates that I will be the last man to run when one comes along my way. Since he has given me a public challenge I do most gladly answer for myself concerning the things Bro. Crates so flatly denies.

In order that your readers may the more clearly understand the situation I will call attention to the two statements Bro. Crates flatly denies, and then proceed to furnish all the proof he desires. One point in the address was that Baptists have no grades among their ministers, but that one Baptist preacher is as great and has as much authority as another. I then illustrated by speaking of ranks in the ministry as Bishops, Presiding Elders and preachers. There I called attention to the fact that Baptist preachers were members of their own churches and subject to the same laws which govern all their members. I am a member of the First Baptist church of Covington, and like all the other members, am amenable to all the laws of the church. I said that Methodist preachers were not members of Methodist churches, that the names of Bishops, Presiding Elders and preachers did not appear on the lists of members of any of their churches, but on the contrary they were members of the conference, and as such not amenable to the laws of the church, but those of the conference. The other point was in regard to the Lord's Supper. In that I discussed, not how far apart Baptists and Methodists were, but how near together. We invite those "of like faith and order" to partake of the Lord's Supper with us, and the law of the Methodist church, while expressed in different language, really means the same thing. I will prove this later.

The case is now before us. In preaching a sermon I like to have the text plainly before the people, hence I reproduce the article by Bro. Crates just as it appeared in the RECORDER.

"To the Editor of the Recorder:

"Bro. Crates wishes to file his demurrer to the charge made by Bro. C. G. Jones at the District meeting of the North Bend Association of Baptists, recently held in Burlington. As the remarks of Bro. Jones were published in the RECORDER, Bro. Crates should be heard through the same medium.

"Mr. Editor:—Some erroneous statements were made concerning Methodists at the District Board Meeting of the North Bend Association of Baptists at Burlington. In answer I wish to say that Rev. C. G. Jones had better inform himself before he speaks so positively. I flatly deny the charge that Bishops, Presiding Elders and Preachers in the Methodist church do not belong to the church. As instances: Bishop Hendrix is a member of Central Methodist church, Kansas City, Mo. My membership is retained at Eleventh Street Methodist church, Covington, Ky. I wish also to ask Bro. Jones to give through the RECORDER, page and paragraph in the Discipline, 1898 being the last edition, where he finds the following, or any such language: "No one who inveighs against the doctrines of the Methodist church has a right to commune. It is certainly not a Discipline of the M. E. Church South.

"Concerning Bro. T. L. Utz's gush of Methodist and close communion, I have this to say: "The proof of the pudding is the eating," and I hereby extend to him a personal invitation to commune with the Methodist of Walton, at my church, Easter Sunday, April 2d. Hesitate not to come, for I am responsible to my Conference.

J. W. CRATES, Pastor in charge of Walton Methodist Church.

Bro. Crates says that I should inform myself. The advice is unnecessary in as much as I had already done so. Possibly Bro. Crates may discover that he sadly needs to take his own advice. But that I might be able to make assurance doubly sure I have sent to Nashville for the "Discipline of 1898" which is now before me. I have also written to Bishop Hendrix and Bishop Hargrove. Their replies are before me. The Discipline and the letters from the Bishops prove every statement I made, as I will show. Surely Bro. Crates or any good Methodist cannot object to such testimony. But the funny part of it all is that Bro. Crates proves that Methodist preachers are members of Methodist churches by saying he is still a member of the Eleventh St. church in Covington. I have the pleasure of knowing Rev. C. F. Oney, the pastor of that church, so I called to ask him about it. He said Bro. Crates was not a member! There now! It turns out that Bro. Crates, "Pastor in charge of Walton Methodist church," did not know whether or not he was a member of the church. Bro. Crates should "inform" himself before he "speaks so positively." Now we will go to the Discipline of 1898, and the Bishops for further proof. See Discipline of 1898, page 313, ¶ 585. "The membership of a traveling preacher is in the Annual Conference, and not in the pastoral charge to which he is appointed." Again on page 318, ¶ 603. "The Presiding Elder of a district is a member of its District Conference." Bishop Hargrove under date of March 18th, 1899, says: "Of the Bishops the General Conference has jurisdiction, of Presiding Elders and pastors the Annual Conferences have jurisdiction, and of local preachers the Quarterly Conference has jurisdiction, and of laymen the local congregations have jurisdiction, and our enrollment is generally in the particular organization to which we are severally amenable."

As Bro. Crates made the point that Bishop Hendrix was a member of the Central Methodist church in Kansas City, I desired a personal statement from the Bishop. In his letter of March 21st, 1899, he says: "In response to yours of the 15th inst., I will say that in the Methodist church pastors, presiding elders, editors, secretaries, college professors and presidents all hold their membership in the Annual Conferences. The Bishops hold their membership in the General Conference." I also wrote Bishop Fitzgerald, but his answer has not been received. This proves all that I said, and Bishop Hendrix is not a member of Central Methodist church, or any other.

We now come to the second point raised by Bro. Crates, in regard to "inveighing against the doctrine," &c. Bro. Crates says it is not in the Discipline of the M. E. Church South, and calls upon me to prove it by the Discipline of 1898. It is very evident that Bro. Crates has never seen the Discipline of 1898, or that he has made very poor use of it. My statement was that the terms regulating the Lord's Supper were as strict, or close, in the Methodist church as in the Baptist churches, and that if Methodist preachers would enforce the discipline as they vow in their ordination to do, no one under the sun but a Methodist would be admitted to the Lord's Supper in the Methodist church. I most positively make this assertion, and do not believe that any intelligent Methodist will deny it. For the simple task of proving this, I invite the reader to follow me.

Discipline of 1898, page 206, in note at bottom of page, says: "No person shall be admitted to the Lord's Supper among us who is guilty of any practice for which we would exclude a member of our church." I call attention to the word "admitted"—"No person shall be admitted." It does not say "invited," but even if he should wish to come he shall not be "admitted." That suggests that some one is to decide concerning the "practice for which we would exclude a member," and if the applicant at the altar is guilty of any such practice to refuse to "admit" him. Our next aim is, therefore, to find the man who is to decide this matter. See Discipline of 1898, page 57. "Question. What are the duties of a preacher who has the charge of a circuit, station, or mission?" In answer 4 we find these words: "To see that all the ordinances and regulations of the church be duly observed, and that the General Rules be read at least once a year in every congregation." Here it plainly says that it is the duty of the "preacher who has charge of a circuit" to "see that all the ordinances and regulations of the church be duly observed." Thus it is plainly the duty of the "preacher who has the charge of a circuit," "to see that the ordinances be duly observed," and to be "duly observed" "no person shall be admitted to the Lord's Supper among us who is guilty of any practice for which we would exclude a member of our church." And now let us see for what "practice" they "would exclude a member," and we will settle the question. See Discipline 1898, page 123, answer to "Question 3."—"If a member of our church endeavor to sow dissension in any of our societies by inveighing against either our doctrine or discipline, such person offending shall be first reproved by the preacher in charge; and if there be persistence in such practices, the offender shall be dealt with as in case of immorality." Bro. Crates said this was not in the Discipline of 1898. In addition to not knowing about his church membership, I am afraid he has not seen the Discipline of 1898. Now, I unhesitatingly make the assertion that if the "preacher in charge" does his duty, no person under heaven but a Methodist can possibly be "admitted" to the Lord's Supper in a Methodist church. They "would exclude a member" for "inveighing against either the doctrine or discipline" of the Methodist church, and "no person shall be admitted to the Lord's Supper among us who is guilty of any practice for which we would exclude a member of our church." Now let us see how that rule works. Let us put two of the statements together, and see what the conclusion will be. "No person shall be admitted to the Lord's Supper among us who is guilty of any practice for which we would exclude a member from our church." "If a member of our church endeavor to sow dissention in any of our societies by inveighing against either our doctrine or discipline, such person offending shall be first reproved by the preacher in charge; and if there be persistence in such practices, the offender shall be dealt with as in cases of immorality." That means excluded, as a drunkard, liar or thief—"as in cases of immorality." To inveigh against the "doctrine or discipline" is as great a crime, according to the above, as immorality. Their own members would be excluded for inveighing against either the "doctrine or discipline." What do we mean by inveighing against? It means to speak reproachfully of, to condemn, and hence to refuse to believe. Then, no one shall be admitted who condemns, or refuses to believe either the "doctrine or discipline" of the Methodist church. Suppose Bro. Utz should accept the invitation given by Bro. Crates. If Bro. Crates dealt honestly with his church and the Discipline of 1898, he would refuse to admit Bro. Utz. Bro. Crates knows that Bro. Utz most positively inveighs against his infant baptism, sprinkling, apostasy, orders in the ministry, &c. How can Bro. Crates invite him without violating his Discipline? In the same way Presbyterians, Episcopalians and Disciples inveigh against the "doctrine and discipline," hence not one of them could be admitted.

I have explained that it is the duty of the preacher in charge to enforce this law; I now call attention to a more solemn aspect of the case—that of the preacher's ordination vow. Turn to Discipline of 1898, page 254, and read the question and answer.

"The Bishop. Will you then give your faithful diligence, always so to minister the doctrine and sacraments, and the discipline of Christ, as the Lord has commanded?"

"Ans. I will so do, by the help of the Lord."

Again, on page 255, we find:—

"The Bishop. Will you reverently obey your chief ministers, unto whom is committed the charge and government over you; following with a glad mind and will their godly admonitions, submitting yourselves to their godly judgments?"

"Ans. I will so do, the Lord being my helper."

This Discipline of 1898 is signed by the Bishop whom Bro. Crates promised in his ordination to "reverently obey." I do not see how any oath could be more sacred or binding than the vow Bro. Crates took in his ordination. As long as Bro. Crates has any regard for the sanctity of a vow, he must perform it. But when he invites Bro. Utz to commune with him Easter Sunday, he shows clearly that breaking a solemn vow is, with him, a matter of small concern. I said that if the Methodist preachers enforced their Discipline none but a Methodist could be admitted. I have proved it. Bro. Crates may appear liberal, but he has violated his ordination vow.

At a meeting held by the Democratic State Executive Committee in the city of Lexington on March 8, 1896, it was ordered that a State Convention be held in the city of Louisville on Wednesday, June 21, 1899, for the purpose of nominating Democratic candidates for State offices, to be voted for on November 7, 1899. Said convention shall be called to order at 11 o'clock a. m. Delegates to said State Convention shall be chosen at county mass conventions to be held at the various county court houses in counties having but one legislative district, of which due notice shall be given by the various county chairman. In counties having more than one legislative district there shall be a convention for each legislative district, to be held at some convenient point, to be indicated by the chairman of the legislative district committee, who shall advertise in the local papers the location for said convention at least ten days prior to the date fixed by this committee. Said county and legislative district conventions shall be held at 2 o'clock p. m., standard time, on June 17, 1899. Said convention shall be called to order by the chairman of the respective county or legislative district committees.

The basis of representation of each county to said State convention shall be one delegate for each 200 votes and fraction consisting of one hundred or more votes cast for the head of the Democratic electoral ticket at the Presidential election in 1896; provided that each county shall have at least one delegate vote.

All known Democrats and others who supported W. J. Bryan for President, and those who pledge themselves to support the nominees of said convention shall be entitled to participate in the county or legislative district convention.

P. P. JOHNSON, Chairman.

CROP AND STOCK.

Ninety-three cattle perished in a fire in Warren county.

George Clayton sold his crop of 40 lambs at 5¼ cents for June delivery.—Bourbon News.

A strange malady which baffles medical skill is killing the horses and cattle in Hopkins county.

J. B. Miller shipped 1,700 dozen eggs, 100 chickens and a dozen turkeys from Elkton last Saturday.

Gay Brothers, of Woodford county, sold to Virginia parties eight yearling horses, saddle bred at $250 each.

Coal is now being used for burning tobacco beds instead of brush. Parties who have tried it say it does very well.

At Georgetown last court day, best cattle brought 5 cents. At Mt. Sterling there were some sales at 3¼ to 4½ cents.

J. M. VanMeter sold to Wm. Frazier, of Morganfield, a short-horn bull calf, nine months old, for $100. This is a grand calf, a first-class specimen of the breed, both in individuality and pedigree.—Danville Advocate.

As far as we have learned, says the Hodgenville Herald, in this section the wheat crop is in a worse condition than was ever known before. Some claim that the entire crop is frozen out, and are preparing to sow oats on the land.

There is a new way of raising Irish potatoes. The method is to plant onions and potatoes in the same hill. The onions will make the eye of the potatoes weep, thereby furnishing moisture for the potatoes. Try it.—Georgetown News.

When milk is set in pans for the cream to rise it is often permitted to stand too long in the hope that more cream will thereby be obtained. It very commonly however, results in the production of no greater quantity of cream, and at the same time that which has gathered becomes slightly bitter. No skill in the subsequent handling of cream of this kind will make good butter. After setting for thirty-six hours all the cream in the batch of milk will have risen.

There is more pleasure and far more profit in early planted potatoes than the late planted. They are invariably in greater demand, and consequently command a higher price in the early part of the season, than in the fall when the market is glutted. But the greatest difficulty to contend with in raising an early crop, is in getting the ground in the proper condition in the Spring when a wet season has to be contended with. But this difficulty may be overcome by breaking and manuring the land in the fall and the first opportunity after the hard freezes are over, and when the frost is thoroughly out of the ground they should be planted and covered from 4 to 6 inches deep. Manuring the soil is a very important part of the work.

On March 3 A. S. Thompson had three cattle killed by lightning on his farm south of this city, on the Clintonville pike. There is a fence running east from his stock barn connecting with another fence running south, and on this fence is a barbed wire. The lightning struck the fence 150 yards from the barn, the current divided, going seventy-five feet one way, killing one steer, and fifty yards in the opposite direction two more were killed. Fifty feet from the fence in another direction stood a cow in the heavy down pour of rain. She was knocked down and lay there for nearly an hour and then was able to get up and stagger to the barn, but has since gotten all right. A man was entering the barn, and he was knocked down, but was not hurt.—Kentuckian Citizen.

It has once more been ruled that growers have the right to sell tobacco of their own production in hogsheads, cases or bales, or loose in the hand, to any person and in any quantity, but have not the right to stem, twist, sweeten, plat, roll cut or grind tobacco and change it from natural condition in which it was cured and dried on the farm, for the purpose of selling it directly to consumers. And further, they cannot employ agents to travel from place to place and sell and deliver their tobacco; that if tobacco is sold by sample by an agent it must subsequently be delivered by the farmer directly to the purchaser; that leaf tobacco sold by them under the conditions mentioned would not be subject to tax, and that they would not be required to qualify as dealers in leaf tobacco for selling leaf tobacco of their own raising, and have been so advised in every case.

Another blessing of annexation has just been officially uncovered. When it was stated in Congress that the annexation of the sugar producing islands would mean a speedy end of the sugar industry in the U. S., the rabid annexationists hooted at the idea. Now, an agent of the Agricultural Department, sent to Porto Rico to carefully investigate the subject makes an official report saying that the sugar industry in the U. S. is doomed, if Porto Rico, Cuba, and the Philippines are allowed to send us their sugar free of duty. He says the same grade of sugar that costs 3½ cents a pound to produce in the U. S. costs but 2 cents a pound to produce in these islands. This will be a hard nut for the next Congress to crack.

IT is one continuous battle around about Manilla, and many solders are being killed.

RING loud, O bells of Easter,
Your peals through spaces ring;
With joy the fair earth greets you
Through all the notes of spring.
Ring in all peace and gladness,
Ring out all strife and tears,
As downward through the ages
You've rung the passing years.

Ring clear, O bells, your message
Throughout all nature thrills;
It all things living touches,
As when from Judah's hills
There rose the light triumphant
O'er death and mortal fears,
And dawned that first great Easter—
The Easter of the years.

Ring sweet, O bells, your lesson
Unto each heart to-day:
That all before the Master
May but life's lilies lay.
Ring soft—ring low, your chiming
May bridge some past—its tears,
For those, perchance, who mourneth
Some Easter in the years.

Again, O bells of Easter,
Ring out in thrilling peal,
That we, through all our pulses
The new-born glory feel
God's living, loving presence,
As each new spring appears
In all that breathes around us,
Throughout the march of years.
—Beatrice Harlowe, in Woman's Home Companion.

MRS. WHITAKER drew up her little brown and white pony with an expression of disgust on her face and waited until the wagon, with the long box covered with an old black shawl, had passed her on its way to the village burying ground.

"Another pauper's funeral," Mrs. Whitaker murmured, looking over her shoulder, as she drove on past the town farm.

Again Anne Whitaker's lips curled. "Old men and funerals, right next door;" and this time she struck the slow-moving pony a gentle blow with her equally slow-moving whip.

Now Mrs. Anne Whitaker was not a hard-hearted woman. She was only an indignant land owner who found her handsome farmhouse almost ruined for residential and property purposes by its proximity to the poor farm. This farm, adjoining Mrs. Whitaker's, had been left to the town last year.

"It's not that I don't want the paupers to be comfortable," said Mrs. Whitaker, as the pony trotted up the driveway toward the barn; "but I must say I don't care to have them right under my nose."

Mrs. Whitaker, not finding her man about, unharnessed the pony and led him into the stall and then went indoors to discuss with Hannah, the only other occupant of the big house, the disadvantages of the locality.

Meantime in the poorhouse, next door, a little child was sobbing her heart out in an upper room.

"You hadn't oughter have taken her away before her mother died, if she did make a fuss," said the daughter of the woman who looked after the poor farm. "I'm agoin' up to see her."

She went up two flights of stairs to the garret room where a child was seated on an old box in the corner. The child stopped crying, half frightened as she entered. The girl sat down on a trunk opposite.

"Look here, Ruth, you mustn't cry any longer," commanded the matron's daughter.

"I want my mother," sobbed the child, with new courage.

The girl hesitated a moment. "Well, you can't have your mother," she answered at last, frankly, "she's dead, and gone to Heaven."

"Oh," said the child, slowly, "you didn't tell me. Mamma said she thought she was going to die, but they didn't tell me; they just carried me away."

"Well, for gracious sakes!" cried the girl; "you took on so about her bein' sick that we had to. You ain't goin' to cry any more, are you?" she added, coaxingly.

"No, I ain't," answered the child, gravely.

"There, that's a good girl;" the matron's daughter rose and gave the dark locks an affectionate rub. "I knew you wasn't goin' to be naughty."

The girl went downstairs and left Ruth sitting very still upon the box in the corner and thinking hard, with her eyes fixed on a cobweb just across the garret.

"My mamma has died and gone to Heaven," the child meditated, solemnly. "I told her if she went up to Heaven first, the next thing she knew she'd look around and see me there. I ain't going to stay in this horrid place without her. I'm going to die myself and go and see her, right straight off. I'll put on my best nightgown, and I'll lie down in the bed and put some flowers at my head"—some kind person had placed a bouquet by her mother's bed the last time Ruth had seen her lying sick and still—"and then I'll die and go to Heaven." She rose now and, stepping to the window, peered between the dusky festoons at the blue sky, as if she expected to see the angels already descending to bear her away.

At last she went quietly down the stairs; she must find the flowers first, and to go out of doors by the back way she must pass through the kitchen. The girl was at the stove frying doughnuts, and looked up as Ruth entered.

"Hullo," she said; "have a doughnut?"

These doughnuts were not for the inmates of the farm, and it was a rare honor to be offered one. For a moment Ruth forgot her errand, it was so warm and sweet. While she was eating it, standing close by the fire, the girl's mother, who was sitting in the kitchen, spoke:

"To think to-morrer should be Easter."

"I know it; I hope it'll be pleasant."

"What is Easter?" asked Ruth, timidly.

"Law sakes! what a heathen she is," cried the woman.

"Easter," said the girl, oracularly, balancing a doughnut on the end of her fork, "is the day when Christ rose from the dead, as all the dead shall rise."

Ruth, as she stood in the corner, ate her doughnut and pondered over the words.

"I guess to-morrow'll be the best day to die in," she decided, watching with hungry eyes as the girl bore the pan of doughnuts off to the matron's private larder; "that's the day the dead shall all rise."

The next morning brought Easter, a fair and glad day for many as well as for little Ruth; for was not this to be the day on which she should rise to her mother in the skies? She went out into the garden directly after breakfast to gather some flowers. After much searching Ruth discovered in a swamp far from the house, a pussy-willow bush, with the catkins clinging gray and soft to the shining brown twigs. She picked a great bunch of these and bore them home in triumph. Suddenly she remembered something; her mother's lament the night before she lost all knowledge of where she was, that she must die in the poor farm; how bad she felt about that. "I don't think mamma'd want me to die here," she murmured, with a little sob of disappointment in her voice.

It was at dusk of that Easter day when a little white-robed figure stole softly out of the back door of the poor house, and, creeping slowly along in the shadow, came at last to Mrs. Whitaker's back gate. Then it fairly flew up the pathway, and paused at the door. But the door was locked, and there was no key in sight. A sudden memory came to Ruth of the day when she had been to walk with the girl at the poor-farm, and the girl had taken the key from under the mat. She reached down now and felt beneath the mat. Yes, there it was. She fitted the key in the door, turned it quickly and found herself in Mrs. Whitaker's pleasant kitchen, where the fire glowed in a safe, subdued fashion, and the dining-room showed through the half-open door.

But Ruth wasted scarce a glance on these beauties. She had seen the brown and white pony go down the road some time since, and she planned to die and be done with it before the pony's owner should return.

She wiped her cold bare feet carefully on the kitchen rug; it appeared to her most fitting to die in bare feet; then, holding the big bunch of pussy-willows closely, she crept softly up the stairs to the handsome square chambers. She was awestruck with their size and grandeur, and it took her some time to decide which one was suitable for her laying out; but at last she selected Mrs. Whitaker's own bedroom. She placed the pussy-willows in a vase on the table at the head of the bed, and then she opened the window wide.

"I should think that would be big enough for the angels to get me through, if they're careful," she said, aloud; she had not seen her mother carried away in the poorfarm wagon in the long, black box.

She climbed solemnly up into the great high-posted bed, lying quietly in the center of it, her little close-cropped head against Mrs. Whitaker's spick and span shams, her small, bare feet projecting, pink-toed and chill, from the edge of her carefully drawn-down nightgown. She folded her hands across her breast, closed her eyes, just as she had seen her mother on that last day, and waited—waited through the seconds that the tall hall-clock ticked solemnly from below the stairs, waited while they turned to minutes, and even to an hour; but the angels were waiting, too, the guardian angels of little Ruth.

While she waited the brown and white pony was ambling down the road, bearing Mrs. Whitaker home after the church service. She had left Hannah on the way to make a call on her family and was now alone. The peace of Easter was smiling on her lips and the joy of Easter was shining in her eyes; for Easter has always the largest meaning to those, left as she, alone in the world. She drove up the driveway to the barn, lighted the lantern and unharnessed the horse—the hired man had his Sundays out; then she came to the back door. The sight of the key projecting from the lock brought another frown to her face.

"Hannah's getting careless," she said, as she stepped into the kitchen. She sat down a moment before the fire in the darkness, then rising, lighted a lamp and went slowly up the stairs to put away her bonnet and shawl.

She came into her bedroom, placed the light on her bureau and turned about toward the bed. She gave a sudden cry, not a shriek, but something between a moan and a sob and put her hand to her side. But after a still moment, she went to the bureau, picked up the lamp in a steady hand and walked gravely to the bedside, looking over the little white figure from the dark, roughened hair to the pink-toed feet. A hint of a smile came to the corners of her mouth.

Now the child opened her big black eyes, saw the faint smile and tranquility closed them again.

Anne Whitaker frowned. Was it a trick being played upon her?

"What are you doing here?" she demanded, still holding the light and still peering down into the child's face.

Ruth opened her eyes again with a look of appeal in them. "I'm dying," she answered, calmly, and then closed her eyes.

Mrs. Whitaker jumped so that the chimney almost fell from the lamp; she hurried to the bureau, placed it there and then came back to the bed.

"Do you feel very bad?" she queried, anxiously.

A piteous frown came to the child's forehead. "Please don't 'sturb me, I want to die;" she had screwed her eyes more tightly together this time.

LOOKING OVER THE LITTLE WHITE FIGURE.

Mrs. Whitaker straightened up. "Oh, you do, do you?" then she bent over the bed. "Have you taken anything?" she asked, solicitously.

The child looked at her now. "No, I didn't have anything that was good enough. You can get 'most everything in Heaven, can't you?"

Anne Whitaker retreated a pace and sat down in the nearest chair. She did not answer until she realized that Ruth was still looking at her inquiringly.

"Yes, I guess so," she began, hastily. Then she felt a draft of cold air. "I guess there isn't much doubt about your dying if you lie there with that window open;" she went toward the window and closed it.

"Don't shut it; how can the angels come in?" Ruth sat up in bed and looked at her.

Anne Whitaker looked back at the thin little face and the sad, dark eyes, and a lump came into her throat.

"They can come in at the door, I guess," she said; but she was not thinking of the words.

She went over to the child, who had lain down again, and touched her bare, chill fee. "You're going to catch your death a-cold," she affirmed. "I'm going to put my shawl over you."

The child unfolded her hands and spread them out in appeal. "Won't you please let me die? This is such a nice house to die in."

Again Mrs. Whitaker retreated. "What—what do you want to die for?" she stammered.

"'Cause my mamma died, an' I want to go an' see her in Heaven; an' it's a more joyful place than the poorhouse."

Mrs. Whitaker had always prided herself on being a woman of resource. She sat down on a chair opposite the bed and studied the little figure perplexedly. Suddenly there was a movement of the small nose, a wrinkling of the smooth eyebrows, and the next moment the still form was shaken by a convulsive sneeze.

Mrs. Whitaker sprang to her feet. "There's one thing sure," she declared, impressively, "if I let you lie there that way I might as well be a murderer and done with it. Wanting to die, indeed! Don't you know the Lord's got work for you in the world, and it isn't right for you to die?"

Her voice rose in her indignation louder than she knew, from the clothes-press where she was extracting her biggest and warmest gray shawl. When she turned again toward the bed, two great tears were stealing from beneath Ruth's dark lashes and making slow way down her hollow cheeks. Mrs. Whitaker groaned and choked and sat down with the shawl in her arms. Then, what seemed like a brilliant inspiration came to her.

"I've got some apple tarts downstairs; they're brown an' crispy, and there's one that's just about big enough for a little girl. I should think she'd like to have something to eat before she dies."

The child's mouth moved convulsively at the corners, but this time it was not with grief.

"And I've got a cooky that's round, with sugar on the top and a hole in the middle," Mrs. Whitaker smiled broadly as Ruth sat up.

"And could I take one to mamma, too?" she asked.

"Oh," answered the triumphant lady, "your mamma has everything she wants in Heaven."

The child smiled. "Then I guess I'll wait till I get there, too," she said, and lay down again.

The shawl twitched in Anne Whitaker's hands; she longed to gather the forlorn little figure into her arms, but she did not feel that she could use force toward the child; she must manage her, she had always been so good a manager.

"Do you know what day it is?" she asked, presently, feeling her way carefully.

"Yes, that's why I died to-day," was the answer, still with tight-shut eyes.

"To-day is the day that Christ rose from the dead to teach us that as He rose, so shall we all rise," began Mrs. Whitaker, gently.

Ruth was looking at her now. "But I can't rise," she said, plaintively; "'cause you keep 'sturbing me."

"You might"—Anne Whitaker drew a long breath, was it sacrilegious?—"you might play you had been dead and"—she paused.

A gleam of interest shone in Ruth's face. "But this isn't Heaven," she protested.

"The Kingdom of Heaven is within you," Mrs. Whitaker quoted, with both freedom and truth, as she approached the bed with outspread shawl. "It isn't Heaven, but we might be good and make it seem like Heaven."

The child put up her hand as if to ward off the shawl.

"But God isn't here and mamma isn't here."

"God is everywhere," answered Mrs. Whitaker; and Ruth looked about half startled. "But He is a spirit, and you can't see Him." She dropped the shawl over the child now, and as she wrapped it about her she finished more softly: "Your mamma isn't here, but you might play for a little while that I was your other mother."

"Not my real mother?" Ruth asked, wistfully.

"Oh no," Mrs. Whitaker said, hastily; "only a play mother."

The child said no more, but let herself be wound up in the shawl and sat quietly on the edge of the bed while Mrs. Whitaker brought out a pair of her long woolen stockings and drew them over the little, unresisting feet. There was still a slight disappointment in Ruth's face when the great, gray shawl was fastened with a safety pin firmly beneath her chin.

"Now be careful when you go downstairs and keep tight hold of the banisters;" and Mrs. Whitaker came a step behind with a firm clutch on the small, gray-shawled shoulder.

She placed the child in the great rocking chair in front of the stove and laid out all her goodies on the tablet apple tarts and cookies and preserves and cold meat and bread and butter and rich, warm milk. Then she went upstairs and brought down an old sacque of her own that Ruth might put on, and so have her arms free; and they both actually fell to laughing as she rolled and rolled and rolled up the long hanging sleeves.

Mrs. Whitaker was amazed and fearful when she saw Ruth eat; the little girl, whose mind seemed fixed on heavenly things, had a hearty appetite. At last, for fear the child might, indeed, die from overeating, her hostess suggested that they rock together in the chair before the fire.

At this moment little Ruth looked up with a smile on her face, from which all traces of disappointment were fast vanishing. "I think this must be almost as nice as Heaven; just but for mamma."

Mrs. Whitaker smiled grimly. "I guess Heaven is a good deal within us, even with the poorhouse next door."

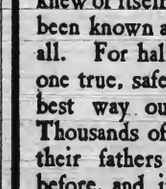
Hannah made an unusually long call on her family, so Mrs. Whitaker thought, holding the little, shawl-wrapped figure in front of the dining-room fire. But when at last she entered, her mistress' commands were ready.

"Hanna, you go over to the poor farm and tell them that Ruth's over here and going to stay, and I'll send John for her things in the morning."

Hannah stood still, gaping, in the dining-room doorway. "Well, I never!" she announced, with her usual freedom; "what on earth have you been doin'?"

Anne Whitaker smiled with her lips against Ruth's dark locks. "Well," she said, slowly, "we've been having a resurrection. You see, this little girl came over here to"—she was about to add "die," but changed it suddenly "to live."—Frances Bent Dillingham in N. Y. Independent.

Public opinion is never far wrong



You can cheat it for a time, but only for a time. The average life of a patent medicine is less than two years. They are pretty well advertised, some of them, but it isn't what is said of them, but what they are able to do which carries them through the years.

MISSING VACANCIES.

There Was a Box of Them and They Were Held by the Agent for Charges.

A short time since quite a discussion arose among the officials of one of our prominent southern railroads as to the reason of the many vexatious delays and troubles in the transmission of local freight. It was claimed by some of the parties interested that it was caused almost entirely by the stupidity or inefficiency of the local agents, and as there was some difference of opinion on this point, it was decided that the matter should be tested.

To this end a tracer was prepared in due and formal shape, calling for the whereabouts of "One box of Post-holes," which it alleged was missing from a prior shipment. This was sent out in the regular order of business, with nothing except its "internal nothingness" to draw attention to its unusual character, and passed agent after agent without eliciting comment or information save the stereotyped indorsement: "Not here."

Some 15 or 18 local agents were actually passed in this way, until the tracer fell into the hands of a bright young fellow who was accustomed to looking into the business passing through his hands, and who speedily came to the conclusion that the tracer had gone far enough. At any rate the document went speedily back to the general office with the following indorsement: "Box of Post-holes, as per inclosed, held at this station for local charges to amount of $2.50. Will be forwarded on receipt of same." Under this indorsement was written: "N. B.—The price of beer at this station is $2.50 per keg." It is said that the charges went forward.—Harper's Magazine.

CHEAP LEGAL ADVICE.

A Man Who Believed in Paying a Lawyer for His Opinion.

The other day an old fellow slouched into Attorney Oscar Kahn's office, on Legal row, and introduced himself as Mr. Smith, Jones, Brown, or something, of a neighboring county. He said he wanted to consult a lawyer, and was accorded a seat and one of the attorney's sweetest smiles.

He then explained that while he was away from home the sheriff or some deputy had attached his wife's seventy-five cents and bureau for taxes. He didn't propose to tolerate such imposition, he declared, and came to Paducah to consult a lawyer about it.

"What is the amount of taxes?" inquired the lawyer.

"Lemme see—a dollar and 28 cents," was the reply.

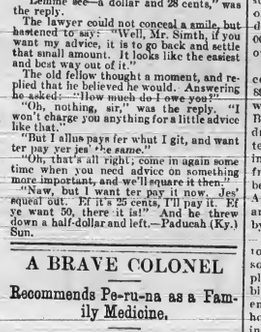
The lawyer could not conceal a smile, but hastened to say: "Well, Mr. Smith, if you want my advice, it is to go back and settle that small amount. It looks like the easiest and best way out of it."

The old fellow thought a moment, and replied that he believed he would. Answering he asked: "How much do I owe you?"

"Oh, nothing, sir," was the reply. "I won't charge you anything for a little advice like that."

"But I allus pays fer what I git, and want ter pay yer jes' the same."

"Oh, that's all right; come in again some time when you need advice on something more important, and we'll square it then."



"Naw, but I want ter pay it now. Jes' squeal out. Ef it's 25 cents, I'll pay it. Ef ye want 50, there it is!" And he threw down a half-dollar and left.—Paducah (Ky.) Sun.

A BRAVE COLONEL

Recommends Pe-ru-na as a Family Medicine.

A Scientific Spring Medicine.

Colonel Arthur L. Hamilton, of the Seventh Ohio Volunteers, 259 Goodale street, Columbus, Ohio, writes: "Besides having the merits of Pe-ru-na so fully demonstrated in my family, I have a number of friends who have taken it for catarrh and stomach trouble, and all unite in praising it. As a remedy for catarrh I can fully recommend it." Mrs. Hamilton, wife of the gallant Colonel, is an ardent friend of Pe-ru-na also. In a letter on the subject she writes: "I have been taking Pe-ru-na for some time, and I am enjoying better health now than I have for years. I attribute the change in my health to Pe-ru-na, and recommend this excellent catarrh remedy to every woman, believing it to be especially beneficial to them."

The spring-time is the most favorable time of the year to treat catarrh. There is so much less liability to take fresh cold that the treatment is unimpeded. All old cases of chronic catarrh should begin immediately a course of Pe-ru-na as directed in Dr. Hartman's books on this disease. There are so many different phases and stages of catarrh that one hardly knows when he has it. A great many people think they are suffering from something else and have tried many medicines in vain, when if they could realize that it is catarrh and take Pe-ru-na for it they would improve promptly and soon recover entirely. There are no substitutes. Let no one persuade you there are other catarrh remedies just as good.

Mrs. Col. Hamilton.

REVENUE FROM WAR TAX.

The People Pay the Piper While the Hanna Syndicates Dance Their Imperial Jig.

The treasury bureau of statistics reports that the receipts from the war revenue act from June 13, 1898, to the end of the year, or for a little more than 6½ months, amounted to $54,362,122.59. This is exclusive of $763,185.06 additional taxes collected on articles "relating to tobacco manufactured, imported and removed from factory or custom house, act of June 13, 1898," and of additional collections on fermented liquors stored in warehouse amounting to $161,524.60. It is also exclusive of the duty on tea imposed by the war revenue act, which probably produced not far from $4,500,000.

About $59,000,000 may be stated as the total yield properly due to the law for the period named. This is at the rate of $9,000,000 per month, or $108,000,000 a year, in round figures. This is a goodly sum, yet Mr. Cannon has warned his party associates that it will not suffice and he has given the figures which go to show that in spite of this large increase of revenue there will be a deficit of fully $100,000,000 during the fiscal year beginning with next July, and that as soon as the proceeds of the war loan are exhausted it will be necessary either to borrow money or to increase the taxes again to cover the deficit. This is what the Chronicle predicted before congress met last December and when people were taking for granted that taxes were going to be reduced and telling their representatives what taxes they would prefer to have abolished first.

Documentary and proprietary stamps are the principal source of revenue under the act of June 13, 1898, the receipts from this source having been about $22,350,000 during the 6½ months. The extra barrel tax on beer comes next as a revenue yielder, having produced about $18,100,000. From these two sources came $40,450,000 of the increase $54,360,000 from internal taxes, or over 74 per cent. of the whole. The additional taxes on tobacco in its various forms came next as revenue producers, having yielded nearly $9,000,000. Special taxes follow, with a yield of $4,500,000.

The tax on legacies was hardly worth collecting, having produced only $134,899.63. The only tax that yielded less was that on mixed flour—$5,189.95. But that tax was not intended to produce revenue. It was intended to protect the American stomach by preventing the adulteration of flour. To judge from some of the developments in the beef inquiry it would seem that the American stomach needs protection and better protection than is afforded by existing inspection laws.

Such of the figures as relate strictly to revenue taxes teach the same old lesson, that the masses of the people supply the money with which to pay the big bills for war, for conquest, for the enrichment of a few syndicates at home or in a lot of conquered provinces. The stamp taxes are paid by the great business public and the beer, tobacco and "special" taxes and the tea duty are paid by the still broader public—the great mass of the people, including almost every man who works for wages. And the taxes which in some special manner fall upon wealth—the taxes on gross receipts and legacies—amount to no more than $415,437.38, or much less than one per cent. of the total. The returns show who pays the piper while the Hanna syndicates dance their imperial jig and the generals and admirals engage in a scramble for glory and promotion which is anything but a pleasing spectacle to set before the nations of the earth.—Chicago Chronicle.

ELECTIONS NEXT FALL.

Present Indications Point to Democratic Gains in Some Important States.

The important state elections of 1899 will occur in Ohio, Iowa, Kentucky and Maryland; and in each of these states the new national issues growing out of the war will obscure to a considerable extent state or local questions.

Ohio is, of course, naturally a republican state, but the offensive prominence of Mark Hanna, President McKinley's manager and financier, is extremely distasteful to a great body of self-respecting republicans. With a strong and popular democratic nomination for governor, it is not impossible that the president's own state might be won by the democracy. The narrow republican margin in the legislature in which Mark Hanna's senatorship was the issue, and the unsavory scandals connected therewith, show conclusively that, with Hanna running things, republican success in Ohio is not a foregone conclusion.

Iowa will unquestionably go republican; Kentucky, while it will be fiercely contested, will almost certainly go democratic. In Maryland there will be a battle royal, but, although the state has for the past few years gone republican, it is naturally democratic, and surface signs point to its redemption.

Some forecasts of the results of the great presidential struggle of next year can be made after the votes have been counted in the important states which vote this year. There will be, however, no test in the great Empire state in 1899.—Albany Argus.

——The condition of the national treasury is giving the republican managers more anxiety than the condition of the currency. Billion-dollar congresses leave a trail of trouble for the treasury officials which they would be glad to avoid if they could. But reckless extravagance in appropriations brings its burdens, and in the present instance it is a certain deficiency estimated at from $100,000,000 to $160,000,000. How to meet it is the question now worrying Secretary Gage and congressional financiers.—Denver News.

AGGRAVATING OBSTINACY.

The Soldiers Insist on Telling the Truth About the Subsidized Beef.

The conduct of the officers and soldiers of our Cuban war army in regard to the question of bad beef must be extremely annoying to McKinley, Alger and Eagan. At every opportunity they have persisted in saying that the beef which they got in the field was so vile that burial was the only disposition possible to be made of it. When the court of inquiry was sitting in Washington some very nice canned beef was opened and served up in various forms for the soldiers to taste. They tasted, and when asked to say which variety was like what they had in the field they all said none of it was like what they had. They went on the witness stand and swore that what they had in the field was simply loathsome. Then the court went to Chicago and made an inspection of the canning business, being shown how carefully the beef was canned and how nice it tasted. But more obstinate soldiers went on the stand and said that what they received in the field was not nice, that it not only smelled to heaven, but had maggots in it. Then the court adjourned to Omaha and inspected the canning processes there, finding them agreeable in every way, and the beef itself most delightful eating. Then they called some more soldiers, and these said the same things about the beef they had been supplied with by Eagan and Alger that all the other soldiers had said. The Omaha canning methods might be perfect, but the kind of canned beef turned out was not the kind that reached the soldiers in the field. Did anybody ever see such irritating perversity? The president ought to rebuke them in a special proclamation.—N. Y. Post.

PROTECTION AND TRUSTS.

Monopolies Have Multiplied and Flourished Under Republican Rule.

Trusts and protection are yokefellows. They pull together and advance the prosperity of the money power.

Not so very long ago McKinley was talking about protecting the "infant industry" of manufacturing tin plate.

Now the tin plate trust is one of the most oppressive of corporations. Tin plate is difficult to obtain because it is protected by the tariff and production has been curtailed by the trust.

In the market reports it is stated that owing to the "short supply" tin plate is advanced in price to $4.50 a box, an increase of $1.50 a box in the last six months.

Tin plate workers are thrown out of employment, operatives are discharged, wages reduced, production cut down in order to force prices up.

If there are a million boxes of tin plate produced in this country annually this action of the trust has taxed the people of the United States just $1,500,000.

Thus the republican administration has levied an impost of $1,500,000 on the people for the express purpose of making the tin plate manufacturers rich.

There can be no foreign competition McKinley's "infant industry" is amply protected by the tariff.

What do the people think of republican remarking when in this one instance it is shown that it costs them $1,500,000 a year?

The tariff is a great thing for the trusts, and the trust managers knew this when they invested millions of dollars in campaign funds to buy votes for McKinley.—Chicago Democrat.

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

——Republicanism's Frankenstein, the trust evil, has now apparently attained such menacing proportions as to frighten even its creator.—St. Louis Republic.

——Mark Hanna is versatile. He can take care of the president, manage the Ohio campaign and superintend the syndication of Cuba at the same time. He has a three-pronged brain and an ociopodean touch.—St. Louis Republic.

——It is observed that the administration organs are not printing star-spangled editorials about Uncle Sam's glorious war in the Philippines. In fact, they are preserving an eloquent mumness on that subject.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

——A $1,000,000,000 copper trust and a $75,000,000 trust in knit goods are the latest additions to the list of monopolies that has grown so rapidly under McKinleyism. As the Scripture says: "And after that—the Judgment."—Illinois State Register.

——Instead of taking a sensible view of the beef controversy, Gen. Alger has behaved, even from his own standpoint, in a most injudicious manner. "If the beef was bad, then I am incompetent; therefore the beef must have been good"—this, or something like it, appears to have been the unpublished reasoning of the secretary.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

——The announcements of alleged wage raising in the north and northwest would be more agreeable were they free from the suspicion of being part of the Hanna-McKinley prosperity-promising programme, as were similar announcements about the time the present administration began its career of public plunder.—Richmond Dispatch.

——The party of McKinley and Hanna, since its accession to power, has studiously avoided every species of taxation that would touch the pockets of wealth, because it owes its success to this class, and has imposed the burden of sustaining the expense of government upon the small property owners, the people of moderate means and the wage-earners, who are the least able to pay taxes. The income of the rich have been allowed to pay nothing to government for the protection they receive, while tribute has been levied upon the food, raiment and shelter of the poor.—St. Louis Republic.

Days of the Horse Numbered.

The greatest electrician in the world declares that the days of the horse are numbered, and that in a short time electricity will completely supplant man's most useful animal. In 20 years, he asserts, the horse will be a curiosity. Diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood would also be a curiosity if all sufferers would take Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There would then be practically no dyspepsia, nervousness, sleeplessness, indigestion, constipation, malarial fever or ague.

Hard Man to Get At.

The manager is a hard man to see. Shut in his private office and with a well-trained boy in the ante-room, he is inaccessible to anyone whom a bad boy does not know. You cannot even get your card sent to him; the boy always says he is not in. You will get the same answer at the box office. I remember hearing an old manager once say to his office boy: "My son, if you don't learn to speak other people's lines you will not succeed in this business. I have written a part for you. Whenever anyone you don't know says: 'Is Mr. Brown in?' that's your cue to answer: 'No, sir.' I wish you to be dead letter-perfect in that line from this time on."—Scribner's.

Among the many triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the overcoming of cases of supposed barrenness. This great medicine is so well calculated to regulate every function of the generative organs that its efficiency is vouched for by multitudes of women.

SORROWS OF STERILITY

MRS. ED. WOLFORD, of Lone Tree, Iowa, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I had one child which lived only six hours. The doctor said it did not have the proper nourishment while I was carrying it. I did not feel at all well during pregnancy. In time I conceived again, and thought I would write to you for advice. Words cannot express the gratitude I feel towards you for the help that your medicine was to me during this time. I felt like a new person; did my work up to the last, and was sick only a short time. My baby weighed ten pounds. He is a fine boy, the joy of our home. He is now six weeks old and weighs sixteen pounds. Your medicine is certainly a boon in pregnancy."

MRS. FLORA COOPER, of Doyle, S. Dak., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Ever since my last child I suffered with inflammation of the womb, pains in back, left side, abdomen and groins. My head ached all the time. I could not walk across the floor without suffering intense pain. I kept getting worse, until two years ago I wrote to you for advice, and began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had not finished the first bottle before I felt better. I took four bottles, and have been strong and perfectly healthy ever since, and now have two of the nicest little girls."

THE BEST SPRING TONIC.

As winter passes away it leaves many people feeling weak, depressed and easily tired. This means that the blood needs attention and sensible people always take a tonic at this time of year. Purgatives are not the right medicine — they weaken instead of strengthening.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best tonic medicine in the world and do not act on the bowels. They stimulate the appetite, enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and make people feel bright, active and strong.

No one is better able to speak of this fact than Miss Hazel Snider, a charming young woman of Arlington, Ind. To-day she has rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes and a plump form, which prove that she is in good health. A year ago Miss Snider was very thin, her cheeks pale, eyes sunken and dull. She was troubled with nervousness and general debility. She says:

"After several months' treatment from the family physician we saw he could do no good. I was discouraged and did not know what to do. One day I read an item in a paper of the wonderful curative qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I tried the medicine, and when nearly through with the second box noticed a change for the better. After I had taken eight boxes I was cured, and have had no occasion to take any kind of medicine since. I owe much to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, probably my life, and I advise any one suffering with troubles similar to mine, to take these pills."
Miss HAZEL SNIDER.

Sold by all druggists or sent post-paid by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y., on receipt of price, 50 per box; six boxes, $2.50.

Miss Maud Cook, of Covington, was visiting her sister, Mrs. Carrie Hensley, several days last week.

Frank Voshell and Miss Essie Acra, both of this neighborhood, [illegible] ried at Bellevue last Wednesday week at two o'clock. Your scribe joins their many friends in wishing them a long and happy life.

Hathaway.

Wheat looks well.

D. H. Ryle went to the city last Monday.

W. S. White is having his tobacco prized.

W. H. Moore had a wood sawing last Wednesday.

Oats sowing and potato planting are at hand now.

Joseph Riddell and Jas. Sebree sold their tobacco to Jas. Kennedy at $6 and $5 around.

B. H. Stephens has gone into the poultry business and is building a commodious chicken house.

Mrs. James White and sons, of Woolper Heights, were visiting W. S. White and family last Sunday.

There will be a good acreage of tobacco raised in this vicinity, judging from the plant beds that have been sowed.

Gunpowder.

M. R. Tanner and wife were visiting friends in Erlanger, last Sunday.

Bob Snyder and family were visiting in the neighborhood, last Sunday.

P. M. Crigler, of Limaburg, was the guest of Uncle Joel Tanner, last Sunday.

Mrs. J. P. Snyder, who has been on the sick list for some time, is improving very slowly.

L. L. Tanner delivered his crop of tobacco to Thos. Stevenson at Erlanger, last Friday, at $6 60 per 100 lbs.

There has been but little plowing done, and the farmers have had but little opportunity to do any kind of farm work on account of the continuous wet weather.

Edward Clegg was summoned, Monday week, to attend the funeral of his father, who died at Lockland, Ohio, on the 19th inst. Mr. David Clegg was formerly a resident of this neighborhood and has a host of friends here, whose hearts are saddened on account of his departure.

Utzinger.

W. W. Gaines and wife contemplate moving to Hebron in the near future.

The wheat crop in this section looks fine and if not injured later on will be better than ever known.

Miss Lizzie Graddy and Miss Zada Gaines are visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Walton, of Home City, Ohio.

Mrs. T. G. Wills entertained a nice party of doves, Wednesday last, and Mrs. N. S. Walton, Thurday.

Thomas Stewart and daughter, Mrs. Dr. Simpson, both of Indiana, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Will Berkshire, last week.

Our enterprising neighbor, C. A. Gaines, has a stable of nice horses for sale. Parties wanting to buy horses would do well to give him a call.

Chas. E. Stephens and wife will move to Hebron, and occupy a portion of Mrs. Davis' house. Charlie will trade this summer and many are the good bargains he will give us. We wish him success.

It will be a surprise to many as it was to me to learn that there are a number of our farmers who are not done gathering corn, owing to the wet weather, which prevented their hauling over the wheat.

Francesville.

Mar 25th.—Master Stanley Graves is staying at his aunt's, Mrs. Templeton Gaines.

The residence of William H. Hayes is again vacated.

Mrs. George McGlasson is visiting her mother and sisters in Covington.

The many friends of Mr. Templeton Gaines will be glad to learn that he is able to walk around again.

The North Bend roads are in a worse condition than they have been for a long time. Mud 12 feet and still rising.

Mr. Alfred Hedges, of Florence, was visiting his nephew, Mr. Holand Goodridge. The old gentleman is in the eighties, but is as sprightly as most men at sixty.

The party at Allen Goodridges' was quite a success. The music was fine and the refreshments abundant. The gay gallants and smiling belles tripped the light fantastic until a late hour, when they all bade goodbye to the host and hostess, wishing them many happy returns of the same.

Limaburg.

Jap Beemon was in town Monday.

Legrand Utz bought a new buggy last week.

W. C. C. Rouse had a wood sawing Monday.

Jacob Rouse made 29 gallons of syrup from his camp.

Born, on the 26th inst., to Everett Dixon and wife, a fine girl.

Sunday-school will begin at Hebron church, April 2nd, at 3 o'clock p. m. Everybody is asked to attend and take part as usual.

Joe Gilbert and a brigade from the Beech Woods went down on Gunpowder, Saturday, with their fishing tackle to try their luck with the finny tribe. We did not learn the results.

The young people of the church will give a candy pulling and bazaar at the Hebron Hall, Saturday evening, April 8th. All the ladies of the church especially, and all others who will, are asked to donate some article of fancy work or otherwise, and bring or send them that evening. The candy pulling will be conducted this way: The ladies are to bring a pint of granulated sugar and make a necktie to correspond with some article of their dress and place it in an envelope; the boys buy the envelopes, then seek their partners to pull the candy. All the proceeds are to go for the purchasing of new pews for the church.

Union.

John Holsworth has moved to the George Elstuu place.

Lewis Rouse reports the loss of $25 worth of sheep this winter.

Mrs. J. W. Couuer has been suffering several weeks with rheumatism.

Rev. Davis preached Sunday morning and evening at the Presbyterian church.

Mr. Welburn Houston, of Bracken county, was the guest of Mrs. Burkitt's family, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Collins, of Crittenden, were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Lassing, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Garrison entertained a number of friends from Florence and Erlanger, Sunday.

"Uncle Sam" wants us to ask Tobe Marshall why he navigates the roads in a skiff instead of a "john boat"

B. L. Norman and sister, Ella, were pleased with Prof. Bingham's entertainment at Walton, Monday evening.

Sam Hicks has been in Union very seldom for two weeks, because he is entertaining a fine baby girl at his house.

Bristow Bros. were hauling hay into Union, one day last week, with four horses and a ton seemed to make a very good mudroad load.

John C. Bedinger, of Richwood, a popular and prosperous citizen and all round good fellow, passed through Union, Saturday evening.

The Eagle Hotel is being remodeled. Mr. Berkshire, of Florence, is doing the carpenter's work, and Henry Streightborst is doing the stone work.

Miss Nannie Burkitt has purchased a stock of millinery and will be pleased to have the ladies of Union and vicinity get her prices before buyiug elsewhere.

Geo. H. Stephensou is improving his High street property and has rented it to A. Goforth. The improvements consist of new weather boarding, four light box windows, &c.

Granville Rouse and family have evidently come to stay as citizens of our town and seem pleased. Grau has the largest woodpile in town and plenty of work for himself and boys to do, making fence.

Wm. Orr, of Big Bone, was looking after some business interests here, one day last week. Tom Judge was trying to convince us that he raised Mr. Orr, but he denied being even acquainted with Mr. Judge.

A small cyclone got to capering around the school house Tuesday evening and created a large sized panic among the pupils for a few minutes. The bell was blown off the house, shutters banged, boards flew, &c.

Mark Judge's residence was totally destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. A very small per cent. of the household goods could be saved as the fire had gotten under full headway when discovered. Only $160 insurance.

Charley Cleek and your cor. were introduced to W. M. Rachal, jr., Saturday evening. Charley said he looked the image of its mother, your cor. said he was the image of its papa, at any rate we agreed that he was a very fine boy—pretty as a peach.

Mr. Ed, what do you think of a man that proposes to take an evening stroll of two or three miles and winds up by going three miles to Frank Adam's; 1 mile to Kirb Sullivan's, 1 mile to Geo. Popham's, 1 mile to where Mr. Popham was having a wood-sawing, then introduced as a second class pugilistic "wind smasher," Robt. Flzimmon's, of Boston.

If signs count for anything we feel safe in saying that Union ought to and will furnish the next Representative for the county. Boone county is among the first of the State in wealth, intelligence and population, and its representative will have prestige and influence from these standpoints, so let him be a representative man. Union can and will put up just such a man—prosperous, capable, honest, liberal; a regular 16 to 1, J. C. S. B., W. J. B.-Chicago-platform, '96-Democrat, for good roads, better laws and stricter enforcement of what we have, &c.

Messrs. Carlisle, Riddell, Sebree, Rue, Adams and Presser Bros., of Hathaway, were delivering tobacco in Union Thursday and complained of the fearful roads to pull over. Theodore Green tells us that Hal Presser rolled up a 5 lb. cigar and started to drive 4 horses to Hathaway. The team floundered in the mud. Hal was thrown off, the cigar fell on top and mashed him clear out of sight. Mr. Jack Gibson was in town Thursday evening and reported having seen a hat, whip and other articles lying on the sea of mud as he came in, so its likely Hal went on through to China and is there today talking politics and fox hunting to the celestials on the streets of Pekin.

Friday your cor. did the "infantry act" for 7 miles south of Union to find George Smith and family in excellent health and anxious to see spring come;

J. S. Mason helping a number of his neighbors saw wood for Mr. Hubbard, who has been sick all winter; Mrs. Wallace Garrison entertaining Mrs. N. S. Bristow, Mrs. M. L. Utz and other ladies at dinner; T. A. Huey getting his garden in order for planting when dry enough; Dr. Stephenson doing the "infantry act" from Big Bone to Union and the doctor is a record breaker when it comes to walking; J. L. Huey still firm in the belief that he will never try to fatten hogs in the winter again, as it don't pay. J. L. Frazier taking locust sprouts up by the hundreds and getting tired of the job.

Tuesday evening at 2 o'clock, Mr. Ephraim Weaver quietly passed away at his home near Union, after an illness of several months. Mr. Weaver was born and raised in Boone county and was well known throughout the county. He was a remarkable man in many respects; was nearly 77 years old and had endured enough suffering to kill ten ordinary men. During the war he was beateu and left for dead by soldiers; later he was thrown from a horse and mashed his face to pieces; still later the smoke stack of Gunpowder mill fell on his head, splitting it open. Riggs' Bros., conducted the funeral to Hopeful church where Rev. Lentz held the funeral services and the remains were laid to rest.

A CARD OF THANKS.—We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to the many friends who so kindly assisted us in caring for our husband and father during his recent illness.

Mrs. Catherine Weaver.
Joseph E. Weaver.

Walton.

Miss Lora Diers is enthusiastic in praise of Grace Norman's elegant new piano.

The pupils of the common school purchased, by a penny subscription, a showy picture of the battle of Santiago. Miss Lizzie Kipp bought a frame for it, and when it was hung in the school room the other day, no prouder lot of kids could have been found in Boone county.

Mrs. Myers, principal of Walton Academy, is very proud of this year's graduating class: Misses Hattie Edwards, Julia Adams, Mary Rouse and Masters Waller Herndon, Chas. Chambers and Fleming Hedges. The class in elocution is preparing a declamatory contest to be one of the features of the commencement week.

Agricultural implements have been brisk during the week. Diers reports sale to R. B. Mullins, of Demossville, of traction engine and separator; A. Jones Binder to Carl Neumeister; a threshing machine to York & Triplet, Pendleton county, and negotiations pending for another traction engine; all of which goes to show that the prospect for a big harvest is very bright.

Walton has been thought to hold the edge on neighboring bad roads, but word comes from Verona that on last Saturday night meeting was held in the school house, as it was impossible to get to Little Bethel church, a distance of about one-third of a mile. Verona can take the cake on bad roads as far as Walton is concerned. But one thing must be credited to Verona—she is ahead of anyother precinct in Boone on her school house.

Edward Stamler has designed two handsome colonial style of houses for E. T. and Jas. M Collins, to be erected in Critteuden, this season. He has also designed an elegant mansion for C. C. Violet, of Williamstown. The three are models of taste and elegance, and would command admiration among noted structures in the suburbs of our large cities. He has several other designs to make for other parties, but he wont show them until they have been accepted.

Twelve couples, friends of C. C. Metcalfe, gave him a surprise, last Friday night by appearing at his residence in the remains of a spring wagon, which barely held together after being towed thro' the loblolly of mud and water between the Lexington and Independence 'pikes. It is only about ½ a mile in length, but it has a depth of roadbed that very amply compensates for its want of length. The driver, like John of old, drove most furiously and was torn from his perch and soused in the slush "secumdem artem," which means most beautifully. Walter is a good driver, but his avoirdupois was not sufficient to enable him to hold his seat. Notwitstanding the discomforts of the trip, they had a joyous time. C. C. Metcalfe and Edward Mann, on mandolin and guitar, educed such heavenly strains that "Soft eyes looked love to eyes that spake again, and all went merry as a marriage bell!" The enjoyment of the evening greatly outweighed the little discomfort of getting there.

Charming little Leona Rouse's 14th birthday came one day last week. The pupils of Walton Academy must have all their merrymakings on Friday nights) and a grand party was given in her honor. The little hostess made all of her guests happy, and the memory of "Leoua's Grand Party," will be long lived with them. There was a cake walk for the most graceful couple, and it terminated in a dead heat (or "tie" they called it) between Clara Diers with Geo. Grubbs for a walking mate, and Lulu Ellis with Rivolet (pronounced Reevolay) Demoisey, and the cake was divided. The following were in attendance: Grace Norman, Virginia Sawyer, Ben Sawyer, Godfrey Houston, Tom Stephens, Queen Tilman, Earl Rouse, Clifford Rouse, Mattie Rouse, Virgie Dickerson, Blanche Dickerson, Waite Cross, Kate Grubbs, George Grubbs, Kirtley Adams, Ralph Edwards, Harry Dahling, Gladys Wilson, Emerson Crisler, Estella Booth, Virgie Holder, Mamie Norman, Cynthia Myers, Amanda Ellis, Lulu Ellis, Charley Rannier, Hattie Vest, Lucille Hind, Edwin Palmer, Clifford Palmer, Anna Baker, Elanor Walsh, Louesle Green, Johnnie DeJarnett, Katie Bentz, Wesley Murphy, Myrtle Murphy, Youell Murphy, Maude Murphy, Zella Mayhew, Blanche Dyas, Watson Dyas, Blanche Stephens, Pauline Curley, Ciara Diers, Harvey Diers, Clifford Botts, Roy Stamler, George Saunders, Gilbert Metcalfe, Rivolet Demoisey, Ernest Demoisey, Mary Graham, Eddie Kipp, Lizzie Fields, Frederica Brown, Carrie Watson and brother, Leslie Jones, Mary Vernon Jones, Robert Coffman, Cleveland Hedges, Margaret Clemons, Earl Clemons, Emma Ambrose, Dannie Blackburn, Mary Plunkett, Raymond Byland, John Ingram, Tom Griffin.

Florence.

Born, on the 23d inst., to Mr. and Mrs. John Buckner, a fine girl.

C. Phipps and John Rogan were calling on friends here, Sunday.

Chas. Oelsner and family spent Sunday with his father, Henry Oelsner.

Philip Spillman, of Cincinnati, spent from Friday to Monday with friends here.

Ed and Ben Osborn were calling on their girls on Happy Holler, Saturday night.

Miss Rule Dulaney, who is attending the Covington High School, came home Friday on a visit.

Misses Nellie and Myrtle Rice, of Erlanger, were visiting their grandpareuts, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rice, of this place, Sunday.

Rev. G. W. Watkins will hold his regular monthly services at the Christian church here next Sunday morning and evening.

Chester Souther and wife, of Cincinnati, spent Friday here the guests of Mr. Souther's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Souther.

Mrs. Abel Carpenter, who fell and severely injured herself, Thursday, is getting along nicely under the skillful treatment of Dr. Moffett.

Scott Smith, of Verona, has accepted a clerkship in Robert Rouse's store. The former clerk, Andrew Price, will try his hand at farming the coming season.

Mage Conner, of Richwood, was here Saturday evening, and says he needs a good housekeeper, and, judging from appearances, we believe he will get one before long.

Leslie Lalie, of Harrison county, who has been visiting his uncle Joe Lalie, at this place, departed for his home, Saturday, and a certain young lady is very sad.

Miss Katie Grogan, who has been visiting relatives and friends, at Urbana, Ohio, for the past several weeks, has returned home, to the delight of her many friends here.

Midway.

Burl Henry, who recently lived near Midway, has moved luto Beaver.

Ed Slayback is building quite a convenient addition to his dwelling in the way of a kitchen and smoke house.

Richard Hoard, of Mudlick creek, has moved luto Beaver, occupying the house recently vacated by James Carroll.

Squire J. Sam Noell and wife, who reside at Mudlick Store, were visiting at Midway, Friday, looking after their fencing, spring farm work, etc.

Edgar Powers, who owns a tract of land here, has lately added greatly to the appearance of it by building a nice, wire fence around the entire farm.

Last Monday several of our urchins dropped their nicely baited hooks into the turbid waters of Big Bone creek and tried their luck, but the result was no good, as the little fishes refused to be caught.

W. C. Johnson and son were running their grist mill at the Springs last Friday. People are beginning to realize that corn ground to suit their stock returns a better profit than fed in the ear, hence they receive considerable corn to crack.

George M. Moore is very poorly at this writing. There is much sickness in the community at present, which our M. D's attribute, measurably, to the sudden extreme mutations of temperature, and you know, Mr. Editor, that's enough to make some one sick.

Theodore Chambers, an expert plasterer of Walton, is attending to the patent plastering prows on the newly erected residence of Joe Cleek, near Beaver Lick. Joe is hurrying the house to completion, as he is anxious to get moved in by the first day of May.

We learn that our old citizen, friend Geo. W. Sleet, has purchased a fine farm of 345 acres on the Lexington 'pike, near Crittenden, to which he will move soon. Well, old Boone loses one of her best citizens and Grant county gains one. We hope George success in his venture.

M. C. Carroll has secured the services of Robt. Newcom on his farm this year, and, already, business has begun to present an aggressive aspect. Mr. Carroll is one of our hustling farmers, and, although, handicapped this winter by sickness, he has everything moving along nicely.

Harmony Lodge of I. O O. F., at Big Bone, visited Patriot Lodge in a body, last Wednesday night. They chartered the pretty little gasoline boat, Old Kentucky Home, and donned their holiday regalia, for fun and a good time, all of which they bountifully received, for Patriot Lodge is noted for her hospitality to her Kentucky brethren.

C. A. McLaughlin, is negotiating with a celebrated, "Keeley cure" physician of Jeffersonville, Ind. The Doctor wants to lease Mc's Hotel property at the Springs for a term of years and establish a sanitarium or invalid resort of some kind, for which he thinks the place especially adapted. We hope Mc. and the Doctor will trade as it will assist merterially in buildiug up the Springs.

The mud road leading from Beaver Lick to Big Bone, has been abondoned for some time, and, only the fearless spirit of Walter Brown, our heroic mail carrier, has dared to brave its dangers during the past week. If there is one thing above all others, for which Boone county stands preeminent, it is her pertinacious disposition to cling to her ancient, rugged creek beds, politely termed roads. The wealth which has been squandered in its preservation during the past quarter of a century, would have made a 'pike of which the county might have been proud.

Hume Store.

Very little spring work has been done in this vicinity.—Miss Nell Hume spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mary Houston.—Joe Noell entertained a number of friends with a musical, Saturday night.—Miss Jessie Records spent Saturday night with Miss Kittie Macrander.—Born, to Edgar Powers and wife, on the 21st inst., a fine girl.

No oats sowed yet.

The spring delivery of fruit trees is now on.

The sheriff is summoning the jurors for the April term of Circuit Court.

This is an awfully busy time with the farmers when the weather permits of out door hustling.

We have a few more advertisements this week than common, and you will profit by reading them.

Monday is county court, and on the Monday following the April term of circuit court will convene.

Sore arms are almost epidemic in Burlington. It is a good thing that vaccination is not catching.

Hereafter Rev. Harris will preach for his Burlington congregation on the third Sunday in each month instead of the fourth Sunday as heretofore.

George Gordon came to town one day last week in his buggy. He said he had considerable trouble getting here on account of there being no rudder on his buggy.

Robert Wilson has not been a citizen of this town many years, but he is coming to the front, rapidly, as a great vegetable producer, potatoes being his specialty. Last year from eight potatoes he planted he dug a bushel.

We are in receipt of a copy of the Ft. Wayne, Indiana, Journal of the 13th inst., announcing the death of Alexander McDaniel, who died on the 12th inst. Mr. McDaniel was born in this (Boone) county, February 23, 1823, and was married to Miss Isabella McFee, of Burlington, November 2, 1846. On July 4th, 1866, he married miss Mattie Hedges, of Ft. Wayne. Mr. McDaniel had eight children by his first wife and five by his second. The deceased was a leading and active member of the Baptist church, and was a justice of the peace for many years. He was an honest, upright man, and a good officer, says the notice from which we copy.

The gold excitement continues at Dillsboro, Ind. A number of men have been employed by the new mining company and work will begin April 1. An oil well will also be sunk and it is thought that oil will be struck. The hard yellow substance found on the Sheuerman farm will be manufactured into paint. Charles Sheuerman, who first discovered alleged gold on his farm, still refuses to tell the place where he found the ore unless paid $1,000 by the company. He says that if the company can not discover the gold at the end of five years, when the lease expires, he will work the mines himself. The Sheuerman farm is a solid mass of minerals. A number of cabins will be built on the farm, in which the men who are employed by the company, will live. Crates Stevenson, Vice President of the company is worth about $75,000 and will spend $50,000 to ascertain the quality and quantity of the ore found.

The Ladies' Mite Society, of the Burlington Baptist church, celebrated their 3rd anniversary at the Pastor's residence last Wednesday evening. Notwithstanding the heavy fall of rain a large number were present. A bountiful supper was served by the ladies. As it was the anniversary of the Society the law forbidding the presence of gentlemen was suspended, and Dr. J. G. Furnish, brethren D. E. Castleman, Geo. Blyth, Herbert McKim and M. J. Hoover, were present and added much to the occasion. While at supper a motion was made to have a social meeting once a month. After remarks by D. E. Castleman, Dr. Furnish and others on the cultivation of the social element, it was unanimously carried, the gentlemen only voting. The Society was organized March 18th, 1896, with eleven members. There are at present 17 members. During the 3 years of the Society's existence the following work has been accomplished: Church carpeted at an expense of about $100; windows darkened at the cost of $40; Baptist orphanage, $12; benevolence, $20 the pastor's wife a set of dishes and 27 yards of carpet, paid part also on the new communion service. At present they have $180 in bank. The above amounts have been made as follows: 130 yards rag carpet pieced, two quilts pieced and 4 quilted, 1 dozen comforts made. They have also served ice cream and supper several times along with other entertainments. On a whole the society has always worked harmoniously. They have had only one President, one Secretary and Treasurer. At the last meeting the efficient President, Mrs. Thos McKim, after three years of faithful service, resigned and Mrs. M. J. Hoover was chozen President, and Mrs. J. G. Furnish reelected Secretary and Treasurer. The prospects of the Society were never brighter. The members are very enthusiastic and hopeful. They intend to beautify the interior of the Baptist church in the near future. It is a matter of congratulation that the Society has never lost a member by death. The Society wishes to extend its thanks to the community for its liberal patronage, and especially to the Boone County Recorder for favors granted. N. C. H.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I wish to say to Bro. Utz it still remains for he or Bro. Jones to produce the language used at the District Board Meeting.

The invitation extended is still open and he may inveigh as much as he pleases in the mean time.

As to his inability to accept the invitation, his creed bars him, not mine.

All the Methodist church has to say on the question of the Sacrament is found in the eighteenth article of Religion, page 9, paragraph 18, Discipline 1898.

The breadth and liberty of the Christ spirit is there expressed in the word Christians, not Methodist. Finis.

PERSONAL MENTION.

The mite society dined at Rev. M. L. Hoover's, last Thursday.

D. E. Castleman attended the Gallatin circuit court a few days last week.

Chester Davis, of Hebron, was in town one day last week. He was traveling incog.

John H. Aylor, of Gunpowder, and Joseph Myers, of Richwood, were in town Monday.

James Gaines and wife, of the Petersburg precinct, were guests of Mrs. H. W. Blyth, Monday.

Harry Blyth came up from Petersburg, Saturday afternoon, and remained until Monday morning.

J. J. Cleek, of the Richwood neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington, last Saturday.

Mrs. T. W. Finch and daughter, Miss Fannie, returned home, last Thursday, from a visit to Williamstown.

Mrs. John Ryle, of Florence, and Mrs. H. W. Ryle, of Erlanger, were visiting in Burlington a few days last week.

James Williamson, from the mouth of Middle creek, was in town, Saturday, and closed the deal for Dr. Furnish's McVille farm.

The friends of Ad Riddell, of Francesville, are glad to hear that he has sufficiently recovered from his misfortune of a few months since, to discard his crutches.

Moses Ryle, came in from the Lick creek neighborhood, last Friday, on "foot back." Not having an opportunity to take out an accident policy before he left home, he decided to cut a stick and walk to town.

If all our subscribers were like Mr. Seth C. Foster, of Cincinnati, our business would be rendered exceedingly pleasant. He sent a check, the other day, that puts him at the head of the class, and entitles him to the RECORDER until well along in 1901.

O. N. Scott called in one day last week, and had his paper changed to Owensboro, near which city he has rented a farm. Ott is an industrious young man, and he and his good wife have a host of friends in Boone, who wish them an abundance of success in their new home.

We met Geo. Sleet, of Beaver, coming out on the train from the city, last Thursday. He had been in Covington that day closing a deal with some parties for a large slice of Grant county, near Crittenden. George said if he could have his purchase annexed to this county, he would be better pleased with it. He will have one consolation, however, he will not be so far away but that he can look over this way and distinguish the outlines of God's country.

Richwood.

Rev. Davis held services at Union, last Sunday.

C. B. Rice had a woodsawing one day last week, and Mrs. Rice, a carpet rag sewing.

Dr. Menifee rented the neat cottage formerly occupied by Uncle Cum Wilson. It begins to look as though the Doctor is about to join the order of Benedicts.

The many friends of J. T. Powers are glad to see him able to be at work in his shop again, after submitting to a painful operation, having a tumor removed from his shoulder.

J. W. Kennedy, of Union, was here Saturday evening. Mr. K. has a number of friends in this neighborhood that would like to see him represent the county in the next General Assembly.

Miss Jeanette Chambers commenced teaching a spring school at Kensington, last Mouday. Miss Chambers taught the winter school here, and gave entire satisfaction. The patrons of the neighborhood will do well in keeping up a good school for their children.

The sick are improving.—The remains of Miss Emma Moore, who died at her home in Covington, were interred in the South Fork cemetery. She was the daughter of Robert Moore.—The dirt roads are terrible.—Miss Ernestine Allphin, of Gallatin county, is visiting her grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Home.—Wheat has wintered well and is greening up nicely.

Last week while Chas. Macrander was grubbing on Paddy Dempsey's farm he dug up several pieces of Indian pottery, and on going deeper he unearthed a skeleton which measured 5 feet, 6 inches in height, and is supposed to be the skeleton of an Indian about 40 years old. The molar bones are very prominent, the teeth remarkably well preserved, the maxiliary bones wide and strong. The grave was found on a high hill, which slopes to Mudlick creek, where the old inhabitants claim is located an Indian burying ground. At the bottom of the grave was a layer of rocks, a row of rocks on edge at the sides and ends, while a layer for the top constituted the coffin, the foot of which was to the southeast. Judging by the condition of the bones they must have been buried 125 years. Since this discovery we have heard of other Indian graves that were found on high prominences between here and Big Bone Springs. On J. M. Power's farm is a large mound, from the top of which can be had a magnificent view of the surrounding country; it shows many evidences of being built by a prehistoric race. By these mounds and burying places being on a direct line to the Springs, and to the nearest point to the Ohio river, we conclude that this was the route the Indians of Ohio and Indiana took on their hunting expeditions to the interior of this State, and that those who died on the way were buried along this line. But this is mere conjecture.

At Cape Grisnez, on the French coast of the British channel, a new light house has been erected. The light is of 1,500,000 candle power at ordinary times, but of 3,000,000 candle power in thick weather, and can be seen 48 miles off on a clear night. It sends five successive white flashes instead of the three white, followed by a red of the old light.

A French physician recently reported to the Academie des Sciences the result of his experiments on blind children. Among 204 he found four boys and five girls who were able to recognize the Roentgen rays. Some saw the X, cathodic and flourescent rays, others only the cathodic and X rays, and one described them as being of a reddish color.

A handless and faceless clock is the most recent invention. This weird time piece literally "tells" the hour, for on being pressed it actually proclaims the time in sonorous tones. It can also be set, like an alarm for those who wish to be roused at a certain hour, or it can be made to shout throughout the night, like the old watchman, as each hour flies.

Adm. Schley, Adm. Sampson and Gen. Shafter were born and raised upon farms. Adm. Dewey was born and raised in a Vermont village, where his father was a physician. Gen. Schley's ancestral home is a beautiful old plantation near Frederick, Md., which still belongs to his family.

Dr. Cabell Whitehead, at present assayer of the United States mint, has accepted from the Turkish government a position which will virtually make him director general of industries in the sultan's domains. The general management of these will form part of Dr. Whitehead's duties.

A French court has just made a decision that establishes the point in France that when a bicyclist is attacked by a dog, and in attempting to drive it off meets with injury; the owner of the dog is liable. The plaintiff in the case lost his balance in chastising the dog that pursued him, fell off, hurt his left wrist and smashed a valuable cigarette case that he was carrying in his pocket. He claimed damages of $100, and $40 was awarded to him.

The steamer Alameda brings news of the finding of a gold nugget in western Australia weighing. 20¾ pounds avoirdupois. The strike was made early in February by the McFie brothers and a man named Parkes, about a mile from Marble Bar, in the Pilbarra gold field. The massive slug, together with over 200 ounces of smaller size, was uncovered just two miles north of where the Pantomime nugget, weighing 34 ounces, was found by a man named Boyle nine years ago.

A Japanese paper says that a soldier of gigantic statute and enormous strength recently had the honor of being presented to the emperor. He is Private Yamashita, of the 3d regiment of Nagoya field artillery. He enlisted in December last, and is now 22 years of age. His muscular strength is so great that he can carry a field piece on his shoulders and climb up a mountain when horses are not available. Yamashita regularly receives two men's rations, and his uniforms are made to order.

Investigations by the division of soils of the department of agriculture into the alkali waste lands of the Yellowstone valley, particularly in Montana, develop the fact that great tracts may be saved by underdrainage. The damage is due principally to excess of water used in irrigation and the resultant accumulation of salts. It is urged by the division officers that the land be saved from utter annihilation by underdrainage, which, though expensive, is sure to be a paying investment.

The Vienna Reichswehr states that, although the secret has hitherto been well kept, the "M 1888" rifle, which has until now been in use in the German army, is being rapidly replaced by a new rifle of improved type. The new weapon is of somewhat smaller caliber, is slightly lighter, and, being easier to handle, can be fired more rapidly than the rifle at present in use. The whold German army is expected to be armed with the new rifle, which surpasses any at present in service in Europe, by the end of this year.

Mr. Choate desires to maintain the social prominence that was inaugurated by Mr. Hay, and will make his mansion the scene of many social functions during his stay in London.

LAST HOUR OF CHRIST

Lessons of Comfort in the Scenes Found by Dr. Talmage.

Heaven's Brightest Crowns Shall Adorn the Brows of Those Who Bear Life's Burdens with Christian Fortitude.

From the pathetic scene of Christ's last hour of suffering Dr. Talmadge in this sermon draws lessons of comfort for people in trouble; text, John 19:30: "When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar."

The brigands of Jerusalem had done their work. It was almost sundown, and Jesus was dying. Persons in crucifixion often lingered on from day to day, crying, begging, cursing, but Christ had been exhausted by years of maltreatment. Pillowless, poorly fed, flogged, as bent over and tied to a low post his bare back was inflamed with the scourges intersticed with pieces of lead and bone, and now for whole hours the weight of his body hung on delicate tendons, and, according to custom, a violent stroke under the armpits had been given by the executioner. Dizzy, nauseated, feverish, a world of agony is compressed in the two words: "I thirst!" Oh, skies of Judea, let a drop of rain strike on His burning tongue! Oh, world, with rolling rivers and sparkling lakes and spraying fountains, give Jesus something to drink! If there be any pity in earth or Heaven or hell, let it now be demonstrated in behalf of this royal sufferer.

The wealthy women of Jerusalem used to have a fund of money with which they provided wine for those people who died in crucifixion—a powerful opiate to deaden the pain—but Christ would not take it. He wanted to die sober, and so he refused the wine. But afterward they go to a cup of vinegar and soak a sponge and put it on a stick of hyssop and then press it against the hot lips of Christ. You say the wine was an anaesthetic and intended to relieve or deaden the pain. But the vinegar was an insult.

In some lives the saccharine seems to predominate. Life is sunshine on a bank of flowers. A thousand hands to clap approval. In December or in January, looking across their table, they see all their family present. Health rubicund, skies flamboyant, days resilient. But in a great many cases there are not so many sugars as acids. The annoyances and the vexations, and the disappointments of life overpower the sucerisses. There is a gravel in almost every shoe. An Arabian legend says that there was a worm in Solomon's staff gnawing its strength away, and there is a weak spot in every earthly support that a man leans on. King George of England forgot all the grandeurs of his throne because one day in an interview Beau Brummel called him by his first name and addressed him as a servant, crying: "George, ring the bell!" Miss Langdon, honored all the world over for her poetic genius, is so worried over the evil reports set afloat regarding her that she is found dead with an empty bottle of prussic acid in her hand. Goldsmith said that his life was a wretched being, and that all that want and contempt could bring to it had been brought, and cries out: "What, then, is there formidable in a jail?" Correggio's fine painting is hung up for a tavern sign. Hogarth cannot sell his best painting except through a raffle. Andrea del Sarto makes the great fresco in the Church of the Annunciata at Florence and gets for pay a sack of corn, and there are annoyances and vexations in high places as well as in low places, showing that in a great many lives are the sours greater than the sweets. "When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar."

It is absurd to suppose that a man who has always been well can sympathize with those who are sick, or that one who has always been honored can appreciate the sorrow of those who are despised, or that one who has been born to a great fortune can understand the distress and the straits of those who are destitute. The fact that Christ Himself took the vinegar makes Him able to sympathize to-day and forever with all those whose cup is filled with the sharp acids of this life. He took the vinegar!

In the first place, there was the sourness of betrayal. The treachery of Judas hurt Christ's feelings more than all the friendship of His disciples did Him good. You have had many friends, but there was one friend upon whom you put special stress. You feasted him. You loaned him money. You befriended him in the dark passes of life, when he especially needed a friend. Afterward, he turned upon you, and he took advantage of your former intimacies. He wrote against you. He talked against you. He mieroscopied your faults. He flung contempt at you, when you ought to have received nothing but gratitude. At first you could not sleep at night. Then you went about with a sense of having been stung. That difficulty will never be healed, for though mutual friends may arbitrate in the matter until you shall shake hands, the old cordiality will never come back. Now I commend to all such the sympathy of a betrayed Christ. Why, they sold Him for less than our $20! They sold forsook Him and fled. They cut Him to the quick. He drank that cup to the dregs. He took the vinegar.

There is also the sourness of pain. There are some of you who have not seen a well day for many years. By keeping out of drafts, and by carefully studying dietetics, you continue to this time, but, oh, the the headaches, and the side aches, and the backaches, and the heartaches which have been your accompaniment all the way through! You have struggled under a heavy mortgage of physical disabilities, and instead of the placidity that once characterized you, it is now only with great effort that you keep away from irritability and sharp retort. Difficulties of respiration, of digestion, of locomotion, make up the great obstacle in your life, and you tug and sweat along the pathway and wonder when the exhaustion will end. My friends, the brightest crowns in Heaven will not be given to those who, in stirrups, dashed to the cavalry charge, while the general applauded, and the sound of clashing sabers rang through the land, but the brightest crowns in Heaven, I believe, will be given to those who trudged on amid chronic ailments which unnerved their strength, yet all the time maintaining their faith in God. It is comparatively easy to fight in a regiment of a thousand men, charging up the parapets to the sound of martial music, but it is not so easy to endure when no one but the nurse and the doctor are the witnesses of the Christian fortitude. Besides that, you never had any pains worse than Christ's. The sharpness that stung through His brain, through His hands, through His feet, through His heart, were as great as yours certainly. He was as sick and as weary. Not a nerve or muscle or ligament escaped. All the pangs of all the nations of all the ages compressed into one sour cup. He took the vinegar!

There is also the sourness of poverty. Your income does not meet your outgoings, and that always gives an honest man anxiety. There is no sign of destitution about you—pleasant appearance and a cheerful home for you—but God only knows what time you have had to manage your private finances. Just as the bills run up the wages seem to run down. You may say nothing, but life to you is a hard push, and when you sit down with your wife and talk over the expenses you both rise up discouraged. You abridge here, and you abridge there, and you get things snug for smooth sailing, and, lo, suddenly there is a large doctor's bill to pay, or you have lost your pocketbook, or some debtor has failed, and you are thrown ahearn end. Well, brother, you are in glorious company. Christ owned not the house in which He stopped or the colt on which He rode or the boat in which He sailed. He lived in a borrowed house; He was buried in a borrowed grave. Exposed to all kinds of weather, yet He had only one suit of clothes. He breakfasted in the morning, and no one could possibly tell where He could get anything to eat before night. He would have been pronounced a financial failure. He had to perform a miracle to get money to pay a tax bill. Not a dollar did He own. Privation of domesticity, privation of nutritious food, privation of a comfortable couch on which to sleep, privation of all worldly resources! The kings of the earth had chased chalices out of which to drink, but Christ had nothing but a plain cup set before Him, and it was very sharp, and it was very sour. He took the vinegar.

There were years that passed along before your family circle was invaded by death, but the moment the charmed circle was broken everything seemed to dissolve. Hardly have you put the black apparel in the wardrobe before you have again to take it out. Great and rapid changes in your family record. You got the house and rejoiced in it, but the charm was gone as soon as the crape hung on the doorbell. The one upon whom you most depended was taken away from you. A cold marble slab lies on your heart to-day. Once, as the children romped through the house, you put your hand over your aching head and said: "Oh, if I could only have it still!" Oh, it is too still now! You lost your patience when the tops and the strings and the shells were left amid floor, but, oh, you would be willing to have the trinkets scattered all over the floor again if they were scattered by the same hands.

With what a ruthless plowshare bereavement rips up the heart! But Jesus knows all about that. You cannot tell Him anything new in regard to bereavement. He had only a few friends, and when He lost one it brought tears to His eyes. Lazarus had often entertained Him at his home. Now Lazarus is dead and buried, and Christ breaks down with emotion, the convulsion of grief shnddering through all the ages of bereavement. Christ knows what it is to go through the house missing a familiar intimate. Christ knows what it is to see an unoccupied place at the table. Were there not four of them—Mary and Martha and Christ and Lazarus? Four of them. But where is Lazarus? Lonely and afflicted Christ, His great, loving eyes filled with tears! Oh, yes, yes! He knows all about loneliness and the heartbreak. He took the vinegar!

Then there is the sourness of the death hour. Whatever else we may escape, that acid sponge will be pressed to our lips. I sometimes have a curiosity to know how I will behave when I come to die. Whether I will be calm or excited, whether I will be filled with reminiscence or with anticipation, I cannot say. But come to the point I must and you must. An officer from the future world will knock at the door of our hearts and serve on us the writ of ejectment, and we will have to surrender. And we will wake up after these autumnal and wintry and vernal and summery glories have vanished from our vision. We will wake up into a realm which has only one season and that the season of everlasting love.

But you say: "I don't want to break out from my present associations. It is so chilly and so damp to go down the stairs of that vault. I don't want anything drawn so tightly over my eyes. If there were only some way of breaking through the partition between worlds without tearing this body all to shreds! I wonder if the surgeons and the doctors cannot compound a mixture by which this body and soul can all the time be kept together? Is there no escape from this separation?" None, absolutely none. A great many men tumble through the gates of the future, as it were, and we do not know where they have gone, and they add gloom and mystery to the passage, but Jesus Christ so mightily stormed the gates of that future world that they have never since been closely shut. Christ knows what it is to leave this world, of the beauty of which He was more appreciative than we ever could be. He knows the exquisiteness of the phosphorescence of the sea. He trod it. He knows the glories of the midnight heavens, for they were the spangled canopy of His wilderness pillow. He knows about the lilies. He twisted them into His sermon. He knows about the fowls of the air. They whirred their way through His discourse. He knows about the sorrows of leaving this beautiful world. Not a taper was kindled in the darkness. He died physicianless. He died in cold sweat and dizziness and hemorrhage and agony, that have put Him in sympathy with all the dying. He goes through Christendom, and He gathers up the stags out of all the death pillows, and He puts them under His own neck and head. He gathers on His own tongue the burning thirsts of many generations. The sponge is soaked in the sorrow of all those who have died in their beds, as well as soaked in the sorrows of all those who perished in icy or fiery martyrdom. While Heaven was pitying, and earth was mocking, and hell was deriding, He took the vinegar.

To all those to whom life has been an acerbity—a dose they could not swallow, a draft that set their teeth on edge and a rasping—I preach the omnipotent sympathy of Jesus Christ. The sister of Herschel, the astronomer, used to spend much of her time polishing the telescopes through which he brought the distant worlds nigh, and it is my ambition now this hour to clear the lens of your spiritual vision, so that, looking through the dark night of your earthly troubles, you may behold the glorious constellation of a Saviour's mercy and a Saviour's love. Oh, my friends, do not try to carry all your ills alone. Do not put your poor shoulder under the Apennines, when the Almighty Christ is ready to lift up all your burdens. When you have a trouble of any kind you rush this way and that way, and you wonder what this man will say about it, and you try this prescription and that prescription and the other prescription. Oh, why do you not go straight to the Heart of Christ, knowing that for our own sinning and suffering race He took the vinegar?

There was a vessel that had been tossed of the seas for a great many weeks and been disabled, and the supply of water gave out, and the crew were dying of thirst. After many days they saw a sail against the sky. They signaled it. When the vessel came nearer the people on the suffering ship cried to the captain of the other vessel: "Send us some water. We are dying for lack of water." And the captain of the vessel that was hailed responded: "Dip your buckets where you are. You are in the month of the Amazon, and there are scores of miles of fresh water all around about you and hundreds of feet deep." And then they dropped their buckets over the side of the vessel and brought up the clear, bright, fresh water and put out the fire of their thirst. So I hail you to-day, after a long and perilous voyage, thirsting for comfort and thirsting for eternal life, and I ask you what is the use of going in that death-struck state while all around you is the deep, clear, wide, sparkling flood of God's sympathetic mercy. Oh, dip your buckets and drink and live forever. "Whosoever will, let him come and take of the water of life freely."

Yet there are people who refuse this Divine sympathy, and they try to fight their own battles, and drink their own vinegar, and carry their own burdens, and their life, instead of being a triumphal march from victory to victory will be a hobbling on from defeat to defeat, until they make a final surrender to retributive disaster. Oh, I wish I could to-day gather up in my arms all the woes of men and women, all their heartaches, all their disappointments, all their chagrins, and just take them right to the feet of a sympathizing Jesus. He took the vinegar Nana Sahib, after he had lost his last battle in India, fell back into the jungles of Iheri—jungles so full of malaria that no mortal can live there. He carried with him also a ruby of great luster and of great value. He died in those jungles. His body was never found, and the ruby has never yet been recovered. And I fear that to-day there are some who will fall back from this subject into the sickening, killing jungles of their sin, carrying a gem of infinite value—a priceless soul—to be lost forever. Oh, that that ruby might flash in the eternal coronation! But, no! There are some, I fear, who run away from this offered mercy and comfort and Divine sympathy, notwithstanding that Christ, for all who would accept His grace, trudged the long way, and suffered the lacerating thongs, and received in His face the expectorations of the filthy mob, and for the guilty, and the discouraged, and the discomforted of the race, took the vinegar. May God Almighty break the infatuation and lead you out into the strong hope, and the good cheer, and the glorious sunshine of this triumphant Gospel!

Curbing Talk Over Telephones.

People who have a grudge against telephone companies in general will be pleased to know that the women of New South Wales refused to be ground down by any soulless corporation. They determined to get the worth of the telephone rent, no matter how much time it took, so they conversed over the wires by the hour until the central office people were driven to distraction. Things got to such a point that the postmaster-general in Sydney was appealed to, and he issued an order forbidding loquacious women from monopolizing a telephone for more than ten minutes at a time.

FOUR BODIES RECOVERED.

The Record of the Windsor Hotel Fire is Now Twenty-Three Dead and Forty or More Missing.

New York, March 25.—Four more bodies were recovered from the ruins of the Windsor hotel Thursday. The record, as it now stands, is 23 dead, 40 or more missing, and a large collection of small bones. The injured in hospitals and other places are recovering. Anxiety on the part of friends of persons who have been reported as missing has increased to a certainty almost that they perished in the fire.

From the condition of the bodies so far recovered there is but little hope that they or any of the bodies that be found hereafter can be identified.

Body No. 13 was taken to the morgue Friday night and placed in a case by itself. It is in about the same condition as the other bodies recovered. It is simply a charred and blackened trunk with parts of the arms, legs and skull attached.

The work of removing the debris is proceeding slowly, so slowly that the residents and merchants in the district within the fire lines, extending a block in either direction from the scene of the fire, are making complaint. Business is blockaded in the district. President Murphy, of the health board, Friday wrote to the contractor ordering him peremptorily to hasten the work of removal.

Among the articles found Friday night were a lady's gold watch marked "I. W.," a metal top of a purse marked "N. P. J.," and some wearing apparel marked "H. H. S."

An elderly woman at the morgue Friday made a partial identification of the clothing found on body No. 2, and stated that she felt sure they belonged to Julia Katen, an employe of the hotel.

GARMENT WORKERS' STRIKE.

Six Thousand of Them Ordered Out in Philadelphia—Purpose is to Secure Abolition of Sub-Contracting.

Philadelphia, March 25.—The executive committee of the Garment Workers' union Friday night ordered a strike of the 6,000 garment workers of this city, beginning Saturday at noon. The purpose of the strike is principally to secure the abolition of sub-contracting, as well as higher wages and increased rates for government work. About 2,000 of the strikers are women. A striking committee was appointed Friday night to devise plans to conduct the strike and to station pickets near the shops to induce any non-union or new workers from going to work.

It is expected that the strike will affect nearly every establishment in the city. The strikers claim that a more opportune time for a strike could not be chosen, as there is a rush of work in all directions and the contractors will have difficulty in getting new hands.

EX-GOV. PIERPONT IS DEAD.

He Expired at the Residence of His Daughter in Pittsburgh After an Illness of Several Days—The Funeral.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 25.—Hon. Francis Harrison Pierpont, the first governor of West Virginia, died Friday night in this city at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Sivlter, after an illness of several days. The ex-governor had been in a feeble physical state for several months by reason of his advanced age—86 years—but not until Thursday evening just after dinner, was his condition considered serious. He was then seized with a fainting spell, from which his physicians said he could not recover. He was surrounded all day Friday by the remaining members of his family and at about 9 p.m. passed peacefully away.

Funeral services will be held at his daughter's residence on Sunday at 4 p. m., after which the remains will be taken to Fairmont, W. Va., for interment on Monday.

Fine Coal in Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., March 25.—The United States government has made tests of coal found on the Alaskan peninsula and it is proposed to establish a coaling station on one of the outer Aleutian islands for the use of vessels bound from the United States to Manila. The route from Seattle direct to Manila is more than 1,000 miles shorter than via Honolulu.

McCoy Awarded the Decision.

San Francisco, March 25.—With a superiority in cleverness, quickness and ring generalship, which was apparent from the first round, "Kid" McCoy was very properly awarded the decision over Joe Choynski at the end of the 20th round before the National Athletic club in Mechanics' pavilion Friday night.

County Judge Commits Murder.

Dallas, Tex., March 25.—At Franklin, the county seat of Robertson county, W. A. Gray, a prominent attorney and a former superintendent of public instruction, was shot dead on the pavement in front of his home by County Judge O. D. Cannon. The cause of the killing is not known, but sensational domestic matters are broadly rumored. The public feeling over the killing became so intense that officers, to whom Judge Cannon had surrendered, hurried him away to Calvert to avert mob violence.

ONE ACCOMPLISHMENT.

A Finland Maiden Who Had One Qualification for the Position of Cook.

The servant girl question is even more difficult in small western cities than it is in New York. There no lady ventures to ask a reference, but contents herself with a verbal examination of her applicant's capabilities.

There was an avalanche of Swedes and Finlanders in a Pacific slope town last winter, and one wild-haired damsel presented herself as a candidate for a $20-a-month position as cook. The prospective mistress thus interrogated her:

"Can you make good bread?"

"Brod? Naw."

"Can you make soup?"

"Soup? Naw."

"Do you understand roasting meats?"

"Meat? Naw."

"Can you broil?"

"Naw."

"Can you clean brasses?"

"Naw."

"Can you wash and iron?"

"Naw."

"Scrub?"

"Naw."

"Well, my goodness, girl! What can you do?"

The Finlander reflected. Then she answered proudly: "I can milk a reindeer!"—N. Y. World.

HARD WON VICTORIES.

All-Day Fighting Near Manila On Saturday and Sunday.

The Helena and the Army Gunboats Shelled the Town of Malabon and Country Beyond.

The Monadnock Focused All Its Batteries Upon Paranque for Two Hours—Great Damage Wrought—The Evacuation of Malabon Was a Picturesque Rout.

MANILA, March 27.—The Americans have advanced along the line of the Dagupan railroad, driving the Filipinos from Malinta and New Canayan, where there were 3,000 inhabitants. Sunday night the brigades of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis and Gen. Hale encamped in the enemy's trenches at New Canayan and that of Gen. Wheaton at Malinta.

Gen. Wheaton's brigade formed a junction with the remainder of Gen. MacArthur's division at Malinta and the two, leaving Gen. Wheaton there, marched along the railroad to New Canayan. This place was fortified and for 300 yards from it there were trenches on each side of the track. These were taken possession of by the American troops.

The movement of the Americans will be pushed in this direction.

The Filipinos, realizing that the railroad is the crucial line, have constructed row after row of trenches, running diagonally on both sides of the track at a distance of a few hundred yards apart. This work was designed most intelligently and has evidently been done under the direction of experts. It represents an enormous amount of labor. Most of the rebel positions are protected by thick earthworks, a majority of them topped with stones and provided with loopholes. Some have sheet iron roofs.

The days work of the United States troops consisted of storming the successive trenches. The Filipinos occupying them were completely hidden. The enemy poured a strong fire from every trench until they were disturbed by a flanking volley, when they would disappear into the woods and jungle, only to make a stand at the next line.

The American loss was remarkably small, seven being reported killed and 35 wounded. It is known that the Filipinos were so protected that they suffered little. No dead insurgents were found in the trenches. Forty prisoners were taken by the Americans and it is estimated that the rebels' casualties numbered 20.

The insurgents broke their guns when they were compelled to abandon them.

An exploded caisson at the railroad bridge proved a bar to the Americans.

Ten soldiers of the Oregon regiment, while searching for two of those killed earlier in the fighting, sneaked into the city in the morning and found the place in a condition of chaos. The inhabitants, seeing them, fled in a panic, thinking the American forces were in possession. The Oregonians shot several armed natives and then returned to camp.

The American forces did not occupy Malabon, but are concentrating their strength to strike Malolos. Malabon is a city of desolation. The American soldiers have been forbidden to enter the place for fear that natives may be lurking there.

The Americans Monday morning found the important town of Polo and a number of small villages west of the railroad deserted and burning. They are advancing along the railroad.

Monday the Washington volunteers, who held Pasig Sunday, had an engagement with a band of insurgents who drove in their outposts. In the fight the Filipinos lost several men.

The United States troops, under Brig. Gen. Lloyd Wheaton, captured the town of Malinta, beyond the Tuliahan river, Sunday, after a sharp fight. Col. Henry C. Egbert, of the 22d regular infantry, was killed. Prince Loewenstein, formerly aide-de-camp on the staff of Brig. Gen. Miller, at Iloilo, somehow got in front of the firing line and was shot in the side, dying almost instantly. A German, who accompanied him, was wounded.

The American casualties Sunday were much lighter than those of Saturday, the total losses thus far reported since the engagement commenced being 45 killed and 145 wounded. Gen. Wheaton entered Malinta, which is a village of huts, at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The United States gunboat Helena and other gunboats have been shelling Malabon, about a mile northwest of Caloocan for several hours.

The insurgents made a fierce resistance to the American advance up the railroad at Malinta. In addition to the fatal wounding of Col. Egbert, several men of the 22d infantry and several of the Oregon and Kansas regiments were killed.

Evidently anticipating a bombardment by the fleet, a thousand rebels vacated Malabon Sunday night, leaving a few to burn the town. Gen. Wheaton's brigade, composed of the 2d Oregon regiment and the 22d and 2d infantry stretched out along the railroad from Caloocan to the Tuliahan river, was powerless to prevent the withdrawal owing to the natural obstacles and to the strong opposition. A column of smoke at daybreak was the first intimation of the enemy's intention, but others followed at various points, all soon blending in a dense balloon-shaped cloud. The flames of the burning rice mills and large buildings could be plainly seen from Caloocan despite the strong sunlight.

By 11 o'clock in the morning the only building of importance not destroyed in the center of the town was a large stone church, but even at noon fresh fires were started among the native huts in the outskirts of Malabon, although the general exodus took place much earlier. Many of the rebels sought refuge in the suburbs of Navotas and Casag, or were driven inland by the shells of the Helena, Callao, Ningdapan and Laguna de Bay.

In the meantime Gen. Wheaton's brigade held the railroad to the river, but was unable either to repair the bridge, which had been destroyed by the enemy, or to advance, owing to the opposition and the hills on the other side.

The calculations of both Gen. Hale and Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, whose brigades constituted Gen. MacArthur's division, were much interfered with by the character of the country in front of both, and the enemy was able to take advantage of this so that the operations against Novaliches and Polo were delayed, though the right wing of the division swung out, sweeping the enemy in a northwesterly direction.

Gen. Wheaton's headquarters Saturday night was a half-mile south of the river on the railroad. The opposite bank was protected by a block house and intrenchments.

Occasionally the artillery and infantry fired across the stream. Finally the engineers moved a construction train up to the bridge, the iron frame work of which remained, and began to replace the floor.

While this was going on the 2d Oregon regiment crossed the river on the left and the 22d on the right, with four companies of the 23d infantry supporting the latter regiment. A rising clear ground stretched away a distance of half a mile to Malinta, situated on its crest.

In front of the village were strong Filipino intrenchments, but no Filipinos were to be seen. Apparently they had fled. The 22d regiment approached diagonally, with Gen. Wheaton and his staff close behind, and scouts closely observing the ground.

When the Americans were within about 300 yards of the intrenchments, the Filipinos suddenly volleyed heavily. The 22d infantry, which was holding the center, suffered considerably; but, with the Oregons on the left and the Kansans on the right, in the woods, the fighting was kept up for half an hour, the 23d infantry advancing up the slope through the thick grass under the hottest fire.

Gen. Wheaton and his staff were all the time under a rain of bullets. Col. Egbert, who was in the thickest of the fighting, was shot in the abdomen. He was placed on a stretcher and an attempt was made to carry him to the cars, but he died on the way.

It was a most affecting scene. Gen. Wheaton, baring his head, said: "You have done nobly."

Col. Egbert gasped in reply: "I must die, I am too old."

No Filipinos were found in the trenches.

Though apparently their force was much smaller than that of the Americans' they had an immense advantage in position and in opportunity to retreat.

Gen. MacArthur's advance guard, the 3d artillery and the 20th Kansas regiment, joined Gen. Wheaton's brigade shortly after Malinta was taken, approaching along the Novaliches road westerly.

After lunch Gen. MacArthur's division advanced toward Polo.

The 2d Oregon regiment encountered a thousand Filipinos west of Malinta who were retreating from Malabon. The enemy had taken up a position behind four rows of intrenchments, but was driven out after an hour's heavy firing. One Oregonian was killed and five were wounded.

The 3d artillery, acting as infantry, with two guns of the Utah artillery, and the Kansans had a sharp fight east of Malinta. The Americans had but slight losses. Five Filipinos were found dead and several were taken prisoners. Gen. MacArthur's division is advancing upon Polo along the railroad. As the bridge is destroyed and the river can not be forded the advance is temporarily checked Sunday night. In the fighting west of Malinta the Oregonians captured a Spaniard, but he denied that he was taking part in the battle. The surgeons from the fleet, and the British cruiser, Powerful, volunteered their assistance and were indefatigable in their services at the front.

MANILA, March 27.—The Helena and the army gunboats shelled Malabon and the country beyond, while the Monadnock focussed all its batteries upon Paranque for two hours for the purpose of destroying the military stores there. A great smoke was caused, but as the insurgents are in possession of the town, the results of the shelling are not obtainable. The evacuation of Malabon was a picturesque rout, thousands of men, women and children, loaded down with household goods, fleeing to the country.

The Filipinos at 9:15 a. m. Monday burned their stronghold at Malabon and their forces fled from the city in the direction of Malolos.

Gen. MacArthur's division is pushing toward Malabon. The insurgents will make their last stand probably at Malolos.

Saturday's Battle.

MANILA, March 27.—The movement of the American troops Saturday swept the insurgents back toward Malabon. Gen. Harrison Gray Otis' brigade is in front of La Loma, where there is a stretch of a mile of rough, open country. The insurgent trenches in the edge of the woods are four feet deep and furnish a good head cover. The American troops advanced on the double quick, yelling fiercely and occasionally dropping in the grass and firing by volley.

Elaborate preparations were made for the movement. Gen. Wheaton's brigade was placed in the rear and Gen. Harrison Gray Otis' and Gen. Hall's were massed behind Gen. Hale's. Under the cover of the darkness Gen. Otis' and Gen. Hale's brigades left their trenches and advanced close upon the enemy's line without being detected, Gen. Wheaton's and Gen. Hall's brigades occupying the vacated positions.

At 4 o'clock the American troops breakfasted and the Filipinos, noticing the camp fires, their buglers called them to arms.

At daylight Gen. Otis' and Gen. Hall's brigades advanced from La Loma church straight through the rebel lines, cutting the enemy's forces in two.

Upon this occasion the rebels adopted the American tactics of holding their fire until the attackers were about 1,000 yards distant. The rebels also fired lower than usual. The Americans fired volleys with terrible effect and then rushed forward cheering and carrying everything before them.

Once through, Gen. McArthur's division was swung to the left, driving the rebels away on all sides.

Gen. Wheaton's brigade, in accordance with instructions, remained in the trenches. Before joining in the movement, at noon, Gen. Wheaton's troops developed a strong opposition between Malabon and the River Tluiahan.

The brigades commanded by Gen. Harrison Gray Otis and Gen. Hale advanced on Novalichos and Polo, strongly entrenched towns.

In the meantime, Gen. Hall's brigade swept the country clear to the water works and the foothills and Singalon, capturing San Francisco del Monte and Mariquina.

The natives stood until the Americans were within 200 yards of their position and then broke and ran to the woods. About 30 of them were killed in the outskirts and 70 on the roads.

The Montana and Kansas troops met the hottest resistance in a strip from which the rebels have greatly worried the Americans recently during the night time.

Ninety minutes after the start—at 6 o'clock—the whole front for a distance of three miles to the north had been cleared. Gen. Hale's brigade had simultaneously swept in a northwesterly direction, routing the enemy and burning the town of San Francisco del Monte and a number of scattered huts.

The line was then opposite Novaleche, the artillery advancing along a good road from La Loma to Novaleche, the wagons carrying pontoons, telegraph supplies and ammunition following. The infantry moved in splendid order.

Smoke from the burning huts marked the line of the American advance. Ambulances and horse litters, led by Chinese, brought in the wounded, among whom were a few Filipinos.

The Americans, who were wounded, endured their injuries bravely, one group, which had been brought into the hospital, singing "Comrades."

The Pennsylvania troops took nine prisoners, among them a great naked captain of the Macabebee tribe and one Japanese. All the prisoners were greatly terrified, expecting to be executed immediately.

The American losses, reported up to noon Saturday, was eight men killed and about 70 men wounded.

DEATH OF COL. H. G. EGBERT.

The Gallant Officer Killed in Battle Near Manila Was a Line Officer for Nearly Forty Years.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Col. Henry C. Egbert, whom Gen. Otis reports among the killed, was born in Pennsylvania and appointed a first lieutenant in the army from civil life on September 23, 1861. He served continuously as a line officer for nearly 40 years. He was more closely identified with the 13th infantry than any other organization, having served with distinction in that regiment during the civil war. He was taken prisoner at the battle of Gettysburg but escaped and rejoined his command, and was severely wounded on June 3, 1864, in the battle of Bethesda church, Virginia. He was major of the 17th infantry from 1890 to 1893 when he became lieutenant colonel of the 6th infantry. This regiment he commanded in the Santiago campaign until disabled by a shot through the body on July 1, 1898. For his distinguished service in battle he was promoted a brigadier general of volunteers, which grade he held until December 1, 1898, when in the reduction of the volunteer army he was honorably discharged. He was promoted colonel in the regular establishment on July 1, 1898, and assigned to the 22d infantry, whose colonel, Charles A. Wikoff, was killed at San Juan hill. He joined the 22d infantry January 30, 1899, sailed with it for Manila February 1 and arrived at Manila March 4, 1899. Gen. Egbert was well known throughout the army as an officer of a high order of ability and as a man of sterling qualities. In the death of Gen. Egbert the service loses one of its best colonels.

DISASTROUS FREIGHT WRECK

Engineer and Fireman Killed, and Brakeman Fatally Injured—Cause of the Wreck a Mystery.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 27.—A freight wreck Sunday on the Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad at Jacks Run, just below the city, resulted in the death of Engineer Bracken and Fireman Lowe, the probable fatal injury of another and the complete destruction of an engine and ten freight cars. The loss to the company is about $25,000.

The cause of the wreck is a mystery. The Fort Wayne train was standing still when an extra freight on the Pennsylvania heavily laden came dashing up behind at the rate of 30 miles an hour and crashed into it. The telegraph operator and signal man both claim to have signaled the extra to stop, but no attention was paid to their warnings. Some of the trainmen think Bracken must have fallen asleep at his post.

PHYSICIANS AND NURSES.

The Employes of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Road to Be Instructed in First Principles of Surgery.

CHICAGO, March 27.—If a plan that the officers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road are now considering is adopted every employe of the company will become, in a small way, a physician and a nurse, and there will be fewer cases for the surgeon's knife. It is the intention of the managers of this road to start a systematic course of instruction in the first principles of surgery and nursing among the men engaged in the train service, a course that, when thoroughly mastered, will enable an employe to render valuable first aid to the injured. A slight knowledge of the principles of first aid, it is believed, will often mean the saving of a life.

Troops Coming Home.

RICHMOND, Va., March 27.—News has been received from Havana to the effect that the 1st battalion of Company M, of the 4th Virginia regiment, left there Saturday on the San Antonio for Savannah. Two companies leave on the 26th for Tampa, and the remaining companies leave on the 27th for Tampa, whence the Tampa contingent will take the train for Savannah.

Fatal Explosion.

NEW YORK, March 27.—A small manufactory of fireworks in Hoboken, N. J., was destroyed by an explosion Friday. One man, Nicola Anzalone, was killed; Michael Angelo, 14 years old, was fatally hurt, and Jose Angelo, father of Michael, was painfully burned about the hands and face. The money loss was small.

Killed by an Insane Woman.

WORCESTER, Mass., March 27.—Patrick Hassett was beaten over the head with an iron bar by Mrs. Thomas Cary Friday and killed. Mrs. Cary was insane. She attacked Hassett and Michael Sullivan who were sleeping together in one bed. Sullivan received severe injuries.

Equitable Building Sold.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 27. — The Equitable building, a six-story office structure, at the corner of Fourth and Jefferson streets, has been sold to John M. Atherton by Bush & Parker for $290,000 in cash.

Ninety-six Years of Age.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 27.—Robert Featherstone, the oldest man in Fayette county, is dead, aged 96. He was born at Charlotte Courthouse, Va., and came to Kentucky in 1810. He leaves a large family of children.

A BIG VICTORY NEAR MANILA.

The Enemy Driven Before Our Army With a Loss of Over 300—Our Loss 100 Killed and Wounded.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The World Saturday prints the following Manila cable under date of March 24:

"A sweeping victory over Aguinaldo's forces has just been won by the United States troops.

"The total American loss is estimated at about 100, including both the killed and wounded.

"The Filipino loss is between 300 and 400."

MANILA, March 25.—The American movement Saturday swept the insurgents back towards Malobon. The fighting was fierce.

One hundred natives were killed. The American casualties were light.

Gen. McArthur's division, supplemented by Gen. Wheaton's brigade, has captured the town of Polo.

MANILA, March 25.—The enemy are extremely active in the vicinity of Malabon in preparing defenses, evidently anticipating an attack. They keep well under cover. A small body of rebels, however, emerged from the jungle on the extreme left on Thursday and fired upon the Kansas troops in the trenches, fatally wounding Private Cohen, of Company B, and Private Muar, of Company E.

The Oregon volunteers and the 22d regulars marched to the front Friday. The 3d and 17th regiments have disembarked from the Sherman. Gen. H. G. Otis' brigade struck their tents Friday morning and an early movement is probable.

Sixteen English refugees arrived here Thursday from Dagupan, the railroad terminus, on board the steamer Saturnus. They report that the natives are friendly and the officers invariably courteous. Mr. Higgins, manager of the railroad and about a dozen unmarried men in charge of various business interests, declined to take advantage of the opportunity to leave.

Two Spanish prisoners who have escaped from Polo to the lines of the Kansas regiment report that the Filipino have concentrated their forces at Malabon and Polo. They add that only Aguinaldo's body guard is at Malolos and that the rebel leaders apparently intend to stake their fortunes on a fight at Malabon, where it was expected an engagement would take place Thursday. If defeated, it is further asserted, the rebels intend to disperse to the swamps and mountains. The rebels were putting their bolos in front, believing that the bolomen's charms would avert the bullets. The bolos of the Filipinos greatly outnumber the rifles in their hands. The rebels are further said to have admitted that they could not stand the American shells and bayonet charges.

The escaped Spaniards corroborated the stories told of food shortage among the rebels and they added that their hospitals are short of supplies.

POLICY IN THE PHILIPPINES.

The Administration Will Not Decide the Matter Until the Schurman Commission Makes Its Report.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 25.—The administration will not decide upon its permanent policy respecting the Philippines until the Schurman commission reports. It feels that its present knowledge of the islands is too indefinite as a basis for a fixed policy.

Moreover, an immediate decision is felt to be needless, since for the present the only problem is the restoration of law and order and the establishment of stable, peaceful conditions. This, and the appointment of a diplomatic representative at Madrid, are two of the most important matters remaining open. The Madrid mission will probably be raised to an embassy soon after payment of the twenty million indemnity, and a man of the highest qualifications and attainments chosen for this delicate and important post. Gen. Woodford may not be the new envoy, owing to the fact that New York already has such an undue proportion of the highest diplomatic appointments.

ON BOARD THE CHICAGO.

Hon. John Sherman Transferred From the City of Paris to the Cruiser—The Patient is Much Better.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, March 25.—Mr. John Sherman has been safely moved from the American line steamer Paris to the quarters prepared on board the United States cruiser Chicago.

Mr. Sherman rested easy during the night and awoke cheerful and prepared for the change.

The Chicago arrived here after daylight and preparations were immediately made for the transfer of Mr. Sherman from the passenger vessel to the war ship.

Will Christen the Battle Ship Missouri.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The secretary of the navy has invited Miss Marion Cockrell, daughter of Senator Cockrell, to christen the battleship Missouri to be launched at Newport News in October.

Murderer Hanged.

CHESTERTOWN, Md., March 25.—Joe Wright, colored, was hanged in the jail yard here Friday morning at 8:37. Wright killed William Newcomb, colored, November 14, 1897, in the store of Wm. Sommons, near Lynch's Station.

FILIPINO FIENDS.

They Are Using Brass-Tipped Bullets in Their Warfare.

Seven Companies of the Eighteenth Regiment Meet 400 Rebel Riflemen—Fifty of the Latter Were Killed and 100 Wounded.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—It is the understanding of the officials that within 48 hours Gen. Otis will recommence active operations against the Filipinos. By following up the proclamation of the commission in this manner the officials believe they will impress upon the Filipinos the determination of the United States to end the insurrection and the hopelessness of further resistance.

Reports received at the war department from the medical officers serving with troops in the Philippines show that Aguinaldo's army is using brass-tipped bullets. Several American soldiers have been wounded by the poisonous projectiles, and in consequence the wounds are more difficult to heal than those caused by the ordinary bullet. Of course, the authorities can do nothing to prevent the insurgents using any kind of bullets they see fit. They have no government to which an appeal can be made. Their action in this respect, officials say, is another indication of their utter unfitness for self government.

It is officially stated at the state department that the proclamation just issued by the Philippine commission is in accordance with the instructions given President Schurman and his associates.

MANILA, March 24.—Details of the fighting at Iloilo on March 16 show that 400 rebel riflemen from Pania were met by seven companies of the 18th United States infantry and a battalion of the Tennessee volunteers. As supports these troops had three two-inch Hotchkiss guns under Gen. Miller, north of Jaro, across the river.

The Americans were met with a heavy fire. One man was killed and 15 were wounded of the 18th regiment, and there were several cases of sunstroke. Gen. Miller estimates that 50 rebels were killed and 100 wounded.

LYNCHING IN MISSISSIPPI.

Three Negroes Taken From Officers by an Armed Mob in Yazoo City and Their Bodies Riddled With Bullets.

JACKSON, Mich., March 24.—Three Negroes were taken from an officer of the law and lynched by an armed mob near Silver City, in Yazoo county, last Saturday morning. After being shot to death, the bodies of the victims were weighted with bundles of cotton bale ties and thrown into the Yazoo river. The Negroes were Minor Wilson, C. C. Reed and Willis Boyd. They were the ringleaders of the Negroes in a race encounter on the Midnight plantation early last week. They were arrested and taken to Yazoo City and put in jail. The offense with which they were charged having been committed in Sharkey county, the Sharkey authorities were notified and last Friday evening Deputy Constable Sylvester arrived and the prisoners turned over to him. The constable boarded the steamer Rescue with the Negroes Saturday morning and reached Silver City with them. All that is further known is that the Negroes fell into the hands of the mob at this point, were shot to death and thrown into the river as above stated. The feeling against these Negroes had been very bitter on account of a disturbance at the Midnight plantation last week in which they, with two other comrades, had fired upon two whites on the public road. A horse belonging to one of the white men was wounded but the men were not harmed.

THE CARLISTS PERPLEXED.

The Pretender Does Not Wish His Adherents to Be Represented Officially in the Next Cortes.

LONDON, March 24.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says that Don Carlos, the pretender, has perplexed his adherents by a dispatch in which he allows them to go to the polls at the forthcoming parliamentary elections, if they so desire, but explains that he does not wish the Carlists to be represented officially in the next cortes. The general opinion in the political world, says the correspondent, is that the dissensions in the Carlist ranks and the irresolution of the pretender really deprive the party of all importance.

Another Smallpox Case at Roseville.

ZANESVILLE, O., March 23.—One new case of smallpox developed at Roseville Tuesday. Miss Nettie Longstreth has the disease in a mild form.

Digby Bell Bankrupt.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Digby Bell, the actor, filed a petition in bankruptcy Thursday, in which he asks to be relieved of liabilities aggregating $37,000. He states that he has no assets except an interest in a judgment for $228 given recently in New York.

The Dixie Sails for Cuba.

NEW YORK, March 4.—The United States steamer Dixie sailed Thursday for Casildo, near Trinidad, Cuba, to embark a Tennessee regiment and convey it to Savannah.

STATE NEWS.

The Court of Appeals is taking a two weeks' vacation.

Rev. John G. Pond, 87, oldest citizen of Perryville, is dead.

Three tramps at Paducah died from drinking wood alcohol.

The Kenton county fiscal court cut the salary of the county treasurer from $1,000 to $700.

The Render Baptist Church at Render, Ohio county, will be dedicated on the fifth Sunday in April.

Rolla Bailey fell on a circular saw at Frenchburg, and the flesh was cut from his leg from the hip to the ankle.

The State Missionary Convention of the Christian church will hold a three days' session at Shelbyville, commencing August 7.

The spring term of the Pulaski county circuit court is in session with 240 criminal, 71 common law and 260 equity cases on the docket.

A mixed jury in Shelby county gave a negro law-breaker the limit of the law. The blacks were disposed to be harder on him than the whites.

Two female evangelists are stirring up the sinners at Barbourville. They are sanctificationists and are said to be converting many to a like faith.

Acting Governor Worthington has issued a proclamation fixing May 3 for the dedication of the Kentucky monument in Chickamauga National Park.

In the Jessamine Circuit Court the Standard Oil Company was fined $100 on the charge of peddling without license. The case will be taken to the Court of Appeals.

Judge J. P. Bailey has been notified by the State Board of Equalization that 24 per cent. must be added to the assessed value of lands and personal property of Lincoln county.

Rev. John Simpler, of near Vanceburg, went violently insane, and attempted to kill his wife. He espoused the Mormon cause about a year ago, and was soon to have left Vanceburg with a colony.

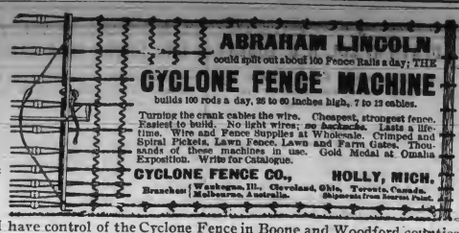
The authorities of Montgomery county are protecting the free pikes in that county by imposing heavy fines upon anyone caught overloading wagons and cutting the pikes to pieces. A load of 7,000 to 8,000 pounds on a wagon with only 2 to 2½ inch tires is destruction to a pike when it is wet and soft.

A row is on between the Board of Commissioners of the Lakeland Asylum and Steward Hazelip of that institution, which will result in an investigation of the differences between the officers. The row grows out of the placing of insurance on the buildings of the asylum. Hazelip claims that the Board of Commissioners authorized him to place insurance with companies by which he could save the State a thousand dollars; that he was setting about doing so when the board proceeded to take the matter in its own hands and place the insurance.

While Samuel Dent was engaged in cutting up a large tree he had felled near the Marshall county line, he discovered in a cyst in the tree a lot of bones, which were brought to town and pronounced as human bones by physicians. Portions of a skull and hip-bones are very distinct. Old records show that in 1869 or 1870 a party of coon hunters started out one dark night to hunt the animals, and one of their number, Bardman by name, mysteriously disappeared. It was thought that Bardman was drowned, but it is now believed that he had "treed" a coon and then climbed up to get his game, and was suddenly overcome and sank into the big cavity in the tree and was there suffocated.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier.]



Williamstown is to have a telephone office, and that in the near future.

The new poor farm represents an investment of $15,000 of which $3,000 was provided by the sale of the farm.

The sowing of tobacco beds has been the one great diversion of the farmers during the past week. Thousands and thousands of square feet of beds have been sown and the good work goes merrily on.

Much to the surprise of their many friends, Mr. R. T. Dickerson and Miss Nettie Webb were married in Covington last Thursday evening, without telling anyone, except the family of Miss Webb, about the matter.

In county court on Tuesday the right of the petitioners from Corinth to take a vote on "repealing the present special act of the Legislature prohibiting the sale of liquor within one and a half miles of the Corinth Academy was refused by the county judge on the ground that said act could only be repealed by the Legislature which enacted it. The case will be appealed to the Circuit Court.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[Herald.]

The new bank at Wheatley has been organized.

There will be a large acreage of oats and grass seed sown this season.

A Sweet Owen subscriber says they have in that neighborhood six of the oldest men perhaps in the county. They are "Uncle" Newt Roland, who is in his ninety-fourth year; "Uncle" Joel Chapman is about ninety; "Uncle" Jimmie Holiday is about ninety-two; "Uncle" Henry Lancaster is ninety-one; "Uncle" Steve Gross eighty-four, and "Uncle" Parker (Billy) Smith about eighty.

[News]

The farmers held a rousing meeting at the court house last Saturday evening. They want a tobacco factory.

A petition is being circulated requesting the Rev. Sam Jones to hold a series of meetings here at an early date. No one refuses to sign and it is presumed that he will come.

Geo. Thompson, of Warsaw, was the lowest bidder to put in the new flour mill, and he was awarded the contract. All machinery to be used will be the best and latest improved.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Hebron.

Mrs. Kittie Dye is very ill.

Hugh Alpha Lentz called in Hebron, last Tuesday.

Miss Dora Lee Hafer was calling on the school, Thursday.

Chas. Stephen, of Utzinger, visited his mother, last week.

Mr. Bullock's family spent Sunday with Mrs. Frost, near Bromley.

Olivia Allen, of Utzinger, is spending two weeks with her grand-mother.

Mr. Harper placed 198 eggs in his incubator, but obtained only 25 chickens.

Mr. and Mrs. Hossman visited relatives in Cincinnati, the latter part of last week.

It is reported that another store will be started here—Mike Clore and Geo. Hafer, proprietors.

Misses Mary Riddell and Grace Bullock were enjoying Saturday afternoon horseback riding.

Chas. Clore has torn down the corner store building, formerly occupied by B. C. Whitlock.

Mrs. W. L. Aylor and Miss D. I. Hafer were the pleasant guests of Mrs. Lystra Aylor, one day last week.

Perry Aylor and family spent last Saturday night and Sunday with Mrs. Aylor's mother, near Constance.

Will Crisler, of Petersburg, came up Saturday afternoon and remained over night with his cousin, Edward Aylor.

Johnnie Beall, late of the Francesville neighborhood, is now a resident of our community, having rented A. G. Winston's farm.

Letters from Mrs. Shaffell, of Frankfort, have reached here, asking assistance to purchase a silver service for the battleship, Kentucky.

Rev. Lentz preached Sunday afternoon from St. John 12:19. He spoke of the beautiful life of Christ, all accomplished through the hardships and temptations that surrounded him in Jerusalem.

The most enjoyable event of the season was the pie party given by Miss Grace Bullock, Friday evening. Every person seemed to enjoy it immensely. Excellent pies, such as vanilla, cream, lemon, custard, jelly, etc., were soon disposed of when the boys reached the dining room. After this Mrs. Bullock had the guests repair to her sitting room, where she had hidden a lot of peanuts. The search began at once, but the one that found the most did not get his prize, as it had been hidden by some of the girls. Crokinole, caroms and other games were indulged in until a late hour, when all left wishing for another such occasion soon.

Verona.

Farmers are behind with their spring work on account of so much rain.

Will Terrill, of Petersburg, was here surveying the Sleet property, last week.

W. H. Dickerson, some time since, accepted a position as gauger at Milboru, Ky.

The pike fever is raging. There is talk of building a pike from Verona to New Bethel church.

We shall endeavor to give the news in general from now on more than we have done in the past.

On inquiry, Dr. B. K. Menifee quickly replied that it was a 12 lb. girl that arrived at his home some time since.

The estate of Margarett Sleet, deceased, has been divided, and each heir allotted his share. Richard Sleet was allotted the residence.

Eugene and John Roberts have purchased the undivided estate of the Thomas A. Johnson heirs, there being 50 acres in the tract. Eugene will erect a dwelling house on this land in the near future.

Pt. Pleasant.

Mr. J. S. Cullom made a flying trip to Covington, Friday.

H. F. Russell has been sick for the past two weeks with grip.

Mr. Al England has a very painful rising on his hand, thought to be the result of a bruise.

James Popham went to Cincinnati, one day last week, and laid in a large supply of garden seeds.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Scott, of Fairview, were the guests of J. M. Riggs and family, Saturday night and Sunday.

Miss Ada Smith, of Hamilton, O., was the guest of her cousins, Misses Flora and Maggie Youell, last Saturday and Sunday.

The Ladies' Missionary Society, of the Pt. Pleasant church, held a very interesting meeting at the residence of Mrs. Henry Haberle, of Constance. Mrs. Geo. Montgomery, of Covington, District manager of the C. W. B. M., addressed the meeting. "Recruits for Christ," was the topic discussed. Refreshments of ice-cream and float and cake were served.

MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.
These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.
McELREE'S Wine of Cardui
makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate menstrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why will any woman suffer month after month when Wine of Cardui will relieve her? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?
For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 1899. NO. 24.

AGUINALDO has proven himself an artful dodger, if not very successful in battle.

THAT long-looked-for order, modifying the civil service, is now expected to be promulgated about the first of May.

ALABAMA is going to have a constitutional convention, to which she has selected her best men, regardless of politics.

AND now coffins are being shipped to Manila for the use of the brave Americans whom powder and ball and disease lay low.

IT is said that Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, is [illegible] mind called among politicians "mental White House evolution."

IN other columns will be found the turnpike law, of which the RECORDER'S Walton correspondent asked the publication, a short time since,

THE Filipinos are putting up a stronger fight against the American forces in the Philippines than the Spaniards put up there or in Cuba.

IF the party under whose legislation trusts have been fostered, will put in its next national platform a plank endorsing trusts, what the voters will do for that party at the poles will be a plenty.

THE sharp-shooters in the Filipino army are dreaded more by the American soldiers than the insurgents. They dress themselves in palm leaves, conceal themselves in the trees, and are hard to locate.

"PRESEVALINE" is only another name for an embalming fluid. Bodies are embalmed to prevent decomposition, and "preservaline" was used to prevent the army beef from decomposing, consequently Gen. Miles was justified in using the word "embalmed" when speaking of the army beef.

TALK about the State Board of Election Commissioners resigning in the event of defeat of any Democratic candidate for the gubernatorial nomination is foolishness of the worse sort. The Commissioners are men, who will discharge the duties of their office until the expiration of their term, regardless of the result of the State convention.

THE winter just past has been unusually hard on the dirt roads. The hard freezing, followed by an unusual amount of rain, has put the public highways in a condition that has rendered travel not only laborious, but in many localities actually dangerous, and the question of good roads is more prominent in this county at present than it has ever been.

THE threat of foreign insurance companies to abandon Kentucky if the law that prevents them from combining to increase rates is enforced, is not deterring the courts in the least, and they are being indicted and prosecuted as anyother body of law violators would be. They are not going to be bluffed, and the insurance men must obey the law or quit business. They can take their choice.

THE ease with which the Americans captured Manila, was due, in a large measure, to the cooperation of the Filipinos, who are now as anxious to drive the Americans out of their islands as they were to have the Spaniards expelled, and to that end they appear to be willing to sacrifice the lives of the entire native population. They are as earnest in their demands for freedom as the Cubans were.

So many prominent Republicans are upholding trusts, declaring that they are of real benefit to the country, that it is in the line of probability that the next Republican platform will contain a plank to that effect. The Republican party want a big campaign fund and the trusts will be powerful enough to enforce their demands upon the party before they hand in big contributions.—Commonwealth.

With a plank in the platform endorsing trusts, big contributions will not be able to carry the party to victory, and the party leaders know that.

An Act to Provide Free Turnpike and Gravel Roads.

§ 1. That upon the written application, directed to the county judge of any county in this Commonwealth, asking for a vote in said county upon the proposition to have free turnpike and gravel roads in said county, signed by a number of voters of said county, equal to fifteen per cent. of the vote cast at the last preceding general election in said county, it shall be the duty of the judge of the county court, at the next regular term thereof after receiving said petition, to make an order in his book, directing an election to be held in said county, at the next regular or county election in said county, that does not occur within sixty days of the date of entering the order, to take the sense of the qualified voters of said county upon the proposition to have free turnpike and gravel roads in said county, which order shall direct the sheriff or other officer of said court, who may be appointed to hold said election to open a poll at each and all of the voting precincts in said county, for the purpose of taking the sense of the qualified voters on the proposition aforesaid.

§ 2. It shall be the duty of the county clerk to give to the sheriff of the county, or such other officer as may be appointed to hold said election, a certified copy of the order, as it appears on the order book, within five days after it is made; and it shall be the duty of the sheriff or other officer to have said order published in some weekly or daily paper published in the county for at least thirty days prior to the election, and also to advertise the same by written or printed handbills, posted in at least four conspicuous places in each voting precinct for the same length of time. All elections for this purpose being held at some regular election in November, the same officers that hold the regular elections shall hold this election, which shall, in all respects, be held in accordance with the provisions of the general election laws of this State, the questions, "Are you in favor of free turnpike and gravel roads?" being printed on the ballots provided for in the general law, section 1459, Kentucky Statutes.

§ 3. At the close of the poll the election officers in each precinct shall count votes for and against the proposition, and make certificates thereof, showing the number of voters cast for the proposition and the number cast against it, which certificates, each officer retaining a copy thereof, and all disputed ballots, if any, shall be returned to the county clerk with the other election returns. The county examining or canvassing board shall canvass the returns, at the same time and in the same way, as the returns for the regular election are canvassed, and certify immediately upon the the completion of the canvass, the result, in writing, to the county judge showing how many votes were cast for the proposition and how many against it in each precinct, and the total result in the county, each member of county board retaining a copy of said certificate. At the next regular term of the county court, after receiving the same, the county judge shall have said certificate spread upon his order book.

§ 4. The county judge shall not make an order for election until the petitioners pay into court a sufficient amount of money to pay for the order, printing, advertising and other necessary expenses.

§ 5. If it shall appear that a majority of all the votes cast for and against said proposition are in favor of said proposition, then the fiscal court may acquire, by gift, lease, purchase or contract, any or all the turnpike roads, or parts of such as lie within the county, on the best terms consistent with public interests, in the discretion of said court, and may provide for the construction of new turnpike or gravel roads when the public good demands it. Said fiscal court may levy a tax from year to year on all the estates of every kind assessed for State and county purposes, not to exceed in any year 25 cents on the $100 of taxable property, for the purpose of paying for and maintaining such roads as may be acquired under this act and keeping them in repairs.

§ 6. All turnpike and gravel roads thus acquired or constructed shall become public roads, and shall be maintained and kept in repair by and through the provisions of the fiscal court. Said court may provide for keeping them up as is directed and permitted under the general road law, or it may adopt other rules for the maintenance, repair and management of same. But said roads shall be free of toll to the traveling public. And all toll houses, and the land occupied for the use thereof, or owned or held by any turnpike road company, which may be acquired under this act, shall pass with the possession or ownership of such road, to be held by the fiscal court for the use of such road, and may be leased or rented by said court, and the proceeds thereof shall be applied to the maintenance of the county roads acquired under this act. The fiscal court may either rent or sell the toll houses, and lots that may come into their possession, but the parties owning the land from which the toll lot came off of originally shall have the refusal of purchase.

§ 7. The directors of any turnpike or gravel road are hereby authorized and empowered, through their president, to convey to the fiscal court purchasing same the title to such road, and when so directed by a number of stockholders representing a majority of all the stock in said road, he shall make such conveyance. In any road in which the State has an interest the Governor or his proxy shall be authorized to vote the stock of the State. In roads in which the county owns an interest, the county judge may appoint an agent to vote the stock of the county.

§ 8. When the entire turnpike purchased by a fiscal court lies wholly within the county by which the same is purchased the transfer of title shall be made as provided in section seven, and thereupon, the charter, franchises, and so forth, of any such turnpike or gravel road shall be at once dissolved and terminated, but when any portion of any turnpike, which lies in more than one county, is purchased as herein authorized, the title to such part so purchased shall be conveyed to the county purchasing it in the manner before recited, and such transfer shall in no wise affect the charter or privileges or franchises of any turnpike road company so selling such portion, as to the remainder of the turnpike of such company. But as to the part so sold the charter shall be and become terminated, and the company shall be at once released from any and all responsibility concerning such portion under its charter or laws of the State.

§ 9. The fiscal court shall have the power and authority to issue bonds from time to time within the constitutional limitations for the purpose of purchasing and maintaining the roads so acquired or constructed under this act, said bonds to bear interest not to exceed six per cent. per annum with coupons attached, payable semi-annually; these bonds to be in denominations of not less than $100 or more than $1,000, to run not more than thirty years and to be redeemed within that time at the pleasure of the court and to be sold at not less than par value. But before the bonds authorized under this act shall be issued, the fiscal court of the county shall by an order entered of record call an election to be held and direct a poll to be opened at the next county or regular election to be held in the county, which does not occur within sixty days from the date of the order calling said election. It shall be the duty of said fiscal court to direct the sheriff of the county to advertise said election and the object thereof for at least thirty days next before the day thereof in some newspaper having the largest circulation in the county and also by printed handbills posted up at not less than four public places in each voting precinct in the county, and at the courthouse door. All legal voters in said county shall be privileged to vote at said election. The same officers that hold the regular election shall hold this election, which shall in all respects be held in accordance with the general election laws of this State, the question: "Are you in favor of issuing bonds for the purchase and maintenance of the turnpike roads of this county free of toll to the traveling public?" being printed on the ballots as provided for in the general election law, sec. 1459, Kentucky Statutes. If two-thirds of the legal voters voting on said proposition vote in favor of the proposition, then said fiscal court shall issue bonds as provided herein. The question of issuing bonds may be submitted to the voters at the same time that the question to have free turnpike and gravel roads is submitted or it may be submitted at another time.

§ 10. If bonds are sold to enable the fiscal court to purchase and construct roads the fiscal court shall levy a tax on all taxable property subject to county and State taxation, not to exceed 25 cents on every $100 worth of taxable property, at its assessed valuation which shall be collected as other county taxation and appropriated as follows: First to the payment of the interest on the bonds; second, to keep said roads in repair, and third, the balance to be placed to the credit of a sinking fund for the redemption of said bonds.

§ 11. Any or all counties in this Commonwealth, that have heretofore taken a vote on the question of free turnpikes and gravel roads may accept the condition of this act and the fiscal courts shall be fully empowered to carry its provisions into execution, if a majority of the voters in the respective counties voting on said proposition at an election held for that purpose voted in favor of free turnpikes without a resubmission of the question.

§ 12. At any time after a majority of the votes cast at an election held for that purpose in any county, have voted for free turnpikes and gravel roads and the fiscal court of said county, being unable to enter into a contract with the owners of any turnpikes or gravel roads, or any part thereof, lying in said county, it shall be the duty of the fiscal court thereof to file in the county court clerk's office of said county a statement to the effect that it has been unable to enter into a contract to purchase said road, with the owner or owners thereof, with a description of the turnpike road desired to be obtained, and thereupon, the county judge shall appoint three impartial housekeepers of the county, who are land owners, one of whom may be recommended by the managers of the road, whose duty it shall be to assess the value, the owner or owners thereof may be entitled to receive for said turnpike or gravel road so taken.

§ 13. It shall be the duty of said commissioners to view the road to be taken, and require the owner or owners thereof to produce the books or other evidences, the receipts and expenditures of the road or part of the road to be sold, amount of net earnings for said turnpike road company for each year for the past six years, and they shall hear any other evidence conducing to show the value of the property sought to be taken, and shall award to the owners thereof, the actual value of the property taken in said county. They shall return a report, in writing, to the office of the clerk of said court, stating their award, and shall describe the roadbed condemned, and give the names of the owner or owners thereof, and whether non-residents of the State, infants of unsound mind, or married women. Said commissioners shall be sworn to faithfully perform their duties under this law.

§ 14. Upon filing report of Commissioners in the county clerk's office, as required by the above section, the county court clerk shall issue a process against the owner or owners of said turnpike or gravel roads, upon the application of the fiscal court to show cause why the report should not be confirmed, and shall make such orders as to non-residents and persons under disability, as required by the Civil Code of Practice against them in the circuit court.

§ 15. At the first regular term of the county court after the owner shall have been summoned the length of time prescribed by the Civil Code of Practice, before answer is required, it shall be the duty of the court to examine said report, and if it shall appear to be in conformity with this law, and to the extent that no exceptions have been filed thereto by either party, it shall confirm said report as against the owners not excepting. But the fiscal court of said county shall have the right to abandon the condemnation proceedings at any time it may desire, but it must pay the cost of said proceedings. The trial upon exceptions to the report by either party, and the appeal from said exceptions, shall be the same as allowed by law for condemnation for railroad purposes as provided in sections 839 and 840 of the Kentucky Statutes.

§ 16. This act shall not repeal any local act or acts for any county or counties in this Commonwealth, which have been heretofore passed, in aid of free turnpikes, but shall be an addition thereto. Provided, That nothing in this act shall repeal or in any way affect the validity of any special act under which any county has voted for free turnpikes and now proceeding in the purchase of turnpike roads for the purpose of making them free to the traveling public.

Approved March 17, 1899.

The following is taken from the Ex-Confederate, published at Cottage Grove, Tennessee, and was written by J. C. Terrill, of Booneville, Indiana, a brother of the late Geo. W. Terrill, of this county, and a comrade in arms of Felix Moses:

"Felix Moses, or Mose, as us boys all called him, was a little Dutch Jew, who was before the Civil war a huckster, and lived at Florence, Boone county, Ky. Mose was so intensely southern in his feeling that when the war came on he sold his huckster wagon, mounted his horse and went with some of the neighbor boys to Bowling Green, Ky., to join the southern army. Mose and his companions joined the Buckner Guards, an independent company, formed as Gen. Buckner's Body Guard, and to carry dispatches, besides doing picket duty. This company was not captured at Fort Donaldson, when Gen. Buckner surrendered, but made their escape to Nashville with Forrest's cavalry, and were afterwards transferred to Gen. Hardee as his Body Guard. As I belonged to this company I will say that we were with Hardee in the battle of Shiloh. After we had driven the enemy back from their first line of tents Mose who was hungry (as we had had but little to eat for three days) commenced to ransack one of the tents for grub. Among other things he found a little mirror, looking glass, as he called it. This little looking glass was enclosed in a strong pewter case of convenient size to carry in the breast coat pocket. Mose became very much attached to this little looking glass, and although he was about forty years old, and one of the ugliest men that ever lived, he would have this little looking glass out of his pocket half a dozen times a day, and could be seen admiring his ugly features with the most intense satisfaction, and also combing the small bunch of thin, sickly whiskers that grew on the end of his long, sharp chin. The boys often "poked" fun at Mose about his ugly mug and his looking glass, but the boys all liked him, for he was the life of the company, and we were often driven out of a fit of the blues by his amusing jokes, told in his broken English. Mose was also as brave a man as ever lived, and the boys all knew it. He would often get off his jokes while we were in the heat of a hard fought battle.

"One day while we were in the fight at Big Hill, Ky., after we had driven the enemy down the hill in disorder, they formed in ambush near the foot of the hill and when we came near enough they poured a volley into our ranks that emptied several of our saddles. Mose was among the number who were brought to the ground. He lay for a short time among the leaves, kicking frantically. But soon sat up and commenced feeling around over his breast with both hands. Just then one of our boys dismounted and ran to him, saying, "Mose, are you killed." When, to our surprise, he replied, in angry, broken, English, "No! I vas not kilt, but tose—tammed Yangees haf proke my logging glass vot I got at Shiloh." Sure enough the ball had struck the pewter case of the looking glass, breaking the glass, but saving Mose's life, although his breast was considerably bruised. Mose was soon in his saddle, and again in the thickest of the fight, but it was a long time before he got over the loss of his little looking glass.

At a meeting held by the Democratic State Executive Committee in the city of Lexington on March 8, 1899, it was ordered that a State Convention be held in the city of Louisville on Wednesday, June 21, 1899, for the purpose of nominating Democratic candidates for State offices, to be voted for on November 7, 1899. Said convention shall be called to order at 11 o'clock a. m. Delegates to said State Convention shall be chosen at county mass conventions to be held at the various county court houses in counties having but one legislative district, of which due notice shall be given by the various county chairman. In counties having more than one legislative district there shall be a convention for each legislative district, to be held at some convenient point, to be indicated by the chairman of the legislative district committee, who shall advertise in the local papers the location for said convention at least ten days prior to the date fixed by this committee. Said county and legislative district conventions shall be held at 2 o'clock p. m., standard time, on June 17, 1899. Said convention shall be called to order by the chairman of the respective county or legislative district committees.

The basis of representation of each county to said State convention shall be one delegate for each 200 votes and fraction consisting of one hundred or more votes cast for the head of the Democratic electoral ticket at the Presidential election in 1896; provided that each county shall have at least one delegate vote.

All known Democrats and others who supported W. J. Bryan for President, and those who pledge themselves to support the nominees of said convention shall be entitled to participate in the county or legislative district convention.

P. P. JOHNSON, Chairman.

THE figures that come from the Treasury Department shows that the war with Spain has cost considerably more than is generally known. The cost of the war alone was over $500,000,000, not including the $20,000,000 paid for the Philippines, while the military and naval operations against the Philippines has cost about $20,000,000 more, and there are now on file claims to the amount of another $20,000,000 against Spain and which the Peace Commissioners agreed this country should pay. Those in a position to estimate the probable cost of the war with Spain place it at a thousand million dollars, and a very small portion of that immense amount will have been spent for humanity's sake for which it was understood the United States went to war. Instead of two dollars per head the Malays will cost this country an enormous sum per head, perhaps a $100,000 before Uncle Sam is done paying for them.

"NEVER was the prospect for a tobacco worse in this section," says the Owingsville Outlook, "and it seems reasonable to suppose that a similar condition exists throughout this and adjoining States. The first of April is here and a large proportion of the growers haven't yet sowed their plant beds. Those that have sowed did it when nearly universally the ground was full wet." The same can be said of every tobacco producing county in the State, but enough plants will be forthcoming at the proper time to pitch the usual sized crop.

THE American soldiers in the Philippines are about to face a more formidable foe than the insurgents. The rainy season is now due and with it will come diseases common to the tropics, and fearfully fatal to persons hailing from this climate. A heavy increase of fatalities among the American forces can now be expected, and, no doubt the Filipinos are calculating on gaining a considerable advantage because of disease decimating the ranks of their adversaries.

A pneumatic tube to transmit mail between New York and Philadelphia is under serious consideration, and the project will probably be introduced in the next congress.

According to a recent discovery George Washington was not only first in peace, war and other important contingencies, but he was also one of the first Americans to wear false teeth.

In a recent treatise on alcoholism by Frull it is stated that in England 75 per cent. of all cases of pauperism are due to drink, and in Germany 90 per cent. In Germany drink leads to 1,600 cases of suicide a year and supplies the insane asylums with 3,000 victims.

Michael Lehy, a boy of 18 arrested in New York for forgery, confessed that he was the leader of a gang of six boys. What is this world coming to? It is plain that we need home missionary work as well as the kind that spends its efforts in the far off lands of the savages.

Even invalids can do some work to advantage. The little town of Southern Pines, one of the smallest towns in North Carolina, shipped 4,000,000 pounds of fruit to northern markets during 1898. It was all raised by northern invalids, down there for their health.

Frank Willard, the well-known writer who has given the public many magazine articles on tramp life, is now out with a new production in which he makes the startling statement that at least 5,000 boys are associated with the professional tramps of the country in their "hobo" life.

Gen. Sir Arthur Fremantle, the British commander at Malta, who has shown hospitalities to our troops on the way to Manila, is well acquainted with the mettle of American soldiers. He witnessed Pickett's charge and repulse at Gettysburg, a scene that for courage on both sides has never been surpassed.

It is said by American manufacturers of women's shoes that a marked change in styles has been going on during the last two years. The shoes in favor are heavier, with less flexible soles and with plainer uppers. Outdoor exercise and recreation for women have resulted in the demand for more comfortable and substantial shoes, which also last longer and wear more evenly. English women have always preferred a comparatively heavy shoe, and the laws of health back up their choice.

The rural free delivery system is gaining in popularity and usefulness to an extent that insures its continuance and extension in well-populated districts. The first appropriation for the experiment was $50,000. This was followed by an appropriation of $150,000, and the last congress appropriated $300,000. Wherever it has been introduced the farmers are much pleased with it, the only opposition coming from village postmasters, who miss the custom from the stores they operate in connection with the post office.

In the dispatch printed a short time ago telling of the fire in the Old Colonial church in Boston, it was stated that the "Vinegar Bible" came near being destroyed. This Bible is the oldest in the United States. It was printed in Oxford, England, by John Barrett in 1717, and in 1761 was presented to the Colonial church by George II., who was then King. In the twentieth chapter of St. Luke, which contains the parable of the vineyard, the Bible reads "the parable of the vinegar," and for that reason the book has been given the odd name of "The Vinegar Bible."

STEAMER ROWENA LEE LOST.

She Sunk in Thirty Feet of Water Off the Landing at Tyler, Mo.—Four Lives Went Out.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 31.—A telephone message to Capt. Robt. E. Lee, general manager of the Lee line of steamers, from Carruthersville, Mo., announces the loss of the steamer Rowena Lee in midstream near Tyler, Mo., at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Four people lost their lives.

The dead: M. T. Kelly, of Memphis, mail clerk; Mrs. Chambers, a passenger, embarked at Carruthersville, bound for Memphis; an unknown Negro woman; a member of the crew, supposed to be a deck hand.

The startling information was received here Wednesday night from Cairo that the Rowena Lee had foundered in the Mississippi river, near Tyler, Mo., and all on board had perished save the captain and an under officer of the steamer. It was estimated that between 50 and 60 people went down with the ill-fated vessel. The news spread rapidly throughout the city and relatives and friends of those known to have been on board the vessel thronged the telegraph and newspaper offices, frantically asking for details of the catastrophe. Robert E. Lee, the general manager of the company, gave out a statement during the night that he had receive a message announcing the loss of the steamer, but after repeated efforts further news could not be obtained from the scene of the disaster.

At an early hour Thursday morning telephone connection was secured to Carruthersville, Mo., by the officials, and a few minutes later announcement was made that the Rowena Lee had sunk in 30 feet of water off the landing at Tyler, and four persons were drowned. It is assumed that the remainder of the passengers and crew are at Tyler or New Madrid.

The steamer Ora Lee has been hurriedly dispatched to the scene of the disaster.

Eight Kingston Natives Were Killed and Two Americans Dead and Others Wounded in the Riot.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, March 31.—During the fight between American sailors and native boatmen on Tuesday at the wharf the casualties were:

Indians—Two killed (O'Grady and another) and several wounded.

Texas—James Darcy, oiler, concussion of the brain, and F. R. McMahon, fractured knee. Are going north in the Supply.

Three men from the Texas are in the hospital. One, named Green, a water tender, 25 years old, may die from a stab wound.

Other sailors were injured, including four on the Supply. That ship's whaleboat crew, being stoned by natives, were forced overboard to escape death. Eight natives are reported killed.

The Newark arrived Thursday morning.

WANT MORE INFORMATION.

The German Papers Are Very Guarded in Their Comments Upon the Situation On the Samoan Island.

BERLIN, March 31.—The National Zeitung Thursday, commenting upon the Samoan situation, says:

"While it appears that the American and British representatives thought the Mataafans were contravening the treaty, the meeting held on the Philadelphia had no jurisdiction, because the unanimous approval of the three consuls is necessary to make any decisions legal."

The National Zeitung adds that further information is necessary in order to show whether the Americans and British had sufficient reason for resorting to armed intervention, and concludes with remarking:

"Thus far the only result appears to have been destruction and anarchy."

The semi-official Post comments calmly upon the new situation and says that Germany will remain neutral.

TELEGRAPHIC CONNECTION.

Canadian Government Will Construct a Line Between British Columbia and the Yukon Territory.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Consul Brush at Clifton, informs the state department that the Canadian government has decided to construct a telegraph line between Lake Bennett and Dawson City at once and that it is also decided to establish telegraph connections between British Columbia and the Yukon territory. He says the dominion authorities regard the franchise for this telegraph line as too important from the standpoint of the national safety to permit it to go outside of government control.

SAMOAN CRISIS.

In Official Quarters It Divided Attention With the War at Manila.

The Recent Outbreak in Samoa Can Under No Circumstances Be Construed as an Overt Act Against Germany, Nor as a Casus Belli.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The Samoan crisis divided attention with the fighting about Manila in all official quarters Thursday. At the foreign embassies where this has been a subject of consideration of late, considerable anxiety was shown lest the affair should assume a grave international aspect. Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, went to the state department at 11 o'clock, accompanied by his secretary, Mr. Elliott, and conferred with Secretary Hay. As this was the regular diplomatic day, little significance would have attached to the call under ordinary circumstances, but with British and American war ships co-operating in a bombardment more than usual interest attached to the call. There is no doubt that the serious developments in Samoa were discussed. While there may be a dearth of official information, at the same time the actual events carry out what has been anticipated and give a basis for intelligently considering the further joint action of the two governments in the complete settlement of the entire Samoan trouble. Both nations are acting in complete accord, not only as to the general solution of the Samoan problem, but in particular with reference to the force exerted by the British and American naval commanders.

As to the German attitude, it is stated positively, in a quarter thoroughly familiar with German official sentiment, that the outbreak now reported can under no circumstances be construed as an overt act against Germany, nor as a casus belli.

This is from such a source that it largely removes the possibility of international complications. As an evidence of the conciliatory sentiment of the German government, it was said Thursday that the note delivered to the state department last week urged in behalf of the German government that the good relations existing between two such nations as the United States and Germany would not be interrupted by a matter of such comparative unimportance as an official dispute in Samoa. It is said that the German government would probably have accepted Adm. Kautz as a sort of umpire, taking his decision as final, but that the objection, quite forcibly expressed to the state department, was the manner of his going to Samoa, while friendly exchanges were going on, without notice to Germany.

The German ambassador has received no advices and no instruction relative to the reported bombardment, and there is no evidence thus far that Germany will protest or assume a belligerent tone. From the German standpoint the most serious aspect is that the bombardment will excite public feeling on both sides of the water, leading to popular outbursts, which will overcome the efforts to secure a settlement.

One of the last propositions towards a settlement is that three commissioners be appointed, one from each country, to meet in Samoa and sit as a court in settlement of the difficulty.

The state department has not yet received official advices. The demonstration is regretted, but the opinion is expressed that Adm. Kautz acted on what was his best judgment and information. The state department acknowledges that no permanent agreement can be reached under the treaty in which all three powers do not agree, and the hope is that some settlement of the difficulty may be brought about when it becomes apparent that the present conditions can not exist indefinitely.

Adm. Kautz acted within his instructions. It is believed that he concluded, after consultation with Capt. Sturdee, of the Porpoise, the senior British naval officer, and the United States and British consuls, that a state of anarchy existed which called for action. The fact that the edicts of the chief justice were disregarded and were ignored although sustained by the representatives of two of the governments made such a course imperative. There is no doubt with the facts now at hand that Adm. Kautz will be sustained by the United States government.

Triple Murderer Hanged.

HARRISONVILLE, Mo., March 31.—E. Bates Soper was hanged here Thursday. He refused to have any spiritual consoler. Soper fell seven feet breaking his neck. The execution was witnessed by 40 persons. The crime for which he was executed was the murder of his wife and their two daughters.

Gen. Flagler's Remains.

Murder in the First Degree.

NEW YORK, March 31.—The jury in the Kennedy trial brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree at 2:25 Friday morning for the killing of pretty Miss Dolly Reynolds.

ENGLISH STEAMER SINKS.

She Crashed on the Casquet Rocks in a Fog—Nearly One Hundred Lives Were Lost.

LONDON, April 1.—The steamer Stella, with tourists for the islands of Jersey and Guernsey, struck on the Casquets, a few miles off the French coast, and sank in eight minutes Thursday afternoon.

There were 176 passengers on board, only 102 of whom are reported saved. Capt. Reeks went down with the ship.

There is intense excitement here. The Stella was crowded with Easter holiday excursionists from London and Southampton. A thick fog prevailed and the Stella got out of her course.

When the vessel struck the Casquets the people aboard became greatly excited. The officers of the ship, aided by a few cool heads, made their way among the frightened excursionists and checked a threatened panic. The people were crowded into small boats as fast as possible, the women and children taking precedence.

There was not time to distribute lifepreservers to all the passengers. Some of these did not wait for the boats, but jumped into the water. Several of them were picked up clinging to pieces of wreckage. The rescued passengers are unanimous in their praise of the conduct of the crew.

According to latest reports from the scene of the sinking of the tourist steamer Stella, on the Casquets, the steamer Lynx saved 41 persons and the Vera 61. It is estimated that 75 of the passengers and crew are still missing.

The Stella struck the Casquet rocks late Thursday afternoon. Her boilers exploded as she went down. The steamer Lynx has landed her quota of rescued passengers at Southampton. The Stella was a steel vessel of 1036 tons. She was built in 1890 and belonged to the London and Southampton Railroad company. She plied regularly between Southampton and the islands of Guernsey and Jersey.

There is a great crowd about the office of the London & Southampton Railroad Co., clamoring for news from friends and relatives who were on board the steamer Stella, which was wrecked on the Casquet rocks Thursday. The Stella was steaming at the rate of 20 knots when she struck. six of the ship's boats were lowered at once. One of these capsized and one has not been heard from. Four of the boats, full of women and children, got away safely.

Capt. Reeks gave orders from the bridge, which he refused to leave. The crew and the men remaining on board crowded to the rail as boat loads of women and children took to the water, and, as they disappeared in the fog, followed them with a ringing cheer. The Stella keeled heavily and the sea ran up along the decks. The captain shouted:

"Let every man save himself!" and the men seized onto whatever they could to sustain them and then jumped into the sea. When the last order was given the captain raised his two hands to the sky and stood in that position till the steamer went under. He disappeared, drawn down by the suction.

SOUTHAMPTON, April 1.—It is now estimated that nearly 130 persons were drowned by the sinking of the Stella.

SOUTHAMPTON, April 1.—The steamer Honfleur returned Friday night after having made the circle of the Casquet rocks. She picked up two boats containing women's clothing, money, jewelry and an opera glass case. The last had evidently been used in bailing. Many pathetic incidents are reported.

In several cases men lifted their wives and children into the boats and then perished themselves in their presence. One wife, who was thus bereaved, lost her reason.

A large number of the survivors arrived here without any clothing, clad only in blankets.

FOR ANOTHER MAN'S CRIME.

Edward Wise Willing to Suffer Imprisonment for the Sake of a Companion, But Will Not Suffer Death.

NEW YORK, April 1.—Edward Wise, who is awaiting sentence of death for the murder of Charles E. Beaseley, in this city last November, has almost at the last moment, declared that another man committed the murder. The police are looking for this man. They refuse to divulge his name. Wise was to be sentenced Friday afternoon. Wise declared that he was willing to suffer imprisonment for the sake of a companion, but now that death confronts him he will shield him no longer. He made a long statement to the district attorney. The police apparently place some reliance on Wise's story. He is 27 years old and comes of excellent parentage in Boston. He is well educated and an athlete.

National Congress of Mothers.

NEW YORK, April 1.—It is announced that the National Congress of Mothers will probably hold its next convention at Des Moines, Ia., instead of Chicago, owing to the pressing invitations received from Iowa, including one from Gov. Shaw.

THE FORCE OF HABIT.

John's Manner of Returning from His Natural Rambles Did the Trick.

"If we could rouse her from this apathy," said the doctor, turning from the patient with a worried look, "there might be some hope. If she could be made to speak we might make her realize her condition and get her to make an effort to save herself."

He turned to the husband, who knelt by the bed, his haggard face buried in the white spread.

"You understand her so well," said the physician, almost irritably. "Can't you say something or do something that will arouse her from this stupor? Isn't there anything you could do that would awaken her."

A look of hope lighted the husband's pale face. He rose without a word and left the house.

It was midnight. The watchers by the bedside heard the rain pelting against the window panes and the wind whistling around the corners of the old home. A step sounded on the gravel walk outside. In another second there was the click of a latchkey fumbling uncertainly in the keyhole of the front door. The restless turning of the sick woman's head upon the pillow stopped suddenly. She seemed to listen.

The door opened and unsteady steps came along the hall. The husband entered the dimly lighted room and felt his way among the chairs. His wife's eyes were open now. Her lips twitched once or twice, then parted.

"John," she said, faintly, "where have you been until this hour?"

And they knew that she was saved.—N. Y. World.

An Evidence of Prosperity.

It is generally conceded by economists, who study the commercial situation of the country, that the great arteries of railway travel are a sure indication of its condition. A depression in commercial lines means abandoned business trips and the cancellation of pleasure travel, while a healthy condition of affairs means business trips and an increase of passengers on pleasure bent.

A good evidence that a business revival has gone broadcast over this country is the "Lake Shore Limited," the star train of the Vanderbilt system, between New York and Chicago, which is daily comfortably filled. With a view to taking the best possible care of its patrons, the New York Central has arranged to increase the equipment of this train by placing an additional standard sleeper on the trains leaving New York and Chicago Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. To the regular traveler the appointments and comforts of this train are well known, but if you have never made a trip on it, you owe it to yourself to see and enjoy the advance made in comfort and luxury in modern railway travel. Remember the fare is no higher on this train, except between New York and Chicago, while the accommodations and service place this particular train conspicuously at the head of the list, when compared with other lines.—Albany Journal.

He Took It Gently.

"If they'd all do business that way," said the man in charge of the long-distance telephone as a young man laid down the receiver and went out, "this wouldn't be a bad job to hang on to, but he is an exception."

"In what respect?"

"Why, he called up Chicago, asked a girl to marry him, got the marble heart and went out without a kick. Some fellows would have laid around here for an hour after to shake themselves together, and then make a big row at having to pay regular rates."—Philadelphia Press.

SMITHERS' RETORT.

He Makes a Tart Reply to the Landlady at the Private Family Boarding House.

Mr. Smithers is a somewhat fastidious young man who is looking for a new boarding place. Smithers can't abide the regulation boarding house, and always tries to live with a private family. He is now convinced that an "ad." which solicits boarders for a "nice private family" is often a snare for a stuffy double flat, inhabited by one small family and 24 boarders.

Smithers called one day last week at a place with a glowing description just on the flank of Michigan avenue's aristocracy.

"Hum, suspiciously like a boarding house," thought Smithers, as he took in the dimensions. A collarless negro servant who opened the door confirmed his suspicions, but he had gone too far then to back out. A sharp-nosed, snippy landlady came in with a top-lofty air.

"Er-ah, I believe I am mistaken," he began. "I supposed I should find a private family. By the advertisement—hum—"

The laughter and the familiar boarding house hum of 14 clerks and ten lady stenographers came up from the dining-room in the basement. The mistress of the conglomerate "private family" drew herself up proudly. "You are entirely mistaken, sir," she asserted, in a ranging, seven-dollar-a-week voice, "this is not a boarding house, although we have a few friends living with us."

Smithers sniffed the air. There was a distinct odor of prunes and corned beef.

"Well, I must say," he remarked, as he turned up his coat collar and fled down the steps, "that it smells like a boarding house, madam."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

He Had Reason to Run.

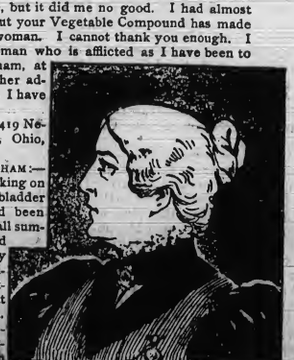
The man came out of an office building on the run and started down the street.

"Here! Here!" cried the policeman on the corner. "What's your hurry?"

"There's a man back there trying to sell me a book on 28 weekly installments of $2.33 each!" cried the victim.

The policeman instantly released his hold. "Run!" he cried. "Run like a whitehead! Maybe you can get away from him yet."—Indianapolis Journal.

PREPARE for the turn of life. It is a critical period. As indications of the change appear be sure your physical condition is good. The experience is a wonderful one and under some circumstances full of menace. Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., will give you her advice without charge. She has done so much for women, surely you can trust her. Read this letter from MRS. M. C. GRIFFING, of Georgeville, Mo.:



"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—The doctor called my trouble ulceration of womb and change of life. I was troubled with profuse flowing and became very weak. When I wrote to you I was down in bed, had not sat up for six months; was under a doctor's treatment all the time, but it did me no good. I had almost given up in despair, but your Vegetable Compound has made me feel like a new woman. I cannot thank you enough. I would advise any woman who is afflicted as I have been to write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and get her advice and be cured as I have been."

MRS. F. H. ALLEN, 419 Nebraska Ave., Toledo, Ohio, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Change of life was working on me. My kidneys and bladder were affected. I had been confined to the house all summer, not able to stand on my feet for any length of time. Terrible pains when urinating and an itching that nearly drove me wild. I had tried many remedies. I told my husband I had great faith in yours and he got me a bottle; am now on my fourth bottle. I feel that I am entirely cured. I can work all day. I can hardly realize that such a wonderful cure is possible. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine for women."

TROOPS TAKE MALOLOS.

Gen. MacArthur and His Command Enter the Rebel Capitol Friday.

In the Fight the American Loss Was Five Men Killed and Forty Wounded.

Many Villages and Towns Captured by the American Forces.

Guiguinto, Three and a Half Miles From Malolos, Taken by Gen. MacArthur's Command.

Troops Crossed the River by Working Artillery Over Railroad Bridge by Hand and Swimming Mules.

The Filipinos Fight Bravely, But at Every Point They Yield to American Arms—The Insurgent Army Fired Malolos and Retreated Toward the North.

MANILA, March 30.—The American army advanced at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, sweeping onward three miles before 10 o'clock and driving the rebels beyond Bocave, to the east of Bulacan, and on the railroad leading to Malolos. Our troops met with but slight resistance. The Filipinos fired volleys Tuesday evening for the purpose of drawing the American fire and disclosing the locality of our positions.

The country between Marilao and Manila presents a picture of desolation. Smoke is curling from hundreds of ash heaps and the remains of trees and fences, torn by shrapnel, are to be seen everywhere. The general appearance of the country is as if it had been swept by a cyclone. The roads are strewn with furniture and clothing dropped in flight by the Filipinos.

Bodies of dead Filipinos are stranded in the shallows of the river or in the jungles where they crawled to die or were left in the wake of the hurriedly retreating army. These bodies give forth a horrible odor, but there is no time at present to bury them. The inhabitants who fled from Marilao and Meycauayan left in such a panic that on tables our soldiers found spread money and valuables, and in the rooms were trunks containing other property of value. This was the case in most of the houses deserted. They were not molested by our soldiers, but the Chinese, who slip in between the armies, are looting when they can and have taken possession of several houses, over which they raised Chinese flags some of which were torn down.

The American forces met with strong opposition in the jungle. First one Nebraskan, then one Pennsylvanian and afterwards two of the Montana regiments were killed. Thirty-five were wounded, including one officer of the Kansas regiment. The rebels burned the villages as they retreated in bad order toward Malolos. The enemy also tore up sections of the railroad in many places and attempted to burn the bridge at Bigan, but the fire was extinguished owing to the timely arrival of the Americans. The rebels had not finished their trenches along the line of Wednesday's march, showing they were not prepared for our advance.

Gen. MacArthur's victorious division took lunch Wednesday at Bigaa, seven miles from Malolos, the Filipino capital, and the headquarters of Aguinaldo.

Bocave was captured at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, then the second advance to Bigan, distant two miles, was made. Bigaa was taken without a shot being fired, the enemy fleeing at the approach of the Americans.

MANILA, March 31.—After a couple of hours of rest Gen. MacArthur's division pushed on across rice fields and rivers through the jungle without meeting any opposition, the enemy flying from the villages of Taal, Ucat and Bigaa, after burning them. Even the town of Bulacan, the capitol of the province, was burned and abandoned, although Gen. MacArthur passed miles to the right. At 5 o'clock the enemy made a stand in trenches half a mile beyond Guiguinto station, at a river crossing.

The Kansas and Pennsylvania regiments immediately deployed, crossing the railroad bridge under heavy fire, and attacked the enemy's position. The rebels withstood the musketry fire for half an hour but the artillery disconcerted them, and at the end of a 45-minutes' fight the insurgents bolted towards the hills. Our loss was two killed and 20 wounded. The enemy's loss was severe. Gen. MacArthur went into camp near Guiguinto station at 6:30 o'clock, four miles from Malolos.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The following advices from Manila were received by the war department Wednesday night:

MANILA, March 30.—Adjutant General, Washington: MacArthur advanced at 6 Wednesday morning from Marilao. Passed rapidly to Bocave. At 11:45 took up advance for Bigaa and at 3:15, afternoon, for Guiguinto, three and one-half miles from Malolos, reaching that point at 5. Casualties for the day about 70. Fierce fighting in the afternoon. Troops made crossing of river at Guiguinto by working artillery over railroad bridge by hand and swimming mules against fierce resistance. Column will pass on railroad to extreme front, nearly repaired and will re-supply troops Thursday.

(Signed) OTIS.

MANILA, March 31.—The United States troops rested Thursday night in the jungle about a mile and a quarter from Malolos. The day's advance began at 2 o'clock and covered a distance of about two and a half miles beyond Guiguinto river, along the railroad. The brunt of the battle was on the right of the track, where the enemy was apparently concentrated.

The 1st Nebraska, 1st South Dakota and 10th Pennsylvania regiments encountered them entrenched on the border of the woods, and the Americans, advancing across the open, suffered a terrific fire for half an hour. Four men of the 1st Nebraska were killed and 30 were wounded. Several men of the Dakota regiment were wounded and one of the Pennsylvanians was killed.

The Americans finally drove the Filipinos back. Although there were three lines of strong intrenchments along the track the enemy made scarcely any defense there. Gen. MacArthur and his staff were walking on the track abreast of the line with everything quiet when suddenly they received a shower of bullets from sharpshooters in trees and on house tops, but these were speedily dislodged. The enemy's loss was apparently small, the jungle affording them such protection that the Americans were unable to see them and in firing were guided only by the sound of the Filipino shots. The American artillery was handicapped for the same reason.

Thursday night's long line of camp fires made a beautiful sight, with the 20th Kansas regiment on the left of Guiguinto station and the Pennsylvania regiment on the right beyond the river.

Maj. Gen. MacArthur entered Malolos, the seat of the so-called insurgent government, at half past nine Friday morning, the rebels burning the city and simultaneously evacuating it.

They are now in full retreat toward the north, where Aguinaldo and the cabinet have been for two days.

The provision train was delayed by broken bridges, but the stores of grain and flocks of ducks in the locality furnished ample forage.

The hospital work is remarkably efficient, as it has been throughout the whole campaign.

The telegraphers keep abreast of the line and maintain a consant connection with the city.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The war department at 1:30 Friday morning made public the following dispatch from Gen. Otis:

MANILA, March 31—Adjutant General, Washington: MacArthur captured Malolos at 10:15 Friday morning. Enemy retire after slight resistance and firing city. Particulars later. Hall had quite severe engagement beyond Mariquina; casualties 20. Enemy driven. OTIS.

HERR ROSE IS TO BLAME.

This is the Opinion of a London Paper—His Action May Be Repudiated by the German Government.

LONDON, March 31.—The Pall Mall Gazette says that the German consul at Apia, Herr Rose, is gravely responsible for the trouble in the islands which has culminated in actual fighting, and that his actions will probably be repudiated by the German government. Meanwhile, the paper says, the government in the islands must be conducted by the admirals there until a new conference to arrange for a settlement of the difficulties can be called by the three powers involved.

The Evening News says there is no reason to expect that the bombardment by the British and American war ships will lead to ill feeling on the part of others, and does not see any serious difficulties in the situation.

German Government Criticized.

BERLIN, March 31.—The Berlin papers all comment in lively fashion on the fighting in Samoa, and declare that this latest development in affairs is due to the dilatory tactics of the governments concerned in arranging a settlement of the trouble. The German government is called on to use more energetic language to the English and American governments in regar to the affair.

Dr. Wilhelm Solf in New York.

NEW YORK, March 31.—The North German Lloyd steamship Trave, which reached here Thursday from Bremen and Southampton, brought Dr. Wilhelm Solf, the newly appointed president of the municipality of Apia in Samoa. Solf was accompanied only by a valet and went to the Holland house in this city. He declined to be interviewed.

An English syndicate has been formed, with a capital of $400,000, to work gold mines, located in the district of Abangares, province of Liberia.

SAMOAN ISLANDS

Their People, Productions, Commercial and Strategic Importance.

Have a Population of 36,000 People, of Whom 200 Are British Subjects, 125 Germans, 25 Americans, and 50 Other Nationalities.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The people, productions, commercial and strategic importance of the Samoan islands are discussed in the publication just issued by the treasury bureau of statistics. The islands lie in an almost direct line between San Francisco and Australia, and slightly south of the direct steamship line connecting the Philippines with the proposed Panama or Nicaraguan inter-oceanic canals. Their special importance, therefore, it is stated, lies more in their position as coaling and repair stations on these great highways of commerce rather than in their direct commercial value, their population being small and their imports und exports of comparatively little importance.

The group consists of ten inhabited and two uninhabited islands with an area of 1,700 square miles and an aggregate population, according to latest estimates, of 36,000 people, of which something over 300 are British subjects, 125 Germans, 25 Americans, 25 French and 25 of other nationalities, while the remainder are natives of the Polynesian race. The bulk of the population is located in the three islands of Upolu, Savii and Tutuila; the number in Upoln being 16,000, in Savii 12,500 and in Tutuila, which contains the harbor of Pago Pago, ceded to the United States in 1878 for a naval and coaling station, 3,700. The islands are of volcanic origin but fertile, producing cocoanuts, cotton, sugar and coffee.

The most important however being cocoanuts, from which the "copra" of commerce is obtained by drying the kernel of the cocoanut. The exportation of copra from the islands in 1896 amounted to 12,565,909 pounds, valued at $231,372. A considerable proportion of this was exported to the United States and a larger proportion to Germany, whose citizens control its commerce through a trading company which has long been established there.

In 1896 the imports were $304,159, of which $47,552 came from the United States, $49,802 from Germany, $177,857 from the Australisian colonies, $7,044 from Great Britain and $21,904, from other countries.

The exports in 1896 were $263,047 of which $231,573 was copra.

TRAGIC MURDER AND SUICIDE

A French Canadian Killed His Indian Sweetheart and Then Drove the Knife Into His Own Heart.

CHICAGO, April 3.—A romantic and tragic story comes from Point Pelee, Ont. James LaBlanche, a young French Canadian, killed his sweetheart, an Indian girl named Olga Postamie.

The Frenchman lived on the mainland and had not seen the girl during the winter. When he went to her home he learned that she had given her love to another, an American. He begged the young woman to take a walk with him.

When they arrived at "Lovers' Rock," a spot made famous because an Indian chief had there murdered a French girl who refused to marry him, LaBlanche is said to have stabbed Miss Postamie.

He threw the body into the lake and then drove the knife, with which he had killed the girl he loved, into his own heart, falling dead into the water after her.

Famous Easter Snowstorm.

PIERRE, S. D., April 3.—A furious Easter snowstorm has been raging here all day, about six inches having already fallen with more in sight. It is drifting badly and the thermometer is falling.

Suicided on Hearing of Her Lover's Death.

CHICAGO, April 3.—The Times-Herald's Wichita, Kan., special says that Miss Mary Wilson, a prominent young society woman of Augusta, committed suicide upon learning that Alva Dix, her lover, had been killed on the battlefield of Malolos.

Large Flouring Mill Burned.

PITTSFIELD, Ill., April 3.—The large flouring mill of Dow & King, formerly C. P. Chapman & Co., burned. Loss $100,000; insurance $45,000. The cause of fire is unknown.

CUBA'S CUSTOMS RECEIPTS.

A Yield the First Quarter of $3,500,000—Silver is Appreciating—American Bills Are Often to Be Met.

HAVANA, April 3.—The island government, as administered by the United States military authorities, has yielded for the first quarter $3,500,000 as customs receipts. Of this amount $2,100,000 has been spent, the city of Havana getting $1,100,000 and the city of Santiago $250,000. Each provincial governor received all he asked.

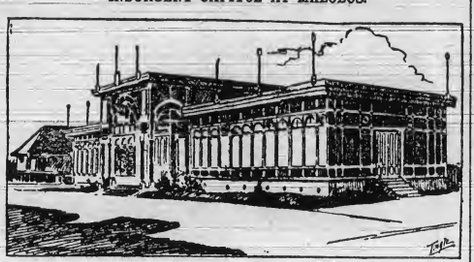
Spanish gold, and especially silver, are going abroad, so that Cuba's treasury keeps out of circulation from 10 to 15 per cent. of the currency in the island. Silver is appreciating. Worth 55 cents during the blockade, it has now risen to 93 on the basis of the local value of the centen, $5.30. Change is scarce, and there is little American fractional currency circulated. American bills, however, are often to be met, and prices are going on the American gold basis.

Agricultnral conditions throughout the conntry are improving. The tobacco crop is good, and Guines, the market garden of Havana, will put on the market in a few days 80,000 barrels of Irish potatoes at $3 a barrel and 30,000 pounds of onions at three cents a pound. A large proportion of both will be supplied to the American troops through the commisasary department.

DROPPED DEAD ON A TRAIN.

Sudden Death of Mrs. W. D. Owen, Wife of the Secretary of State of Indiana—Paralysis the Cause.

ST. LOUIS, April 3.—While en route from Texarkana, Ark., Saturday, Mrs. W. D. Owen, wife of the secretary of state of Indiana, dropped dead in the aisle of the car. Her last words, as she fell, were "I believe it is paralysis."



The funeral party, that had been changed with fearful suddenness from a gay pleasure party, arrived in St. Louis Sunday over the Iron Mountain road.

The party was composed of W. D. Owen, secretary of state of Indiana; A. C. Daly, state auditor of Indiana, and his wife; Miss Grace Nebeker, daughter of ex-United States Treasurer Nebeker; Louis Newberger, a lawyer of Indianapolis, and Judge U. Z. Wiley, of the Indiana appellate court. They are returning from a visit to the plantations of the Mexican Rubber and Coffee Co. at Uberra, on the isthmus of Tehauntepec.

The body of Mrs. Owen was placed in a berth, and at Little Rock, the next station, a physician boarded the train. He worked with her for three hours, but to no avail.

The curtains of the berth were drawn and the body brought to St. Louis and prepared for shipment by an undertaker.

INSURGENT CAPITOL AT MALOLOS.

THE TURKS AND BULGARIANS

Serious Collision Between Guards at Kozyl-Agob, Eastern Roumelia—Both Sides Suffered Losses.

VIENNA, April 3.—A serious collision has taken place between Bulgarian and Turkish frontier guards at Kozyl-Agob between Jamboli, Eastern Roumelia, and Adrinaople, on the banks of the Toonjaffty, six miles south of Jamboli.

According to a dispatch from Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, the Turks attacked a weak Bulgarian outpost, but the Bulgarians, aided by armed inhabitants, repulsed their assailants after a four hours' fight.

Both sides suffered losses of killed and wounded.

The Turks, the dispatch says, were seeking to accure a position hitherto held by the Bulgarians.

Bodies Coming Ashore.

LONDON, April 3.—A dispatch from Guernsey says that bodies of victims of the Stella wreck are beginning to come ashore there. An inquiry into the disaster will be instituted shortly. It is expected that Capt. Reeks, who perished with his ship, will be condemned for running at full speed in a fog.

Abolishing Military Post Offices.

HAVANA, April 3.—Postmaster Thompson has been installed in his official duties and the military branch of the postal service has been abolished in Havana. It will soon be abolished at other points.

A Fatal Quarrel.

CHICAGO, April 3.—During a quarrel Sunday over the approaching municipal election, Paul Lund shot and fatally wounded Arthur Lawson, an expressman. Lund claims the shooting was done in self-defense.

HE HAS ENOUGH.

Gen. Aguinaldo, it is Reported, is Anxious for Cessation of Hostilities.

Our Troops at Malolos Were Sent Out on Reconnoitering Duty—Found Insurgents Only in Small Force in Surrounding Country.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—It is reported here on seeming good authority that Aguinaldo has sent trusted friends to treat with the American commissioners for a cessation of hostilities. The statement is also made that he wants more liberal terms than those laid down in the recent proclamation of the commission, but there is no disposition on the part of the Americans to modify them. They demand that the rebels shall immediately lay down their arms, come into camp and give up the struggle until some sort of a government can be provided for the islands.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—This dispatch from Gen. Otis was received Saturday morning:

MANILA, April 3.—Quiet prevails. Have directed troops at Malolos and on railroad on reconnoitering duty. Find insurgents only in small forces in surrounding country, who retire on the approach of our troops. Few of our troops moving to new positions. Preparing for continued active campaign. Army in excellent spirits.

OTIS.

MANILA, April 3.—Gen. MacArthur took dinner Friday night and slept in the hall of the Filipino congress. The troops are worn out and are resting. It is planned to keep them in camp at Malolos for several days before following up the Filipinos.

Gen. Wheaton's brigade is camped along the railroad track, guarding against a surprise from the rear.

It is reported that 3,000 rebels, under Pilar, are concentrated at Cainta and Taytay.

Gen. King, Saturday morning, sent out a reconnoitering party of two companies of the North Dakota regiment and a brisk engagement followed, during which seven Filipinos were killed. On the American side a lieutenant and two privates were wounded.

The death of Lieut. Gregg, of the 4th infantry, who was killed near the Manila waterworks Friday, has deeply affected the army as he was one of the most popular young officers. His funeral took place Saturday.

MANILA, April 3.—The American troops under Gen. MacArthur are still resting at Malolos, where everything has been quiet Sunday. Hostilities elsewhere, so far as officially reported, have been limited during the last 24 hours to an occasional exchange of shots between the insurgents and the troops forming the lines of Gen. Lawton and Gen. Hall, extending from the water works to La Lonia. But this shooting has been just active enough to make the lives of the soldiers a burden and to compel the officers to sleep in trenches, clothed and in readiness to resist possible attacks. Most of the Americans are becoming convinced that the backbone of the insurgent opposition is broken. There are numerous rumors pointing to an early collapse of the insurrection. One of these is that Gen. Pio Del Pilar, the best fighter among the Filipino officers, will desert Aguinaldo and give his support to the Americans.

The Spaniards, reasoning from their experience of the natives, refuse to believe that the rebellion is anywhere near put down. They declare that the Filipinos will not take their defeat at Malolos, with the loss of the city and the removal of their so-called government, seriously to heart. On the contrary, the Spaniards predict that the insurgents will hover near the American lines, bothering them as much as possible, and when attacked in force, dissolve, only to reappear at other points. This sort of taetics, the Spaniards say, will be followed until the wet season compels the Americans to be housed in barracks, and then the Filipinos will return and reoccupy such towns as the United States troops do not garrison. With the next dry season a repetition of the present operations will begin. Time alone will show how much there is in this theory; but as against it, it must be borne in mind that the Spaniards in all their domination of the Philippines never gave the inhabitants a demonstration of power comparable in effectiveness to that given them by the United States.

Struck a Hurricane.

QUEENSTOWN, April 3.—The Cunard liner Campania, which was a day overdue from New York, has arrived here. Her officers report having encountered a hurricane which caused the vessel to slacken speed. They also report passing considerable wreckage painted white.

Aged Minister Dead.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 3.—Rev. James Needham is dead at his home near Pilot Mountain. He would have been 100 years of age on May 2 next. He was a Methodist minister and his last sermon was preached in Winston last November.

A Camp for Returning Soldiers.

SOUTHPORT, N. C., April 3.—Army officers have decided to establish here a camp for soldiers returning from Cuba while their baggage is undergoing fumigation.

JOINT HIGH COMMISSION.

They Will Be Appointed by the Three Powers Interested to Settle the Troubles in Samoa.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—A joint high commission to settle the entire Samoan trouble has been practically agreed upon by the United States, British and German governments. Lord Salisbury's absence from London alone delays formal acceptance by Great Britain, though in his absence Sir Thomas Sanderson and Mr. Villiers, who are understood to be specially familiar with the Samoan question, have approved the plan for a commission. The United States has informally expressed its approval, and the formal acceptance, it is learned from the highest quarter, will follow speedily. As the proposition emanates with Germany her approval, of course, is assured. This high commission, it is felt, affords a pacific solution to the whole trouble at the moment when Samoan affairs began to look the most threatening.

The new plan has been fully gone over by Secretary Hay and the British and German ambassadors here and its essential details worked out. Each nation is to be represented by one member on the commission. It is to have practically unlimited authority without the necessity of referring its decisions back to the several governments for approval. It is felt that by conferring such complete and final authority on the high commission the danger will be obviated of any further deadlocks and delays. Still another important provision under consideration is that King Oscar, of Norway and Sweden, shall be the umpire in case the three high commissioners should fail to reach a determination. The plan of inviting King Oscar to referee a disagreement meets the approval of the British and German authorities and will doubtless be approved by the United States as a means of insuring finality of decision, though it is not known just how far this has been considered by the Wathington authorities.

King Oscar was agreed upon between the United States and Great Britain as a final arbitrator in connection with the proposed Anglo-American arbitration treaty, as well as in the Venezuela matter. He is also mentioned in the treaty of Berlin as the one to name a chief justice of Samoa in case the three signatory powers fail to agree on a chief justice. It was this that led to the suggestion of his name at the present time to act as final arbitrator. The expectation is that the sittings of the commission will be in Samoa where, for the time being, they will have complete authority over the whole range of Samoan affairs, so far as the high commission may think fit to act in order to fully restore order, and establish affairs on a stable basis. It will require no treaty to bring the commission into existence, as the acceptances of the United States and Great Britain will complete the agreement.

It is understood that the men selected for the mission will be of high standing so as to give added weight and dignity to their findings, such for instance, as the consul general of Germany, whose jurisdiction covers the whole range of Pacific affairs. He is a man of complete information on Samoan and other Pacific island subjects, as well as a man of political influence. The United States and British commissioners, it is understood, would be drawn from the same high rank with a view, however, to their information on international matters of this character rather than their political standing.

As showing that the acute phase of the Samoan question is past, Baron Speck Von Sternberg, first secretary of Germany, left here Friday night for New York, whence he sails on the 6th for London and Berlin. He has been a most active factor throughout the Samoan controversy, having made that question a special study and thus being able to render the ambassador material assistance. His influence at all times has been toward maintaining the friendly relations between the two countries and overcoming the causes of irritation. His trip to London and Berlin has no significance whatever in connection with Samoan affairs, but is entirely personal after the gravity of the affair had passed.

A $400,000 Fire in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—The wholesale hardware house of Miller, Schloss & Schott was almost entirely destroyed by fire fire Friday night, the total loss being estimated at about $400,000. The firm occupied a four-story and basement brick building at Nos. 18-21 Fremont street, near Market, and carried one af the largest and finest stocks of hardware on the Pacific coast. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Ex-Secretary Sherman Convalescing.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Ex-Secretary Sherman passed a comfortable night and Friday the following bulletin was issued by his physicians: "Mr. Sherman has entirely recovered from his pneumonia; is convalescing and gaining strength slowly."

Dead, Aged 114 years.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—"Aunt" Patsy Marshall, colored inmate of the district workhouse, died at a hospital Friday at the age of 114 years, according to the workhouse records.

We notice Union is desirous of entering a man for the General Assembly. We know not whether there are any aspirants over there, but would suggest, P. T., that you trot out Lin Frazier, whom we take to be a man of the ability, integrity and general information necessary for that important place. We have no idea that Mr. F. is an aspirant, but we are sometimes forced to believe that those who don't aspire, make better officials than some who do.

Gunpowder.

L. M. Rouse was in the neighborhood on business, last Thursday.

Wood sawings are over and the people here are pretty well prepared for zero weather should it come next winter.

The few days of fair weather has about dried up the mud, and the roads are in a condition that they can be traveled again.

We desire to extend to our friends our sincere thanks for their assistance during our protracted illness, also, for their generosity in volunteering and sawing a nice lot of wood for us. Respectively,

B. C. SURFACE,
MRS. ADA SURFACE.

We are glad to report that Mrs B. C. Surface's health is improving rapidly, and we hope she will be able to be out in the near future. Her daughter, Mrs. H. F. Utz, who has been with her during her illness, has returned home, and Miss Ella Glass, of near Bank Lick, has taken her place.

Richwood.

Our neighborhood is very much interested in the Utz-Crates-Jones controversy.

The Str. Workum went to Aurora, Sunday evening to take the remains of John Cox, an old river man, to Riverview cemetery.

The Fiscal Court will be called on to make a donation to build a bridge across Woolper at Dr. Grant's crossing. They will hardly do it.

Mrs. Jas. Graham, daughter of Mack Aylor, died in Lawrenceburg, one day last week. Mr. Graham is connected with the M. E. Leming Lumber Co.

Three big John owls have made their homes in the pine trees in the cemetery this winter, and every night about dark they can be seen flying around hunting for their prey.

Hubert Walton's friends were uneasy about him the night of the Misses Chambers' party, as he was over an hour behind his time promised to call for his lady friend.

Frank Klopp will plant 8 acres of watermelons and two acres of muskmelons; Doc House will plant 6 acres; Will Rector 8; Ed Cox 6; Eugene Witham 8; Reuben Akin 5, and other growers in proportion.

The Lawrenceburg ferry boat got caught on some floating drift Thursday while crossing and stopped her locomotion. She drifted into the Kentucky shore just above town and the Pauline towed her into port.

The RECORDER man spent three days at Hartford, Ind., last week. This is the most fertile spot in Indiana and the farmers raise all kinds of produce. Wheat looks fine and the hill sides are white with tobacco canvass.

Miss Blanch Evans and sister, May, were seriously hurt in a runaway accident on Ferris' hill, last Sunday. For a long time it was thought Miss Blanch was fatally hurt, but she has revived and is getting along nicely at present.

James W. Gaines, of Utzinger, Billy Casey, Wallace Grant and Jack Smith took an Easter walk down the sand road Sunday. Hubert was absent and we are uneasy about him. The boys all wore big lillies on the lapels of their coats.

Wm. Houze caught a bottle floating in the river, and in it was a message from Miss Hattie K. Conwell, of Mannington, West Va. Kitchen, as he is familiarly called, answered the message, and by return mail received a nice letter and a photograph of the young lady, a handsome brunette of 19 years. Kitchen has sent his likeness to the young lady, and some seem to think the proceedings will culminate in a marriage.

About 11 o'clock, Saturday, all the whistles about town began blowing, and soon had all the residents from their homes, thinking a fire was raging, but it was only to announce the approach of the new steamer City of Pittsburg on her initial trip to New Orleans. On her approach to the city of Aurora she was hailed by the booming of cannons. She is a very pretty boat, not so large as the City of Louisville, but some wider. Her pilot house was off and her pipes laid down so she could get under the bridges.

Union.

H. G. Blanton, of Erlanger, was in town Sunday.

Rev. Moore preached Saturday and Sunday at Sardis.

Martin and Lewis Weaver were shaking hands with the boys in Union Sunday evening.

Charles Whitson left Union at 5.30 p. m. Sunday evening over the G. P. L., railroad for home. Charley is a walker.

Prof. Batterson, of Hebron, invaded our precinct Monday, with samples of the "plumb-bobs and tri-squares" raised by him on "Mound Field Farm." He also carried samples of a liniment guaranteed to cure any case of rheumatism.

The meeting of the Excelsior [illegible] Club of Richwood with Miss May Norman, Friday evening, was a flattering testimonial to the popularity of Miss May as a hostess, and Union as a place to be entertained. Richwood and Union turned out in full force.

After a long winter made up mostly of "ground hog weather," we looked forward to the coming of Easter with bright anticipations, expecting to see evidences of spring on all sides—grass green, lillies blooming and the atmosphere tempered to suit, but instead of this we measured ice 11 inches thick and felt comfortable in artics and overcoat, while the nearest approach to "easter lillies" we saw were the pretty girls and handsome matrons as they went to church with winter bonnets and wraps and their cheeks made rosy by the crisp breeze that blew steadily from the northwest.

Golden Grange was in session not long since and as we sit on the outside and listened to the songs they sang, a thought capered across the rock bound expanse of our brain pan and crystallized into this query: Why don't the farmers of these United States form a trust, a combine or whatever you may call it? Talk about trusts, they could form a trust that would lay all the trusts in the shade; they could form a trust with 60,000,000 capital if needed, and have the Tin plate, Standard Oil, Steel Armor and all other little one-horse trusts throwing up the sponge and begging for mercy before the year 1900 rolled around.

We understand that in case Dr. Crouch makes the race for Representative, he will stand on the platform of good roads, low taxes, reduced salaries and other items of retrenchment and reform. We also have it from good authority that the Doctor claims good roads can be built all over the State without increasing the State or county taxes and that half a million dollars can be saved the State by a new method of assessment he will present to the people for consideration. If the Doctor can convince people his methods are practicable and capable of bringing forthfruit he can sail into the ring and be assured of a fair deal and plenty of room for a race to the finish in most excellent company, too at that, such as Mr. J. W. Kennedy, Judge Stephens and perhaps others a score.

Hebron.

Miss Bessie Crigler is very ill of la grippe.

Cecil Hafer was home from school, Sunday.

Easter hats and dresses failed to make their appearance here Sunday.

Mrs. Emma Clore spent Saturday and Sunday with friends in Cincinnati.

The variations in the weather have caused a great many to have bad colds.

Woodsawings have been quite prevalent in this neighborhood for a week past.

The candy pulling at the Hall next Saturday night, promises to be a grand affair.

The semi-monthly meeting of the Christian Endeavor was held Sunday evening.

Clint Jackson, of Indiana, was the pleasant guest of Mr. Bullock's family, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jemison Aylor will celebrate their golden wedding today, Wednesday.

Mrs. Willie Graves visited her mother, Mrs. Stephens, last Friday, who has been quite sick.

Spencer Aylor, of Covington, and Everette Aylor, of Limaburg, were the guests of the Miss Hafer, Sunday.

Chas. Clore and family were visiting Mrs. Clore's brother, John Hicks and family, of Covington, last Sunday.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Hossman entertained Mr. and Mrs. Lodge, Mr. and Mrs. Dye and Mr. and Mrs. Cloud.

Sunday School opened here Sunday, with bright prospects. A large crowd was in attendance. The lesson read was the raising of Lazareth, a most appropriate lesson for that day, and one that causes much serious reflection.

Erlanger.

Good Faith Lodge meets next Saturday evening.

Harry C. Kohl and E. E. Morris are the guests of Chas Durain.

We understand that E. O. Mills, the county Superintendent, has divided the Erlanger school district.

The town trustees passed an ordinance for brick sidewalks on Commonwealth ave. and Erlanger Road.

La Fayette members K. of P. visited Burlington Lodge last Saturday, and assisted in conferring the degrees on two candidates. The Burlington members know how to entertain their visitors, as a royal time was had.

Lost, between David Clements' and Tobe Marshall's, a pair of gold spectacles. The finder will please return to Mrs. Jane Clements, and receive her heartfelt thanks.

It will be very much against the grain with many of those who have been summoned as grand and petit jurors for next week, to remain away from home in the event the weather is favorable for doing farm work.

The huckster wagon belonging to W. H. Clayton, of Hebron, sank in the highway near the top of the hill at W. J. Rice's last Thursday. The team and driver were saved, but from the looks of the horses they had a terrible struggle for their lives.

Miss Ella Duncan entertained with a progressive carom party one evening last week. A large number of her friends responded to the invitations, and a most delightful time was the result. Mrs. Corda Clutterbuck was the champion player of the evening.

Coughed 25 Years.

I suffered 25 years with a cough, and spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and for medicine to no avail until I used Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. This remedy makes weak lungs strong. It has saved my life.—J. B. Rosell, Grantsburg, Ill.

The most important cases on the docket for the term of Circuit Court which begins next Monday, are the Commonwealth against Kite Story for killing Col. Carrier at Hamilton, and the suit of John Watson against the Michaels for $15,000 damages, the result of wounds he received in the Erlanger shooting scrap several month since.

The K. of P. Lodge at this place had a rousing meeting last Saturday night, about 65 of that order being in attendance. Erlanger, Petersburg and Rabbit Hash lodges were represented by large delegations. The work was done in the circuit court room. A delightful lunch was served at the residence of W. E. Vest at the conclusion of the meeting.

Mrs. Hattie Arnold gave to her niece Miss Frances Finch on Tuesday afternoon a parcel shower. Some twenty guests, especial friends of the Miss Finch and Mrs. Arnold were present. All bringing parcels of value as a present to the young lady who is soon to enter the delightful state of matrimony. Light refreshments were served.—Williamstown Courier.

Preparatory communion services announced at the Presbyterian church will begin Saturday morning, at 11 o'clock, with a service Saturday evening at 7:30, when the nature of the sacrament and the preparation and qualification of communicauts will be set forth. As the minister must attend Presbytery at Augusta, he canuot get to Burlington in time for services Friday evening.

The directors of the North Kentucky Agricultural Association held an important meeting last Saturday, all the directors being present except J. J. Rucker. The board decided to hold a four days' fair again this year, all the directors voting in favor of it except J. M. Lassing, who also cast J. J. Rucker' vote against the four days' exhibition. It was also decided to have one judge for a ring instead of three as heretofore. The fair will be held on August 30 and 31 and September 1 and 2, and nothing will be left undone to make it the best fair the association has held and second to no similar exhibition in this past of the country.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Rochler Rouse has been on the sick list for some time.

B. F. Jarrell, of Petersburg, was one of the visitors to town Thursday.

Gordon McKim was at home from Oxford College a few days last week.

Chas. B. Rice, of Richwood, was attending to some legal business in town one day last week.

Thos. Baisly, of North Bend, was to town Saturday. He is selling harvesting machinery.

Several of the Burlington ladies were dined by Mrs. E. L. Riley and mother, last Friday.

W. T. Riddell and his friend, Dr. Grant, of Cincinnati, were visiting in Burlington, Sunday.

T. B. Mathews, Superintendent of the Boone Co. Distilling Company, was in town Thursday.

Mrs. Judge Riddell and daughter-in-law, Mrs. M. L. Riddell, dined several of their friends, last Thursday.

Hubert Beemon was in town, one day last week, looking for a farm hand. He found one that filled the bill.

Mrs. John Leathers, of Covington, was visiting her sisters, Mrs. McKim and Mrs. Tolin, of this place, last week.

Thos. Fleming and sister, Mrs. Jane Conner, were in town, Thursday, transacting business with the County Judge.

Esq. J. C. Byland, of Walton, was in town Thursday, and reported everything in good shape in the Walton country.

W. R Bradford, of the firm of Bradford Bros., of Florence, was in this part of the county, last week, booking spring work.

H. Clay Duncan, of Bullittsville, was in town, one day last week, carrying, very carefully, a large carbuncle on the back of his neck.

Miss Katie Smith returned home, last week, from a delightful visit of several weeks with her brother, H. W. Smith and wife, in Cincinnati.

Add Riddell and wife, of Francesville, passed through town, last Thursday, to visit relatives and friends in the southern part of the county.

Revenue Agent Youtsey visited the county and circuit clerks' offices, last Friday, to see if these officers had been observing the stamp laws properly.

Mr. M. S. Bristow, of the Union neighborhood, was in town Thursday. He reported the farmers in his neighborhood away behind with their work.

Mrs. Banker, of Chicago, made the RECORDER a pleasant call, Monday. Mrs. Banker was called to her old home to attend the funeral of her brother, Jerry Moore.

Henry Quick, of Hebron, was in town Thursday, and judging from the quantity of garden seed he loaded up with he will engage in the vegetable business on a large scale this year.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Utz, of the Big Bone neighborhood, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Ryle, Sunday and Monday. Miss Lottie Garrison returned home with them to spend several days.

N. B. Stephens, of Erlanger, was in town two or three days last week. When asked about the crop he expected to cultivate this year, he answered, "The earth and I long since made peace."

Martin Weaver, of Evansville, Tenn., and Lewis Weaver, of Georgetown, Ky., called on the RECORDER, Monday. It was a pleasure to again meet these two old friends, and to see them looking so well.

Mr. Allen H. Sandford and Miss Mabel H. Whitney, were married last week at the home of the bride in Riverside, California. The groom is a brother of G. W. Sandford, of this place, and has many friends here who wish him and his bride a long and happy married life.

W. H. Hayes, of Brownstown, Ind., was in this county last week, looking after some business interest and meeting many of his friends. He is not entirely recovered from an attack of the grippe, and looks a little worse for the wear. He has done well since he located in Brownstown. He said it would look like old times if he could only meet his old friend Edward Gaines, and sing to him, "the twig on a limb, the limb on a tree," &c.

Sam Woods shot a wild duck on the waters of the Miami, above Lawrenceburg, that proved to be a Klondike, for on opening the fowl its gizzard was found to contain small nuggets of gold that amounted to about $4 in value. His luck has caused a small sensation, and duck hunters are more numerous than ever before. The find has started a fever of speculation, and many are anxious to discover where the duck secured such rich but unpalatable food. The banks of the river will be explored by prospectors seeking for traces of gold.

Master Jimmie Allphin had a narrow escape from being seriously hurt, one evening last week. He and his mother came over to town, in a buggy, to attend a carom party. They were in the act of getting out of the buggy at the Boone House, when the mare they were driving, became frightened, and attempted to whirl with the buggy. Jimmie was thrown across the dash board, his head hanging down and in dangerous proximity to the mare's heels. Mrs. Allphin soon got out of the buggy, she hardly knows how, and gathered the lines and prevented the frightened animal from running, and her screams attracted the attention of men close at hand, who came to her assistance, and quieted the mare, when Jimmie was taken from his perilous position, and greatly to the surprise of all he had received only a few slight bruises, while his clothes were torn in several places. Those who saw the occurrence say his escape with his life was truly remarkable.

Commonwealth's Attorney M. D. Gray had his outfit of war implements, an excellent revolver and Craig-Jargensen rifle, with him at the last term of the Owen Circuit Court, and one day he invited several of his friends to visit his room that night, telling them that he would deliver a lecture on modern fire arms and projectiles on that occasion: Shortly after supper Mr. Gray's room was crowded with friends in response to the invitations given during the day, and at the appointed hour he began a very interesting lecture, the first section of which was devoted to his rifle, explaining its mechanism and its effectiveness ou the field of carnage. The revolver was then taken, and the manner in which it should be handled and discharged was being demonstrated by Mr. Gray, when one of the chambers from which he had failed to remove the cartridge, was exploded. Knowing that the room was crowded and fearing that half a dozen or more of those present were shot through, Mr. Gray swooned and it was some time before he was restored sufficiently to be made understaud that, fortunately, no one was hurt. The lecture proceeded no further, and Mr. G. has retired from the lecture field.

FLOWERS OF EASTER.

Dr. Talmage Draws an Inspiration from Them.

The Eloquent Orator's Easter Discourse—Lessons Which the Flowers Bring to the Dispirited and the Bereaved.

In this Easter sermon Dr. Talmage interprets the message which the flowers bring to the anxious, the dispirited and the bereaved; text, Luke 12:28, "If then God so clothe the grass, which is to-day in the field, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, how much more will He clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

The lily is the queen of Bible flowers. The rose may have disputed her throne in modern times and won it, but the rose originally had only five petals. It was under the long continued and intense gaze of the world that the rose blushed into its present beauty. In the Bible train, cassia and hyssop and frankincense and myrrh and spikenard and camphor and the rose follow the lily. Fourteen times in the Bible is the lily mentioned; only twice the rose. The rose may now have wider empire, but the lily reigned in the time of [illegible] of Solomon, in the time of Christ. Caesar had his throne on the hills. The lily had her throne in the valley. In the greatest sermon that was ever preached there was only one flower, and that a lily. The Bedford dreamer, John Bunyan, entered the house of the interpreter and was shown a cluster of flowers and was told to "consider the lillies."

We may study or reject other sciences at our option—it is so with astronomy, it is so with chemistry, it is so with jurisprudence, it is so with physiology, it is so with geology—but the science of botany Christ commands us to study when He says: "Consider the lilies." Measure them from root to tip of petal. Inhale their breath. Notice the gracefulness of their poise. Hear the whisper of the white lips of the eastern and the red lips of the American lily.

Belonging to this royal family of lilies are the lily of the Nile, the Japan lily, the Lady Washington of the Sierras, the Golden band lily, the Giant lily of Nepaul, the Turk's cap lily, the African lily from the Cape of Good Hope. All these lilies have the royal blood in their veins. But I take the lilies of my text this morning as typical of all flowers, and their voice of floral beauty seems to address us, saying: "Consider the lilies, consider the azaleas, consider the fuchsias, consider the geraniums, consider the ivies, consider the hyacinths, consider the heliotropes, consider the oleanders." With deferential and grateful and intelligent and worshipful souls, consider them. Not with insipid sentimentalism or with sophomoric vaporing, but for grand and practical and everyday, and, if need be, homely uses, consider them.

The flowers are the angels of the grass. They all have voices. When the clouds speak they thunder, when the whirlwinds speak they scream, when the cataracts speak they always whisper. I stand here to intrepet their message. What have you to say to us, O ye angels of the grass? This morning I mean to discuss what flowers are good for. That is my subject: What are flowers good for?

I remark, in the first place, they are good for lessons of God's providential care. That was Christ's first thought. All these flowers seem to address us today, saying: "God will give you apparel and food." We have no wheel with which to spin, no loom with which to weave, no sickle with which to harvest, no well sweep with which to draw water, but God feeds us with the bread of the sunshine, and God has apparelled us with more than Solomonic regality. We are prophetesses of adequate wardrobe. "If God so clothed us, the grass of the field, will He not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?" Men and women of worldly anxieties, take this message home with you! How long has God taken care of you? Quarter of the journey of life? Half the journey of life? Three-quarters the journey of life? Can you not trust Him the rest of the way? God does not promise you anything like that which the Roman emperor had on his table at vast expense—500 nightingales' tongues—but He has promised to take care of you. He has promised you the necessities, not the luxuries—bread, not cake. If God so luxuriantly clothes the grass of the field, will He not provide for you, His living and immortal children? He will.

No wonder Martin Luther always had a flower on his writing desk for inspiration! Through the cracks of the prison door a flower grew up to cheer Picciola. Mungo Park, the great traveler and explorer, had his life saved by a flower. He sank down in the desert to die, but, seeing a flower near by, it suggested God's merciful care, and he got up with new courage and traveled on to safety. I said the flowers are the angels of the grass. I add now they are the evangels of the sky.

If you ask me the question: "What are flowers for?" I respond, they are good for the bridal day. The bride must have them on her brow, and she must have them in her hand. The marriage altar must be covered with them. A wedding without flowers would be as inappropriate as a wedding without music. At such a time they are for congratulation and prophecies of good. So much of the pathway of life is covered up with thorns, we ought to cover the beginning with orange blossoms.

Flowers are appropriate on such occasions, for in ninety-nine out of a hundred cases it is the very best thing that could have happened. The world may criticise and pronounce it an ineptitude and may lift its eyebrows in surprise and think it might suggest somedollar better, but the God who sees the 20, 40, 50 years of wedded life before they have begun arranges for the best. So that flowers in almost all cases are appropriate for the marriage day. The divergences of disposition will become correspondences, recklessness will become prudence, frivolity will be turned into practicality.

There has been many an aged widowed soul who had a carefully-locked bureau, and in the bureau a box, and in the box a folded paper, and in the folded paper a half-blown rose, slightly fragrant, discolored, carefully pressed. She put it there 40 or 50 years ago. On the anniversary day of her wedding she will go to the bureau, she will lift the box, she will unfold the paper, and to her eyes will be exposed the half-blown bud, and the memories of the past will rush upon her, and a tear will drop upon the flower, and suddenly it is transfigured, and there is a stir in the dust of the anther, and it rounds out, and it is full of life, and it begins to tremble in the procession up the church aisle, and the dead music of a half ceaturv ago comes throbbing through the air, and vanished faces reappear, and right hands are joined, and a manly voice promises: "I will, for better or for worse," and the wedding march thunders a salvo of joy at the departing crowd, but a sigh on that anniversary day scatters the scene. Under the deep-fetched breath the altar, the flowers, the congratulating groups are scattered, and there is nothing left but a trembling hand holding a faded rosebud, which is put into the paper and then into the box, and the box carefully placed in the bureau, and with a sharp, sudden click of the lock the scene is over.

Ah, my friends, let not the prophecies of the flowers on your wedding day be false prophecies. Be blind to each other's faults. Make the most of each other's excellencies. Remember the vows, the ring on the third finger of the left hand, and the benediction of the calla lilies.

If you ask me the question: "What are flowers good for?" I answer, they are good to honor and comfort the obsequies. The worst gash ever made into the side of our poor earth is the gash of the grave. It is so deep, it is so cruel, it is so inexurable, that it needs something to cover it up. Flowers for the casket, flowers for the hearse, flowers for the cemetery. What a contrast between a grave in a country churchyard, with the fence broken down and the tombstone askant and the neighboring cattle brawsing amid the mullein stalks and the Canada thistles, and a June morning in Greenwood, the wave of roseate bloom rolling to the top of the mounds and then breaking into foaming crests of white flowers all around the pillows of dust. It is the difference between sleeping under rags and under an embroidered blanket. We want old Mortality with his chisel to go through all the graveyards in Christendom, and while he carries a chisel in one hand we want old Mortality to have some flower seed in the palm of the other hand.

"Oh," you say, "the dead don't know; it makes no difference to them." I think you are mistaken. There are not so many steamers and trains coming to any living city as there are convoys coming from Heaven to earth, and if there be instantaneous and constant communication between this world and the better world, do you not suppose your departed friends know what you do with their bodies? Why has God planted golden-rod and wild flowers in the forest and on the prairie, where no human eye ever sees them? He planted them there for invisible intelligences to look at and admire, and when invisible intelligences come to look at the wild flowers of the woods and the table lands, will they not make excursion and see the flowers which you have planted in affection and remembrance of them?

When I am dead I would like to have a handful of violets—anyone could pluck them out of the grass, or some one could lift from the edge of the pond a water lily—nothing rarely expensive, no insane display, as sometimes at funeral rites, where the display takes the bread from the children's mouths and the clothes from their backs, but something from the great democracy of flowers. Rather than imperial catafalque of Russian czar, I ask some one whom I may have helped by a Gospel sermon or Christian deed to bring a sprig of arbutus or a handful of China asters.

It was left for modern times to spell respect for the departed and comfort for the living in letters of floral gospel. Pillow of flowers, meaning rest for the pilgrim who has got to the end of his journey. Anchor of flowers, suggesting the Christian hope which we must have as an anchor of the soul, sure and steadfast. Cross of flowers, suggesting the tree on which our sins were slain. If I had my way, I would cover up all the dreamless sleepers, whether in golden-handled casket or pine box, whether a king's mausoleum or potter's field, with radiant or aromatic arborescence. The Bible says: "In the midst of the garden there was a sepulcher." I wish that every sepulcher might be in the midst of a garden.

If you asked me the question: "What are flowers good for?" I answer: "For religious symbolism." Have you ever studied Scriptural flora? The Bible is an arboretum, it is a Divine conservatory, it is a herbarium of exquisite beauty. If you want to illustrate the brevity of the brightest human life you will quote from Job: "Man cometh forth as a flower and is cut down." Or you will quote from the psalmist: "As the flower of the field, so he perisheth; the wind passeth over it, and it is gone." Or you will quote from Isaiah: "All flesh is grass, and the godliness thereof is as the flower of the field." Or you will quote from James the apostle: "As the flower of the grass, so he passeth away." What graphic Bible symbolism!

All the cut flowers will soon be dead, whatever care you take of them. Though morning and night you baptize them in the name of the shower, the baptism will not be to them a saving ordinance. They have been fatally wounded with the knife that cut them. They are bleeding their life away; they are dying now. The fragrance in the air is their departing and ascending spirits. Oh, yes! Flowers are almost human. Botanists tell us that flowers breathe, they take nourishment, they eat, they drink. They are sensitive. They have their likes and dislikes. They sleep, they wake. They live in families. They have their ancestors and their descendants, their birth, their burial, their cradle, their grave. The zephyr rocks the one and the storm digs the trench for the other. The cowslip must leave its gold, the lily must leave its silver, the rose must leave its diamond necklace of morning dew. Dust to dust. So we come up, so we prosper, we spread abroad, we die, as the flower—as the flower!

Change and decay in all around I see;
O Thou who changest not, abide with me!

Flowers also afford mighty symbolism of Christ, who compared Himself to the ancient queen, the lily, and the modern queen, the rose, when He said: "I am the rose of Sharon, and the lily of the valley." Redolent like the one, humble like the other. Like both, appropriate for the sad who want sympathizers and for the rejoicing who want banqueters. Hovering over the marriage ceremony like a wedding bell or folded like a chalet on the pulseless heart of the dead, O Christ, let the perfume of Thy name be wafted all around the earth—lily and rose, lily and rose—until the wilderness crimson into a garden and the round earth turn into one great bud of immortal beauty laid against the warm heart of God. Snatch down from the world's banners eagle and lion and put on lily and rose, lily and rose.

But, my friends, flowers have no grander use than when on Easter morning we celebrate the reanimation of Christ from the catacombs. The flowers spell resurrection. There is not a nook or corner in all the building but is touched with the incense. The women carried spices to the tomb of Christ, and they dropped spices all around about the tomb, and from the spices have grown all the flowers of Easter morn. The two white-robed angels that hurled the stone away from the door of the tomb hurled it with such violence down the hill that it crushed in the door of the world's sepulcher, and millions of dead shall come forth.

However labyrinthine the mausoleum, however costly the sarcophagus, however architecturally grand the necropolis, however beautifully parterred the family gounds, we want them all broken up by the Lord of the resurrection. The forms that we laid away with our broken hearts must rise again. Father and mother, they must come out. Husband and wife, they must come out. Brothers and sisters, they must come out. Our darling children, they must come out. The eyes that with trembling fingers we closed must open in the luster of resurrection morn. The arms that we folded in death must join ours in embrace of reunion. The beloved voice that was hushed must be resumed. The beloved form must come up without its infirmities, without its fatigues. It must come up. Oh, how long it seems to some of you! Waiting, waiting for the resurrection. How long, how long! I make for your broken hearts to-day a cool, soft bandage of lilies. I comfort you this day with the thought of resurrection.

When Lord Nelson was buried in St. Paul's cathedral in London, the heart of all England was stirred. The procession passed on amid the sobbing of a nation. There were 30 trumpeters stationed at the door of the cathedral, with instruments of music in hand, waiting for the signal, and, when the illustrious dead arrived at the gates of St. Paul's cathedral, these 30 trumpeters gave one united blast, and then all was silent. Yet the trumpets did not wake the dead. He slept right on. But I have to tell you, what 50 trumpeters could not do for one man, one trumpeter will do for all nations. The ages have rolled on, and the clock of the world's destiny strikes 9, 10, 11, 12, and time shall be no longer!

Behold the archangel hovering! He takes the trumpet, pouts it this way, puts its lips to his lips and then blows one long, loud, terrific, thunderous, reverberating and resurrectionary blast! Look, look! They rise! The dead—the dead! some coming forth from the family vault, some from the city cemetery, some from the country graveyard. Here a spirit is joined to its body, and there another spirit is joined to another body, and millions of departed spirits are assorting the bodies, and then reclothing themselves in forms radiant for ascension.

The earth begins to burn—the bonfire of a great victory. All ready now for the procession of reconstructed humanity! Upward and away! Christ leads, and all the Christian dead follow, battalion after battalion, nation after nation. Up, up! On, on! Forward, ye ranks of God Almighty! Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates and let the conquerors come in! Resurrection! Resurrection!

And so I twist all the festal flowers of the chapels and cathedrals of all Christendom into one great chain, and with that chain I bind the Easter morning of 1899 with the closing Easter of the world's history—resurrection! May the God of peace that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the covenant, make you perfect in every good work to do His will.

COFFEE IN PORTO RICO.

Coffee raising ranks second as an industry in Porto Rico, bringing wage into the pockets of thousands of earners and substantial profits to the coffers of the plantation owner and exporter.

Besides the assured income from a well-planted coffee plantation, the life of the planter and owner has many desirable features which recommend it as an occupation to be followed by the American investor. First, coffee must needs be raised in the higher altitudes of the picturesque rolling hills, and on the faces of the steep mountainous inclines which finish upward in sharp zigzagging narrow ridges, thus giving him a healthful, cool place of residence, away from the hot lowlands and fever country of the coast. Second, in the hills and mountains living springs for uncontaminated water-supply are found, and, at the worst, he has always at hand the cooler, frothing, dashing torrents of the rock-bound mountain streams from which to draw crystalline water. Third, and perhaps most important, no great technical training is required to raise coffee successfully, as is the case with raising sugar or tobacco. Fourth, it is an easier one for the proprietor—which is no small factor in a torrid zone, where excessive activity is sure to bring on fever in the case of the unacclimated—in that he travels in the shade of the forest which shelters his coffee trees from the hot sun, as he makes his overseeing tours, and works under cover where the pulpy berry is changed into the finished and polished bean of commerce.

Good coffee land ranges in price from $20 to $500 an acre, depending upon location and the topography of the site, and again whether it be virgin soil or in crop of varying age, the highest price being asked for five-year-old full-bearing trees, near the great military highways, within easy-hauling distance of coast shipping centers.

It may be said that $500 is a fictitious value for any coffee plantation, and that the owner naming such a price is usually a Spaniard, filled with a desire to return to Spain, but inwardly fearing, even in his dislike of the American, that the new rule may mean unparalleled progress in the island. Two hundred dollars an acre for well-grown trees, with adequate shade above them, has hitherto been considered a good round sum for a plantation, though as much as $300 has been paid under Spanish rule.—Harper's Weekly.

A LITTLE KNOWN SPOT.

Gloomy Ravine in Yellowstone Park That Is Seldom Visited by Tourists.

Death gulch is a small and gloomy ravine in the northeast corner of the Yellowstone National park. "In this region the lavas which fill the ancient basin of the park rest upon the flanks of mountains formed of fragmentary volcanic ejecta, . . . while the hydrothermal forces of the central portion of the park show but feeble manifestations of their energy in the almost extinct hot-spring areas of Soda Butte, Lamar river, Cache creek and Miller creek." Although hot water no longer flows from these vents, "gaseous emanations are now given off in considerable volume." On Cache creek, about two miles above its confluence with Lamar river, are deposits of altered and crystalline travertine, with pools in the creek violently effervescing locally. This is due to the copious emission of gas. Above these deposits "the creek cuts into a bank of sulphur and grass cemented by this material, and a few years beyond is the debouchure of a small lateral gulch coming down from the mountain side. In its bottom is a small stream of clear and cold water, sour with sulphuric acid, and flowing down a narrow and steep channel cut in beds of dark-gray volcanic tuff. Ascending this gulch, the sides, closing together, become very steep slopes of white, decomposed rock. . . . The only springs now flowing are small oozes of water issuing from the base of these slopes, or from the channel bed, forming a thick, creamy, white deposit about the vents, and covering the stream bed. This deposit consists largely of sulphate of aluminum. . . . About 150 feet above the main stream these oozing springs of acid water cease, but the character of the gulch remains the same. The odor of sulphur now becomes stronger, though producing no other effect than a slight irritation of the lungs.—T. A. Jaggar, Jr., in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly.

Trying to Save Alkali Deserts.

Investigations by the division of soils of the department of agriculture into the alkali waste lands of the Yellow stone valley, particularly in Montana, develop the fact that great tracts may be saved by underdrainage. The damage is due principally to excess of water used in irrigation and the resultant accumulation of salts. It is urged by the division officers that the land be saved from utter annihilation by underdrainage, which, though being expensive, is sure to be a paying investment.—Chicago Chronicle.

Expensive Change.

Incautiously he had monkeyed with a buzzsaw, and his arms had been amputated about half way between wrist and elbow.

Skillful manufacturers of artificial limbs had made good the shortage, however, and provided him with the best imitations of hands they could turn out.

"This concern," he observed, cheerfully, as they strapped them on him, "has changed hands."

Whereupon they added two more bones to the bill.—Chicago Tribune

THE NEW METHOD OF BLOOD PURIFYING.

What the New Discovery in Medical Science Has Accomplished.

The Prompt Way to Cure Yourself When Symptoms Show That Your Blood is Out Of Order.

THE EMINENT SPECIALIST'S FREE OFFER TO ALL READERS OF THIS PAPER.

For a great many years it has been the custom for sick people to say: "My blood is out of order. It needs purifying. I feel all used up. My skin needs clearing. My brain feels tired."

They are right, but do they act right? They generally go and get a laxative (bowel cleaner) to purify their blood.

Does their blood run through their bowels?

Science has to-day furnished proofs that all the purifying that your blood needs, in fact, all that can be done, must be done by your kidneys.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys every three minutes.

The kidneys strain or filter out the impurities of the blood—that is their work.

Purifying your blood is not a question of taking a laxative or physic.

Does your blood run through your bowels?

What the bowel-cleaner does is to throw out the poisons confined in your bowels ready for absorption into your blood, but the poisons which are already in your blood, causing your present sickness it leaves there.

There is no other way of purifying your blood except by means of your kidneys.

That is why bowel-cleaners fail to do their work—they fail to help the kidneys.

When you are sick, then, no matter what you think the name of your disease is, the first thing you should do is to afford aid to your kidneys by using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great Kidney Remedy.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

Dr. Kilmer, the eminent physician and specialist, has attained far-famed reputation through the discovery and marvelous success of Swamp-Root in purifying the blood, and thereby curing chronic and dangerous diseases, caused by sick kidneys, of which some of the symptoms are given below.

Pain or dull ache in the back or head, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, dizziness, irregular heart, sleeplessness, sallow complexion, pimples, blotches, skin troubles, dropsy, irritability, loss of ambition, obliged to pass water often during the day, and to get up many times at night, and all forms of kidney, bladder and uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root is sold by all dealers, in fifty-cent or one dollar bottles. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

The great discovery Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arraagement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail, post-paid. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

SUFFRAGE A FAILURE.

That Is What the Men Out in Colorado Think About the Woman's Rights Question.

"Colorado politicians will, almost to a man, in private conversation declare that woman suffrage is a failure and a farce in our state, but one of them has the nerve to say so over his own signature in the newspapers," said Mr. F. R. Graham, a leading business man of Durango, Col., to a Washington Post reporter.

"As I do not aspire to office, there is no reason for timidity on my part, and I unhesitatingly declare that the experiment of giving the ballot to women in Colorado has been as rank a piece of foolishness as any people ever inflicted upon themselves; it has done a very little good, perhaps, and a great deal more of harm, and, though it may never be repealed, there is no possibility of good coming out of it. The women claim that their presence has made the elections cleaner, but I contend that they appropriate credit that does not belong to them, for, while the elections are better conducted than formerly, the improvement is due to the Australian system and not to the women.

"The presence of women in conventions and political meetings is to my mind degrading to them. Surrounded by a lot of coarse men whom they would not elevate or refine in a lifetime, they are entirely out of their element. Their vote in no way conduces to better government than if they were without the franchise, for they vote on sentiment, or follow the lead of their husbands, and so the only result is to increase the number of voters. There are thousands of good women in the state who are tired of the business and very much regret that the ballot was ever conferred on their sex.

BAKED BEANS TRAIN.

An Express That Carries Tons of This Food to Exiled Bostonians.

Your true Bostonian who is forced to exist in New York has little to comfort him in his exile, says the Chicago Chronicle.

There is only one solace to his cup of bitterness, and that is his Sunday morning breakfast. And as he sits down complacently to this one meal of all the week which reminds him of home he offers up a fervent prayer of thanksgiving for two mercies. One is that he is still a Bostonian, and the other is for the baked beans train.

The baked beans train comes rolling into the Grand Central depot in New York every Sunday morning at about six o'clock. It comes in every other morning, to be sure, but only on Sunday does it possess any special significance. There is always an express car attached, but on week days it is filled with a miscellaneous cargo.

Not so on Sunday mornings. Then there is a penetrating aroma, which comes from stacks and stacks of freshly baked beans in pots. They are consigned to an enterprising purveyor in New York, who covers a regular route with a number of delivery wagons. Within two hours after the train comes in the contents of the express car have been distributed.

The Saturday night run out of Boston is known among the train hands as the baked beans run.

Her Inconsistency.

"No," said the Boston dame, as she glared wildly, through her double-refracting spectacles, "I will never lend my aid, nor encourage by my silence, the wanton slaughter of harmless birds. I am bitterly opposed to the killing of these sprightly sparrows. Yes, indeed. And I have only the most studied contempt for the selfish wretches—I mention no names—who lead themselves to, or profit by, the cruel killing of birds in any form."

A stifled laugh ran around the hall. The speaker paused and looked about her. Then she turned to the woman chairman.

"What arouses the laughter?" she softly inquired.

"I guess it's your hat," replied the chairman.

"My hat!" gasped the orator, and sat down with a dull blush on her faded cheek.

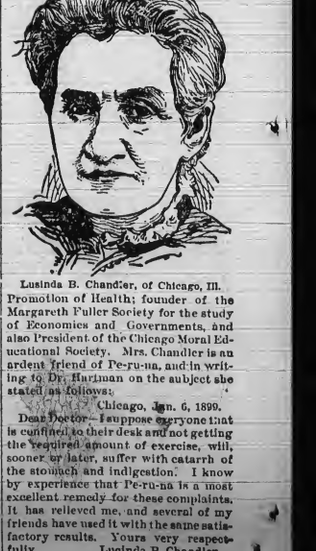
For her hat was adorned with three plumes, five feathers and a large blue wing!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Nickname Saved Him.

"His name is Percy Algernon," said the girl in the Seventh street car to her chum. "Pretty, ain't it? But, then, it's kind o' soft-like, too, don't you think?"

"Kind o'," said the other girl. "I like Bill, or Jim, or something like that, myself. Never knew a Bill or Jim yet that wasn't reliable. I hope Percy Algernon'll prove to be nice, but I think his name's awf'ly against him, honest I do, Min."

Then the other girl looked thoughtful for a couple of blocks.



"Oh, but he told me," she said, suddenly, then, "that the men down at the store call him 'Spud.'"

"Then you needn't worry," was the consolatory reply. "He's all right," and thus it was settled that Percy Algernon would do.—Washington Post.

THE PRESENT ISSUES.

Protection and Monopoly Are to Be Fought the Same as in 1896.

The text of Mr. Bryan's letter written in November, 1897, and made public by the New York Verdict, is very interesting. Indeed, it may be described as an echo of the present situation, although it was written a year and a half ago. It calls, as it were, pat to the occasion. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Bryan says that "events have forced certain issues into the foreground, and the people are ready to act upon them," and he adds: "To invite them to pass over these questions and take up new ones, will be a confession that we were wrong last fall, and weaken the force of our arguments." This is just as true now as it was when Mr. Bryan wrote it, and the following describes the necessities of the hour from the party point of view as aptly as it did a year and a half ago. "Those who are trying to overthrow the reign of plutocracy inaugurated by the republican party will have to do the best they can, each following his own judgment, and I trust that our forces may be concentrated upon certain reforms held in common, rather than divided, when the next battle begins."

By far the most momentous outcome of the reign of plutocracy inaugurated by the republicans is to be found in the growth and development of the trusts, and, so far as the welfare of the people is concerned, this trust growth is a very great issue. To discuss it is to discuss in part, if not in whole, the very greatest of all the issues before the people, which is the money question, writes Clark Stowell in the Atlanta Constitution. We believe that no political student now contends that the tariff is responsible for the growth of trusts. That view may be held by editors in Ohio or Indiana, but it has been practically discarded by thoughtful men since recent events have shown that the tariff has no possible effect on prices. Today the wool industry, which was especially "taken care of" by the Dingley tariff is in a worse condition than any other productive industry in the country. It is very clear, therefore, the growth of trusts is due to the fact that the great bulk of the available money of the country is concentrated in a few hands. Ten men in New York control all the important railways in the country; one firm will soon control the coal supply of the east; a great banking firm with international connections has "financed" more than half of the numerous trusts and combines that have been formed during the past 18 months. As we have said many times before, the growth of trusts is due to the reduction of the money supply which has followed the demonetization of silver. The increase in the gold supply, which our mint directors have exploited with so many flourishes, has either been pocketed by the gold syndicates, or it has gone into the arts. At any rate, it has had no appreciable effect on prices. It is idle to lay the blame of trust building to those who engage in it. The individual firms go into it not merely to increase their profits, but as a matter of self-protection. Once in, they no longer have to fight eg—...rate competition of rivals. More than that, if they need money to carry on their business, they do not have to pay costly discounts to the local banks; they are able to borrow at low rates from the institution which has "financed" the combination to which they belong. The Constitution expressed its surprise in 1897 that more trusts had not been formed, all the conditions being ripe for them. It seems that they were then in contemplation by the very plutocracy which "financed" the republican party in 1896, and they blossomed out vigorously in the latter part of 1898. In the first two months of the present year they have surpassed all expectation. Thirty or forty industrial combinations have been formed, with capital amounting to over a billion of dollars. Some of our esteemed contemporaries who have aided to bring about a state of affairs which they are now inclined to resent, solace themselves with the belief, real or pretended, that this great trust movement is a bubble which is bound to burst with a crash. The truth is, that, while some of the combines may be on an insecure footing, the great body of them are as solid as the gold standard itself, are based on its operations, and are direct results of the conditions which that standard imposes on general business. This being so, what are the people going to do about it? What are democrats going to do about it? Trust expansion is a definite part of the money question —is the direct and inevitable result of the gold standard, which places every business and industrial enterprise in the country completely at the mercy of those who control the available supply of gold. So far as this money question is concerned, the party is practically a unit. Those who favor the gold standard are so insignificant as to numbers and influence that they have no influence whatever in the councils of the party. Under these circumstances, and with the rapid progress of trust expansion menacing the interests of the people, would it not be a dangerous piece of folly for the organization to overshadow this great issue with others on which it is by no means a unit? It is necessary to the interests of the people that all who are opposed to plutocracy, all who are opposed to the aggressions of monopoly, all of whom are opposed to trust expansion, all who are opposed to the gold standard, all who believe in the vital principles of Jeffersonian democracy, should gather under one banner and present a united front against the corrupt and corrupting agent of the plutocrats, the republican party. Can this be done by taking up new issues and overshadowing those which are most vital and insistent, and which most directly affect the domestic interests of our people? Would it not be the part of folly to overshadow the money question and currency reform by bringing to the front issues on which democrats are divided, and which have a very remote bearing, if any, on the everyday affairs of the American people? There are some questions which the people themselves settle without going through the formality of a campaign, and we think it is safe to number with these some, if not all, of the issues growing out of the war with Spain. The party will make a great mistake if it goes into the campaign next year with its vital issues handicapped by these new questions on which democrats are not by any means united. There will be a tremendous effort made on the part of a handful of gold democrats to switch the party away from the Chicago platform, but as these efforts will be practically confined to newspapers that are inimical to democratic principles, and to states normally republican, no harm will be done unless the democrats themselves fall into the trap which has been set for them.

MONEY AND TRADE.

The Price of Labor and All Commodities Under Control of the Capitalists.

What is involved in the control of the money of a country? What power does the possessor of that right wield? James A. Garfield simply reduced to an axiom a well-known principle of economies when he said: "Whoever has control of the money of a country has absolute control of its trade and commerce." So that the question of free silver and the issue of greenbacks involves the control of the trade and commerce of the country, does it? Do you know of any "reform which would benefit" the 75,000,000 Americans so much as would the taking of the control of their trade and commerce out of the hands of the Rothschilds, citizens of alien and competitive nations, and placing it in their own hands? But in controlling the money how can they control the trade and commerce? Simply by making money plenty, or by making it scarce! They can issue $50 per capita, and inaugurate a boom and an era of wild speculation, and can suddenly contract it to $17 and brankrupt hundreds of thousands. We had an illustration of that once. We had $50 per capita at the close of 1867, and we had $17 per capita when 1873 was ushered in. The government did it then, for the government then had control of the money. But the government did it all at the dictation of the men who are now asking us to give them the same power the government then had. Whoever controls the amount of money in circulation can fix the price of labor, and every product of labor; for the price of labor, as well as of all commodities, is determined by the amount of money there is to exchange for it. If there were but 1,000 bushels of wheat in the market, and but $500 to invest in it, it must sell for 50 cents per bushel. Extend this principle to as many articles and as much money as you may and it holds good, for it is a law.

THE TRUSTS RULE.

Ruin for the People Will Result from the Triumph of Monopolists.

Independent enterprises are being crushed out of existence by the trusts. Small business concerns must go to the wall and labor must accept the dole of charity or starve if the reign of the trusts is allowed to continue.

Some republican editors are beginning to recognize the danger which threatens the people from the operations of the combines, but the republican party is bound hand and foot by the trusts and protests are unavailing.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican sees the condition of affairs and comments as follows:

"What of the general industrial effect of this? Every trust that has been formed has closed some factories and discharged some wage labor, and people have talked of it as a baneful influence of consolidation and monopoly. And what, then, of the trust when it begins to add commercial travelers to the army of the unemployed, and other salaried or commission agents, and then merchants—among the very mainsteays of the existing industrial and social fabric?"

This question contains its own answer. When the mainstays of the existing social fabric are added to the army of the unemployed the social fabric will tumble to fragments and commercial chaos will follow.

Ruin for the people will be the result of the complete triumph of the trusts, and with this disaster will come the destruction of the combines. The democrats wish to prevent this sort of revolution, but the republicans are doing all in their power to bring it to pass.—Chicago Democrat.

Finding Out Some Things.

The war inquiry board is finding out a lot of things that it did not bargain for when it began its journeyings from Washington. It was thought that in the vicinity of the packing houses the testimony as to the excellence of the beef would preponderate. But right under the very eaves of these houses come witnesses, bearing certificates of character from the packers themselves, who testify that the meat canned for the soldiers was so bad that it burst the cans, and filled the cars with such a horrible odor that ammonia had to be used in large quantities to enable workmen to approach the stuff to handle it. That was the kind of meat that Alger and Commissary General Eagan thought fit for American soldiers who left homes and occupations to sustain the honor of the flag.—Utica Observer.

——It is good of the taxpayers to put up $20,000 and furnish a government ship for Mr. Alger to cruise about Cuba in search of private investments. His services to the country as secretary of war have been so distinguished for perfidy, partisanship and incompetency, that he is deserving of just such a junket. America always glories in her heroes.—Kansas City Times.

Consumers of the choicest products of modern commerce purchase at about the same price that others pay for cheap and worthless imitations. To come into universal demand and to be everywhere considered the best of its class, an article must be capable of satisfying the wants and tastes of the best informed purchasers. The California Fig Syrup Company having met with the highest success in the manufacture and sale of its excellent liquid laxative remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, it has become important to all to have a knowledge of the Company and its product. The California Fig Syrup Company was organized more than fifteen years ago, for the special purpose of manufacturing and selling a laxative remedy which would be more pleasant to the taste and more beneficial in effect than any other known. The great value of the remedy, as a medicinal agent and of the Company's efforts, is attested by the sale of millions of bottles annually, and by the high approval of most eminent physicians. As the true and genuine remedy named SYRUP OF FIGS is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only, the knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties.

ALABASTINE

LABASTINE is the original and only durable wall coating, entirely different from all kalsomines. Ready for use in white or twelve beautiful tints by adding cold water.

ADIES—naturally prefer ALABASTINE for walls and ceilings, because it is pure, clean, durable. Put up in dry powdered form, in five-pound packages, with full directions.

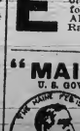
LL kalsomines are cheap, temporary preparations made from whiting, chalks, clays, etc., and stuck on walls with decaying animal glue. ALABASTINE is not a kalsomine.

EWARE of the dealer who says he can sell you the "same thing" as ALABASTINE or "something just as good." He is either not posted or is trying to deceive you.

ND IN OFFERING something he has bought cheap and tries to sell on ALABASTINE'S demands, he does not realize the damage you will suffer by a kalsomine on your walls.

ENSIBLE dealers will not buy a lawsuit. Dealers risk one by selling and consumers by using infringement. Alabastine Co. own right to make wall coating to mix with cold water.

HE INTERIOR WALLS of every schoolhouse should be coated only with pure, durable ALABASTINE. It safeguards health. Hundreds of tons are used annually for this work.



N BUYING ALABASTINE, see that packages are properly labeled. Beware of large four-pound package light kalsomine, offered to customers as a five-pound package.

UISANCE of wall paper is obviated by ALABASTINE. It can be used on plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or canvas. A child can brush it on. It does not rub or scale off.

STABLISHED in favor. Shun all imitations. Ask paint dealer or druggist for tint card. Write for "Alabastine Ere," free, to ALABASTINE CO., Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Not an acre of land in the bottoms in Hancock county has been prepared for oats or corn.

John H. Wade, who was sentenced to 18 years in the penitentiary at the last term of the Grant Circuit Court, for manslaughter, escaped from the jail at Williamstown, one day last week. He concealed himself in the bathroom, and had a string extending from there to his cell where it was made fast to a chair, which he pulled over when the jailer came in, making him think Wade was back in his cell, and giving him more time in which to escape. In his cell Wade left a note which read as follows: "Mr. Cates:—You know that it stands everybody in hand to take care of No. 1, and if you get caught in this trap you can't blame me. I have a wife and baby to support and can't do it in the pen. You have treated me mighty nice since I have been here, but am awful glad you left the door open. Good bye.

J. H. Wade.

"P. S.—I got the string out of the bedtick. No one gave it to me."

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier.]

Gus Stevens accidentally shot Chester Hensley in the thigh Monday evening and inflicted a painful but not dangerous wound. Hensley was trying to sell Gus a revolver, when the weapon was discharged. Hensley was taken to his home and his wound dressed and pronounced not serious. Both are boys, neither more than 17. The pistol was a 22 caliber.

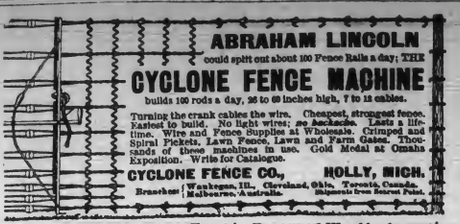
Grant county is the home of a number of good farmers who have been very successful as tillers of the soil. Especially is this true of William Conrad, who broke the record last year as a tobacco raiser. Recently he delivered at Dry Ridge, to Mr. R. A. Shaw, agent for Liggett & Myers, his crop of tobacco containing 29,480 pounds at $8 per hundred pounds, which was raised on 12 acres of ground, making an average of 2490 pounds per acre, the largest average ever known in this county.

Albert Burns, a farmer living near Delia, was struck and instantly killed by lightning last Wednesday evening during the heavy thunder-storm. He had just returned to his home from his day's work and had seated himself near a window when the deadly bolt entered through the top of the house and killed him. His wife and four children were sitting in the room near him and none of them were injured in any manner, although one of the children's dresses was scorched by the electric current.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[Herald.]

Mrs. J. W. Greene has received a letter from Mrs. B. W. Duke, who wishes a chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy organized in this county.



Lee McCann, Ben McPherson, William McPherson and Norvell Parris found a nest of young foxes last week and distributed them among cats with kittens, the mother fox being killed by the dogs. The young foxes are cared for by the cats as though they were kittens and the probabilities are that they will be raised all right.

The bodies of our soldiers who laid down their lives for the freedom of Cuba have been returned to this country for interment. Among those on the transport Crook reaching New York last Thursday, was that of Sergeant Silas Wilson, of this county, who was killed at Santiago. We presume the remains will be sent here for burial, but have no information upon that point.

A small shooting took place at the Vest Hotel last Monday night. Lon Malcomb and Sim May had a difficulty, in which Malcomb attempted to shoot May, the ball missing its mark and lodging in the lower part of the leg of Ed James, a bystander, inflicting a slight wound. Malcomb waived an examination before City Judge Slaughter and was held in $500 bond to the next grand jury.

Between 5 and 6 o'clock last Saturday evening Duke Rice and Ed Kemp became engaged in a quarrel and as the result thereof Rice was badly beaten up with a stone or stones. It is impossible to get a straight story of the fight. However, Rice was driving down through Aurora to cross the river to visit his father and Kemp got in to ride with him. It is said that Rice cast serious reflections upon a brother of Kemp, whereupon the fight immediately began. Rice was felled with a stone and was struck several times upon the head with a stone after he was down. He was horribly beaten up and so seriously hurt that he required skillful surgical treatment to save him, and it was not thought safe to take him to his home until the next day. The fight occurred on the Rising Sun pike about a mile below town and even on Monday morning a great pool of blood in the road marked the place where Rice was beaten. A warrant was sworn out for the arrest of Kemp but he has not been captured at the time of this writing, Tuesday afternoon.—Aurora Independent.

Midway.

The members of the Big Bone Masonic Lodge met last Saturday, and quite a lot of pleasant Lodge business was done.

W. C. Johnson sold to John Taylor at Beaver Lick, one day last week, a very fine steer. It was so roguish that it was impossible to keep him on his farm, hence Mr. Taylor got a bargain.

Garfield Slater, who is attending High School at Burlington, was visiting his parents over on Mudlick creek, last Saturday and Sunday. He is a model young man, and speaks well of his school.

G. B. Miller and John Rich, two fanciers of game chickens at the Springs have built a fine poultry yard, and gone into rearing fine strains of thoroughbred game chickens. They possess some of the finest fowls in the country, from which to raise.

Saturday, the first day of April, was presented to our community as a sample of variegated weather, presenting every freak of weather usually experienced in this climate during the year. Many think it was the remnant of the different types of March weather thrown in together, and thus disposed of as April 1st.

The road question in this community is too muddy to handle even with gloves and shovel, yet, people who are so unfortunately situated as are the folks of Midway, constantly harrassed with this condition of affairs, can not restrain an expression of their anxiety to remove this obnoxious feature from their presence.

Notwithstanding the past inclement weather our farmers are through burning and sowing their tobacco plant beds. The prospects for a large acreage are not flattering, it being the belief that a small crop, well tended and handled, pays a better percent than a large one poorly tended.

We were glad to meet our old friend, F. M. Howlett, on the street last Saturday again. On inquiring after his health he replied: "Kinder after the old sort—feeling too good to stay in, and not able to be out." He also announced his intention of withdrawing from politics, believing them to be too corrupt for honest people to associate with.

Quite a number of our young people of both sexes could have been seen, last Sunday, slowly wending their way to the woods, ostensibly hunting turkey peas, as they are wont to do yearly in early spring, but older people shake their heads, and say such sylvan rambles are congenial to love making, and prophesy some weddings in this locality at no distant date.

Easter Sunday was generally observed here by the extra number of eggs cooked and served by our clever housewives. Everybody likes eggs, and from the little children, who take theirs in such pretty colors, to the sturdy, grown up man, gladly anticipated the annual coming of Easter, and do it justice, after their fashion eating eggs. There is a larger, nobler, and more exhalted significance attached to Easter Sunday, but this is honored usually at our convenient churches.

Death invaded our community twice during the past week, taking from our midst an infant child of Mr. and Mrs. James French, and Mrs. Elizabeth Conley, wife of R. L. Conley, in the 65th year of her age. She passed away March 25th, at the residence of her son, John Conley, where she had been an invalid for some years. Mr. John Allison, the Covington undertaker, had charge of the funeral. The remains were interred in the Hughes Chapel cemetery. She leaves a husband, one son and three daughters, all grown, to mourn her loss.

J. L. Frazier, of Union, contemplates a very important visit to Jefferson county at an early date, and can not be said the visit will have no matrimonial significance, but quite the contrary.

A. G. McConnell, of East Bend, W. W. Botts and D. M. Snyder, of Bellevue, and Elijah Parker, of Gasburg, attended fiscal court yesterday.

ALTGELD cries fraud in the Chicago election, and the Republicans declare that they were defeated by party treachery, while Carter Harrison is highly pleased over having carried nearly every ward in the city.

JUDGE TARVIN, of Covington, addressed a good crowd at the court house, Monday afternoon. The Judge handled the issues of the day in his fearless manner, for about two hours. His speech was well received by the Democrats.

GEN. MILES has been very successful in securing evidence as to the inferior quality of the beef furnished the soldiers, and those who undertook to defend the beef contractors now recognize the magnitude of the mistake they have made.

SENATOR TELLER, of Colorado, says Mr. Bryan will be the Democratic nominee for President next year. He endorses Mr. Bryan's action in the Belmont matter, and says those fellows composing Belmont's political organization are not Democrats, that they are Republicans masquerading as Democrats.

HON. W. J. BRYAN will be a guest of the Monticello Club, in Chicago, on the 14th inst., and the speech he will make on that occasion, is expected to be of very great importance, politically. Mayor Harrison will make a speech before the same club on that occasion, which is also expected to be full of political significance.

THE Loyal Legion, of Washington, of which Gen. Eagan is a member has begun proceedings for his expulsion. The odor of rotten beef that constantly accompaines the General is so offensive the Legion desires to dispense with him as a member, believing that a person with such objectionable odor cannot be loyal even a little bit.

No combination that the New York Democrats will be able to make with and faction in the West, or elsewhere, for that matter, will be able to prevent William Jennings Bryan's renomination as the Democratic candidate for the Presidency. Mr. Bryan is now nominated, and all the convention will have to do will be to ratify the action of the Democratic voters.

MEETING OF DISTRICT BOARD.

Some Reflections.—By Rev. H. Max Lentz, Office Editor of the Lutheran World.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

The writer is averse to controversy in pulpit or press, and has always not only endeavored to avoid all occasion for it, but in practice has refrained from its indulgence. He only asks for space now under a pressure of what he deems a duty, and he will say in all kindness what he has to say, hoping to awaken no unpleasant feelings. The meeting referred to in the caption was one of perfect propriety and we certainly have no objections to our esteemed Baptist brethren advocating earnestly the truth as they understand it. We admire a man of clear convictions, and like to see him true to his colors. A famous Baptist divine has said that if he had a dog that would just as soon trot under the wagon of some one else, he would shoot the dog, and we have no objections to his method. We are not wanting a dog like that, and we believe the loyalty we look for in the dog ought to be intensified in the man. However, when it comes to promulgating peculiar views through the local press, and getting things out of kelter to say the least, it seems a binding duty of some one to set forth the other side.

The first speaker, we are told was strong, clear, forcible and to the point. "Owing to lack of time he omitted many of the principles held by the Baptists in common with the other evangelical denominations, and dwelt upon distinctive Baptist principles as the following: The supremacy and absolute sovereignty of the New Testament Scriptures for the rule and practice of our people." Shades of Martin Luther, John Calvin, Alexander Campbell and the intervening reformers, since when has that become a distinguishing characteristic of the Baptist church? Surely here is an intimation of a trust that the RECORDER has not hitherto mentioned. That assertion, however, is not so startling as what grows out of it. The reporter continues: "Under this head he showed that 'Infant Sprinkling' had no scripture warrant." Now this reminds us of another speaker who was not a Baptist, but whose great hobby was to oppose infant baptism. Every sermon he preached he snatched the children from the convent and berated parents for wanting to give them to God until the poor sheep of his congregation longed for change of pasture. At last they fixed upon a device for securing their end and they asked him to preach from a text furnished when going in the pulpit without previous preparation. He readily agreed to their plans and when he opened his paper in the pulpit he discovered this text: "Adam, where art thou?" The speaker said: "This subject we divide into four heads: I, all men are somewhere; II, Some men are where they ought not to be; III Where are you? IV, Infant Baptism. For the sake of brevity we will omit the first three heads and treat the last." Then he proceeded with his usual talk upon the usual subject. In this case too the subject had to come in and surely no one is greatly surprised to have it appear. But I confess to a feeling of genuine surprise when I read a few sentences further. "He traced the rise of papacy to this practice, and showed it to be the part and pillar of papacy." We have been told these many years that the papacy was responsible for sprinkling as baptism and now we have the thing reversed for a change and we are told that infant baptism has given rise to the papacy. We do not quite understand why the speaker did not assert that infant baptism was responsible for the celibacy of the Catholic priesthood as the logic would have been as good and the charge very serious. But if Pedo-Baptist were to mutilate their Bibles, stifle their convictions and offer to be immersed, where would they go? In a former pastorate, the writer was surrounded by a large number of devoted people who insisted that the only proper immersion was to go under the water three times face forward. Among the Baptist exchanges of this office there is a paper which gives much more space to the "Campbellites" than he does to the Pedo Baptists. In this week's paper alone the editor scores the "Campbellites" in six or more articles. In a word, it is not only immersion, but my kind of immersion that is often contended for as the true mode of baptism. The Scriptures teach us that the water, the word and the spirit are essential and the forms or formalities are not essential. When a man once magnifies the form into the place of the reality, and gets the sign badly mixed with the thing signified, he is rather hard to please, and there is room for controversy as long as that spirit survives.

Passing some items I would like to notice, this sentence is found: "Many historical references were given of the imprisonment, of whippings, of burnings and other cruel persecution of the Baptists from the time of the persecution of two Baptist preachers, Paul and Silas, until long after the settlement of America." Now it ought to be clear to anybody with even a modicum of historical knowledge that Paul and Silas could not have been members of any of the Protestant churches of to day, because they were not in existence then. However, if it could be shown that they held principles like those held by the Baptists or Lutherans of to-day that church would have some slight claim on them. They were not Baptists in name and Paul was not a Baptist in principle, and it is rather safe to [illegible] that Silas was of [illegible] faith with Paul. Now for some proof of what we say. He was at first an ardent Jew—read Phil. 3:3-6. As such he was offered to God in infancy and numbered among his people by the rite of circumcision—read Gen. 17:9-14. Now I suppose everybody concedes that the old Testament types prefigured the coming Redeemer and his kingdom of purity. By reading the 9th chapter of the letter to the Hebrews they can have that faith strengthened. Now Paul was well aware that children were received under the first covenant and he took it for granted they would be under, the second, and he is not silent concerning the matter as can readily be seen by reading Galatians 3:24-29. Better read the whole chapter and you will see how Paul insists that the boundless mercy of God has included under the N. T. not only the Jews but the Gentiles also, not only the males but females also. Then Paul baptized the household of Stephanas which is presumptive proof that he was not a Baptist.

We are told also that if other denominations were as consistent as Baptists they would practice close communion, and a later writer by a patchwork of quotations and some original logic convinced himself that the Methodist brethren are a sorry lot for practicing open communion. We are not going to make any defense of open communion, but we want to call attention to a very marked difference between the Baptist churches and that prevailing in most protestant churches. The Baptist church says it is the Lord's table and we invite all we think are the Lord's people to partake of it. Others say, it is the Lord's table and we invite all who are the Lord's people to partake whether they follow us or not. In the latter case the matter is left with the individual and his God. He is not shut off because he "followeth not us," but he is given Christian liberty and allowed to stand or fall with his Master. If any believe close communion consistent and right, they have liberty to practice it, but it is not well to impute to others what we ourselves commit.

I would like to omit any reference to the closing paragraphs of the report, as I well know that the strange omissions were not intended for injury, but as I am writing, I would deserve censure far keeping silence here. Mention was made of Transubstantiation, Consubstantiation and the "symbolic view held by the Baptists." Why is nothing said about the "Calvinistic" view held by the great body of the Reformed churches of which the very large and influential Presbyterian church is the most prominent? For let it be understood that very few of the Reformed churches (of course we have no reference to the "Reformers") accept the symbolic view of Zwingle, many of the German Reformed utterly repudiating that view, some going so far as to accept the Lutheran view. But the Lutheran view held by practically all Lutherans of every school everywhere numbering fully five times at lowest estimates, and possibly 10 times as many as all Baptists of every land, the Lutheran view is not mentioned. Possibly enough some reckless writer has caused the good brother to believe that Lutherans teach consubstantiation, but this I would very positively deny. The Lutheran church teaches that the Word of God as contained in [illegible] scriptures is the only infallible rule of faith and practice but the Augsburg Confession "properly interpreted" is held as in perfect harmony with the Divine Word. Article X of the Confession says: "In regard to the Lord's Supper they teach that the body and blood of Christ are truly present, and are dispensed to the communicants in the Lord's Supper; and they disapprove those who teach otherwise." No explanation is needed, none is given. "Where the word of God speaks we speak, where it is silent we are silent." What the nature of this presence is we know not. The thing itself we know; but the mode of its truth is a mystery which we cannot comprehend. We deny that Christ is present and received in a physical or material manner, but should any one ask, "How is he present" our answer is we know not. We com... his presence in this holy ordinance a "sacramental presence." This might seem to be an attempt to define the method of his presence; but by this we mean nothing more than that we are ignorant of the mode. They therefore err who say that we believe in impanation or that the Christ is in the bread and wine. Nor are those correct who charge us with believing subpanation or that Christ is under the form of bread and wine. And equally groundless is the charge of consubstantiation, or the belief that the body and blood of Christ are changed into one substance with the bread and wine. Dr. Mosheim as quoted by Dr. Morris Luther's Smaller Catechism, p. 101. On the same page this question: "Have the scriptures specified the mode of Christ's presence in this sacrament?" Answer: "No, and hence every person should be left to the free exercise of his judgment on that subject." There are other parts of this report that invite emphatic remarks, but we have said more than we like to say now. Truth and right seem to require that some notice be taken of the published report which might mislead the unwary.

A friend explaining a rucus he was in said. "I never liked to fight, but if it was thrust on me I did not run." Then he added, "but Bro. Bill, when he was young just liked to fight." There are still some young brother Bills. I am not much for fight, but I do not like to run and I do not like to have any body throw me down and rub sand in my eyes.

"Speak not evil one of another." These good brethren, no doubt erred in printing strong partisan speeches and possibly I err in noticing the matter at all, but they are earnest Christian workers as we try to be and we all can do more good by carrying out the great commission and being faithful in the churches where God has placed us than by trying to pervert others and bring them to our faith. "If we have contending, let's contend like the olive and the vine, who shall produce the most and best fruit, not like the aspen and the elm, who shall make the most noise in the world."

CIRCUIT COURT.

The April term of the circuit court convened Mouday, the only business done being the organization of the grand jury, which is composed as follows: J. R. Clutterbuck, foreman; H.C. Duncan, J. S. Mason, Joseph Gilum, G. G. Jones, J. P. Tanner, G. H. Gordon, B. F. Zimmer, Z. T. Kelly, R. C. Gaines, J. R. Smith, Grauville Rouse.

The following are the petit jurors:

No. 1.—J. J. Hudson, Robt. Houston, W. L. Gaines, Solon Early, E. O. Rouse, J. F. Lancaster, W. J. Ryle, G. L. Smith, B. D. Adams, Daniel Hoffman, H. C. Presses, G. M. Allen.

Jury No. 2—Leonard Crigler, John Aylor, Lystra Aylor, James Carpenter, D. M. Snyder, Martin Benson, John S. Surface, J. C. Hamilton, Lafe Kennedy, L. J. Riley, J. N. Pearson, Jas. Taylor.

The Fence Problem.

One of the most grave and important problems that farmers are called upon to solve to-day is the fence problem. In its solution three important propositions present themselves: Which is the most economical, most durable and most available fence that farmers can build to day? Having come interested in fencing I propose to give my solution of this problem from a economic, durable, available standpoint.

Tradition teaches us that our forefathers were very extravagant in the structure of the boundary of their fields and estates. We read of fences made of stone and of the hawthorn or hedgethorn. What farmer would undertake to build a thorn fence to day, when the material alone in a rod of this fence would sell for enough money to build ten rods of wire fence, and the price per rod for building same would pay for building twenty rods of wire fence? The minimum cost of a rod of stone fence four and a half feet high would be $7.

The hedge fence has proven an extravagant failure, and those who have them would willingly exchange them for any kind of wire fences.

The fence built of rails, split from the best timber, is a relic of the past. The material out of which they were made would sell for 35 per rod. I mean a fence with eight rails and two riders. In the west farmers are hauling the old rails to towns, selling them for wood and buying wire with the proceeds. The post and rail fence (mortised), a few relics of which are left, cost more than 83 per rod. The prevailing plank fence cost $1 50 per rod.

The wooden picket fence, interwoven by means of wire, is a failure. The pickets are easily broken and subject to the resistence of, too much wind, which, in about five years ends their availability as a fence.

About twenty years ago, in view of the costliness of the several fences I have mentioned, the farmers undertook the practical solution of the problem, "is wire fence better than fences made of wood?" After many experiments and many changes an affirmative answer has been given. The question today is "what fence is best worth the price asked."

The barberous barbed wire was invented and extensively used. Twenty years' experience has demonstrated the fact that it has seen its day: that it has wrought too much damage to the brute creation to justify its further usefulness. No up-to-date, wise farmer will erect a barbed wire fence, when he can get a better and cheaper fence that will not injure his animals.

There are various styles of wire fence in use. Some completed in the field to the post and some ready made and sold in rolls. Each has its merits and its demerits. I have tried several kinds, and have concluded that the fence built in the field to the posts can always be built right, while great difficulty is experienced in acquiring uniform tension to the strands of newly made fence, and making it conform to the uneveness of the ground.

About 20 years ago W. C. Gohlson, a man possessing a wonderful power of invention, conceived the idea of controling the tension of wire in a fence by attaching a ratchet to the end. He also conceived the idea of substituting metal stays for posts, by which he saved to the farmers about four-fifths of the posts that had been used in other fences. This was a saving of 35 cents in each post. While I consider Mr. Gohlson's fence the best single wire fence that was ever made, I have concluded that in order to give proper tension to the No. 9 or 10 wire in a fence, the strain is too great on the end posts. When these wires contract from being submitted to extreme cold, something must yield or the wire will break. It has been proven that wire will vary in length between the extremes of heat and cold about one-eighth of an inch to the rod, hence the wire in every 8 rods of fence will be one inch shorter the coldest day in winter than it is in the hotest day in summer, or for every 50 rods of fence there will be a contraction of 6 inches.

The Lane Brothers in order to overcome this contraction have invented a machine that has a double provision for the expansion and contraction of these lateral wires. Their Cyclone machine twists two lateral wires into a cable, and when properly done, is sufficient to enable them to stand the contraction of winter and hold their tension in summer. Another provision is the reverse twist it gives on steel spiral pickets inserted at intervals to suit the builder. The strands of the cable force the pickets, in cold weather, to yield in the direction in which the reverse is made. On the other hand, in warm weather the spring of the picket causes it to react, thus keeping a uniform tension in the fence.

Having become impressed with the practicability, economy, strength and durability of this fence, I have secured the exclusive control of it in the counties of Boone and Woodford. I will build this fence or sell the machines to the farmers and issue them a farm right that will license them to buy the material from headquarters at such a rate that they will soon recover the cost of the machine. A record is kept of these farm rights by the owners of the patent. G. CARTER GRADY.

A Few Suggestions.

Having, for a number of years, made a business of hauling over the roads of Boone county, I have had a good opportunity to observe the condition of her roads, and it does seem to me that it is about time the people should have something to say, and the only way to say anything that would count, is for enough of the voters to put their heads together and say to the candidates for office, "if you want this nomination you must pledge yourself to advocate a bill before the Legislature that will bring relief."

It is patent to everybody that the $7,000 per year the people of Boone county are paying for road purposes is wasted—that is a large per cent is. In the first place, this money passes through too many hands, and in the next place, it is paid out to the overseers before they have earned it, which I think is a great mistake. I have always heard that there were two bad paymasters, one who paid in advance, and one who never paid at all.

I will give my idea of a remedy. I would suggest that the magistrate in each district be made commissioner for his district at a salary of, say $150 per year, and require him to give bond and security for the money that passes through his hands, and for the faithful performance of his duty. Require him to build bridges, put stone on the bad places, as far as the money would go, and do it altogether by contracts, letting all work out to the lowest bidder, requiring him to advertise every piece of work that he decides to do. The advantage I see in this plan is this: There are people that can afford to do some pieces of work much cheaper than others, for two reasons: first that someone living on a road he has to use all the time to get out in the winter, can afford to do a little more work for the money than one who does not need the road. Second, it would be a job for odd times, parts of days, etc. I would revise the old rule of calling all the hands out for two days in the year to work the roads, open the ditches, throw up the roads, etc.

Have the District Commissioner appoint men on the different roads as overseers, to warn out the hands, and to act as boss with out pay; or, that is, let them work out their time in that way. I would also suggest to the citizens of Boone to come out on this question and give some practical suggestions. The effort I have made has been investigated by what I conceive to be a crying evil. I have no ax to grind. I simply feel as a traveler of public roads that the taxpayers of th county are not getting the worth o their money. H. F. RUSSELL.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

{Herald.}

The State Board of Equalization raised the land assessment of this county 30 per cent.

Last Saturday night the tobacco barn of Samuel Claxon, near Bethany, was destroyed by fire, supposed to be the work of an incendiary. It contained between 25,000 and 30,000 pounds of tobacco, besides some harness, &c., which was burned.

His friends of the legal profession are urging Mr. Chas. Strother, of this place, to consent to allow his name to be used for Commonwealth's Attorney at the next election, the present incumbent, Hon. M. D. Gray, having made up his mind to decline another term.

Some years ago Edward Atkinson attempted to arrive at the value of the annual egg crop with the result that he found it more important than either the leaf tobacco, the barley, rice, rye or many other notable products of American farms. Abundant as is the yield of eggs, and low as is the price, he estimated the annual value at $40,000,000 to $60,000,000.

To find the rarest bird in existence you must go to the mountains between Anam and Loas, where there is a certain kind of pheasant. For many years its existence was known only by the fact that its longest and most splendid plume was in much request by Mandarins for their headgear. A single skin is worth $300 and the bird living would be priceless, for it soon dies in captivity.

KING OSCAR of Sweden and Norway, always ready with his purse in the promotion of scientific research, appears to have rendered a great service to mankind by having, at his own expense, caused a deaf and dumb man to be trained under a certain system of massage of throat, ears, etc., advocated by a great Swedish surgeon, with the result that the lucky patient has begun to speak and can hear.

IF Miss Virginia Fair were a queen and W. K. Vanderbilt, jr., a prince it is unlikely they would receive wedding presents as costly as those which they will get on the occasion of their marriage. It would be impossible to put an estimate on the value of these gifts that would be at all accurate. At least one of them is worth $150,000. All told, the cost of the entire wedding will be considerable more than $1,999,999.

CONSUL DIEDERICH, at Madgeburg, reports to the state department that on account of the great and ever increasing scarcity of farm laborers in Germany, there is a growing demand for substantial farming tools and machinery. He says that American manufacturers now have an excellent opportunity for an increased sale of their goods in that line if they will but make a thorough, systematic and business-like effort.

IT is said that for a short distance a lion or a tiger can outrun a man and can equal the speed of a fast horse, but wild animals lose their wind at the end of half a mile at the most. They have little endurance and are remarkably weak in long power. Their strength is the kind which is capable of a terrific effort for a short time. It would take six men to hold a lion down even after the legs were tied so that he could not use his paws.

JUDGE WM. MARGRAVE, of Ft. Scott, Kas., the first man who received a commission as justice of the peace in Kansas, has been legislated out of office by the present legislature of the state. The bill to establish a city court at Ft. Scott practically abolishes the office of justice of the peace, and no nominations for that position will be made by the political parties this spring. Judge Margrave has served continuously since December 5, 1854.

TURQUOISES are growing more and more into favor—quite a small stone of good color costing about seven pounds. They are tiresome stones to wear, on account of their so often losing their color and turning green. Turquoise rings must always be removed before washing the hands, as water completely ruins them; and any grease touching them is even more disastrous, so people with moist skin seldom manage to keep the color of the stone.

PAPER can now be hung by machinery. The device has a rod on which a roll of paper is placed, and a paste reservoir with a feeder placed so as to engage the wrong side of the paper. The end of the paper is fastened to the bottom of the wall, and the machine started up the wall, being held in place by the operator. A roller follows the paper as it unwinds and presses it against the wall. When the top of the wall is reached the operator pulls a string, which cuts the paper off from the roll.

AMONG the reforms which are to be introduced into the London telephone service when the post office takes charge of it is the Swiss system of charging, which will reduce the average cost to the user by half. In Switzerland the subscriber pays $20 the first year, $14 the second, and after that $8 a year. The charge for calls is a cent a call, subscribers and public paying the same fixed toll, which is charged to the caller and not to the person called. Messages can be sent by non-subscribers and delivered to nonsubscribers by express messengers.

AMONG the many other valuable fruits which might be shipped to northern markets is the aguacate (alligator or avocado pear, Lauraceoe), which grows on a tree with laurel-like leaves, from 30 to 70 feet high. The fruit is like a huge pear, with smooth, green skin, turning brown if allowed to hang too long. It has a soft, buttery meat, half an inch thick, which melts in the mouth, and is eaten as a salad in combination with lime juice or vinegar and salt and pepper. While it is almost tasteless without condiments, it is so agreeable with them that the aguacate habit soon becomes a fixed one.

The First Rebellion in the Island of Negros is Promptly Put Down.

The Rebels Near Manila Remain Perfectly Quiet—A Week's Respite From Hostilities Given Them to Allowed Filipinos to Digest Proclamation.

MANILA, April 7.—Col. Smith, the governor of the island of Negros, reports that a number of bandits, headed by a man named Papalsio, attempted a rebellion on March 27, and killed several officials of Junamaylan. He also captured other officials and issued a proclamation calling upon the natives to rise and exterminate the Americans and Spaniards. Maj. Hime and two companies of the California regiment were dispatched by water to the scene of the disturbance, and Col. Duboce and two other companies of troops were sent overland. On April 2 this force marched 12 miles and captured Labzid, the headquarters of the bandits, and destroyed the town. The troops also captured 35 prisoners and scattered Papaissio's forces, thus effectually quelling the rebellion at the outset.

There has been a week's respite in the hostilities, chiefly in order to allow the Filipinos to digest the proclamation of the United States commission.

The rebels remain remarkably quiet. The sharpshooters of Gen. Lawton's line have borrowed the Filipino tactics and are harrassing the rebels at night, picking off some of them nightly.

Malolos is resuming its natural aspect. Business is going on. Preparations are being made to establish a permanent camp for the troops there and the soldiers are cleaning the city.

A third of the American forces at Malolos is sent nightly to form an advanced line a mile north of the city, with patrols and sentries ahead of the line.

Gen. MacArthur's volunteers are receiving Krag-Jorgensen rifles, the Filipinos having discovered that they could effectively empty their Mauser rifles and retreat before the Americans approached near enough to use their Springfield rifles with effect.

Advices received here from Samar, an island forming a province of the Philippines, say the revolutionists there are weary. There leader, Gen. Lukban, of Chinese ancestry, has deserted with the funds. The inhabitants are desirous of American rule.

GEN. ALGER WILL RESIGN.

He Feels That He Has Been Vindicated by the War Investigation—Gen. Hastings to Succeed Him.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Believing that the finding of the beef court of inquiry will relieve him of any personal connection with whatever mismanagement or malfeasance may have been discovered, it is now said that Secretary Alger will retire from the cabinet soon after the report of the court has been made. He feels that, so far as his general conduct of the war is concerned, the report of the first investigation committee was sufficient vindication.

Thursday night a close friend of the administration says the war secretary's portfolio, upon the retirement of Secretary Alger, will be tendered formally to Gen. Russell Hastings, of Massachusetts, and that he will accept. The doctrine of probabilities seems to favor this statement. Gen. Hastings has been a guest at the white house for some days, having come to Washington soon after it was officially announced that he had been selected as the new director of the bureau of American republics.

DISARMAMENT CONGRESS.

Secretary of State Hay Announces the Delegates Appointed by the United States Government.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The secretary of state has announced the constitution of the United States delegation to the disarmament congress which will meet at The Hague in the latter part of May. The delegation consists of Andrew White, United States ambassador at Berlin; Mr. Newell, United States minister to The Netherlands; President Seth Low, of Columbia university, New York; Capt. Crozier, of the ordnance department United States army, and Capt. A. T. Mahan, United States navy, retired. Frederick Holls, of New York, will be secretary of the delegation.

He Was Never Mustered Out.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 7.—Capt. J. T. Welden has filed a claim for $51,000 for services as captain of the gunboat Tuscumbiar. "I have never been mustered out of the navy. I was sent home at the close of the war in 1865 to wait for orders and I'm waiting yet," he says. His attorneys say he has a good case.

Sherman Able to Be About the House.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Ex-Secretary Sherman has now so far recovered from his recent attack of pneumonia that he is able to be about his house. The condition of Mrs. Sherman has also improved to the degree that she is able to walk.

Fell 130 Feet and Was Killed.

STEUBENVILLE, O., April 7.—John Haney, a section hand, fell from the Pan-Handle bridge, on the West Virginia side of the river, a distance of 130 feet, and was instantly killed.

THE WAR ON THE COAL TRUST

Suit Filed by United States District Attorney Bundy in Cincinnati for a Perpetual Injunction Against Them.

CINCINNATI, April 8.—United States Attorney General Griggs, through United States District Attorney Bundy, filed the anti-coal trust sui, Friday against the C. & O. Fuel Co. and 17 others.

The government asks for an injunction against the fuel company from carrying out its agreement with the other firms, alleging that a trust had been formed.

The fight against the so-called trust was begun some time ago before the interstate commerce commission, which found the charges practically sustained on one of the complaints, viz.: That the C. & O. railroad had the contract to carry the coal.

Then the matter on which the suit filed Friday was brought before the grand jury by Bundy and indictments followed. It came before Judge Thompson, who is now considering a demurrer and a motion to quash the indictment.

The injunction suit is the latest phase of the case, and instructions to bring it arrived from Washington Friday morning.

Bundy's bill of equity concludes:

"Your orator * * * prays that an order be granted by your honors enjoining and restraining the defendants, or either of them, from selling or shipping any coal or coke into any state other than the state in which they reside, under or by virtue of their agreement.

"And that said defendants be restrained from continuing in any like combination or agreement.

"That each of said defendants be enjoined from further conspiring, agreeing, combining and acting together in any manner as set out in this contract and that said contract be declared void and illegal;

"That said unlawful trust and combination be dissolved by decree of this court.

"For all other and further relief that law of equity."

GEORGE JURY COMPLETED.

Twelve Men Selected to Try Mrs. Anna George for the Murder of George D. Saxton—All Married Men But One.

CANTON, O., April 8.—The jury which is to decide the fate of Mrs. Annie E. George, accused of the murder of George D. Saxton, was completed at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon before court adjourned. Prosecuting Attorney Pomerene had stated to the 12 men qualified an outline of what he expected the witnesses for the state to prove. Briefly summarized this is that on the evening of the tragedy and shortly before it occurred Saxton rode to the Althouse house on a bicycle and Mrs. George about the same time went to a point near there on a street car. The assassin, and he says this will prove to be Mrs. George, fired two shots and walked away; there was a cry as if for help. She returned and fired two more shots, then leaned over the prostrate body, found him dying and disappeared in the darkness. He claims Mrs. George's fingers were blackened with powder when arrested and that she had not only threatened to kill Saxton but had long planned how to do it, and that she had outlined her plans to another party. He also says that he cares not what relations are shown to have existed between the two; that they were not such as to have justified the crime on the evening of October 6, 1898. In connection with these relations he referred to the accused as an adventuress, pure and simple.

Mr. Welty intimated that the statement for the defense would be somewhat lengthy and it was deferred until morning.

Excessive Use of Cigarettes.

WARSAW, O., April 8.—Farley Green has become insane, it is said, from the excessive use of cigarettes. He is at his home in Brink Haven, O., and is in a serious condition.

Gen. Montenegro Killed.

MANILA, April 8.—Gen. Montenegro, next to Aguinaldo the most influential of the insurgent leaders, has been killed. The news was brought to Malolos Friday by pacificos who returned to the American lines, and it is generally credited. Montenegro was noted for his dash and daring. His aggressiveness and powers were said to have been the principal factor in the continuance of the insurrection. He is believed to have fallen in the battle at the outskirts of Malolos for the defense of the city.

A FIEND'S DEED.

The Andrews Residence Holocaust, New York, An Incendiary's Work.

Millionaire Andrews Had Entertained Fears, and Was About to Put in Portable Fire Escapes—Torch Applied Too Soon.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The police and post office inspectors now believe that the fire in the Andrews mansion, which cost 13 lives, including that of Millionaire W. C. Andrews and his wife, was of incendiary origin. The motive, there is every reason to believe, was a desire for revenge, growing out of a petty quarrel in the servants' quarters.

Anonymous letters received by Mr. Andrews and his wife during the last three months threatened that some one in the household would be seriously injured unless Mary Flannigan, a chambermaid employed there, was discharged. They even hinted at the destruction of the house by fire. The police made a[illegible] attempt to apprehend the writer of the letters, but met with no success. So worried over the matter was Mr. Andrews that he arranged to have a portable fire escape put in each of the bedchambers in the house and they were to have been put in next week.

The police have the originals of the threatening letters in their possession, they having been turned over to them by Mr. Andrews, and since the fire Friday morning they have redoubled their efforts to run down the person or persons who wrote and mailed the letters.

Early in January Mr. Andrews received the first anonymous letter. It advised him to discharge Mary Flannigan. This letter and those subsequently received were in a man's handwriting. During February and March the letters continued to come, some of which hinted at burning the house. Mr. Andrews' family turned the letters over to the police.

STEAMER JOHN K. SPEED.

She Became Unmanageable While Leaving the Port of Louisville and Is Wrecked on the Dam—No Lives Were Lost.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 10.—The big stern wheel steamer John K. Speed, owned by the Cincinnati & New Orleans Packet Co., became unmanageable while leaving her dock Sunday afternoon owing to a treacherous current and the high wind prevailing and drifted down the river until she struck the outer point of the Kentucky side of the dam. The force of the impact was so great that the big vessel careened to such an extent that people on shore were sure she would topple over, but she rightened up again and almost in a twinkling settled down to the rock-bottom, the water rushing into her hold through a large jagged hole aft of her boiler to the larboard side. The big 16-inch pine derrick pole supporting the immense staging broke in two like a match and the staging went overboard with an awful smash. It was a miracle that several of the crew were not killed or injured in this incident, but nobody was touched. The most fortunate part of the calamity was that not a soul of the 109 aboard were injured in the least, some not even getting their feet wet. The life savers responded with the greatest alacrity with all their life boats and were beside the ill-starred vessel almostly instantly. With two crews ferrying from the boat to the shore all the passengers were soon brought to terra firma and the members of the deck and cabin crew were carried over.

The Speed was on her way to New Orleans when the accident occurred and had 405 tons of miscellaneous freight aboard. There is no way of estimating the value of the freight, but it is all insured in open policies in the agency of George W. Neare & Co., of Cincinnati. Eminent steamboat authorities say that at least three-fourths of the Speed's value will be saved, while the actual loss on the cargo will not be over $1,000. The Speed is valued at about $25,000. She lies on the rocks, with the water over her main deck amidships. It is believed she will have to be wrecked to save whatever the underwriters may secure, such as boilers, machinery and rigging.

Big Cereal Crop in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 10.—Convincing evidence of the great cereal crop expected by California farmers this season is furnished by the demand for the grain bags made at the San Quentin penitentiary. More than 3,500,000 have already been sold, and orders are being booked for future delivery, the supply being exhausted. The majority of orders have come from the San Joaquin valley counties.

School Furniture Trust Property Mortgaged.

CLEVELAND, O., April 10.—A first mortgage upon the property of the recently organized school furniture trust, which absorbed plants at various points throughout the country, has been filed here for record. The mortgage is given by the American School Furniture Co. to Walter G. Oakman and George R. Turnbull, trustees, and secured a loan of $1,500,000. The property covered by the mortgage includes all the plants controlled by the trust.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Any Girl Can Tell

A physician who makes the test and is honest about it can tell you that, in many cases, the number of red corpuscles in the blood is doubled after a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

That this means good blood may not be entirely clear from the doctor's statement, but any girl who has tried the pills can tell you that it means red lips, bright eyes, good appetite, absence of headache, and that it transforms the pale and sallow girl into a maiden who glows with the beauty which perfect health alone can give.

Mothers whose daughters grow debilitated as they pass from girlhood into womanhood should not neglect the pill best adapted for this particular ill.

Frank B. Trout, of 103 Griswold Ave., Detroit, Mich., says: "At the age of fourteen we had to take our daughter from school on account of ill health. She weighed only 90 pounds, was pale and sallow and the doctors said she had anæmia. Finally we gave her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. When she had taken two boxes she was strong enough to leave her bed, and in less than six months was something like herself. To-day she is entirely cured, and is a big, strong, healthy girl, weighing 130 pounds, and has never had a sick day since."—Detroit Evening News.

The genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold only in packages, the wrapper always bearing the full name. At all druggists, or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. 50 cents per box.

Her Little Joke.

Jones delights in a practical joke, but having one played on him is a vastly different matter.

The other day his wife rushed breathlessly into the room, gasping out: "Come, Henry, quick! There's a catamount in the barn!"

Jones grabbed his rifle and sprinted for the scene of action, but his most cautious reconnoiters failed to discover the animal. "Where is the beast?" he demanded.

"Why, Henry, dear," his wife replied, "Tabby has some kittens, and that makes a cat amount, doesn't it?"

THE DETROIT.

The Vessel Will Be Sent to Bluefields, Nicaragua, at Once.

Our Diplomatic Representative at Bluefields Instructed to Lodge a Protest With the Nicaraguan Government Against Gen. Torres' Policy.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The cruiser Detroit, which is now lying off La Guayara, Venezuela, has been ordered post haste to Bluefields, Nicaragua, for the protection of American interests in that quarter. On the way she will touch at Port Limon, Costa Rica, where her commander will put himself in communication with the United States consul at that point and where he also may receive further instructions.

She is also likely to make a very brief stop at Greytown. Her dispatch under hurry orders is at the urgent request of the state department, to which American residents both at Bluefields and in Costa Rica have appealed for protection of American interests. The arbitrary and extortionate policy adopted by Gen. Torres at Bluefields, who on more than one occasion has made himself persona non grata to this government and whose restoration to power at this time has been followed by acts which American residents resent and protest against, is the main cause of the vessel's dispatch. The state department at the same time has cabled instructions to the United States diplomatic representative at Bluefields to lodge an energetic protest with the Nicaraguan government against the action of Gen. Torres, and a disregard of this protest will be followed up by a more positive step on the part of this government. In Costa Rica the American business interests and residents are in trouble as a result of an insurrectionary movement. It is understood that the insurgents are levying forced loans on them, besides collecting exhorbitant and double duties on imports.

NEW ORLEANS, April 7.—A letter to the Picayune from Bluefields, Nicaragua, dated March 31, says:

Gen. Torres, the special agent of President Zelaya, yesterday again notified the merchants they would have but 24 hours to again pay the duties which had been paid to the treasurer of Nicaragua, who served after the revolution began. Torres also undertook to prohibit the American consular agent from cabling to Washington or the president of Nicaragua at Managua. He is in charge of the telegraph wires which lead to both the capital and to San Juan del Sur, the cable station.

The American consul, after discovering that it would be impossible to secure satisfactory information from Torres, withdrew with the American merchants, who accompanied him to the palace. At this meeting Torres also declined to state what steps will be taken to force the American merchants to submit to double charges.

TWO NEGROES STRUNG UP.

They Were Charged With the Murder of a Stock Farmer Living Near Brooksville, Miss.

BROOKSVILLE, Miss., April 7.—Two Negroes, Forest Jamison and Mose Anderson, were lynched Thursday by a mob for the murder of T. H. Cleland. News has just reached here that Cleland, a stock farmer who lived 12 miles east, was found dead in his room. An investigation was made and an inquest held, resulting in a verdict of assassination. Guilt was soon placed upon two Negroes who were living on the farm and with whom Cleland recently had trouble. Forest Jamison, one of the Negroes, confessed that he choked Cleland to death, while another Negro, Mose Anderson, held the victim's feet. At noon Thursday a posse of 200 determined citizens secured possession of the two Negroes and quietly hanged them to a tree. The mob then dispersed in an orderly manner.

AGUINALDO IS SUPPLANTED.

Reported That Gen. Antonio Luna, a Typical Belligerent, Has Control of the Filipino Forces.

MANILA, April 6.—There were persistent rumors Wednesday that Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader, has been supplanted in the control of Filipino affairs by Gen. Antonio Luna, commander-in-chief of the Filipino forces. Luna is described as being a typical belligerent.

A Spanish banker who was interviewed expressed fear that the proclamation will not reach the masses controlling the rebellion, because, he explained, the Filipinos at Manila are mostly domestics and clerks who have no definite opinions and the wire-pullers outside of the city have undoubtedly intercepted it.

Continuing, the Spanish banker said that if the proclamation had been issued on May 2, or even on August 14 of last year, the result would have been different, as, in his opinion, based on 20 years' experience, the only argument which appeals to the masses here is the gun.

The editor of Oceanic thinks the proclamation is the most politic document ever published in the Philippine islands and it is bound to convince the wavering of the folly of further hostilities.

An English merchant says the first clause, with reference to the establishment and maintenance of American sovereignty and warning the rebels, should settle the question in the mind of every thinking Filipino.

A Scotch ship owner thinks it does not leave any further doubt as to the policy of the United States, and that, consequently, Aguinaldo must submit to the inevitable, as the continuance of hostilities is opposed to the best interests of the Filipinos.

GEORGIA TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

Walter R. Jackson Shoots and Kills His Wife and Young Babe and Puts a Bullet Through His Own Head.

ALBANY, Ga., April 6.—Walter R. Jackson, his wife and their 3-months-old babe were found dead in bed Wednesday morning. Jackson and his wife each had a pistol shot in the head, while the child was shot through the body. Death was evidently instantaneous in each case. It is evident that Jackson first shot his wife and child and then himself. The deed was done during the night. The only other occupant of the house was Mrs. E. E. Richardson, Jackson's grandmother, who was not awakened by the shots.

Jackson was a young business man of high standing and married Miss Janie Codwin a leading society girl, a little over two years ago. Until recently he was cashier and bookkeeper for a warehouse firm. It is supposed he brooded over the loss of his position and killed his family and himself in a fit of insanity.

Rodgers, who was for many years a missionary in Brazil, is now on his way to Manila with his wife and will probably arrive at Hong Kong this week. Rev. D. S. Hibbard and his wife, formerly of Lynden, Kansas, have just started for Manila via San Francisco. Others will leave in the near future.

A FEMALE MAYOR ELECTED.

The Women Drove Their Carriages All Through Blinding Snows Carrying Voters to the Polls.

BEATTIE, Kan., April 6.—In the city election here two tickets were in the field, one composed of women and the other of men. Mrs. Charles Totten was elected for mayor, and Mr. Sheldon, Mrs. Schlight, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Kirlin and Mrs. Watkins for council, while Miss O'Neill for clerk was elected easily.

The women drove their carriages all through blinding snows, carrying voters to the polls. The police judge and marshal are men.

A RIVER GORGED.

Town of Glendive, Mont., Overflowed and Four Persons Drowned.

Northern Pacific Tracks Are Inundated and Possibly Washed Away for Some Distance—Loss to Live Stock By Drowning Large.

GLENDIVE, Mont., April 10.—An ice gorge in the Yellowstone river at this point caused that stream to overflow Saturday night, drowning four persons. Eight more are missing. Three spans of the steel bridge are washed out, causing a loss of $25,000. The Northern Pacific tracks are inundated and possibly washed away for some distance and the loss to live stock by drowning will involve a large sum. The dead persons are:

Mrs. R. W. Snyder, wife of a rancher; Miss Nellie Reagan, her niece; Miss Rose Wybecht, a visitor to the Snyder ranch; Eugene F. O'Connor.

The missing: James Sullivan, wife and six children.

The ice began moving at 7:30 in the evening and continued until 9:30 when it formed a gorge. The Snyder party noticing the backwater started for the Northern Pacific tracks, hoping thus to escape drowning, but before they covered half the distance the water was waist deep and they took refuge in a tree. O'Connor was the first to be washed from the tree, Mrs. Snyder the second and Miss Wybecht third. A huge piece of ice struck the tree and broke it in two, carrying off Miss Reagan. It is thought that the family of James Sullivan, wife and six children were swept away by the overflow, as no trace of them can be found.

JUSTICE STEPHEN J. FIELD

The Aged Jurist Dies at His Home on Capitol Hill, Washington, of Kidney Complications.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Justice Stephen J. Field, of the United States supreme court, retired, died at his home on Capitol Hill, in this city, at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening of kidney complications. About his bedside were his wife and her sister, Mrs. J. Condit Smith, Mr. Justice David J. Brewer, his nephew, Mrs. Edgerton, of California, Mr. Linton, his private secretary, Rev. Edward M. Mott, rector of the Church of the Advent, and the family servants. He had been unconscious since Saturday morning and death came painlessly.

Ever since Justice Field's retirement from the supreme court bench on December 1, 1897, he had enjoyed comparatively good health, and being relieved from the responsibilities which he had borne for so many years, he became more cheerful than formerly, and seemed to enjoy the society of his friends and acquaintances more than ever before.

All during the winter when the weather was fair it was his custom to take daily drives about the city or through the grounds of the Soldiers' home and always returned refreshed. About two weeks ago, however, he took a longer ride than usual in an open carriage and contracted a severe cold which rapidly developed into kidney troubles from which he had suffered, though but slightly, for some time. The disease readily yielded to treatment and on Thursday last he sat up for a time and seemed quite himself again, but on Saturday a change for the worse took place and about noon he lost consciousness. From that time he sank rapidly and expired at 6:30 o'clock.

No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral, nor is it known where he will be buried. It is probable that his remains will be taken to Stockbridge, Mass., where are buried his father and mother and his brothers, Cyrus, Dudley and Jonathan, two sisters and other members of the Field family. It is possible, however, that Mrs. Field may decide to take his remains to California, where a considerable part of his active life was passed before President Lincoln appointed him a member of the supreme bench. Justice and Mrs. Field never had any children, and the only surviving members of his father's family is the justice's youngest brother, Dr. Henry Field, the editor of the Evangelist. During several years prior to his retirement from the bench the justice's health at times seemed on the point of breaking, but he usually recovered promptly and in a few days would again resume his judicial duties. For the past year and more those most intimate with him knew that his mental powers were becoming somewhat impaired. The results of his long career of great mental activity were beginning to show themselves in a falling memory. After his retirement from the bench, though, his physical health seemed to improve a little.

ARE STILL FIGHTING AT APIA.

The American and British War Ships Continue to Shell Samoan Towns—Several Casualties.

APIA, March 24, via San Francisco, April 8.—There have been lively times in Samoa during the past few days. The United States and British war ships have shelled Mataafa's forces repeatedly and sailors have been landed in Apia to protect property. Numerous casualties have resulted on both sides. Adm. Kautz and the commanders of the British ships are awaiting advices from their governments.

When Adm. Kautz arrived on the Philadelphia he spent two days in making inquiries, and then called a meeting of all the consuls and the senior officers of all warships in the harbor. As a result of the meeting a proclamation was issued by the American admiral declaring that the so-called provisional government under Mataafa can have no legal status under the Berlin treaty, and, therefore, can not be recognized by the consular and naval representatives. Declaring Mataafa and his supporters to quietly go to their homes and respect the laws of the Berlin treaty. It was further ordered that the people ejected from their homes be returned, and the power of the naval force, it was stated, would be used against all who disregarded the right of peaceably disposed people.

Adm. Kautz's proclamation was taken to Mataafa and read to him by Flag Lieut. Miller. It was received in silence and no reply was made. Mataafa and his chiefs quietly left and went to the western portion of the municipality, and it seemed as if they were about to obey the commands to return to their homes. The German consul, however, issued a counter proclamation in the Samoan language, which was distributed among the Mataafans. The proclamation reads as follows:

"NOTICE TO ALL SAMOANS: By the proclamation of the United States admiral, dated March 11, was made known that the three consuls of the signatory powers of the Berlin treaty as well as the three commanders of men-of-war had been unanimous to no more recognize the provincial government composed of Mataafa and 13 chiefs.

"I therefore make known to you that this proclamation is quite false. I am the German consul general, I continue to recognize the provisional government of Samoa until I have received contrary instructions from my government. ROSE.

"German Consul General.

"Apia, March 13, 1899."

The immediate result of this act was that the rebels turned back and prepared for war, declaring that they would not obey the admiral's order, and would prevent any food supplies from being brought into Samoa for the Malietoa natives.

RACIAL BATTLE IN HAWAII.

The Japanese and Chinese Laborers on a Plantation Near Honolulu Meet in Mortal Combat.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—The steamer Mariposa arrived Friday from Australia via Samoa and the Hawaiian islands.

A press representative at Honolulu sends an account of a racial battle between the Japanese and Chinese laborers on the Kahuku plantation, which took place on March 26. For some time trouble has been brewing between the Japanese and the Chinese. The Japanese, armed heavily and well organized, made an onslaught on the Chinese quarters, first having placed their own women and children in places of safety. The Chinese were taken entirely unawares. The Japanese wielded spiked clubs, knives and axes, and before the Chinese could make resistance, three of their men were killed and a dozen seriously wounded, some fatally and about forty slightly injured.

The noise of the battle reached headquarters and the manager of the plantation, Mr. Wright, gathered a force of Lunas and went to the scene of the trouble. After considerable difficulty the belligerents were dispersed. A quad of policemen was sent to the plantation from Honolulu and martial law was declared on the plantation. Police from other sections were soon on the spot and before nightfall 55 peace officers were on guard.

The Chinese fled from the plantation and great difficulty was experienced in locating them. Twenty-three of the Japanese ringleaders were arrested and seven Chinese were also jailed.

The Chinese on the island are greatly excited, and the merchants in Honolulu look for further trouble, though the better class are making every effort to keep the opposing factions within legal bounds.

Just as music has different effects on different natures, so it acts differently upon animals of varying species. Weird music is more successful in attracting the attention of animals than that of the louder and harsher instruments. The blare of a trumpet only infuriates them, while of the cornet and flageolet they take not the least notice. Bagpipes and the violin are afforded attention and interest.

Your reputation is above reproach if those who see you on the streets after midnight wonder what sick man you have been sitting up with.

AN EXPEDITION.

It Will Sweep South and Destroy Filipino Gunboats or Shipping.

The Tactics Will Be Those of Old Time Frontier Fighting—The Expeditionary Force Will Be Divided Into Squads of 12 Men Each.

MANILA, April 10.—The expedition of 1,500 men, under Maj. Gen. Henry W. Lawton, which started Saturday night with the intention of crossing Laguna de Bay, captnring the town of Santa Cruz on the eastern shore of the lake and then sweeping the country to the south, consists of 200 picked sharpshooters, chosen from the various regiments, Hawthorne's mountain battery, Gale's squadron, three troops of the 4th cavalry, united with Bronko's and Tappan's battalions of the 14th infantry, Linck's battalion of the 1st Idaho infantry and Fraino's battalion of the 1st North Dakota infantry under Gen. King. The flotilla of 20 canoes, towed by tugs and convoyed by the gunboats Laguna de Bay, Oeste and Rapidan and preceded by the launch containing Gen. Lawton and Gen. King started from San Pedro Macati, on the River Pasig, moving toward the lake just as evening was setting in. It was a truly picturesque scene.

The men were all in high spirits and carried rations for ten days, with the lightest marching equipment.

Gen. Lawton's plan was to reach Santa Cruz Sunday morning at daybreak, to capture or destroy any rebel gunboats or shipping, to take the town and then to scour the country to the south of the lake, a district not yet explored by the Americans. The tactics will be those of old time frontier fighting, and it is probable that the command will be divided into squads of 12, under non-commissioned officers.

In Gen. Lawton's absence the second division is temporarily commanded by Gen. Overshine, whose lines extend from the beach near Malate, south of Manila, to the shore of Laguna de Bay, beyond Pasig, a distance of about seven miles.

The withdrawal of the 18 companies constituting the expeditionary force made a gap in the line from the beach to Culicuil, just southwest of San Pedro Macati, which was subsequently filled by the 4th regular infantry.

The rebels, on the extreme right, had evidently been informed of the withdrawal of the troops and they attempted to sneak through after nightfall, but they met a warm reception and fell back in disorder on discovering that the line was still intact.

A SAILOR, NOT A POLITICIAN.

Adm. Dewey Says That Neither by Vocation, Disposition, Education or Training Was He Fit for Presidency.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Adm. Dewey has given to the Manila correspondent of Leslie's Weekly, an interview regarding the suggestion that the admiral be made a candidate for the presidency next year. The admiral said, as to his politics: "I am a sailor. A sailor has no politics. The administration is his party, and, republican or democratic, it makes no difference. Then, again, I come from Vermont and you know what that means. To be anything but a republican in Vermont is to be a man without a party. My flag lieutenant comes from Georgia. He tells me that to be anything but a democrat in the south is to be a nobody. If I lived south I would probably be a democrat."

"Have you ever voted?" the correspondent asked.

"Yes, years ago; but my vote was usually influenced by personal preference or local conditions. I am not a politician, have never held political office, and am totally ignorant of party intricacies and affiliations."

Adm. Dewey said that neither by vocation, disposition, education or training was he capacitated to fill the presidency. He said that he was too well along in life to consider such a possibility. His health would not admit it. All his life's work was in different lines of effort, and that while the kindness and enthusiasm of his friends were grateful to him and the generous tributes of the American people were dear to him he could not and would not be a candidate for the presidency of the United States under any conditions.

Ex-Senator Tabor Dying.

DENVER, Col., April 10.—Ex-United Senator H. A. W. Tabor, of Colorado, is at the point of death at the Windsor hotel in this city. He was taken down with appendicitis several days ago and because of his advanced age his physicians have decided that an operation would be fatal and he had a better chance for recovery without it.

Adm. Dewey Will Not Attend the Peace Jubilee.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Secretary Long announces that the delicate and important duties devolving upon Adm. George Dewey, in connection with the restoration of peace and the reorganization of the government in the Philippines precludes a compliance with the request of the Business Men's association of Washington looking to his participation in the proposed peace jubilee in this city some time next month.

NEW WAR VESSELS NAMED.

The President Gives the Twelve New Vessels Recently Provided for by the Congress Their Names.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Secretary Long has named the ships appropriated for by the last session of congress. The battle ships are to be called Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Georgia; the armored cruisers, West Virginia, Nebraska and California; the six smaller cruisers, Cleveland, Denver, Des Moines, Chattanooga, Galveston and Tacoma.

Petitions by the hundreds have been flowing into the white house and navy department ever since the new ships were provided nrging the merits of various names. The president and Secretary Long enjoyed the good natured rivalry in making the final determination. Consideration was given not only to the urgency of the influence brought to bear but also to the several sections of the country. Pennsylvania petitioned through Gov. Stone, Senators Quay and Penrose, and the entire delegation of the house of representatives.

Georgia did not petition the navy department and it is believed that the choice of a southern state was due to a desire by the president to compliment those with whom he visited on his recent southern trip. Senator Elkins and the congressional delegation was most active for West Virginia; Representative Mercer made it his business to besiege the navy department with petitions for Nebraska. The choice of California also seems to be a personal compliment, without the same effort shown in other states. The same rivalry was shown among the cities, the mayors, city councils, chambers of commerce, etc., joining in the plea.

The battle ships Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Georgia are described in the act authorizing them as follows:

Three sea-going coast line battle ships carrying the heaviest armor and most powerful ordnance for vessels of their class upon a trial displacement of about 13,500 tons, to be sheathed and coppered and to have the highest practicable speed and great radius of action, and to cost, exclusive of armor and armament, not exceeding $3,600,000 each.

The armored cruisers are similarly described, except that they are to cost $4,000,000 each and to have a displacement of 12,000 tons.

The cruisers Denver, Cleveland and others are described as "protected cruisers of about 3,500 tons trials displacement, to be sheathed and coppered and to have the highest speed compatable with good cruising qualities, great radius of action and to carry the most powerful ordnance suited to vessels of their class and to cost, exclusive of armament, not exceeding $1,141,800 each.

GEN. ALGER IN PORTO RICO.

His Trip Over the Military Road From Ponce to Coamo Springs Creates Great Enthusiasm.

SAN JUAN DE PORTO RICO, April 8.—Secretary Alger's trip over the military road from Ponce has produced great enthusiasm among the people. At every village and town he was met by a delegation of citizens and public officials the demonstrations not being exceeded by those given to the first American troops landing on this island. The party breakfasted at Coamo Springs and the delegation which met them expressed great confidence in the administration of the war department and the loyalty of the American government. Gen. Alger will remain over night in Cayeye and will arrive in San Juan Saturday morning. The secretary announces his intention of leaving San Juan Saturday night.

THE TRANSPORT SCANDIA.

She Arrives at Quarantine, San Francisco, With Discharged Soldiers and the Bodies of Four Officers.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—The transport Scandia arrived at quarantine Friday from Manila, with 64 time expired and discharged soldiers and the bodies of four officers who fell fighting in the Philippines. The remains brought back are those of Col. Smith, of the Tennessee regiment, who died of apoplexy as he was leading his men on the attack on Manila; Capt. D. S. Elliott, of the 20th Kansas regiment, killed February 20 at Caloocan by a sharpshooter; Maj. McConville, of the Idaho regiment, who fell while charging at the head of his men on the trenches before Caloocan, and Lieut. French, of the 1st North Dakota, was killed at the same place.

Lieut. Swaze, 1st California regiment, and Capt. Murphy, of the 14th infantry, were also on board.

Lift to Spanish Commerce.

BARCELONA, April 8.—At a meeting of shipowners here the government was thanked for the adoption of duties discriminating in favor of raw cotton imported from the United States as against cotton imported via European countries.

Killed in a Duel.

BERLIN, April 8.—A young law student here, named Klovekora, has just been killed by Lieut. Dorling in a duel at Coblentz, arising out of a quarrel over a woman.

Friday evening in company with Supt. Voshell and Lan Norman, we visited the school of Prof. Collins. After recess, readings under the head of current topics were in order, followed with magic lantern exhibits by Miss Martha Lassing and Master Coleman Lassing that were entertaining and instructive.

Our friend, John Crisler, of Gunpowder, was in Union Friday and had his answer ready to the question you asked him. He says Stonewall Jackson was the general Mr. Crisler gave the military salute and looked every inch the man who even at the age of 60 or more could trim up a delegation of Philliphos on short notice.

John Hickory Bradford, who lives one door south of the toll-gate and fer nince R. L. Willis', ate beans and hog with us not long since and made some observations on things and things that are not things. One was that men who hate each other seldom (if ever) kiss when they meet. Another, was that the man who is generous to a fault is mostly generous to his own fault; still another was that any man in need of a fortune can secure one on easy terms by purchasing the hotel and springs at Big Bone and running a railroad from Erlanger to them via Union.

Jack Berkshire brought lots of bad weather along with him, but has progressed nicely with the Eagle Hotel. He had never seen one of the celebrated "Voshell Telescopes" until Friday eve. Friday night was favorable for making observations, being dark as a stack of black cats in a hollow, black oak log 2,000 feet under the black sea, and Mr. Voshell loaned Mr. Berkshire one of the latest models, through which he made some very interesting discoveries First, he discovered that the moon never shines on nights like Friday night; second, that if it had the man in it could not play euchre any better than the partner he had in a game not many moons past; 3rd, and most important discovery was that onions are raised on the valley lands of Jupiter, Mars and Saturn, but nothing to compare with the potato-onions raised by Mr. Voshell.

Last Wednesday night the residence of Mr. Marion Grubbs, on the Lexington pike, near Richwood, was destroyed by fire. Loss, about $1,500.

Edward C. Toll, special agent for the Aetna Fire Insurance Company, was here one day last week, inspecting risks and calling on the local agent, A. M. Thomas.

Mrs. Givens, of Cynthiana, who has been visiting her sisters, the Misses Hoggins, the past three weeks, left for Covington, Saturday, to make a short visit before returning home.

Mrs. H. Max Lentz was called, by wire on Monday of last week, to Tonytown, Maryland, to see her mother, who is seriously ill. Rev. Lentz received a letter from her since her arrival, stating that her mother had had two strokes of paralysis, and that her recovery is somewhat doubtful.

Frank Nicholson moved here from Covington, last week, and opened a barber shop. Florence already had something out of the ordinary, in the way of a barber who would call on you anywhere in town at "any old time," and do your shaving and hairdressing in the latest fashion, but competition is the life of trade.

Jack Lewis, of Erlanger, who was hurt in a wreck on the Q. and C., the 9th of February, had an accident policy in the Pacific Mutual with A. M. Thomas, agent. His claim papers were forwarded to the company on Monday and on Wednesday of the same week he received a check for the amount of the claim. That is what we call prompt business.

IN GRIP OF STEEL.

Dr. Talmage Draws a Lesson from the Tenacity of Eleazar.

He Urges a Closer Adherence to the Gospel and Announces That He Will Not Cease to Preach.

In the first notice concerning Dr. Talmage that Pastor Charles H. Spurgeon, of London, wrote the great English minister said he was glad to find a preacher that believed something. This discourse of Dr. Talmage is in that vein, and urges close adherence to the old Gospel; text, II. Samuel, 23:10, "And his hand clave unto the sword."

What a glorious thing to preach the Gospel! Some suppose that because I have resigned a fixed pastorate I will cease to preach! No! No! I expect to preach more than I ever have. If the Lord will, four times as much, though in manifold places. I would not dare to halt with such opportunity to declare the truth through the ear to audiences and to the eye through the printing press. And here we have a stirring theme put before us by the prophet.

A great general of King David was Eleazar, the hero of the text. The Philistines opened battle against him, and his troops retreated. The cowards fled. Eleazar and three of his comrades went into the battle and swept the field, for four men with God on their side are stronger than a whole regiment with God against them. "Fall back!" shouted the commander of the Philistine army. The cry ran along the host: "Fall back!" Eleazar, having swept the field, throws himself on the ground to rest, but the muscles and sinews of his hand had been so long bent around the hilt of the sword that the hilt was imbedded in the flesh, and the gold wire of the hilt had broken through the skin of the palm of his hand, and he could not drop this sword which he had so gallantly wielded. "His hand clave unto the sword." That is what I call magnificent fighting for the Lord God of Israel. And we want more of it.

I propose to show you how Eleazar took hold of the sword and how the sword took hold of Eleazar. I look at Elenzar's hand, and I come to the conclusion that he took the sword with a very tight grip. The cowards who fled had no trouble in dropping their swords. As they fly over the rocks I hear their swords clanging in every direction. It is easy enough for them to drop their swords. But Eleazar's hand clave unto the sword. In this Christian conflict we want a tighter grip of the Gospel weapons, a tighter grasp of the two-edged sword of the truth. It makes me sick to see these Christian people who hold only a part of the truth, and let the rest of the truth go, so that the Philistines, seeing the loosened grasp, wrench the whole sword away from them.

The only safe thing for us to do is to put our thumb on the book of Genesis and sweep our hand around the book until the tips of the fingers clutch at the words: "In the beginning God created the Heavens and the earth." I like an infidel a great deal better than I do one of these namby pamby Christians who hold a part of the truth and let the rest go. By miracle, God preserved this Bible just as it is, and it is a Damascus blade. The severest test to which a sword can be put in a sword factory is to wind the blade around a gun barrel like a ribbon, and then, when the sword is let loose, it flies back to its own shape. So the sword of God's truth has been fully tested, and it is bent this way and that way and wound this way and that way, but it always comes back to its own shape. Think of it! A book written near 19 centuries ago, and some of it thousands of years ago, and yet in our time the average sale of this Book is more than 20,000 copies every week, and more than a million copies a year. I say now that a book which is Divinely inspired, and Divinely kept, and Divinely scattered is a weapon worth holding a tight grip of. Bishop Colenso will come along and try to wrench out of your hand the five books of Moses, and Strauss will come along and try to wrench out of your hand the miracles, and Renan will come along and try to wrench out of your hand the entire life of the Lord Jesus Christ, and your associates in the office or the factory or the banking house will try to wrench out of your hand the entire Bible, but in the strength of the Lord God of Israel and with Eleazar's grip hold on to it. You give up the Bible, you give up any part of it, and you give up pardon and peace and life and heaven.

Do not be ashamed, young man, to have the world know that you are a friend of the Bible. This book is the friend of all that is good, and it is the sworn enemy of all that is bad. An eloquent writer recently gives an incident of a very bad man who stood in a cell of a western prison. This criminal had gone through all styles of crime, and he was there waiting for the gallows. The convict standing there at the window of the cell, this writer says, "looked out and declared, 'I am an infidel.' He said that to all the men and women and children who happened to be gathered there, 'I am an infidel,'" and the eloquent writer says, "Every man and woman there believed him." And the writer goes on to say, "If he had stood there saying, 'I am a Christian,' every man and woman would have said, 'He is a liar!'"

This Bible is the sworn enemy of all that is wrong, and it is the friend of all that is good. Oh, hold on it! Do not take part of it and throw the rest away. Hold on to all of it. There are so many people now who do not know. You ask them if the soul is immortal, and they say: "I guess it is; I don't know. Perhaps it is; perhaps it isn't." Is the Bible true? "Well, perhaps it is, and perhaps it isn't. Perhaps it may be, figuratively, and perhaps it may be partly, and perhaps it may not be at all." They despise what they call the apostolic creed, but if their own creed were written out it would read like this: "I believe in nothing, the maker of heaven and earth, and in nothing which it hath sent, which nothing was born of nothing and which nothing was dead and buried and descended into nothing and arose from nothing and ascended to nothing and now sitteth at the right hand of nothing, from which it will come to judge nothing. I believe in the holy agnostic church and in the communion of nothingarians and in the forgiveness of nothing, and the resurrection of nothing and in the life that never shall be. Amen!" That is the creed of tens of thousands of people in this day. If you have a mind to adopt such a theory, I will not. "I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ and in the holy Catholic church and in the communion of saints and in the life everlasting. Amen." Oh, when I see Eleazar taking such a stout grip of the sword in the battle against sin and for righteousness, I come to the conclusion that we ought to take a stouter grip of God's eternal truth—the sword of righteousness.

As I look at Eleazar's hand I also notice his spirit of self forgetfulness. He did not notice that the hilt of the sword was eating through the palm of his hand. He did not know it hurt him. As he went out into the conflict he was so anxious for the victory he forgot himself, and that hilt might go never so deeply into the palm of his hand, it could not disturb him. "His hand clave unto the sword." Oh, my brothers and sisters, let us go into the Christian conflict with the spirit of self abnegation. Who cares whether the world praises us or denounces us? What do we care for misrepresentation or abuse or persecution in a conflict like this? Let us forget ourselves. That man we is afraid of getting his hand hurt will never kill a Philistine. Who cares whether you get hurt or not if you get the victory? Oh, how many Christians there are who are all the time worrying about the way the world treats them. They are so tired, and they are so abused, and they are so tempted, when Eleazar did not think whether he had a hand or an arm or a foot. All he wanted was victory.

We see how men forget themselves in worldly achievement. We have often seen men who, in order to achieve worldly success, will forget all physical fatigue and all annoyance and all obstacle. Just after the battle of Yorktown, in the American revolution, a musician, wounded, was told he must have his limbs amputated, and they were about to fasten him to the surgeon's table, for it was long before the merciful discovery of anaesthetics. He said, "No, don't fasten me to that table; get me a violin." A violin was brought to him, and he said, "Now go to work as I begin to play," and for 40 minutes, during the awful pangs of amputation, he moved not a muscle nor dropped a note, while he played some sweet tune. Oh, is it not strange that with the music of the gospel of Jesus Christ and with this grand march of the church militant on the way to become the church triumphant we cannot forget ourselves and forget all pang and all sorrow and all persecution and all perturbation?

We know what men accomplish under worldly opposition. Then do not shrink back for antagonism or for hardship. You have admired Prescott's "Conquest of Mexico," as brilliant and beautiful a history as was ever written, but some of you may not know under what disadvantages it was written—that "Conquest of Mexico"—for Prescott was totally blind, and he had two pieces of wood parallel to each other fastened, and, totally blind, with his pen between those pieces of wood, he wrote, the stroke against one piece of wood telling how far the pen must go in one way, the stroke against the other piece of wood telling how far the pen must go the other way. Oh, how much men will endure for worldly knowledge and for worldly success, and yet how little we endure for Jesus Christ! How many Christians there are that go around saying: "Oh, my hand; oh, my hand, my hurt hand! Don't you see there is blood on the hand, and there is blood on the sword?" while Eleazar, with the hilt imbedded in the flesh of his right hand, does not know it.

What have we suffered in comparison with those who expired with suffocation or were burned or were chopped to pieces for the truth's sake? We talk of the persecution of olden times. There is just as much persecution going on now in various ways. In 1849, in Madagascar, 18 men were put to death for Christ's sake. They were to be buried over the rocks, and before they were buried over the rocks, in order to make their death the more dreadful in anticipation, they were put in baskets and swung to and fro over the precipice that they might see how many hundred feet they would have to be dashed down, and while they were swinging in these baskets over the rocks they sang:

Jesus, lover of my soul,
Let me to Thy bosom fly,
While the billows near me roll,
While the tempest still is high.

Then they were dashed down to death. Oh, how much others have endured for Christ, and how little we endure for Christ! We want to ride to Heaven in a Pullman sleeping car, our feet on soft plush, the bed made up curly, so we can sleep all the way, the black porter of death to wake us up only in time to enter the golden city. We want all the surgeons to fix our hand up. Let them bring on all the lint and all the bandages and all the salve for our hand is hurt, while Eleazar does not know his hand is hurt. "His hand clave unto the sword."

As I look at Eleazar's hand I come to the conclusion that he has done a great deal of hard hitting. I am not surprised when I see that these four men—Eleazar and his three companions drove back the army of Philistines—that Eleazar's sword clave to his hand, for every time he struck an enemy with one end of the sword the other end of the sword wounded him.

Oh, we have found an enemy who cannot be conquered by rosewater and soft speeches. It must be sharp stroke und straight thrust. There is intemperance, and there is fraud, and there is gambling, and there is lust, and there are 10,000 battalions of iniquity, armed Philistine iniquity. How are they to be captured and overthrown? Soft sermons in morocco cases laid down in front of an exquisite audience will not do it. You have got to call things by their right name. You have got to expel from our churches Christians who eat the sacrament on Sunday and devour widows' houses all the week. We have got to stop our indignation against the Hittites and the Jebusites and the Girgashites and let those poor wretches go and apply our indignation to the modern transgressions which need to be dragged out and slain. Ahabs here. Herods here. Jezebels here. The massacre of the infants here. Strike for God so hard that while you slay the sin the sword will adhere to your own hand. I tell you, my friends, we want a few John Knoxes and John Wesleys in the Christian church to-day.

The whole tendency is to refine on Christian work. We keep on refining on it until we send apologetic word to iniquity we are about to capture it. And we must go with sword, silver chased and presented by the ladies, and we must ride on white palfrey under embroidered housing, putting the spurs in only just enough to make the charger dance gracefully, and then we must send a missive, delicate as a wedding card, to ask the old black giant of sin if he will not surrender. Women saved by the grace of God and on glorious mission sent, detained from the Sabbath classes because their new hat is not done. Churches that shook our cities with great revivals sending around to ask some demonstrative worshiper if he will not please to say "amen" and "hallelujah" a little softer. It seems as if in our churches we wanted a baptism of cologne und balm of a thousand flowers when we actually need a baptism of fire from the Lord God of Pentecost. But we are so afraid somebody will criticise our sermons or criticise our prayers or criticise our religious work that our anxiety for the world's redemption is lost in the fear we will get our hand hurt, while Eleazar went into the conflict, "and his hand clave unto the sword."

But I see in the next place what a hard thing it was for Eleazar to get his hand and his sword parted. The muscles and the sinews had been so long grasped around the sword he could not drop it, and his three comrades, I suppose, came up and tried to help him, and they bathed the back part of the hand, hoping the sinews und muscles would relax. But no. "His hand clave unto the sword." Then they tried to pull open the fingers and to pull back the thumb, but no sooner were they pulled back than they closed again, "and his hand clave unto the sword." But after awhile they were successful, and then they noticed that the curve in the palm of the hand corresponded exactly with the curve of the hilt. "His hand clave unto the sword."

You and I have seen it many a time. There are in the United States to-day many aged ministers of the Gospel. They are too feeble now to preach. In the church records the word standing opposite their name is "emeritus," or the words are, "a minister without charge." They were a heroic race. They had small salaries and but few books, and they swam spring freshets to meet their appointments. But they did in their day a mighty work for God. They took off more of the heads of Philistine iniquity than you could count from noon to sundown. You put that old minister of the Gospel now into a prayer meeting or occasional pulpit or a sickroom where there is some one to be comforted, and it is the same old ring to his voice, and the same old story of pardon and peace and Christ and Heaven. His hand has so long clutched the sword in Christian conflict he cannot drop it. "His hand clave unto the sword."

I had in my parish in Philadelphia a very aged man who in his early life had been the companion and adviser of the early presidents, Madison and Monroe. He had wielded vast influence, but I only knew him as a very aged man. The most remarkable thing about him was his ardor for Christ. When he could not stand up in the meetings without propping, he would throw his arm around a pillar of the church, and, though his mind was partially gone, his love for Christ was so great that all were in deep respect and profound admiration, and were moved when he spoke. I was called to see him die. I entered the room, and he said: "Mr. Talmage, I cannot speak to you now." He was in a very pleasant delirium, as he imagined he had an audience before him. He said: "I must tell these people to come to Christ and prepare for Heaven." And then in this pleasant delirium, both arms lifted, this octogenarian preached Christ and told of the glories of the world to come. There, lying on his dying pillow, his dying hand clave to his sword.

Oh, if there ever was anyone who had a right to retire from the conflict, it was old Joshua. Soldiers come back from battle have the names of the battles on their flags, showing where they distinguished themselves, and it is a very appropriate inscription. Look at that flag of old Gen. Joshua. On it, Jericho, Gibeon, Hazar, city of Ai, and instead of the stars sprinkled on the flag the sun and the moon which stood still. There he is, 110 years old. He is lying flat on his back, but he is preaching. His dying words are a battle charge against idolatry, and a rallying cry for the Lord of Hosts as he says: "Behold, this day I go the way of all the earth, and God hath not failed to fulfill his promise concerning Israel." His dying hand clave unto the sword.

WHAT IT SOUNDED LIKE.

The Horn-Player's Criticism of the First Production of Tannhauser.

In conversation with a musical friend who learned his profession in Germany, I heard, the other evening, an anecdote of Richard Wagner which, to my knowledge, has never been in print.

By way of preface it must be said that, at the outset of his career, at least, Wagner was extremely unpopular with the instrumental performers. This was due to the fact that he made them work much harder than they had ever been used to working before. During the supremacy of the Italian school of opera the instrumentalists had a comparatively easy time of it. After the overture had been played—and that was not so very difficult—the evening's work was pretty well done, a few short chords for a recitative or a tum-la-la, tum-la-la, accompaniment for a florid solo being about all that was required of an orchestra in the old days. The consequence was that two or three rehearsals with an orchestra was generally considered sufficient for the production of a new opera.

But with Wagner came a change. The orchestra rose to coequal importance with the singers and rehearsals—hard, and lots of them—were required from the instrumentalists. Moreover, the musicians were totally unaccustomed to that style of music. Hence it was that the great Wagner heard a very uncomplimentary criticism of his music.

It was during the rehearsal of the Tannhauser, which was about to be produced for the first time. After a hard afternoon's work, singers and orchestra players were about to leave. Wagner paused for a moment in the wings of the stage. On the other side of one of the side settings was a violinist and a horn player.

"Well," remarked the violinist, "I guess we are pretty well acquainted with this 'wonderful' mun's music."

"Yes," replied the horn-player, with a vengeance.

"How does it sound to you?" asked the other.

"Hoellisch," replied the horn-player. It needed no extensive knowledge of German to understand the remark. Wagner heard it all, and, possessing a good sense of humor, himself, he made a short speech at the next rehearsal, thanking the musicians for the compliment—much to their confusion.—Buffalo News.

KEPT HIS TOBACCO.

A Dealer Who Stored It Fifteen Years to Acquire the Proper Flavor for Use.

"Apropos of heavy black tobacco," remarked another dealer who had dropped in for a chat, "I used to have a number of customers who smoked cigarettes made of straight perique. Some few remain, but I could count them on one hand, and the habit is, so to speak, extinct. I doubt whether it was as injurious to the health as some have claimed, and I had a pretty good opportunity to watch its effects. For over 20 years I have sold tobacco to one of the most enthusiastic perique smokers in New Orleans. He was past middle age when he first came to my shop, and is still hale and vigorous, his eyes as bright as a bird's and his hand as steady as a clock. He buys his tobacco in bulk, afterward cutting it to suit himself, and like a number of other old-time smokers, he can detect exquisitely slight differences in flavor among a lot of rolls or carrots. It is very interesting to see him pick out a supply for private ripening, something he attends to at intervals, just as one might keep up a wine cellar. He proceeds on the theory, I believe, that the leaf is at its best between 12 and 15 years after having been put away, and has each roll carefully dated, so as to enable him to consume perique of approximately that date from season to season. As it ages, the tobacco assumes a beautiful deep black-brown, and doesn't resemble ordinary tobacco at all. This particular old gentleman I have in mind has shown me pieces that looked like mineral, and other pieces that looked like ebony. He moistens them with a dash of sherry and water, whittles off what he wants with a penknife, rolls it up with a quick turn of the wrist and walks away puffing a cloud of smoke that would lift the average young clubman clear off his feet. As I remarked before, however, there are very few of the old-time perique smokers still alive—I doubt if there are over five or six now left who continue to keep up their annual stocks."—N. O. Almond Cherries.

Make some almond paste, as for the potatoes, divide it into three portions. Put each on a plate, and color the first red with cochineal, the second green with some good vegetable green coloring, and leave the third the natural tint. Take about half a pound of glace or crystallized cherries; carefully cut each open, but not so far as to split them in halves. Roll the paste into small balls about the size of a hazelnut. Tuck a ball of paste into each cherry—never mind the shape—then roll it round several times in your hands. It will thus arrange and shape itself. Finally, give it a good roll in some powdered sugar, and place it in a little fancy paper case. These different-colored cherries are most dainty looking, and equally good to eat. Dates, with the stones removed and opened, and filled with the paste, are excellent; also good muscatel raisins, opened und stoned.—Boston Globe.

OVER WORK MAKES WEAK KIDNEYS.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

YOUR KIDNEYS ARE YOUR BLOOD FILTERS.

A Prompt Way to Cure Yourself When Symptoms Show That Your Kidneys Are Out Of Order.

To Test the Wonderful Merits of the Great Modern Discovery, Swamp-Root, Every Reader May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free By Mail.

The way to be well is to pay attention to your kidneys.

They are the most important organs of the body—the blood filters.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys strain or filter out the impurities in the blood—that is their work.

Does your blood run through your bowels?

What the bowel-cleaner does is to throw out the poisons confined in your bowels ready for absorption into your blood, but the poisons which are already in your blood, causing your present sickness, it leaves there.

There is no other way of purifying your blood except by means of your kidneys.

That is why bowel-cleaners fail to do their work—they fail to help the kidneys.

When you are sick, then, no matter what you think the name of your disease is, the first thing you should do is to afford aid to your kidneys by using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great Kidney Remedy.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

Dr. Kilmer, the eminent physician, and specialist, has attained a famed reputation through the discovery and marvelous success of Swamp-Root in purifying the blood, and thereby curing chronic and dangerous diseases, caused by sick kidneys, of which some of the symptoms are given below.

Pain or dull ache in back or head, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, dizziness, irregular heart, sleeplessness, sallow complexion, dropsy, irritability, loss of ambition, obliged to pass water often during the day, and to get up many times at night, and all kinds of kidney, bladder and uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root is sold by all dealers, in fifty-cent or one-dollar bottles. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

To prove the wonderful merits of his great discovery he now offers to every reader of this paper a prepaid free sample bottle of Swamp-Root, which he will send to any address, free by mail.

A book about Health, Diet and Disease as Related to your Kidneys and giving some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from the sufferers cured, also sent free with the sample bottle.

The great discovery, Swamp-Root, is so remarkably successful that our readers are advised to write for a sample bottle and to be sure and mention this paper when sending their addresses to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

A WISH GRATIFIED.

The Shaky Young Man's Sire Gives Him the Wherewithal to "Raise the Dough."

"My son," said the old gentleman who very properly objects to slang, "I have been thinking over your request this morning, and I am inclined to think I may have been a little hasty in my decision."

"Thank you, governor."

"I believe in clearly understanding a case before reopening it. Now, as I remember the conversation, your call at the office was prompted by a desire to 'raise the dough.'"

"Yes, that is to say—"

"Never mind. I ask for no explanations. I do not seek to inquire into all the trivial whims of youth. I accept them as I do the wild flowers among the grain. They are useless, but they are cheering to contemplate. There are many things I do not understand, among them being golf, lawn tennis and football. But I do not assume to interfere with your innocent diversion any more than I undertake to keep track of the current fad. If you want to give up experiments with the chafing dish and go to work with an oven, I have no objection to offer, nor will I let the mere matter of expense stand in your way. I was rather busy when you spoke to me about raising the dough this morning. I know that I spoke shortly; but my heart is in the right place, and I am too generous and indulgent to deny your slightest request. Here, my boy, is two cents. Go and buy yourself a cake of yeast."—Washington Star.

A Funny Gift.

Among the presents lately showered upon a rural bride was one that was the gift of an old lady in the neighborhood, with whom both bride and groom were prime favorites.

Some years ago the old lady accumulated a supply of cardboard mottoes, which she worked and had framed as occasion arose.

In cheerful reds and blues, suspended by a cord of the same colors, over the table on which the other presents were grouped, hung the motto "Fight on, Fight ever."—Detroit Free Press.

A Snatch of Story Wherein the "Choo-Choo" Indulge in a Few Paths of Complaint.

He (the switch engine) gave a vigorous pull to the west-bound car as he spoke, and started back with a snort of surprise, for the car was an old friend—an M. K. T. boxcar.

"Jack my drivers, but its homeless Katy! Why, Katy, ain't there no getting you back to your friends? There's 40 chasers out for you from your road, if there's one. Who is holding you now?"

"Wish I knew," whimpered homeless Katy. "I belong in Parsons. I've only been out ten months, but I'm just sinin' homesick; I want to be in Kansas where the sunflowers bloom."

"Yard's full o' Homeless Katies an' Wanderin' Willies," the switch engine explained to .007. "Dunno quite how our men fix it. Swap around, I guess; anyhow I've done my duty. For 45 years we had been imprisoned by the ice, and our situation was becoming desperate. It was not likely that we could hold out 45 years longer.

In this juncture a ship appeared. An officer disembarked and came to us.

"We are the Smith party," we replied. "You, doubtless, are our relief expedition."

"No," said the officer, "the Jones party are your relief expedition. We are the relief expedition of the Jones party. So long."

DUTY OF DEMOCRATS.

The People Must Be Redeemed from the Pawnbrokers of Wall Street.

Day by day it is becoming evident that the rank and file of the republican party are prepared, complacently and blindly, to follow their leaders in the support of trusts.

Here is one of their recent utterances: "Those who oppose trusts are simply getting in the way of 'the car of progress.' Trusts are the natural outgrowth of our advanced civilization. They lessen the cost of production and put the necessities of life within reach of the poor. The trusts are big, but this is the era of big things. The day of small things has passed. The men who are whining because they are about to be driven out of business by the trusts will make more money and have an easier time working for these trusts than ever before."

When men drift into the condition of mind to voice such sentiments or to approve of them they are ripe for serfdom. They already have passed the prerequisite of pusillanimous servility and there only remains to be branded on their backs the ownership mark of some trust to make them full-fledged and contented serfs.

The claims made by the republicans in favor of trusts are brazenly false. It is hardly possible to name a single article that has fallen under trust control the price of which has not been "marked up" from 25 to 200 per cent.

That some of the trusts will be forced temporarily to advance wages as part of the general scheme to crush out competition is almost inevitable. When competition shall have been effectually strangled, and the trusts have full control of the industries, the prediction that they will pay "generous wages" to their employes is supremely absurd.

The trusts are always ready to spend money lavishly in crushing out competition. It may be set down as certain that they do not do this with the desire and intention of enjoying a monopoly of paying "generous wages," of of selling merchandise to the poor at low prices.

When the trust system is more fully established and the compact between the trusts shall be in good working order, there need be no hope of high rates of wages. On the contrary, it can be predicted with a fair degree of certainty that the rate of wages generally paid will very nearly represent the very lowest amount, scientifically ascertained, upon which a man can keep alive and work from 12 to 15 hours a day.

With McKinley's protective tariff shutting out foreign competition, and the trusts cutting off domestic competition, the question is not whether the people will have to pray for mercy. The only open question is: What can the people do to save themselves?

The republican party promised the people "big things," and they have given them in the shape of trusts. After taking a good look at these "big things" the chances are the people will turn to the democratic party and ask for some old-fashioned "Jeffersonian simplicity."

Leaders of democracy, get together and redeem the nation from the pawnbrokers of Wall street.—Chicago Democrat.

TRUSTS AND THE G. O. P.

Even Republican Organs Are Beginning to Take a Grand Tumble.

The Syracuse Post-Standard is another republican paper that has taken alarm at the rapid growth of the trust system, that system which other republican papers have frankly charged to the republican protective tariff policy. The Post-Standard declares that this subject of the trusts invites attention, and it wants to know what the republican party is going to do about it. That the g. o. p. will do something about it that paper is confident. The fact that some of the combines claim to have reduced prices does not affect the situation, as the Post-Standard sees it. That paper says:

"It is not enough that a trust shall not be convicted of raising the prices of its products? Does it not dawn on the most casual students mind that an unorganized public is just now poorly protected against the frightful influence of combinations of capital in our legislatures and elsewhere? It is not entirely a matter of the price of sugar or kerosene, and we believe that the party of Lincoln and Grant, which can never afford to be less than fearless, is coming to realize this fact.

"The multiplying trusts are a present menace if not a present grave danger to business, and even to government. In this threatened danger, as in other past dangers that have threatened equally, the reliance of the people is in the republican party.

"The old party has served them before; it is not likely to fail them now."

It is apparent, on the admission of leading republican papers, that "the old party has served them" with trusts, and a lot of them, and it may fairly be doubted that it will move against those combinations of capital. It has already made a pretense of attacking them. In congress and in the state legislatures it has passed anti-trust laws that are found to be unserviceable; laws with which aiding them, states' attorneys have laughed out of court. Perhaps that party is worthy of "the reliance of the people," and it is not unlikely that it will ask them to rely on it. It ought not to surprise anybody if the g. o. p. suddenly comes forth in the character of defender of the people against the trusts; but, all the same the trusts will foot its campaign bills.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

——If it be true that the Sherman anti-trust law is not sufficient to meet the ends sought, then it should be amended. There is no hope of amending it, however, under republican control of congress. Mr. McKinley's law officer has demonstrated in his lame excuses for his department's indifference toward this growing menace to American industry and freedom the necessity of democratic control of national affairs.—Houston Post.

AGENT OF FAMINES.

The adorers of the "advance agent" scout the suggestion that the improvement in industrial and trade conditions which we have been experiencing can be due to anything but the triumph of the republican party and the effects of republican policy under the all but omniscient and omnipotent McKinley. To McKinley and the party which is inspired by his superhuman spirit they give all the praise for big crops and high prices and the busy factories and loaded railroad trains that follow after big crops and high prices. But there are some things of which they have very little to say, because, while logically they are as much due to McKinley and the party as is our present boom, they are not altogether subjects of rejoicing. At least we have not advanced so far in our imperial contempt for "inferior peoples" as to regard them as subjects of rejoicing.

One of these things was the recent famine in India. By reason of the drouth India, so far from producing a surplus of wheat for export, became a consumer of the surplus foodstuffs of other countries. A natural result was an advance in the price of wheat. If then we must give McKinley and the party all the praise for prosperity we must logically give them the glory for the famine in India and incidentally for the bubonic plague. Another of these things is the famine in Russia. In a cable dispatch Henry Norman says: "The Russian famine is on a scale which Europe is only just beginning to realize. All the provinces of the middle Volga district, thousands of square miles in extent and in the center of the empire, are on the verge of starvation." He adds that in some localities the seed wheat supplied by the government has been used for food and that by the admission of the Russian Red Cross society 23 per cent. of the destitute have no prospect of any official assistance and must either be supported by private charity or die.

This state of things in Russia, which, after the United States, is the chief source of cereal supply for those European countries which depend more or less upon importations, would naturally account for the maintenance of prices in face of the increased product of this country. It would naturally account for the fact that our exports of breadstuffs continue to be so extraordinary. It follows that if McKinley and his party are to be credited with our prosperity they must also be held responsible for the famine in Russia.

It will occur to people who take sober views of such things that a political party in the United States cannot rely implicitly upon famines in other lands to produce prosperity for its honor, glory and profit just at the times when it stands in special need of these things for electioneering purposes. Normal conditions are pretty sure to be restored in Russia and India and to continue for a considerable number of years. Indeed, it is more than possible that the Siberian railroad will open up new and fertile regions of great extent, capable of producing a large surplus of small grains and of making Russia a more formidable competitor than ever in the grain market of the world.

Even if we have nothing more than a restoration of normal conditions there will be an end of famine prices for foodstuffs and a relapse to something like the prices which prevailed in the years of world-wide plenty not long ago. Then it will not be so easy for the republican party to make people believe in the prosperity-producing magic either of the tariff or of a policy of imperial dominion. Indeed, it is not impossible that a revulsion and a fall-back into the dumps will disclose to the perceptions of even the dullest citizen the falsity of the pretense that the republican party runs the greatest prosperity show on earth and that McKinley is either its advance agent or its Barnum.—Chicago Chronicle.

POINTS AND OPINION.

——It is a historical fact that most of the boasted accomplishments of the present administration have been the subjects of official inquiry.—Omaha World-Herald.

——It is hinted that Mr. Hanna is looking for some one to go on the ticket with President McKinley in 1900. Sealed proposals should be invited.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——The republicans are enjoying the spectacle of squabbles among the democrats. But they will learn that this means a live party with something to accomplish. The dead never fight.—Washington Times.

——With wars, rumors of wars and Algerism turning their hair gray, President McKinley appears to be still hunting trouble. He has announced to his cabinet that he will soon issue a civil service order placing 6,500 offices at the disposal of republican spoilsmen.—Philadelphia Times.

——The president is quoted as saying that the newspaper criticisms of Secretary Alger applied to him as much as they did to the secretary. This is true as gospel. For haven't we Mark Hanna's word for it that Alger made no move without first consulting the president?—Wheeling Register.

——Mr. McKinley is discovering that he now feels that it is best for Cuba and best for the United States that the island should become a part of this nation. A great many of us discovered that the president felt that way a long time ago, but as he appears to be having a good time in the thought that the little game being worked by the Hannacrats was not plain to the people very little was said about it. The only ones deceived are the Cubans, who accepted the professions of the schemers at Washington.—Omaha World-Herald.

KIPLING AS A REPORTER.

"You Have Genius," Remarked the City Editor, "But—" and Let Him Go.

It is not kind of the San Francisco editor who rejected "The Courting of Dinah Shadd," says a writer in Leslie's Weekly, to recall that he based his refusal on the ground that the story was scarcely equal to the standard of merit demanded by the magazine." Those were the days when Kipling was a struggling reporter.

In this connection there is recalled the story of Kipling's third and last assignment to a news story. A big insurance fraud had been unearthed and exposed by the paper to which Kipling was attached. Kipling was assigned to get a "second-day story" on the man chiefly involved in the frauds, and who was not yet arrested. Late in the afternoon he walked into the office with facts sufficient to justify a three-column space allowance. But somehow his own personality persisted in obtruding itself into the facts, and he presently drifted into a scathing satire on the offender, written in the inimitable pen which has since made him famous.

The city editor counted exactly 15 libel suits and about half a million dollars in damages in that story, and next morning Mr. Kipling was requested to transfer his operations to another field. Said the editor, in bidding him good-by:

"You have genius. You will some day make a great name, though I may not live to see it. But fate never intended you for the mechanism of news."

IN FAVOR OF THE CENTAUR CO.

Judge Adams Granted an Injunction in the Castoria Case.

In the United States Circuit Court Tuesday afternoon Judge Adams handed down an opinion in the suit of the Centaur Company, of New York City, against Samuel W. Eslinger, of St. Louis, the suit being for an injunction to restrain the defendant from using the plaintiff's remedy, "Castoria."

It was stated in complainant's bill that the Centaur Company, of which Charles H. Fletcher is president, is the sole manufacturer of "Castoria," and alleged that the defendant had been selling medicine in packages closely resembling those of the New York firm. A preliminary injunction was prayed for to restrain the defendants from in any way pirating upon the complainant's business. The bill averred that the damages sustained were large, but could not be estimated. The plea of the defendant was that he had a right to do as he had done.

Evidence in the case was taken by affidavits. Judge Adams, without leaving the bench, delivered an opinion in which he denounced imitators of well-known medicines. He said the practice was a species of robbery and he would grant the injunction sought.

The medicine "Castoria" was at first protected by patent and later by label and trade mark. The plaintiff claimed that other decisions similar to the one handed down yesterday have been secured in the Federal courts, cases being innumerable in Chicago, Indianapolis, District of Columbia, Texas and New Jersey, in all of which the courts granted injunctions.

The attorneys in this suit were Seddon and Blair of St. Louis, and F. H. Scott, of Chicago, for the complainants and Michael Kinealy for the defendant. The preliminary injunction is understood to settle the point of law involved, but the question of damages will be adjudged when the case has its final hearing.

The bottles of the original "Castoria" manufactured by the Centaur Company bear the fac-simile signature of the president, Charles H. Fletcher, on the label, while the bottles sold by the defendant company bore on the label the words "Pitcher's Baby Castoria." It is said that criminal proceedings will follow, and that several arrests may be made.

THE MARKS OF SUFFERING

HEALTH and beauty are the glories of perfect womanhood.

Women who suffer constantly with weakness peculiar to their sex cannot retain their beauty. Preservation of pretty features and rounded form is a duty women owe to themselves. The mark of excessive monthly suffering is a familiar one in the faces of young American women.

MISS EDNA ELLIS, Higginsport, Ohio, writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I am a school teacher and had suffered untold agony during my menstrual periods for ten years. My nervous system was almost a wreck. I suffered with pain in my side and had almost every ill human flesh is heir to. I had taken treatment from a number of physicians who gave me no relief. In fact one eminent specialist said no medicine could help me, I must submit to an operation. At my mother's request, I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham stating my case in every particular and received a prompt reply. I followed the advice given me and now I suffer no more during menses. If anyone cares to know more about my case, I will cheerfully answer all letters."

MISS KATE COOK, 16 Addison St., Mt. Jackson, Ind., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I am by occupation a school teacher, and for a long while suffered with painful menstruation and nervousness. I have received more benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound than from all remedies that I have ever tried."

Lightning struck the house of Andy Devine in Mercer county and melted a gold watch lying on the mantel.

The Nicholasville Journal charges that a man in that county, who owns 200 acres of land, sold his vote for 50 cents.

The State Board of Equalization leaves the Bath county assessment as returned by the County Board of Supervisors.

Mike Caughlin, of Louisville, was run down by a train on the Q. & C. train at Kincaid and literally ground to pieces.

There is a prospect of a family feud among the Arnetts in Magoffin county over the shooting of Lee Arnett by his uncle Augustus Arnett.

In Perry county Thomas and William Edwell, aged 8 and 5 respectively, fell while playing horses and striking their heads against a stone, died.

Friends of the Hon. George M. Davison are booming him for the Republican nomination for Governor, and he may announce his candidacy soon.

A syndicate headed by W. J. Hilands, of Cleveland, has bought 340,000 acres of mineral and timber land in Eastern Kentucky. Price $50,000.

The jail at Leitchfield is empty and the jailer has this advertisement in the county paper. Rooms to let at jail—upstairs. Hardin Coppage, jailer.

At Lancaster H. A. B. Marksbury's granary burnt, together with 2,000 bushels of wheat, several hundred bushels of hemp seed and a large lot of hemp. Loss, $10,000.

Dr. Joe Maury, jr., of Owingsville, was drowned while on his way from British Honduras to the United States with a cargo of sugar. Of nine persons on board the vessel seven lost their lives.

Dr. Fred C. Hale, the Baptist minister of Owensboro, according to the Messenger, visited several saloons in that city and handed around cards announcing his sermons for the next few Sundays.

The State Board of Equalization at Frankfort has notified the County Judge that the assessment in Grant county would be raised 40 per cent. on lands and personally, and 30 per cent. on town lots. According to the State Board Grant county is the worst assessed county in the State.—Courier.

Perry Conyers returned to Dry Ridge last Monday after an absence of 12 years. He left his home here about 12 years ago and from that till he returned home last Monday no one from this place had heard from him and his friends here had long mourned him as one dead. His return was quite an agreeable surprise to them. He has been in the Western and Southern States and his experiences have been wide and varied.—Williamstown Courier.

The Mormon Missionaries have been driven out of Lewis county, where they have been holding successful meetings for years. The work of the Elders progressed very satisfactorily until they began to give their secret instructions to their converts and to claim that they had power to work miracles. Jas. Messer, one of the converts, tried to turn water into wine, without success. The people broke up the meetings at a number of places, and the Elders have packed their grips and gone.

Near Mt. Olivet, six tobacco buyers representing trusts, anti-trusts and home merchants, accidently met at L. D. Burns' to buy his tobacco. Of course each could not take Mr. Burns by the arm and lead him aside, so some one proposed that the crop be auctioneered off to the highest bidder. One of the gentlemen agreed to act in that capacity. The bidding was most spirited, and when the hammer fell the price was so much beyond what Burns asked that it was gladly accepted. The case is perhaps without precedent in the State.—Advance.

For the first time in many years the monthly report of the State Prison Commission, ending March 31, will show the Frankfort penitentiary to be self-sustaining, if, in fact, there is not a balance on the credit side of the ledger of about $500. Since the recent lease of all unemployed labor, there have been no idle able-bodied men in the institution, and the hum of industry is heard from morning until night. The lease of 1,050 men to the big chair plant, Manager A. D. Martin, and the leases to the Mason-Ford Company and the Alpin Company of Louisville, have been on a basis of greater advantage to the State than any before made. There is not in the memory of those acquainted with the institution a time when more men could be employed than are actually confined within the walls.

J. D. Wills sold Monday to Mr. Freckle, of Paris, 80 head of common sheep at $5 per head. The contract carried with it about 60 lambs with the ewes. Mr. Wills sold the sheep on account of the dogs, as he has lost during the winter about $200 worth of sheep by dogs.—Winchester Democrat.

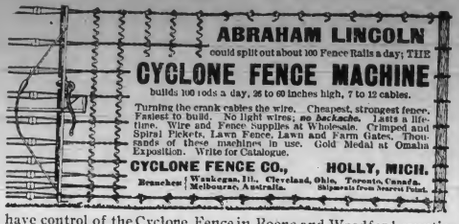
FOR ALL WOMEN

Nine-tenths of all the pain and sickness from which women suffer is caused by weakness or derangement in the organs of menstruation. Nearly always when a woman is not well these organs are affected. But when they are strong and healthy a woman is very seldom sick.



McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Is nature's provision for the regulation of the menstrual function. It cures all "female troubles." It is equally effective for the girl in her teens, the young wife with domestic and maternal cares, and the woman approaching the period known as the "Change of Life." They all need it. They are all benefitted by it.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

THOS. J. COOPER, Tupelo, Miss., says: "My sister suffered from very irregular and painful menstruation and doctors could not relieve her. Wine of Cardui entirely cured her and also helped my mother through the Change of Life."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1899. NO. 26.

NOTHING on now but the Governor's race.

THE lamb buyers say the indications are that the lambs will be of a poor quality this year.

AS it was expected to do the Louisville Post has bolted the nomination of McCord, and has begun its fight against him.

OF 100,000 Germans who, in 1898, left their native lands for homes in foreign countries, over 80,000 located in the United States.

SOMMERS, who attempted to bribe a delegate at the recent Frankfort convention, is under bond of $500 for his appearance for trial on the 26th inst.

IN these days of contests against trusts it should be remembered that Judge Greene was the first Circuit Judge in the State to instruct a grand jury as to trusts.

ACCORDING to anti-convention statements of a couple of Louisville papers that were fighting McChord, his nomination was a very considerable victory for Goebel in his race for Governor.

THE evacuation of the towns taken from the Filipinos, looks like the Americans have "bit off more than they can chaw." General Lawton says it will take 100,000 soldiers to pacify the islands and establish a government.

THE Tennessee Legislature abolished ten Circuit Judgeships, the law requiring the Judge to be notified ten days before adjournment of the Legislature, and to escape the notification several of the Judges left the State, and were followed by Tennessee officials endeavoring to serve the notice within the required time.

THE Petersburg branch of the Republican convention, held last Saturday, ignored the national administration, but gave Gov. Bradley a hearty endorsement, while the Burlington branch of the convention was silent as to both administrations. The civil service resolutions adopted at Petersburg have the right ring.

TAKING, as a pointer, the Republican conventions held in many of the counties in this State last Saturday, it is evident that President McKinley is regarded by Kentucky Republicans about as Mr. Cleveland was regarded by Kentucky Democrats at the close of his second term. The civil service law is getting in its work.

THERE is every indication, at present, that a vote will be taken this fall, on a proposition to have the fiscal court to take some action under the turnpike law published a few weeks ago. In the Walton, Verona, Beaver, Union and Rabbit Hash voting precincts there is a very strong free turnpike element, and it is now proposing to take some steps looking to an improvement of the public highways.

MAJ. W. C. OWENS, of Scott county, had been telling that Senator Goebel was a member of the committee on resolutions in the convention that nominated Gen. Hardin for Governor in 1895. A few days ago Mr. Goebel made a speech in Georgetown, and said that he was not only not a member of the committee on resolutions but that he was not a member of that convention, and thereupon Maj. Owens apologized to Mr. Goebel, and said that it would be a pleasure to him to contradict the statement on every occasion that offers.

THE RECORDER again suggests to the Fiscal Court that it ought to provide for lodging at night the jurors who have to be kept together during the trial of prosecutions for murder or manslaughter. Under the present conditions it is impossible to keep a jury as the law says it shall be kept during the progress of a trial for murder, and these could be overcome at a small expense to the county, by purchasing and equipping the necessary number of cots to be kept and used at the court house during one of those trials. While the jury would be made more comfortable it would reduce the expense to the individual members, and at the same time, its keeping would comply with the law to the last letter.

STICK TO THE TEXT.

"If At First You Don't Succeed, Try, Try Again."

"Keep The Text Plainly Before the People."

To the Editor of the Recorder:

It is far from my desire to encroach upon your valuable space. Permit, however, a rejoinder to Bro. Jones. As far as I am concerned the Utz-Crates matter is finished and this ends my say so to Bro. Jones.

My time is too crowded to permit of correspondence with the pastor of Central Methodist Church, Kansas City, Mo. There is not, however, in the language of Bishop Hendrix, quoted by Bro. Jones, a denial on the part of the Bishop to his being a member, used in the sense I mean, having his name enrolled on the register of Central church. Bro. Jones denies not the Bishop. He, the Bishop, asserts that Bishops are members of the General Conference, as being amenable to that body. I was perfectly aware of that fact. In that there is nothing to hinder a Bishop having his name enrolled with any local society.

Bro. Oney did not deny the existence of my name on the register of Eleventh St., M. E. C., Covington, Ky. I am in receipt of a communication from Bro. Oney saying in part: "I presume your name is on the large book." True I am not an active member of 11th Street, or in the sense of being amenable to that church. It is according to a custom or unwritten law in Methodism to retain a minister's name on the register of the church from which he issued. There are true cases in proof. I went from 11th St., church into the conference and have never taken a letter, withdrawn, been expelled or died. Draw your own conclusion.

Bro. Jones introduces the idea of amenability. I used the term member as not involving amenability, and in the report of the District Board meeting at Burlington in a previous issue of the RECORDER, where I first saw Bro. Jones' statement, nothing was said concerning amenability. I am familiar with Methodist law at this point, that ministers and presiding elders are amenable to the Annual Conference and bishops to the General Conference, &c. A Methodist minister is also a member of the District and Quarterly Conference though not amenable to either of those. Who will deny that he is a member because not amenable? A local preacher is a member of some particular society or church yet not amenable to it, but to the Quarterly Conference. Who will deny it?

Bro. Jones says "that Baptist preachers were members of their own churches." Can a Baptist minister, who is pastor of four churches, for instance, hold membership with each? No. Then he is placed in a worse position in relation to three out of the four than the Methodist minister, who is pastor of a church of which he is not a member. In the latter case connectionism unites them into one body and makes them members of one church. In the former congregationalism divides them and makes them members of different churches. In the strict sense close communion would bar him from communing with three out of the four peoples he serves. I know the practice is otherwise, even so the more liberal Baptists to some extent practice open communion. I communed with a Baptist church in Spencer, Mass., once of which a gentleman by the name of Bowers was pastor.

The latter part of above sentence quoted from Bro Jones, "and subject to the same laws which govern all their members" is as true of Methodist as Baptist ministers. They are tried by a different court, that is all. Note Bishop McTyeire's language a little further on quoted from his catechism on church government.

We adduce, if necessary further evidence to prove that Methodist ministers belong to the church. They are members "ex necessitate rei." The shepherd and the flock are one. This is according to the scriptural use of the figure. There is preeminently a place in the fold for the shepherd. To deny this is to deny that Jesus belongs to the spiritual and heavenly fold.

Again the Annual and General Conferences are parts of the one Methodist church as is any local church. Note, Bishop McTyerie's language further on. A careful and comparative study of the congregational feature of the Baptist denomination and the connectional feature of Methodism will clear up all the differences involved in this discussion.

Again, Methodism is a unit. From center to circumference it is unity. Connectionalism characterizes it and at the same time differentiates it from other ecclesiastical organizations. The Methodist minister belongs to the church in such a real and true sense that though his name may be recorded on any, or no church register he is the servant of all. Hence the M. E. church at Walton has a vital interest in the man who ministers to a congregation in California, and vica versa, because he may be its pastor next year, not because the church at Walton calls him, but because he is a member and servant of the church in the largest sense and is sent as its pastor. What is local or particular with the Baptists is general with Methodists: congregational with the former, connectional with the latter. The idea of the church is larger with Methodists than Baptists. A minister expelled from a Baptist church on certain grounds may be called by another Baptist church and minister to that congregation because its government is congregational. A minister expelled by an Annual Conference of the Methodist church thereby being prevented from ministering to a certain congregation cannot become pastor of any other church in the bounds of the Methodist church because its government is connectional. To quote Bishop McTyeire on Methodist church government: "All the separate congregations, or societies, or local churches, make up one church; and all the preachers constitute one body of pastors. For convenience, they are distributed into conferences, district circuits, and societies—but all hold the same doctrine and are governed by the same laws." Bro. Jones says of Methodist preachers that they are "not amenable to the laws of the church." Bishop McTyeire, than whom there never was a better authority on Methodist polity, or C. G. Jones—which?

Further on McTyeire says, "A preacher expelled from one Conference is expelled from all; a member expelled from one society is expelled from all."

It is needless for me to say much on the subject of the Lord's Supper as held and practiced by the Methodist church. The page and paragraph in the Discipline where the language quoted at that District Board meeting have not yet been produced. Bro. Jones cites a note at the bottom of page 206. Discipline 1898, but it is simply an annotation and that in connection with the ritual not the doctrine or polity, and not a part of the text of the Discipline. It does not constitute a part of the body of any paragraph. "If at first you don't succeed try, try, again." Keep "the text plainly before the people, Bro. Jones. It is impossible to make that note serve as the text. It can mean no more than the text.

The language used at that District Board meeting according to the report was as follows: "No one who inveighs against the doctrine of the Methodist church has a right to communion." The part of the Discipline quoted to prove this is as follows: "If a member of our church endeavor to sow dissension, by inveighing, &c." Notice. "No one," in the report. "If a member of our church" in the Discipline making it a horse of another color. Bro. Jones we can fellowship a conscientious member of anyother church, but not a hypocritical Methodist. Trusting you and Bro. Utz are conscientious Baptists the invitation is still open and extended, and I have as high regard for a vow as Bro. Jones. Eccle. 5:5 is my motto. The Discipline was made for the government of Methodists not Baptists. The emphasis is to be placed on no person among us in that note.

Bro. Jones says, "If Methodist preachers would enforce the discipline as they vow in their ordination to do, no one under the sun but a Methodist would be admitted to the Lord's Supper in the Methodist Church," when the language by which he attempts to prove this excludes only a certain kind of professed Methodists—"If a member of our (Methodist) church."

In answer to the Bro. who wrote me a personal letter asking me if I was not a bit mistaken in what I said of the 18th article, Page 9 Par. 18. I say no, concerning the subject in hand. If Methodism is close communion you will find it by a reference to her creed, not her polity. The trouble with all my opponents is, to prove a point of creed they have been going to the laws of the church, instead of the articles of faith.

Behold the reasoning of my Bros. Jones, Utz, and the gentleman who wrote me a personal letter. Falacious on the face of it.

If a member of our (Methodist) church * by inveighing against either our doctrine or discipine * the offender shall be dealt with as in case of immorality. I, a member of the or a Baptist inveighs against the doctrine and discipline of the Methodist church. Therefore I should be dealt with as in a case of immorality. Here is a non sequitur with a vengeance. Who would like to have his life depend on such reasoning? Bro. Jones says, "I a Baptist preacher, made an address at a Baptist meeting, in the Baptist church at Burlington, at the request of the pastor and members of said church. They requested me to discuss 'Baptist Polity.' This being a free country I thought it was my privilege to make said address without being called to account for it by Bro. Crates." I beg pardon to deny calling in question the Baptist preachers address, at a Baptist meeting, in a Baptist church on Baptist polity. I only called in question his digression from the subject. As Bro. Jones likes to have "the text plainly before the people" he should have had "Baptist Polity" in large letters on the wall for his own benefit as well. But I have understood that it is difficult for him to deliver an address at a District Meeting without touching on Methodism and Methodists. Finis.

Circuit Court.

On the second day of the term the court began dispatching business in earnest, and the criminal docket having the preference, the following prosecutions were disposed of:

Prosecutions against the following persons were filed away: Frank Staley, Webb Lampton, (2), John Michael, Dud Dwyre, Mike Tafferty; Martha Warner, Wilson Warner.

Prosecutions against the following persons continued and alias bench warrants ordered to issue: T. D. Ross, Sam Ingram, Mike Feelon, John Leapold, Sam Ingram, Sherman Reaves and two others, Chas. Ertel, Robert Ingram, Martin Bailey, Bert Staley.

In the prosecutions against John Horton charged with giving liquor to a minor, the law and facts were submitted to the court, and he was adjudged not guilty.

Mike Cahill and wife, of Florence, on account of the trouble with J. D. Stephens, marshal of the town of Florence, one evening during the last fair, were fined $20 and $15 respectively.

John Hamilton was taxed $25 and trimmings for carrying a pistol.

Felix Marksberry, indicted for discharging pistol on public highway, was tried by a jury and acquitted.

James Casey, Sam Houston, William Wilhoit and Chas. Ertel, $10 and costs for hunting on Sunday.

John Frazer drove recklessly on the public highway, and the court charged him $10 and costs for same.

The trial of John Peno for shooting Joel Peno's cow, consumed most of the day, Wednesday, and the jury assessed his fine at $10. Each side had about 20 witnesses summoned, and the court very properly ruled that only six witnesses on a side should testify in the case.

The case of Kite Story for killing Col. Carrier at Hamilton, last spring, was called Wednesday afternoon, and both parties announced ready for trial. It took but a short time to obtain the jury which was composed of the following persons: Geo. L. Smith, Early Rouse, J. D. Aylor, Leonard Crigler, Sulon Early, Daniel Hoffman, J. F. Lancaster, Martin Benson, D. M. Snyder, W. J. Ryle, J. N. Pearson, Robert Houston. When the jury was completed it was admonished by the court, and by agreement of the parties, the jurors were allowed to go home for the night.

The jury got the case late Thursday afternoon, and was not able to make a verdict until about 8 o'clock Friday morning, when it returned a verdict finding the defendant guilty and fixed his punishment at two years in the penitentiary. The trial seemed to create very little interest with the public, as generally on such occasions the court room is crowded with spectators.

The indictment against Charles Popham and two others, for hunting on Sunday was called for trial Friday morning, and consumed half the day, the jury returning a verdict of not guilty. This was a stubbornly fought prosecution.

AN APPEAL.

By the Interdenominational Temperance Committee to All Lovers of Temperance.

[REV. JOHN R. PEEPLES.]

The appeal of the Interdenominational Temperance Committee to all lovers of temperance, of every name and party of the State of Kentucky, I hope, will stir the great moral majority of the State to a determination that no county shall have a nominee of any party for the Legislature that can not be relied on when it comes to the test to do his whole duty to secure the people their constitutional rights to vote by counties, when they wish to do so, as well as by precincts, as to whether they will have barrooms or not.

The ministry, with many of the laymen of the churches of Middlesborough (where I was then pastor), united in a petition to the Legislature while the memorable struggle was on at Frankfort between the Interdenominational Committee and the whisky lobby as to whether the lower house of the Legislature should be induced to vote on your measure or not.

We noted with sorrow and humiliation that strange and studied evasion and purposed failure to take from the order of the day your measure that it might come to a vote. That purpose to withhold from the people their constitutional rights in that refusal, regardless of Christian sentiment from every part of the State, the manifest will of the people of this great State, the wealth-producing, the law-sustaining citizenship, but bowed down before that idol, the whisky power, the sum of all evils in Kentucky, which now makes it almost an equal sin in us to fail to refuse to take positive grounds that the saloon shall go, and with it the whisky politician and politics of Kentucky. I would suggest that you call a convention of the Kentucky ministry of all denominations, that the ministry may determine what is their relation to this great question, and to devise plans for canvassing every county in Kentucky by its own ministry or others, cooperating with all laymen in this canvass, in so far as the ministry can do so, without putting themselves into party politics. What we should do is to make the people feel from the religious standpoint on this social cause with the ministry in order that there may be a great moral uprising all over Kentucky against the saloon and against the whisky politician who fosters the saloon and prevents a vote and keeps the people from a chance to drive it out of the country. Yes, an uprising in every county and in every political party and every good citizen (whether of any political party or not, if possible to find him) or whether of any church or no church and made to see the peril of the rights of citizenship, and knowing his duty, influenced to discharge it. Morality and religion concentrating every gun in this struggle, on the one point, with all parties allied and determined that no whisky sympathizer get the nomination in any county or party. To accomplish this there must be a vigorous campaign, but in the interest of no party, establishing a purpose in the great moral majority to take charge of the party conventions and primaries and nominate along a new line of men as well as new men. We want representatives who will represent and not misrepresent, for Kentucky is not a commonwealth of outlaws, saloon patrons and political corruptionists. No, Kentucky is opposed to the saloon, to prize-fight, the gambling hell, the race course and all licensed or other prostitution of mankind. She is for the church, the school, the asylum, the orphans' home the houses of correction and reformation, with humane prison penalty, the maintenance of law and honor to the courts and the courts honorable and with a respectable Legislature.

We fail at Frankfort because we first fail at the convention, or rather fail to be there. We are at home too religious "to go among publicans and sinners," and woes are always awaiting that sort of saints. May their tribe grow rappidly less. More and more we have abandoned the primaries and conventions to the professional politicians, and instead of its being a sin for Christians to participate in political selections and elections of officials, it is rather a sin not to do so. Yes, the normal church is a fighting force if it is specifically any one thing. It must fight the whisky sin as the chief enemy to man. Whisky is nominating, electing, legislating and virtually owning and running the counties, the towns, the cities, the Commonwealths and the country. And who knows how much more this monstrous oppressor will soon own, or control, and all because Christians will not rise up and check this coming usurper and oppressor and foe to all good. The reason and remedy for all this is right here in the good citizen. He does not act. He must act. And all is safe and 1900 will find Kentucky free.

This whisky trouble, though in politics, is withal a moral question, and the preacher should touch it at every point. But this privilege and duty of the preacher are in perfect harmony with his calling, and do not necessarily lead him into party politics. But rather he is a missionary to all political parties, and no preacher can dodge the issue in the name of his separateness to sacred things, for nothing is more sacred than this cause. Every man must be a Christian politician if he be a civilian, but neither minister nor laymen has a license to serve a party in sin, but where there is a moral issue to evade it is sin and is cowardly, and need not pretend it is religion. "The righteous are as bold as a lion." and "perfect love casteth out all fear." Christianity must be infused into all politics, into all political parties; but politics infused into religion never, and neither into the church. A preacher cannot stay out of political conventions feeling himself or his calling too good to enter that which God has ordained (if He ordained civil government). The minister—with Christ—is the servant of all. Must minister to all and irrespective of all parties. So while not too good for a political convention, and while attending one would not necessarily hurt his spirituality (unless he be "a reed shaken by the wind"), yet his partizan participation might hurt some who are "reed," and easily "shaken." And so, "if eating meat makes my brother to offend, I will eat none." And though a citizen, the minister relinquishes this right to party political participation for the kingdom of heaven's sake, and not because he is too good neither because he has not the sight. Yet I doubt not it would be much better for the conventions themselves to be full of preachess, or largely so at any rate. I shall be more than happy to take any part in this campaign that may be assigned me that would not conflict with my pastoral duties.

And now, inasmuch as the Legislature of purpose so adroitly managed as to not take your measure from the order of the day for a vote, when victory was so near, but did in the face of the public unblushingly discriminate against temperance, and in favor of a measure "to give rewards for fox scalps" (the poor friendless fox having no money-eyed lobby to back him), the measure against him was taken from that sacred order-of-the-day business, where the great temperance measure had to remain and die. Well, it is our time now to take some "fox scalps." Let us go to now and take them.

A VOW OF JEPHTHAH

It Is Cited as a Warning Against Parental Heedlessness.

Dr. Talmage Lodges a Protest Against the Sacrifice of the Young on the Altar of Worldly Ambition.

In his sermon to-day Dr. Talmage lodges a protest against the parental heedlessness and worldly ambition which are threatening the sacrifice of many American children; text, Judges 11:36: "My father, if thou has opened thy mouth unto the Lord, do to me according to that which hath proceeded out of thy mouth."

Jephthah was a freebooter. Early turned out from a home where he ought to have been cared for, he consorted with rough men and went forth to earn his living as best he could. In those times it was considered right for a man to go out on independent military expeditions. Jephthah was a good man according to the light of his dark age, but through a wandering and a predatory life he became reckless and precipitate. The grace of God changes a man's heart, but never reverses his natural temperament. The Israelites wanted the Ammonites driven out of their country, so they sent a delegation to Jephthah, asking him to become commander-in-chief of all the forces. He might have said, "You drove me out when you had no use for me, and now you are in trouble you want me back," but he did not say that. He takes command of the army, sends messengers to the Ammonites to tell them to vacate the country, and, getting no favorable response, marshals his troops for battle.

Before going out to war Jephthah makes a very solemn vow that if the Lord will give him the victory then, on his return home, whatsoever first comes out of his doorway he will offer in sacrifice as a burnt offering. The battle opens. It was no skirmishing on the edges of dangers, no unlimbering of batteries two miles away, but the hurling of men on the point of swords and spears until the ground could no more drink the blood and the horses reared to leap over the pile of bodies of the slain. In those old times opposing forces would fight until their swords were broken and then each one would throttle his man until they both fell, teeth to teeth, grip to grip, death stare to death stare, until the plain was one tumbled mass of corpses from which the last trace of manhood had been dashed out.

Jephthah wins the day. Twenty cities lay captured at his feet. Sound the victory all through the mountains of Gilead. Let the trumpeters call up the survivors. Homeward to your wives and children. Homeward with your glittering treasures. Homeward to have the applause of an admiring nation. Build triumphal arches. Swing out flags all over Mizpah. Open all your doors to receive the captured treasures. Through every hall spread the banquet. Pile up the viands. Fill high the tankards. The nation is redeemed, the invaders are routed and the national honor is vindicated.

Huzza for Jephthah, the conqueror! Jephthah, seated on a prancing steed, advances amid the acclaiming multitudes, but his eye is not on the excited populace. Remembering that he had made a solemn vow that, returning from victorious battle, whatsoever first came out of the doorway of his home that should be sacrificed as a burnt offering, he has his anxious look upon the door. I wonder what spotless lamb, what brace of doves, will be thrown upon the fires of the burnt offering!

Oh, horrors! Paleness of death blanches his cheek. Despair seizes his heart. His daughter, his only child, rushesout the doorway to throw herself in her father's arms and shower upon him more kisses than there were wounds on his breast or dents on his shield. All the triumphal splendor vanishes. Holding back this child from his heaving breast and pushing the locks back from the fair brow and looking into the eyes of inextinguishable affection, with choked utterance he says: "Would to God I lay stark on the bloody plain! My daughter, my only child, joy of my home, life of my life, thou are the sacrifice!"

The whole matter was explained to her. This was no whining, hollow-hearted girl into whose eyes the father looked. All the glory of sword and shield vanished in the presence of the valor of that girl. There may have been a tremor of the lip, as a rose leaf trembles in the sough of the south wind; there may have been the starting of a tear like a raindrop shaken from the anther of a water lily. But with a self-sacrifice that man may not reach and only woman's heart can compass she surrenders herself to fire and to death. She cries out in the words of my text, "My father, if thou hast opened thy mouth unto the Lord, do unto me whatsoever hath proceeded from thy mouth."

She bows to the knife, and the blood, which so often at the father's voice had rushed to the crimson cheek, smokes in the fires of the burnt offering. No one can tell us her name. There is no need that we know her name. The garlands that Mizpah twisted for Jephthah the warrior have gone into the dust, but all ages are twisting this girl's chaplet. It is well that her name came not to us, for no one can wear it. They may take the name of Deborah or Abigail or Miriam, but no one in all the ages shall have the title of this daughter of sacrifice.

Of course this offering was not pleasing to the Lord, especially as a provision was made in the law for such a contingency, and Jephthah might have redeemed his daughter by the payment of 30 shekkles of silver. But before you hurl your denunciations at Jephthah's cruelty remember that in olden times, when vows were made, men thought they must execute them, perform them, whether they were wicked or good. There were two wrong things about Jephthah's vow. First, he ought never to have made it. Next, having made it, it were better broken than kept. But do not take on pretentious airs and say: "I could not have done as Jephthah did." If in former days you had been standing on the banks of the Ganges and you had been born in India, you might have thrown your children to the crocodiles. It is not because we are naturally any better, but because we have more Gospel light.

Now I make very practical use of this question when I tell you that the sacrifice of Jephthah's daughter was a type of the physical, mental and spiritual sacrifice of 10,000 children in this day. There are parents all unwittingly bringing to bear upon their children a class of influences which will as certainly ruin them as knife and torch destroyed Jephthah's daughter. While I speak, the whole nation, without emotion and without shame, looks upon the stupendous sacrifice.

In the first place, I remark that much of the system of education in our day is a system of sacrifice. When children spend six or seven hours in school and then must spend two or three hours in preparation for school the next day, will you tell me how much time they will have for sunshine and fresh air and the obtaining of that exuberance which is necessary for the duties of coming life? No one can feel more thankful than I do for the advancement of common school education. The printing of books appropriate for schools, the multiplication of philosophical apparatus, the establishment of normal schools, which provide for our children teachers of largest caliber, are themes on which every philanthropist ought to be congratulated. But this herding of great multitudes of children in ill-ventilated schoolrooms and poorly equipped halls of instruction is making many of the places of knowledge in this country a huge holocaust. Politics in many of the cities gets into educational affairs and while the two political parties are scrabbling for the honors Jephthah's daughter perishes. It is so much so that there are many schools in the country to-day which are preparing tens of thousands of invalid men and women for the future; so that, in many places, by the time the child's education is finished the child is finished! In many places, in many cities of the country, there are large appropriations for everything else and cheerful appropriations, but as soon as the appropriation is to be made for the educational or moral interests of the city we are struck through with an economy that is well-nigh the death of us.

In my parish in Philadelphia a little child was so pushed at school that she was thrown into a fever, and in her dying delirium, all night long, she was trying to recite the multiplication table. In my boyhood I remember that in our class at school there was one lad who knew more than all of us put together. If we were fast in our arithmetic, he extricated us. When we stood up for the spelling class, he was almost always the head of the class. Visitors came to his father's house, and he was always brought in as a prodigy. At 18 years of age he was an idiot. He lived ten years an idiot and died an idiot, not knowing his right hand from his left or day from night. The parents and the teachers made him an idiot.

You may flutter your pride by forcing your child to know more than any other children, but you are making a sacrifice of that child if by the additions to its intelligence you are making a subtraction from its future. The child will go away from such maltreatment with no exuberance to fight the battle of life. Such children may get along very well while you take care of them, but, when you are old or dead, alas for them if through the wrong system of education which you adopted they have no swarthiness or force of character to take care of themselves! Be careful how you make the child's head ache or its heart flutter. I hear a great deal about black man's rights, and China-man's rights, and Indian's rights, and woman's rights. Would to God that somebody would rise to plead for children's rights! The Carthagians used to sacrifice their children by putting them into the arms of an idol which thrust forth its hand. The child was put into the arms of the idol, and no sooner touched the arms than it dropped into the fire. But it was the art of the mothers to keep the children smiling and laughing until the moment they died. There may be a fascination and a hilarity about the styles of education of which I am speaking, but it is only laughter at the moment of sacrifice. Would to God there were only one Jephthah's daughter!

Again, there are many parents who are sacrificing their children with wrong system of discipline—too great rigor or too great leniency. There are children in families who rule the household. The high chair in which the infant sits is the throne, and the rattle is the scepter, and the other children make up the parliament where father and mother have no vote! Such children come up to be miscreants. There is no chance in this world for a child that has never learned to mind. Such people become the botheration of the church of God and the pest of the world. Children that do not learn to obey human authority are unwilling to learn to obey divine authority. Children will not respect parents whose authority they do not respect. Who are these young men that swagger through the street with their thumbs in their vest talking about their father as "the old man," "the governor," "the squire," "the old chap," or their mother as "the old woman?" They are those who in youth, in childhood, never learned to respect authority. Eli, having heard that his sons had died in their wickedness, fell over backward and broke his neck and died. Well he might! What is life to a father whose sons are debauched? The dust of the valley is pleasant to his taste, and the driving rains that drip through the roof of the sepulcher are sweeter than the wines of Helbon.

There must be harmony between the father's government and the mother's government. The father will be tempted to too great rigor. The mother will be tempted to too great leniency. Her tenderness will overcome her. Her voice is a little softer; her hand seems better fitted to pull out a thorn and soothe a pang. Children wanting anything from the mother cry for it. They hope to dissolve her with tears. But the mother must not interfere, must not come off, must not beg for the child when the hour comes for the assertion of parental supremacy and the subjugation of a child's temper. There comes in the history of every child an hour when it is tested whether the parents shall rule or the child shall rule. That is the crucial hour. If the child triumphs in that hour, then he will some day make you crouch. It is a horrible scene—I have witnessed it—a mother come to old age, shivering with terror in the presence of a son who cursed her gray hairs and mocked her wrinkled face and begrudged her the crust she munched with her toothless gums!

How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is
To have a thankless child!

But, on the other hand, too great rigor must be avoided. It is a sad thing when domestic government becomes cold military despotism. Trappers on the prairie fight fire with fire, but you cannot successfully fight your child's bad temper with your own bad temper. We must not be too minute in our inspection. We cannot expect our children to be perfect. We must not see everything. Since we have two or three faults of our own, we ought not to be too rough when we discover that our children have as many. If tradition be true, when we were children we were not all little Samuels, and our parents were not fearful lest they could not raise us because of our premature goodness. You cannot scold or pound your children into nobility of character. The bloom of a child's heart can never be seen under a cold drizzle. Above all, fretting and and scolding in the household. Better than ten years of fretting at your children is one good, round, old-fashioned application of the slipper! That minister of the gospel of whom we read in the newspapers that he whipped his child to death because he would not say his prayers will never come to canonization. The arithmetics cannot calculate how many thousands of children have been ruined forever either through too great rigor or too great leniency. The heavens and the earth are filled with the groan of the sacrificed. In this important matter, seek Divine direction, O father, O mother!

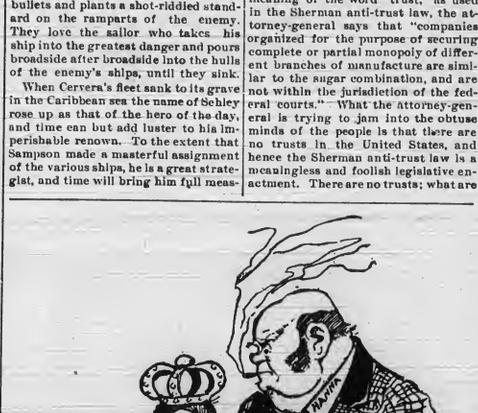
Further on, thousands and tens of thousands of the daughters of America are sacrificed to worldliness. They are taught to be in sympathy with all the artificialities of society. They are inducted into all the hollowness of what is called fashionable life. They are taught to believe that history is dry, but that old cent stories of adventurous love are delicious. With capacity that might have rivaled a Florence Nightingale in heavenly ministries are made the father's house glad with filial and sisterly demeanor, their life is a waste, their beauty a curse, their eternity a demolition.

In the siege of Charleston, during our civil war, a lieutenant of the army stood on the floor beside the daughter of the ex-governor of the state of South Carolina. They were taking the vows of marriage. A bombshell struck the roof, dropped into the group, and nine were wounded and slain, among the wounded to death the bride. While the bridegroom knelt on the carpet trying to stanch the wounds the bride demanded that the ceremony be completed, that she might take the vows before her departure, and when the minister said: "Wilt thou be faithful unto death?" with her dying lips she said, "I will," and in two hours she had departed. That was the slaughter and the sacrifice of the body, but at thousands of marriage altars there are daughters slain for time and slain for eternity. It is not a marriage. It is a massacre. Affianced to some one who is only waiting until his father dies so he can get the property; then a little while they swing around in the circles, brilliant circles; then the property is gone, and, having no power to earn a livelihood, the twain sink into some corner of society, the husband an idler and a sot, the wife a drudge, a slave and a sacrifice. Ah, spare your denunciations from Jephthah's head and expend them all on this wholesale modern martyrdom!

I lift up my voice against the sacrifice of children. I look out of my window on a Sabbath, and I see a group of children unwashed, uncombed, unChristianized. Who cares for them? Who prays for them? Who utters to them one kind word? When the city missionary, passing along the park in New York, saw a ragged lad and heard him swearing, he said to him: "My son, stop swearing! You ought to go to the house of God to-day. You ought to be good. You ought to be a Christian." The lad looked in his face and said: "Ah! It is easy for you to talk, well clothed as you are and well fed. But we chapa hain't got no chance." Who lifts them to the altar for baptism? Who goes forth to snatch them up from crime and death and woe? Who to-day will go forth and bring them into schools and churches? No; heap them up, great piles of rags and wretchedness and filth. Put underneath them the fires of sacrifice, stir up the blaze, put on more fagots, and, while we sit in the churches with folded arms and indifference, crime and disease and death will go on with the agonizing sacrifice.

Love of trees and plants is safe; you do not run risks in your affections.—Alex Smith.

HEROES IN OFFICE.



The Republican Administration Pets Are Not Popular with the People.

McKinley and Alger are deeply disappointed and chagrined to discover that the people will not accept their dictation as to who will be accepted as the heroes of the war.

There was a deliberate scheme at Washington to place specially favored friends of the administration in positions where they were likely to easily win glory. Admiral Sampson, one of these favorites, and backed by McKinley, seems to be intent on depriving Admiral Schley of his well-deserved fame. There is much credit, possibly, due to Sampson. He was specially favored in being assigned to important and, perhaps, even arduous duty. His disposal of our naval forces about Santiago harbor may have been very masterful. History, however, has not yet passed upon that point.

It must be borne in mind that, while the people of this country profoundly respect administrative ability, they impulsively love a hero. They love the soldier who rushes through a rain of bullets and plants a shot-riddled standard on the ramparts of the enemy. They love the sailor who takes his ship into the greatest danger and pours broadside after broadside into the hulls of the enemy's ships, until they sink.

When Cervera's fleet sank to its grave in the Caribbean sea the name of Schley rose up as that of the hero of the day, and time can but add luster to his imperishable renown. To the extent that Sampson made a masterful assignment of the various ships, he is a great strategist, and time will bring him full measure of credit for his ability. If Sampson be truly great he will be generous, and will add to rather than seek to detract from the glory of Schley.

MACK—What old book is that?
MARK—I don't know.
MACK—I wonder what it was ever used for?

To the extent that McKinley and Sampson attempted to rob Schley of his laurels, they will show that they have souls of smaller caliber than that of the smallest gun of the smallest ship afloat.

Shafter is even a more striking example of the "home-made" hero. Where is Shafter, anyway? What state wants him for governor? Who writes poetry about him? Who, even, kisses him? Shafter is credited with having eaten some of the rations issued by the Alger commissary department. If this be conceded, the fact must stand unchallenged that he risked his life in the service of his country.

Seriously speaking, Shafter probably deserves more credit than he is ever likely to receive. There are chances that he may be even a fairly good general. He is a victim of circumstances that were seemingly beyond his control. He has, nevertheless, been relegated to obscurity, and the reason is obvious. It has been rendered very plain that a man of mediocre ability was unduly pushed ahead of Gen. Miles, who is a distinguished military chieftain—placed by competent authorities among the foremost soldiers of the world.

This situation existed because a narrow-minded and unscrupulous man was misplaced as secretary of war and given the opportunity to vent his petty and malignant spite.

When Shafter comes before the people the crowd begins with "Hip! hip!" —then they think of Alger, and the "hurrah" dies away.

Laurel wreaths made up at the white house and the war department to fit favorites, and to further political ends, get no reverence from the people. They are too palpably spurious.

Laurel wreaths made by the grateful and loving hands of the people have immortal grace, and are fragrant with the incense of undying fame. The Washington imitation looks like the clumsy trademark on packages of trust-made goods, and an odor clings to them suggestive of "embalmed beef."—Chicago Democrat.

——Mr. Bryan is taking proper precautions against "ringers" at the New York banquet. He asks that "all speakers be supporters of the Chicago platform." This is entirely proper, as the ten-dollar banquet of Perry Belmont will give the McKinley aids ample scope for expression.—Illinois State Register.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

The Head Know-It-All of the Administration Disseminates Trust Wisdom.

Once in a great while the attorney-general of the United States, his name is Griggs, announces something. He feels that he should earn his salary, but as he puts a very high value upon his knowledge of law, he does not have to appear very often before the public in his official capacity to balance the account between himself and the government. But when he does open his official mouth only profound wisdom cometh forth. It is also true that Griggs thinks what Griggs does not know is not worth trying to find out. Therefore, when he condescends to enlighten the country the country knows, or rather Griggs thinks it should know, that what it hears comes from the very roots of all knowledge. As a logician Griggs may or may not be all wool and a yard wide. He never deals in the article. He prefers bold assertion. It sounds more as if "by authority," besides, what does the public know about logic, anyway?

In reply to a request to define the meaning of the word "trust," as used in the Sherman anti-trust law, the attorney-general says that "companies organized for the purpose of securing complete or partial monopoly of different branches of manufacture are similar to the sugar combination, and are not within the jurisdiction of the federal courts." What the attorney-general is trying to jam into the obtuse minds of the people is that there are no trusts in the United States, and hence the Sherman anti-trust law is a meaningless and foolish legislative enactment. There are no trusts; what are called trusts are mental hallucinations, and hence there being no such a thing as a trust, there could not be an anti-trust law—one cannot oppose the non-existent. In pointing to the sugar combination to prove that there is no such a thing as an industrial trust, Mr. Griggs kills two birds with one stone, so to speak. The charge against certain senators that their acquaintance with the Wall street end of the "friends of sugar" was good for their bank account fails to the ground, because they were charged with being close to the sugar trust, when there is not, nor could there be, a sugar trust.

But the attorney-general's knowledge of law does not loom up in all its vastness until he strikes the jurisdiction of the states. He says the whole business is "entirely a matter of state control." He knows that congress enacted and the president approved the act called the Sherman anti-trust law. The presumption is that he means the state must go up against the trusts under an act of congress; for the constitutionality of the Sherman act has been fixed by the federal court, and hence it is a sure enough law. But since when has congress had the right to enact laws that are excluded from the jurisdiction of the federal courts? Mr. Griggs as much as admits that trusts may exist in the states, and that they may be controlled by the state courts under a national law, but that the nation itself denies that there is such a thing as a trust. However, the attorney-general is a representative McKinley cabinet man. They all were cut from the same piece of highly-protected mental barrenness.—Kansas City Times.

Life Saved by Swamp-Root.

The Great Discovery That Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

Statistics prove that more people are brought to the grave by diseases of the kidneys and bladder than by any other disease.

For many years medical science has been trying to discover some remedy that would positively overcome these dangerous troubles.

But not until recently was the discovery made. Doctor Kilmer, the eminent physician and scientist, after years of study and research, and after test on test that never varied in the grand result, announced the discovery of Swamp-Root, which has proven itself a most wonderful cure for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

While Swamp-Root has proven such a remarkable success in curing kidney and bladder diseases, it has also proved equally invaluable in the cure of blood diseases, rheumatism, liver and stomach troubles and in the regulation and cure of all uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

This great modern discovery is for sale at most drug-stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

WAS HE BLUFFING?

The Very Disagreeable Revelation of a Man Who Was in No Hurry.

At four o'clock one Friday afternoon not long ago as Mr. T—— was busily engaged at his desk in a down town office a man walked in and inquired for Mr. B——, who occupied a desk at the opposite side of the same office. Mr. T—— thought he recognized the man as an unwelcome caller. When asked if Mr. B—— was in, without raising his eyes from the work before him, Mr. T—— answered, "No, he is not," whereupon the caller remarked that as he was not very busy he thought he would sit down and wait.

At five o'clock he was still waiting.

At 5:30, still waiting.

A few minutes before six Mr. T—— closed his desk for the day and prepared to go home. The caller ventured to ask if Mr. B—— was likely to return to his office again that day. Mr. T—— answered:

"No; he is in Buffalo and will be back next Tuesday morning."

The caller showed no anger. On the contrary he smiled.

"Don't apologize," he said; "my business was not important, and your office has proved a pleasant lounging place. Fact is," he blandly added, "I suppose I'll be coming down with the smallpox and the doctor told me I must stay indoors and keep warm."

And Mr. T—— anxiously wonders whether he was lying or not.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE WOMEN SAY

There is No Remedy the Equal of Pe-ru-na in All Their Peculiar Ills.

Miss Susan Wymar.

Miss Susan Wymar, teacher in the Richmond school, Chicago, Ill., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman regarding Pe-ru-na. She says: "Only those who have suffered with sleeplessness from over-work in the school-room, such as I have, can know what a blessing it is to be able to find relief by spending a couple of dollars for some Pe-ru-na. This has been my experience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and every bottle of Pe-ru-na I ever bought proved a good friend to me."—Susan Wymar.

Mrs. Margaretha Dauben, 1214 North Superior St., Racine City, Wis., writes: "I feel so well and good and happy now that pen cannot describe it. Pe-ru-na is everything to me. I feel healthy and well, but if I should be sick I will know what to take. I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na for female complaint. I am in the change of life and it does me good."

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

THE ANNUAL BLOCKADE.

It Has a Wonderfully Far-Reaching Effect on Commercial as Well as Social Life.

The season has come again when business in a large part of the United States, especially in small towns where the merchants depend largely upon the distribution of their wares among the agricultural population within a radius of ten or fifteen miles, is greatly interfered with by bad roads. The extent of this drawback to prosperity is seldom understood, even by those who suffer most by reason of it.

Of course the farmers of all sections have abundant opportunities, during the season when the roads are fairly comfortable and good, to get all their crops to market and buy all the merchandise which they can afford to purchase. Therefore, it sometimes seems as if the effect of bad roads were merely to change the distribution of trade, with little or no effect upon its total volume. That is partly true, but in a large degree it is not so.

Business put off beyond the natural time for transacting it is often never done at all. People get along without merchandise which they would use if it could be obtained when it is wanted, without excessive trouble and discomfort. On the other hand, farm products which cannot be marketed for weeks at a stretch, on account of the bad roads, often lose much of their value. Even when there is no such injury done to the producers by enforced delays in getting to market, the waste of time, the extra wear and tear of farm wagons and the strain to which horses are subjected by drawing heavy loads over bad roads count so much reduction of the natural profits of agriculture. Thus the farmer's means of buying are doubly reduced, and the merchant suffers the loss of trade which he might otherwise have.

NO BLOCKADES HERE.
(Bryant Avenue, an Ideal Road Near Princeton, Ill.)

A similar unfortunate effect of the bad roads which are nearly universal in the greater part of the country is the constant uncertainty which is caused in all business dealings depending upon the trade of farmers and rural districts. Merchants may be too busy one week and practically idle the next, instead of having their work reasonably distributed. And farmers who would do their shopping at convenient times, often returning home after dark and making the best of the daylight hours of late winter and early spring in preparing for field work, are compelled to put off necessary business as long as possible, and then take some day for it which they do not like to spare for such use. Many country roads at this time of the year are really dangerous to drive through in the dark, with almost any sort of vehicle. They are not much better by daylight.

The effect of unfit highways upon the distribution of wealth and the massing of population in cities and large towns is another important phase of the roads question. The badness of the highways in the country tends powerfully to spoil rural life for social purposes and drive young people into the cities, who might otherwise lead happier and more wholesome lives where they were born. It cuts down the value of farm property and artificially increases the congestion of the crowded centers of trade and industry. If the roads were better there would be a far more uniform and satisfactory distribution of wealth and population, and more Americans would enjoy the restfulness and health-giving suburban and country life which is already fast growing in favor in spite of bad roads.

It seems hardly necessary to enlarge upon the subject, because the case is so plain, but every spring and every autumn the old curse of unfit highways is forced upon the attention of the American people, and every year it is impossible to resist the conclusion that if the benefits of good roads were better understood they would not be so scarce as they are in every part of the country. In the vast field of highway improvement lies the most pressing need of local government effort.—Cleveland Leader.

Test Each and Every Cow.

What we dairymen should aim at is to secure the best cows we can, and try testing each cow's milk separately and ascertain for sure whether they pay for their keeping and give us a little profit. We can be satisfied with a small profit, but cannot afford to keep cows at a loss for the benevolent purpose of supplying dairy products to consumers at a low cost. Excelsior should be the watchword, and the poorer cows kept only until their places can be filled by better.—Farmers' Review.

COST OF HAY SHEDS.

It Is Absolutely Insignificant When Compared with the Saving They Always Effect.

One of the common leaks upon the farm is in stacking hay, as often a large part of the crop is left out for months. If the work is poorly done great loss and damage is the result, however good the quality of the hay may have been when stacked. The cost of building suitable hay sheds in addition to the mow room of the barn need not be great. A shed 20 by 30 feet and 14 feet to the eaves can be erected at slight cost. Several years ago I built such a one, setting the posts on rock and spiking stringers and plates to the posts, using six-inch bolts which I bought and had a blacksmith sharpen. Holes should be bored in the stringers and plates; then drive the bolts into the posts solid. Such a plan is much better than to use spike nails. Any rough lumber will do for siding, and the shed should be covered with clapboards or shingles. Have an opening at one end for unloading hay. By building the shed larger and higher one could put in a carrier and hay fork. Place the lower stringers two feet from the ground and a scantling 18 inches above it; then after your siding is on go round and saw holes out of it two feet wide, which will make them 18 inches high; saw holes every three feet. This makes a capital place to feed cattle, and they will waste scarcely any hay. A low shed built around three sides of the hay shed will make a good protection for cattle, siding up the west and north sides. Cattle will do in such quarters almost as well as in expensive barns. By building the cornerib near the shed and feeding corn once a day cattle will winter finely, and for quite a while can reach hay for themselves, and when it gets beyond them push it down from the top all round and you have a good manger. This way is not perfect, of course, but it has the merit of cheapness and efficiency, and is a very satisfactory way to feed hay, as I have tried it for years. This plan of feeding is intended for cattle from two to three years old.—Prairie Farmer.

MILK COWS CLEAN.

By No Other Method Can All the Butter Fat Contained in the Milk Be Obtained.

It is a well-known fact that cows not milked clean will tend to dry up in short order. Another important reason for milked clean will tend to dry up in short fat, which is contained in a much larger per cent, in the last than in the first milk drawn, as is shown by the following experiment:

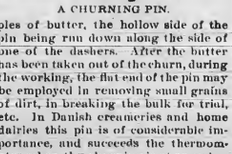
The Kansas state college dairy has conducted an experiment showing the importance of clean milking. Five cows that were giving a fair quantity of milk were selected, and their milk collected in half-pint bottles, each teat contributing its share to every bottle. These samples were tested with the Babcock test, with the following results:

Cow No. 6 varied from .6 of 1 per cent. to 7.5 per cent.

Cow No. 10 varied from .2 of 1 per cent. to 6.6 per cent.

Cow No. 14 varied from 1.5 per cent. to 5.8 per cent.

Cow No. 15 varied from 1.5 per cent. to 6.8 per cent.



Cow No. 20 varied from 8 of 1 per cent. to 7.8 per cent.

The results show a gradual, although not entirely uniform, increase in the per cent. of fat from the beginning to the last of the milking, except with the last two samples drawn from each cow. Here the per cent. of fat would take a sudden leap, amounting often to a third or a half of the total variation. This shows very clearly how important it is to get all the milk. By averaging the results it was found that the last quarter of a pint was worth from three-fourths to one and a half pints of milk first drawn from the udder. Moral: Milk clean and get fat.—D. H. Otis, in Western Rural.

After the butter has been taken out of the churn, during the working, the flat end of the pin may be employed in removing small grains of dirt, in breaking the bulk for trial, etc. In Danish creameries and home dairies this pin is of considerable importance, and succeeds the thermometer when the churning is at an end.—J. Tuberculin Test Successful

The tuberculin test was employed by the Ohio station with satisfactory results. Thirty-one cows and bulls were subjected to the test and 14 of those responded. These latter were re-treated about two months later, and the results then confirmed the first test. Finally the entire herd of the station was tested, with the result of adding several more to the list of suspected cases. About ten months from the first test the animals were re-tested and 15 head killed. The tuberculin test was confirmed in every particular, most of the animals being so diseased as to be condemned as unfit for food; yet they had shown no external symptoms of the disease and were in good flesh and apparently perfectly healthy.

Suggestions for Spring Cleaning.

Much of the labor of house cleaning may be avoided by the exercise of good judgment and management. Pleasant weather must be selected for the work, usually the first of May is the best time to begin. Every thing should be in readiness beforehand. Brooms, brushes, tacks and strings should be provided. The windows and paints are to be perfectly cleaned by washing with warm water and Ivory Soap; the free use of lime and borax will purify and deodorize the premises.

by a method known to the California Fig Syrup Company only. In order to get its beneficial effects, and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

Consumers of the choicest products of modern commerce purchase at about the same price that others pay for cheap and worthless imitations. To come into universal demand and to be everywhere considered the best of its class, an article must be capable of satisfying the wants and tastes of the best informed purchasers. The California Fig Syrup Company having met with the highest success in the manufacture and sale of its excellent liquid laxative remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, it has become important to all to have a knowledge of the Company and its product. The California Fig Syrup Company was organized more than fifteen years ago, for the special purpose of manufacturing and selling a laxative remedy which would be more pleasant to the taste and more beneficial in effect than any other known. The great value of the remedy, as a medicinal agent and of the Company's efforts, is attested by the sale of millions of bottles annually, and by the high approval of most eminent physicians. As the true and genuine remedy named SYRUP OF FIGS is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only, the knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties.

ALABASTINE

LABASTINE is the original and only durable wall coating, entirely different from all kalsomines. Ready for use in white or twelve beautiful tints by adding cold water.

ADIES naturally prefer ALABASTINE for walls and ceilings, because it is pure, clean, durable. Put up in dry powdered form, in five-pound packages, with full directions.

LL kalsomines are cheap, temporary preparations made from whiting, chalks, clays, etc., and stuck on walls with decaying animal glue. ALABASTINE is not a kalsomine.

EWARE of the dealer who says he can sell you the "same thing" as ALABASTINE or "something just as good." He is either not posted or is trying to deceive you.

ND IN OFFERING something he has bought cheap and tries to sell on ALABASTINE'S demands, he may not realize the damage you will suffer by a kalsomine on your walls.

ENSIBLE dealers will not buy a lawsuit. Dealers risk one by selling and consumers by using infringement. Alabastine Co. own right to make wall coating to mix with cold water.

HE INTERIOR WALLS of every schoolhouse should be coated only with pure, durable ALABASTINE. It safeguards health. Hundreds of tons are used annually for this work.

N BUYING ALABASTINE, see that packages are properly labeled. Beware of large four-pound package light kalsomine, offered to customers as a five-pound package.

UISANCE of wall paper is obviated by ALABASTINE. It can be used on plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or canvas. A child can brush it on. It does not rub or scale off.

The remains of A. F. Crigler were taken from the vault on the 17th inst., and buried.

Uncle Mike Wilhoit had a fish bone to lodge in his throat and it gave him some trouble.

Wallace Tanner was very ill with heart trouble, Saturday, but was some better Sunday.

Hubert Beemon and wife are a happy family—a fine girl was born to them on the 15th inst.

The directors of the Burlington and Florence Turnpike Co., met here last Friday evening, to consider the proposition of giving the right-of-way for a telephone line along the pike.

North Bend.

Everybody here has a fine prospect for early vegetables.

Lee Cropper, wife and son spent the day with Mrs. Cropper's sister.

The little boys here believe in the old saying, "the early bird catches the worm," and have been fishing for the past week.

T. W. Balsley and W. P. Cropper are making all preparations for a new yard fence that G. C. Graddy is going to put up for them.

The new boat, the City of Cincinnati, made her first trip Wednesday. She was decked with flags and is noted for her speed and beauty.

It seems as though a mistake has been made some where by T. W. Balsley and J. L. Riley. After two weeks' plowing on the Adams land it was learned that Mr. Adams had written to G. M. Riley and rented the ground to him.

North Bend, is noted for fires. Thursday at noon a number of persons from this side witnessed the burning of the four large ice houses belonging to the Stone Ice Co. How the fire began no one knows. The wind was blowing very hard and all were entirely burnt in an hour.

Gunpowder.

J. H. Aylor is suffering with a rising on his wrist.

Linnie, the little son of L. H. Busby, has been quite sick with pneumonia.

Born, to James Rouse and wife, the 11 inst., a pair of babies, a boy and girl.

Mrs. Minta Utz and aunt Mary Surface were visiting Mrs. Ada Surface, last Saturday.

Mrs. J. P. Snyder is still very poorly and her condition has not improved any since our last report.

Miss Bernice Quick and Ina Tanner, were guests of Miss Lelia Floyd, last Saturday night and Sunday.

The beautiful weather we have had the past week has given the farmers an opportunity to do some work, and they are very busy plowing and planting potatoes.

Mrs. J. Bentham, who had a surgical operation performed at the hospital in Cincinnati, several days ago, is doing well, and we hope she will be able to return home in the near future.

Petersburg.

William Fauss is very sick with malaria fever.

Robt. M. Cox and wife are here on a visit to their parents.

Will Fenton, the handsome pilot on the Workman, has the measles.

The Petersburg bowling team out scored the Lawrenceburg team.

Will Snyder and wife are proud parents of a pretty little girl baby.

E. T. Krutz and George Routh are building additions to their homes.

Tobe Collier and his mother and family have moved to Carrollton.

Kitchen Honze has gone to the Lagoon to take charge of the floats on the lake.

The Christian minister failed to meet his appointment here Sunday on account of sickness.

Dr. Avery Watson is the most independent personage around town, and seems a favorite with all.

John W. and C. A. Gaines, of Utz linger, were introduced on change, Saturday by J. W. Berkshire.

Police court was in session here Wednesday and Thursday, Judge Crisler presiding. No convictions.

A reformed actor and gambler and all round bad man, lectured Monday night at the Methodist church.

Steamer Pauline took a number of Masons to Bellevue, Sunday, to attend the funeral of Mr. Elijah Ryle.

Miss Birdie Holton entertained the W. C. T. U., at her palatial residence out on the pike Saturday evening.

H. P. Crisler's horse got loose from him the other day, and in attempting to catch it he fell and hurt himself badly.

In our last we meant that Hon. N. S. Walton had no desire to oppose good men for any office, as he is not an office seeker in any sense.

M. F. Wingate went to Louisville, Sunday, on the new Str. City of Cincinnati, to buy more cattle. He has bought over 1,000 cattle this spring.

Frank Baker, who went to Houston, Texas, about one year ago, has returned home. Frank had a good job there, but he and his family had bad health, hence his return. He is a good, clever gentleman and his friends gladly welcome him back.

Francesville.

Mr. McFee has our sympathy in his great loss.

Manilius Goodridge, who has been very sick, is better.

Mrs. Julia Beall spent the day with Mrs. Joe Graves, one day last week.

Col. Batterson will commence repairing the church here soon. We hope he and Mr. Tanner wont see any more thieves.

Wash Tanner has rented W. H. Hayes' place and ere this reaches you we hope to have enrolled him as one of our citizens.

The work is being done on a new store to be built at Bullittsville, of which T. G. Graves and Wm. Smith will be proprietors.

Edgar Graves is suffering with a severe case of mumps, aggravated by the cold, damp river air to which he has been exposed so much recently.

We have a society correspondent from this place, of whom we are very proud, and I hope she will not think we are intruding if we drop in occasionally with a few items, mostly of a business nature.

Bids are out to erect a hot air furnace in the house recently vacated by John Strassell. Manilius Goodridge and Charles McFee, two prominent chicken fanciers of this place, intend turning it into a chicken rauch. None but the finest breeds will be grown, and cause will be given special attention. They have purchased an x-rays machine for locating gapes.

"Willy Hicky" Hayes has transferred his business from the hands of the fair sex to those of B. F. Waiuscott, and will, hereafter, transact his business there owing to the inaccessibility of his former office. Ben looks real funny in a mother hubbard. Mr. Hayes was suffering greatly from loss of appetite when here, it being necessary to take a walk every morning before breakfast. Any one having business with him can transact it with Mr. Wainscott.

We all look forward with pleasure to the coming of Rev. Utz the 3rd Sunday. Owing to sickness he has not been able to be with us for several months. It has been a great trial for the new members of the church to be so long without their pastor, but none have wavered in the cause and we are glad to learn that faith in Christ is deeply seated in their hearts. Great credit is due Bros. Tom Watts and T. G. Graves for getting ministers to preach for us in the absence of Bro. Utz.

One of the most enjoyable events of the season was the party given on the 8th inst., by Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Graves, in honor of their charming daughters, Laura May and Olive Lucretia. Games of all kinds were indulged in and each and every one present had an elegant time. Among those present was Mr. Addison Batterson, who has just arrived home from an extensive tour of Alabama and the southern States, where he has been selling patent medicine. Towards the close of the evening he entertained the crowd with songs which he sang during his trip to enliven his purchasers. He is, no doubt, a great salesman and any one having medicine to sell would do well to call on him.

Our school is progressing nicely. The entertainment Friday afternoon was enjoyed by all present.—Miss Laura Graves has returned to Ludlow, after a short visit at her old home.—Omer Henry entertained a few of his young lady friends, last Wednesday. Omer has been quite sick but is improving.—Jim Beall is repairing W. H. Hayes' old homestead.—Jake Reitman has rented the McCartney farm.—The people that congregated at the church here Sunday morning were greatly disappointed, as the pastor, Rev. Utz, was ill and could not attend.—Sunday-school was organized Sunday, and officers were elected as follows: Heland Goodridge, supt; W. P. Cropper, assistant; Owen Watts, secretary; Harry Kilgour, treasurer; Miss Marie Corn, organist, and Miss Lou Morris, assistant. Sunday-school will begin the first Sunday in May.

Union.

Mrs. Elizabeth Huey was visiting in Bullittsville, last week.

Lee Busby, of Gunpowder, was calling on Dr. Cronch, Thursday.

Miss Nannie Dickerson entertained a number of her young friends Friday evening.

Elbert Rice and Elmo Conner are farming together this spring and make a good team.

H. L. Corbin is having a new cellar built, preparing to have his house painted and fixed up generally.

A number of young folks from Union attended a meeting of the Excelsior Club at Miss Hattie Bedinger's. A most delightful evening was spent. Mrs. Everett Bedinger sang several beautiful songs during the evening and as Mrs. Bedinger has a splendid voice they were highly appreciated.

Cyrus Lampkin, Esq., was listening to a talk some of the boys were making about the noted cannon used by the Democrats to boom things up in campaign times and called "Betsy Howe," and after they had talked to a finish he said the name of "Betsy Howe" was wrong and the real name was "Blue Jeans Williams."

Mr. Cassibly, candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Mr. Mooney, alderman and all around politicians of Mr. C.'s home city, Lexington, were in Union Tuesday evening for several hours, guests of the Eagle Hotel. Mr. C. made a favorable impression upon all he met in our town.

All kinds of feed is getting scarce and the coming of sprlug with its green pastures, skipping lambs and other poetical features is looked forward to with much concern by farmers. Sunday however, was cold enough to freeze up any and all early spring expectations. Last fall your cor. was certain the people had enough feed of every kind stored for wiuter to last through and have lots to spare, but empty mows and cribs are in evidence.

Monday we called on Messrs. R. L. Willis and F. M. Howlett, of Big Bone, to find Mr. and Mrs. Willis in very good health and wishing for pleasanter weather. Mr. and Mrs. Howlett were not well and inclined to believe the weather would be cold until the 10th of May. Mr. Willis is anxious for some one to tell him how to secure a roof (regardless of cost) that will not leak. Mr. Howlett is also in search of information. He wants to find out (cost not considered) why his plastering has cracked in ten thousand places and fallen off in many places.

Jeff Rouse allowed your cor. to start the engine Wednesday. We pulled the throttle lever and results were like this: Throttle valve opened, steam rushed into the cylinder, piston rod moved forward carrying pittman rod with it (and returned) making a revolution of the drive wheel; the safety valve was safe, the fire box was hot, the inspirator inspirated, the injector (never objected) but injected; the force pump pumped, sparks flew into the flue, the cut-off cut, the excentric rod was excentric, the crown sheet was not a white sheet or a white heat, the journals were not journal ists, hot all the time, the bearings were all right from s b y s e to n b y n e; finally we saw Jeff saw and he saw that we saw him saw and we saw that he saw that we saw him saw and that ends the sawing business.

Florence.

Mike Cahill and Henry Myers are on the sick list.

John Goodridge, of Richwood, was visiting his relatives here, Sunday.

Mrs. Lilie Corbin, who has been quite sick for two weeks, is improving.

Born, on the 11th inst., to Mr. and Mrs. James Rouse, twins—a boy and a girl.

Mrs. Ann Aheran is dangerously ill, having had a stroke of paralysis, one day last week.

The marriage of Dr. C. T. Moffett and Miss Ruey Dulaney is announced for the 6th of May.

Martin Cahill, of Erlanger, spent Sunday here with his father-in-law, Henry Calvert.

R. P. Rice, traveling agent for the Deering Machine Company, had a very successful trip in Indiana, last week.

Miss Bettie Hoggins returned home, Saturday, from a week's pleasant visit with relatives and friends in Covington.

Misses Bessie Crigler, Ruey Dulaney and Alice Cloud, attended the hop at Erlanger, last Wednesday night which was a swell affair.

Died, Friday morning, the 14th inst. at her home near Erlanger, on the Lexington pike, Mrs. Anna Gebhardt, in her 35th year. Funeral services were held at the home on Sunday evening, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Florence cemetery.

Mr. Joe Clark, of this place, and Miss Henrietta Frey, of Cincinnati, were married in the parlor of Rev. Fisher, of Bayniller street, that city, on the 12th inst. After the ceremony the bride and groom were escorted to the depot by their attendants, Mr. John Sells, of Florence, and Miss Rosa Lake of Covington, where they boarded the train for Erlanger, where a carriage with white horses awaited their arrival, to convey the happy party to the home of the groom's father, Mr. John Clark, where an elegant supper was served. The young couple received many handsome presents. The young couple will make their home at Florence, with Joe's parents, for the present, and Joe will continue to work for the Oak Leather Company, of Cincinnati. We wish them all the happiness the married state can furnish, and may never a shadow of sorrow or disappointment molest their happiness, is the wish of their many friends.

Hebron.

Miss Martha Harding is visiting relatives at Utzinger.

Mrs. Nettie Dye was visiting her father last Tuesday.

Miss Nannie Lodge was the guest of our school Friday afternoon.

C. E. Clore and Edward Aylor are painting at Frank Walton's.

Miss Grace Conner spent Saturday night with the Misses Crigler.

Rev. Lentz filled his appointment at the church, Sunday morning.

Yard and house cleaning have been on the program for several days.

Some of the farmers in this vicinity have fine looking crops of wheat.

Clint and Frank Jackson were guests of Mr. Bullock's family, last week.

Misses Ruth and Mary Lentz were guests of Miss Grace Bullock, Sunday.

Mrs. Ida Baisly and Mrs. Dr. Clore called on Mrs. Abe Clore, Saturday afternoon.

Miss Lizzie Dye and Mr. Hann spent Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Perry Aylor.

Israel Rouse and family, of Limaburg, spent Sunday with their mother, Mrs. Harding.

Olle Dye has been staying with her grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. McGlasson, for a week.

Several of the school children have been vaccinated, but as yet no serious results have followed.

The weekly prayer meeting was held at Jeff Cloud's, Tuesday evening, with Mrs. Hossman as leader.

Mr. and Mrs. Picklehelmer and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Goodridge were visiting Dr. and Mrs. Sayre, Sunday.

Miss Alice Tice and Will Riddell, of Cincinnati, and R. S. Cowen, of Burlington, were visiting James Riddell's Sunday.

Prof. G. S. Hann and Harry Dinn, of Harrison, Ohio, came over the first of last week. Both were looking as if the Ohio valley agreed with them.

Quite a number from here were regular attendants at Burlington, last week. Most of them passed along "Dog Trot Avenue," and as we beheld them on their winding way, we could scarcely keep from thinking that Coxey's army had again reappeared.

Erlanger.

Fred Ficke has rented his saloon to Andy Sheban. Fred will run the hotel.

Messrs. Geo. Rost, J. Swindand Jno. Westerman, are the trustees of common school district No. 36.

The entertainment given by the athletic club was well patronized, and proved a success.

The ladies of the Methodist church intend to give a social on the old Garvey homestead in May.

Friday night April, 21st, there will be a birthday party at the town hall, for the benefit of the Methodist church. Every one is cordially invited to attend. A penny for every year old, unless your age exceeds twenty-five, if so give us a quarter and we will be satisfied. We promise you something to eat, also furnish you a musical treat. Come one come all.

Local Conventions.

The Republican's held a convention in G. G. Hughes' law office Saturday afternoon, to choose delegates to Railroad Commissioner's convention. The convention was called to order by G. L. Miller. J. M. Baker was chosen chairman and E. S. McKim Secretary. The committee appointed on delegates reported the following: J. G. Tomlin, G. L. Miller, B. F. Zimmer, Zack Kelly, T. B. Mathews. The delegate or delegates who attend the convention were instructed to cast Boone's five votes for John C. Wood, as long as his name is before the convention, and in the event his name is withdrawn they can vote as they choose.

The Boone County Republicans met in mass convention this day (April 15) to select delegates to the Railroad District Convention which meets at Richmond, May 2d, and the following were appointed delegates, Z. T. Kelly, Cyrus Kelly, John Elatau, B. F. Zimmer, A. M. Edwards, John Oelsner, Elihu Alden, Harry Blyth. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we, the Republicans of Boone County, in convention assembled earnestly protest against Civil Service Laws, which keep federal offices filled with Democratic partisans.

Resolved further, That the same laws which compel an applicant for a $1 per day position to pass an examination before a Democratic board, should apply also to positions paying from $4,000 to $50,000 per year; in other words a civil service President should staud a civil service examination before his nomination.

Resolved further, That while we protest against civil service in its entirety, and especially protest against Democrats who have never experienced any examination being retained in the employ of the government, when more intelligent Republicans cannot secure appointment, on account of civil service laws.

Resolved further, That we heartily congratulate our magnificent Governor W. O. Bradley, on every act of his administration, and assure him of our unbounded love and confidence, as the leader of our party in this State.

HARRY BLYTH, Chairman.
ELIHU ALDEN, Secretary.

The county Democratic Convention to select delegates to the district convention to nominate a candidate for Railroad Commissioner, was called to order by D. E. Castleman, chairman of the county committee last Saturday at 2 p. m., in the circuit court room. J. S. Clutterbuck was elected temporary secretary. The temporary organization was made permanent, and the following delegates were chosen: J. M. Lassing, O. S. Watts, Chas. Schramm, R. A. Brady, Jno. P. Ryle, Douglas Moore, W. M. Whitson, Frank Curley, G. E. Carroll, J. L. Frazier, J. N. Pearson, D. Beall. In case some of the delegates do not attend, those who do are instructed to cast Boone's 12 votes as a unit on all subjects before the convention.

There will soon be plenty of shade in Burlington again.

For sale—Good, fresh Jersey cow. G. W. Baker, Limaburg.

The nice weather last week kept many persons from attending court.

For sale—Ten acres of land adjoining the town of Burlington. J. E. Hall.

The farmers have had one good week for work, and they made use of it.

Miss Mary Thompson's school closed for the term, last Friday evening.

Born—On the 11th inst., to Lewis Crisler and wife, of Bullittsville, a son.

The house cleaning season opened up with the coming of the nice weather last week.

Scott Chambers will be in Burlington with his horse, Ugo, on the 27th and 28th inst.

Harvey Baker, of Limaburg, was an interested spectator at court several days last week.

The trustees who have the employment of teachers for next fall and winter will soon begin looking around.

D. E. Cuddeman has begun building a barn on his premises. James Hogan is doing the excavating and stone work.

The census of the Burlington school district, just taken, shows there are in the district 99 pupils within the school age, ten less than last year.

Miss Frances Finch and Mr. J. J. Griffith will be married at the Methodist church, by Rev. M. J. Hoover, next Tuesday at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Mary E. Adams had a handsome stone erected at the head of her husband's grave in the cemetery here, Monday. J. T. Marshall furnished the work.

The RECORDER is in receipt of an article on good roads, which has to be held over because of Bro Crates' article, and the "Appeal" published by request, this week.

The Misses Alden, of Petersburg, hereby express their sincere thanks to all persons who so kindly assisted in saving their property from probable destruction by fire on the night of the 6th inst., at Petersburg.

Lung Irritation

is the forerunner to consumption. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey will cure it, and give such strength to the lungs that a cough or a cold will not settle there. Twenty-five cents at all good druggists.

John Funk was tried by Judge Roberts, Saturday, for carrying a pistol. Funk had been appointed by Esquire J. H. Walton to make an arrest on a warrant he had issued, and he was afterward arrested for carrying a pistol. Funk swore he carried no pistol as charged. The court heard all the testimony, and decided that he carried no pistol, but if he did he had a right to under the circumstances.

Judge Crisler drove to town one day last week, his buggy the top, dashboard and seat of which was but recently the victim of a knife in the hands of some fellow for whom the penitentiary is anxiously waiting. The buggy attracted the attention of men from several neighborhoods in the county, and they commented freely on a person who would be guilty of such dastardly acts as those of which the buggy was a silent witness.

The contract for the placing of 13,000 perch of broken stone on the turnpikes of Grant county has been let by the Fiscal Court of that county. The average price paid for the stone was about thirty three and one-third cents per perch. At the same time contracts were let for ditching and repairing the culverts of the pikes. The total amount of work let, including the breaking and spreading of stone, will amount to near $20,000, all of which must be done within the current year.

Covington District Conference will meet at Augusta, Ky., May 2 and 4.

Wm. M. Green, of Rising Sun, Ind., spent several days here last week, in the interest of a telephone system which a company he represents, proposes to establish in this county. The first line it is proposed to put up will connect Burlington and Florence, after which several other lines will follow. He has had considerable experience and is perfectly familiar with the enterprise he proposes introducing in this county. The proposition he makes to persons along the line and at the various towns are very liberal and favorable.

Elijah Ryle, an old resident of the Waterloo neighborhood, was buried by the Masons, of which order he was a member, at Bellevue, last Sunday. The funeral was preached by Rev. J. A. Kirtley, at the Bellevue Baptist church, and was heard by a very large crowd of sorrowing friends and relatives. The deceased would have been 79 years old had he lived until the — day of next September. For 57 of these 79 years he was a faithful and consistent member of the Baptist church, having held membership all that time with the Bellevue church, which was the Middle creek church at the time he united with it. All who knew Elijah Ryle recognized his sterling qualities. He had been a patitent sufferer for 2 or 3 years, at all times ready to obey the final summons.

Mrs. Clarissa Ashley, of Florence, was in Burlington, last Thursday, and made her annual call upon the RECORDER. Mrs. Ashley carries her age well!

Dr. Tilly, of Petersburg, was among the RECORDER'S visitors, last Thursday. The doctor was not in good voice, on that occassion, and had but little to say.

Uncle John Beall, of Hebron, and Mr. D. T. Crigler, of Gunpowder, were the oldest gentlemen in attendance at court last week. The latter was a witness in the Story trial.

Joseph Glinn, of Walton, gave the Burlington sevenup players a great many valuable pointers during his sojourn here as a juryman last week. He faced defeat at but a single sitting.

Mr. Geo. M. Casey, our able correspondent at Walton, has been quite sick for several weeks, and our many readers hope he will soon be able to renew his interesting contributions.

J. A. Duncan went to Lawrenceburg, Saturday, to take part in the Petersburg bowling tournament. James is a star bowler, and Will Casey came out last Friday with a special invitation from the Petersburg delegation for his presence.

Green R. Keller, of Nicholas county, and a candidate for Secretary of State, was in town, last Thursday, getting acquainted with the voters. Mr. Keller has spent considerable time in the General Assemblies of the State, and is well posted in State affairs.

L. D. Houston, secretary of the treasury of the Union and Beaver Turnpike Company, was called before the grand jury, one day last week to tell what he knew about certain depredations committed in his neighborhood, not long since. He knew what had been done, but the doers thereof he knew not.

Mr. Edward Gaines, of the Ashby-Woolper plaius, was the guest of his son, attorney Sidney Gaines, a few days last week. He says his old partner at croquet, Mr. R. Y. Randall, has so far recovered his health that he expects him to take part in frequent ball and wicket contests this summer. He says Col. Appletou and S. Q. Botts will also enjoy the pleasure as usual this season.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge Green kept the attorneys at work.

Several of the most important cases were set for trial this week.

A final order of distribution was made in the suit to settle the estate of Geo. W. Terrill. The branch of the case that went to the Court of Appeals having come back, the creditors will now learn what they are to get.

Hal Presser, of Hathaway, use to think if he could spend a week in Burlington attending court he would be perfectly contented the rest of his life, and this term furnished him his longed sought opportunity; but about the middle of the week he contracted a severe attack of homesickness, and long for the time to come when he could once more view the hills and valleys that surround the hamlet where he has spent so many happy days, and which he prefers to another week's compulsory sojourn in the capital.

The three cases of Geo. B. Murphy against Chas. E. Steveuson, which have been on the docket for several terms, were continued.

Mosby, Rauin & Grogreve were adjudged their debt against Adam Vesemeyer.

Judgments and order of sale were entered in the following cases: Jno. M. Lassing vs. Ernest Yager; Kentucky Citizens' Building and Loan Association vs. Ralph C. Pilly; same vs. W. R. Gordon; Thos. B. Aylor vs. Lloyd Aylor, &c.; J. J. Lillard vs. Harriet Reib; Walton Building Association vs. Richard Flunell.

Divorces were granted as follows: Maud Reed from James Reed; Comalete McKean from J. D. McKean.

The case of the Commouwealth vs. Prof. G. S. Hahn, was continued.

The grand jury made a final report late in the afternoon, Saturday, returning 24 indictments, a majority of them against persons for peddling without license. By request of the Court and the Commouwealth's Attorney the RECORDER will not publish the names of the persons indicted. The jury made the following report:

Hon. John W. Green, Judge of the Boone Circuit Court: The grand jury respectfully reports that they have been in session 6 days. We have examined 70 witnesses; we have found 24 indictments; we have examined the Co. Infirmary and it is clean and well kept, we find the roof leaks and is injuring the walls and plastering, and recommend that the roof and plastering be repaired and the inside wood work and plasterlug be painted. We have examined the Court-house and find it in good condition and well kept; we recommend that the floor in the north end of the hall be repaired. We find the jail in good condition and well kept. We respectfully thank the Honorable Judge, the District and County Attorneys for council and advice given us, and the Sheriff and deputies for the prompt manner in which they executed and returned subpoenas.

Respectfully submitted,
J. R. CLUTTERBUCK,

To the Editor of the Recorder:

You have my thanks for presenting my article so well in your paper last week, but there is one serious mistake made to which I suppose attention ought to be called. In the paper I say "snatched from the convent," whereas I wished to say "snatched from the covenant." I showed conclusively that children were included in the old covenant. If they are to be excluded from the new, there would of necessity be a positive command for such exclusion.

Very truly yours,

THE latest fad of the ultra-fashionable girl is the monogram glove. Upon the backs of her dainty hand coverings her initials, entwined in monogram form, are embroidered in silk. They are otherwise devoid of stitching. It is said that a dozen pairs of monogram gloves were a part of the trousseau of Miss Virginia Fair.

It is stated, in support of vaccination, that in Austria, prior to vaccination becoming general, out of every 1,000,000 inhabitants 38,541 died of smallpox within a period of 20 years, a figure reduced to one-tenth, namely, 3,745, in the corresponding time after the general adoption of vaccination.

THE rivers of Africa have several remarkable peculiarities. They seek the ocean (or sea) that is farthest away from their sources. Their course is always broken by falls, except in the case of the Niger cataracts and rapids. Their lower or commercial course is very deep. Their mouths are stopped by numerous sandbanks.

THE New York police department on March 1 had a total membership of 7,864 officers and men, of whom 91 were in the bicycle squad, 89 in the tenement house squad, 164 were detectives, 88 were in the sanitary corps and 9 were detailed for service in the house of detention. There were also 38 police matrons, bringing the total of the force to more than 7,400.

THERE were some notable forgery cases in London recently, and it became necessary for one of the banks to call upon Scotland Yards hurriedly for a detective. An attempt was made to telephone, but it was found that Scotland Yard was not connected with the circuit, so a telegram was sent instead. Five hours passed before a detective appeared, and meanwhile the forger was putting the miles rapidly between himself and the city.

A MOUNT VERNON (N. Y.) judge thinks that, in order to obtain the best results, a jury should be made to feel at home in the courtroom. Accordingly he has had the stationary chairs heretofore used by jurors removed, and has replaced them with commodious reclining chairs. The learned judge, it is intimated, is also considering the advisability of providing the "twelve good men and true" with smoking jackets and turkish baths.

THE Oklahoma board of health has decided that a somnambulist is an idiot and should not be punished for crimes committed while under this influence. The other night Jack Hershell, of Arapahoe, while asleep as alleged, got on his brother's bicycle, rode six miles and attempted to kill his sweetheart. He was arrested, but released at the request of the territory board of health. The board also says any person while asleep is in a complete idiotic state.

Every share of the stock belongs to the family, and it is announced that they assume an unlimited responsibility for all the liabilities of the bank.

THE historic wooden leg which Gen. Santa Anna lost on the battlefield of Cerro Gordo over half a century ago may be sent back to Mexico. The limb was carried home by Illinois soldiers, and for many years had been one of the interesting relics in Memorial hall, in the state capital. A movement was recently started among grand army men to restore the limb to surviving relatives of the famous Mexican soldier. President Diaz, of the republic of Mexico, has been communicated with, and has expressed his cordial approval of the project.

EASTER lilies formed no part of the Easter decorations this year in St. John's Protestant Episcopal church in Jersey City, N. J. Rev. Dr. E. L. Stoddard, rector of St. John's, tabooed the fragrant and beautiful flower for hygenic reasons. Experience, he says, has taught him that when the Easter lily is used, even in small quantities, in the altar and chancel decorations, the odor affects the members of the choir, giving them severe headaches. Dr. Stoddard says also that he received complaints on the same score from members of the congregation.

FOR many centuries it has been the common belief that salt and much of it is necessary to the human system. Few people are aware that on an average the food we eat contains sufficient of the mineral for all ordinary purposes. Many physicians, on the contrary, are now tending to the belief that salt is moderately, if not highly, deleterious to the system. It is true that certain animals require it in large quantities, but this does not hold for the human race. Sailors, who are confined almost entirely to the use of salty food, suffer ills unspeakable on long voyages.

PARISIAN barbers now cut hair by electricity. An electric comb is used. It looks like the ordinary comb, except that a thin wire is stretched above the upper portion of the teeth along the handle. The wire is connected electrically with a storage battery. When the battery is connected the wire becomes red hot. Therefore when this comb passes through the hair the latter is burned off by the red hot wire. The whole operation is so rapid that a heavy head of hair may be clipped in a few minutes. Not only this but the ends of the hair can not bleed, as the ends become seared.

SOLDIERS RIOT.

One of Their Members Injured in a Saloon Near the Presidio Saturday.

Sunday Night About One Thousand Soldiers Went to the Place and After Gutting the Interior Set the Saloon on Fire.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—Sunday night 100 United States soldiers were under arrest on the Presidio reservation. They are encamped and are guarded by cavalry and the 24th infantry regulars, colored, the force being in charge of Adjt. Lieut. Harris.

The offense of the men was the burning down of a saloon just outside the reservation lines, in which Private Charles L. King, Company G, 23d infantry, was so brutally beaten Saturday night that he is not expected to live.

Private Clark, of Company F, also of the 23d regiment, is in the guard house charged with the assault, but the soldiers assert that the saloon people are responsible and claim that the proprietor, A. L. Echfeld, was the chief assailant of the injured man.

A report being circulated Sunday that King was dead, the place was set on fire Sunday night and destroyed as an act of retribution.

The trouble began Saturday night when several recruits went to the saloon, which is known as the Presidio club cafe. There were several women in the place and a row soon started over one of them, in which nearly all the men present participated.

When comparative order had been restored, it was seen that Private King had been seriously injured about the head, his skull being fractured and his features badly battered. He was taken to the Presidio reservation and his supposed assailant, Private Clark, placed in the guardhouse.

Early Sunday morning some one started the story among the troops that King was dead. Despite the denials by the officers, the report spread, and by nightfall the men had become wildly excited. Soon after dark nearly 1,000 of them proceeded to the saloon where the row had occurred, and after gutting its interior, set fire to it in several places, no one daring to interfere.

The incendiaries in uniform, established an impromptu bucket brigade and prevented the adjoining buildings from catching fire. During the progress of the flames the soldiers are said to have discharged many shots in the air and indulged in much hilarity.

When the house had been reduced to ashes they returned to the reservation and were promptly put under arrest by Col. Freeman, of the 24th United States infantry, commandant of the post.

All of the men implicated in the affray are white. The colored troops, none of whom took part, were placed over them as a guard, the cavalry lending its assistance. There being no guard house of sufficient capacity the prisoners were rounded upon the open. The men were nearly all to sail for Manila in a few days on the outgoing fleet of transports.

VAST CROWD WAS DRENCHED

The Celebration of the Return of the United States Cruiser Raleigh at New York—Very Bad Weather.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The celebration attending the return of the United States cruiser Raleigh from Manila, which had to be postponed Saturday owing to the war ship's late arrival, occurred Sunday. The Raleigh, accompanied by two small war vessels captured from the Spaniards last summer, and a fleet of about 25 excursion steamers and tugboats, paraded from Tompkinsville to Grant's tomb, and from there back to anchorage in the North river off Fifty-fourth street. It would have been difficult to have selected more inclement or disagreeable weather than that which prevailed all the time that the Raleigh was passing in review before the thousands of enthusiastic people who lined the river banks and gave her their hearty cheers of welcome home.

The Deaf Can Now Hear.

MOBILE, Ala., April 17.—Reese Hutchison, a young electrician, graduate of Auburn college, Alabama, is exhibiting here his apparatus for making the deaf hear. He augments vibration and enables deaf mutes to hear words spoken in ordinary tones, and also to hear piano, guitar, the phonograph and enjoy other music. The apparatus for the use of the deaf is the size of a pocketbook, and is connected by wires with an audiphone, which is held at the ear. Two totally deaf men were experimented with. They stood 50 feet from the piano and marked the time of the music, laughing with delight over the novel experience.

CUBAN ARMY MUSTER ROLLS.

There Are 6,000 Commissioned Officers and 42,000 Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates Enumerated.

HAVANA, April 15.—The Cuban army muster rolls, which were delivered Thursday evening to Gov. Gen. Brooke through Senor Domingo Mendez Capote, are prepared in a neat, clerical style, the 1,200 broad sheets showing on their face 40,000 names—6,000 commissioned officers and 42,000 non-commissioned and privates. The whole statement is in orderly arrangement of corps, regiments, battalions and company scores.

The United States authorities make no attempt to reconcile the 42,000 non-commissioned officers and privates indicated by these rolls with the 13,211 given in the estimates prepared under the direction of the provisional governors. As a matter of fact since the American figures were published it has developed that they were in some respects misleading. For instance, in the province of Santiago Gen. Leonard Wood, the governor, reported that there was no Cubans in arms. At headquarters here this was taken to mean that there were no Cuban soldiers organized; but Gen. Wood meant that there were no Cuban soldiers in regular camps, the practice being for the Cuban soldiery to separate, going to their homes and to come together fortnightly with their arms for review, dispersing again afterward. Consequently for the province of Santiago alone some thousands must be added to the American figures. Moreover, additional thousands must be eliminated from the Cuban lists, because the men represented are now in official employ. Nevertheless, there is a wide difference between the American estimates and the assembly's lists. The Americans will scrutinize the latter carefully and when the payments begin the individuals named must be identified by the various company captains. The Americans, of course, will in no way question any apparently genuine identification, so that the rolls must largely be taken as prepared in good faith. If the lists vouched for tally more than 50,000 non-commissioned officers and privates, the shares, with the deductions, will probably be less than $100 each. These details have not yet been settled.

At the meeting between Gen. Brooke and Gen. Gomez with the other ten Cuban generals, Friday, pleasant things were said all around. Gen. Gomez was able to show the Cuban commanders how well he stood at headquarters, and the proceedings were a further demonstration of the good feeling of the Cubans toward Gen. Brooke, a sentiment which in and out of public life is exceedingly cordial, owing to his unfailing patience and courtesy.

GEN. ALGER WILL NOT RESIGN

The Secretary of War Says That the Report That He Will Retire From the Cabinet is Without Foundation.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Secretary Alger Friday night put an affective quietus on the persistent reports that he contemplated retirement from the cabinet by a positive and unequivocal statement that the reports were absolutely without foundation and that unless some unforseen and unlooked for contingency arises, he proposes to remain secretary of war throughout this administration. Secretary Alger had his attention called to recent rumors that he would resign after the investigation into the conduct of the war and incident matters cease and that his successor already had been determined upon. He said all statements of that character were false.

SNOW BLOCKADE IS BROKEN.

Trains on the Colorado Railway, After an Interruption of 77 Days, Are Again in Operation.

DENVER, Col., April 15.—The Colorado Midland railway blockade west of Leadville was broken Friday, and through traffic, which had been interrupted for 77 days, was resumed. Two through freight trains were started from Colorado Springs at noon and the regular passenger train schedule will be restored again. Much difficulty has been experienced in breaking the blockade both on account of the enormous snowbanks, which were in places 25 feet high, and because for many miles the rails were covered with ice, which had to be cut away by hand. No further delays are anticipated.

Martin Julian Critically Ill.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Martin Julian, manager of Bob Fitzsimmons, is in a critical condition with typhoid pneumonia at the Union Square hotel, in this city. Mr. Julian was taken ill Saturday evening and grew rapidly worse.

Endless Chain System Illegal.

CINCINNATI, April 15.—The post office department received word from Washington Friday that Harrison I. Barrett, assistant attorney general of the United States, has declared the "endless chain" scheme illegal.

Adm. Schley Assigned to Duty.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Rr. Adm. W. S. Schley, who has been on waiting orders since relieved of the command of the flying squadron, was Friday assigned to duty as a member of the naval examining board in this city.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

Supreme Court to Consist of a President and Six Associate Justices.

The President Will Receive $6,000 a Year —Gen. Lee Reads His Farewell Address to His Command—Gen. Gomez and Daughter Visits Gen. Lee.

HAVANA, April 17.—The Cuban general, Pedro Diaz, of the 6th army corps, in the province of Pinar del Rio, was offered $150 a month and the command of 200 rural police in his province. He declined the proposition on the ground that the amount tendered was too small. Brig. Gen. Henry C. Hasbrouck, commander of the military department of Pinar del Rio, raised the offer to $200 a month. These figures Gen. Diaz is considering and will probably accept. His force will be mounted, each private receiving $30 a month and providing his own equipment.

The decree constituting the supreme court has been prepared with elaborate care by Senor Lanuza, secretary of justice in Gen. Brooke's advisory cabinet, and after thorough consideration by the cabinet is ready to be promulgated.

It establishes a tribunal of last appeal in civil and criminal proceedings, vesting the new body with full jurisdiction over such cases as formerly went for final decision to Madrid. The personnel of the court has not yet been announced; but the tribunal will consist of a president at a salary of $6,000 (American) and of six associate justices at salaries of $5,500. The attorney general will receive a salary of $5,750. The 9th Illinois volunteers and the 2d artillery were reviewed Sunday by Gov. Gen. Brooke, Gen. Lee and Gen. Gomez. The parade took place at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

There were 940 men in the ranks, the last of the 7th corps, and they made an admirable showing. Gen. Lee, in the farewell order which he read, said among other things that it had been the purpose of President McKinley to assign to the 7th corps the duty and honor of leading the assault upon Havana had that been necessary. After the parade Gen. Gomez and his daughter paid a visit to Gen. Lee. Senorita Gomez will return to Santo Domingo this week but her father will probably remain here indefinitely.

The work of building the barracks for the regulars at Camp Columbia has not yet been begun. Nothing has been built thus far except the frame work of the stables.

The morgue officials report that the soldier who was killed in the fight with the police at the docks has been identified by Private Niles, Battery G, 2d artillery, as that of Private Frank Rush, of the Massachusetts volunteers, who had been missing since Sunday last.

THE NEW SPANISH MINISTER

Duke de Arcos Appointed—Consulates at Havana, Manila, Hollo, San Juan and Cienfuegos Created.

MADRID, April 17.—The Official Gazette Sunday contains a royal decree appointing the Duke de Arcos to be Spanish envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States.

The decree also creates consulates at Havana, Manila, Hoilo, San Juan de Porto Rico and Cienfuegos.

Senor Larrea, now Spanish consul at Antwerp, is transferred to Havana; Senor Bouilla, now at Shanghai, is appointed to Manila and Senor Uriarte goes to Antwerp.

Gen. Rios, Spain's principal commander in the Philippines, cables that Maj. Gen. Otis has granted him a safe conduct for his chief of staff and another officer whom he is sending to Aguinaldo with a letter demanding the liberation of the Spanish prisoners in the name of humanity and international law.

In the event of a refusal, the commissioners will ask Aguinaldo for a definite decision in order that they may acquaint the civilized world with his attitude. Gen. Rios has empowered them to offer to surrender to Aguinaldo 1,000 Filipino prisoners who have been placed at the Spanish commander's disposal by Gen. Otis.

A Large Contract for Dressed Beef.

KANSAS CITY, April 17.—One of the largest contracts for dressed beef ever placed by the United States government has just been arranged with a local packing house. The contract is for 1,500,000 pounds of best export dressed beef to be shipped to the Philippine islands for the government troops. The beef will all be furnished in Kansas City and 12 carloads for export will be started for the west at once.

Red Book Admitted as Evidence.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—The noted red book, so damaging to Quay, has been admitted as evidence. At 10:30 Saturday Mr. Rothermel offered the book as a book of the bank. The defendant's attorneys immediately objected to its admission.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The administration has notified the Cuban planters' delegation now here that mortgage obligations in Cuba will be extended for one year.

HIS OLD YELLOW ALMANAC.

I left the farm when mother died, and changed my place of dwellin'
To daughter Susie's stylish house, right in the city street,
And there was them, before I came, that sort of sneered me tellin'
How I should find the town-folks' ways so difficult to meet.
They said I'd have no comfort in the rustlin' fixed-up throng,
And I'd have to wear stiff collars every weekday right along.

I find I take to city ways just like a duck to water,
I like the racket and the noise, and never tire of shows;
And there's no end of comfort in the mansion of my daughter,
And everything is right at hand, and money freely flows;
And hired help is all about, just listenin' for my call,
But I miss the yellow almanac off my kitchen wall.

The house is full of calendars from attic to the cellar;
They're painted in all colors, and are fancy-like to see,
But just in this particular I'm not a modern feller,
And the yellow-covered almanac is good enough for me;
I'm used to it, I've seen it round from boyhood to old age,
And I rather like the jokin' at the bottom of each page.

I like the way the "S" stood out to show the week's beginnin'
(In these new-fangled calendars the days seemed sort of mixed),
And the man upon the cover, though he wasn't exactly winnin'
With lungs and liver all exposed, still showing how we are fixed;
And the letters, credentials that was writ to Mr. Ayer,
I've often, on a rainy day, found readin' very fair.

I tried to find one recently; there wa'n't one in the city.
They toted out great calendars in every sort of style,
I looked at 'em in cold disdain, and answered 'em in pity:
"I'd rather have my almanac than all that costly pile."
And, though I take to city life, I'm lonesome, after all,
For that old yellow almanac upon my kitchen wall.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in the Century.

JOHN'S GOOD IDEA.

He Thought Angel Food Should Have the Right Kind of Brand on It.

A woman whose husband was physician for the California state prison recently had in her kitchen one of the convicts from the prison, a Chinaman, serving a short sentence for theft, but whose subsequent good behavior had made for him many friends among the government officials. John was a good cook and more than cleanly, so the doctor's wife hailed him with delight and mourned greatly when the days were busy and John was not allowed beyond the prison walls. John, when in the world, had been a good deal about the "Sunday school" life of his fellow celestials and since his confinement had thought much on the subject.

The doctor was very proud of John's cooking and one day invited a few friends in for dinner. John was in his element and prepared an elaborate meal. Among the many delicacies for dessert ordered by the doctor's wife was an angel cake. John's chief culinary success. Great was the consternation and surprise of the hostess and the amusement of the guests when John bobbed into the room carrying a huge, snowy, uncut angel cake, bearing across the top in huge red letters the word "Heaven."

John's dinner was a "howling" success.

DUCKS OR STOCKS?

An Investment That Pays Better Than Dabbling in Stocks on Tips.

A circular sent out by a firm of tipsters says: "It is now over three years since we first addressed you about our stock operations. During that time had you invested $100 at the beginning and compounded your profits, your $100 would now be nearly $4,775. Is there any business that will pay you better than $4,775 profits on $100 capital in three years?" A copy of the circular fell into the hands of a man who made this rejoinder:

"The answer is, yes—ducks, tame, puddle, muscovy, Pekin, or any other breed. A little girl had 15 cents with which she bought a sitting of duck eggs. She borrowed a brooding chicken hen from her mother, and all the eggs were hatched out. Her profits for the first six months were $8, and she kept three hens and a drake for the next six months' operations. It is fair to presume that her profits will be at least $8 for each six months; one year $16; three years, $48. Divide $48 by her 15 cents and the quotient will be 320—that is, each of her 15 cents will produce 320 cents; on $1 or 100 cents the profit will be 32,000 cents, or $320; on $100 capital the profit would be $32,000, against the $4,775. Verily a good investment is in duck eggs."

No man is so good that his neighbors can't see room for improvement.—Chicago Daily News.

ONE reason Mrs. Pinkham's treatment helps women so promptly is that they have confidence in her.

Through some of the many thousands of Mrs. Pinkham's friends an ailing woman will be led to write to Mrs. Pinkham at her home in Lynn, Mass., and will tell her symptoms. The reply, made without charge of any kind, will bear such evidence of knowledge of the trouble that belief in her advice at once inspires hope.

CONFIDENCE HELPS TO CURE

This of itself is a great help. Then the knowledge that women only see the letters asking for advice and women only assist Mrs. Pinkham in replying makes it easy to be explicit about the little things that define the disease.

MRS. ELIZA THOMAS, of 634 Pine St., Easton, Pa., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I doctored with two of the best doctors in the city for two years and had no relief until I began the use of your remedies. My trouble was ulceration of the womb. I suffered something terrible, could not sleep nights and thought sometimes that death would be such a relief. To-day I am a well woman, able to do my own work, and have not a pain. I used four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three packages of Sanative Wash and cannot thank you enough for the good it did me."

MRS. M. STODDARD, Box 268, Springfield, Minn., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For about four years I was a great sufferer from female troubles. I had backache all of the time, no appetite, pains in stomach, fainting spells, was weak and my system was completely run down. I also had falling of womb so bad that I could scarcely walk across the floor. After taking two bottles of your Vegetable Compound and one box of Lozengers, can say I am cured."

SAVAGES' WORK.

Heads of American and English Officers Cut Off by Treacherous Samoans.

Lieuts. Freeman, and Lansdale and Ensign Monahan, of the Cruiser Philadelphia Among the Killed—Samoans Loss 40 Killed.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., April 13.—Dispatches received here from Apia, Samoa, April 1, say that a party of 105 American and British sailors were forced to retreat to the beach, after having been caught in ambush by about 800 warriors on a German plantation on that date. The expedition was led by Lieut. A. H. Freeman, of the British third-class cruiser Tauranga. Lieut. Freeman and Lieut P. L. Lansdale, of the United States cruiser Philadelphia, and Ensign J. Monahan, of the United States cruiser Philadelphia, were left dead on the field. Ensign Monahan remained to assist Lansdale and was shot in retiring.

Two British and two American sailors were also killed.

The natives engaged were some of Mataafa's warriors. They severed the heads of the British and American officers killed.

Priests of the French mission afterwards brought the heads into Apia. The manager of the German plantation has been arrested and detained on board the Tauranga, on affidavits declaring that he was seen urging the rebels to fight.

In a previous engagement 27 of Mataafa's warriors were killed and there were no casualties among the European forces.

Further advices from Apia, Samoa, say that on the arrival of the British cruiser Tauranga at Apia, the British and American consuls issued a proclamation to give Mataafa a last chance, and that French priests also used their influence, but all efforts failed and the rebels continued their depredations. Property was destroyed and bridges and roads were barricaded. On March 29 the enemy was sighted at Maguigi and machine guns and a seven-pounder were used. The friendlies also attacked the enemy during the latter's retreat, and several rebels were killed or wounded. The friendlies carried one head through Apia, which made Capt. Stuart so furious that he went to the king and threatened to shoot any man found taking heads. The king then issued a proclamation forbidding the practice.

The German consul wrote to Adm. Kautz asking if two great Christian nations approved of this inhuman and barbarious practice against the laws of Christianity and the decree of the supreme court. The admiral replied, agreeing with the consul as to the inhumanity of the practice, and pointed out that had the German consul upheld the decree of the supreme court of January there would have been no bloodshed, that the custom was an old Samoan one, but first made known to the world ten years ago, when the heads of honest German soldiers were cut off by the barbarous Chief Mataafa, whom the representative of the great, Christian nation, Germany, is now supporting."

Expeditions in armed cutters belonging to the Tauranga and Porpoise are doing considerable execution against Mataafa's stronghold's along the coast. The British forces are being assisted by 100 Samoans. About 40 of Mataafa's boats and several villages have been destroyed. In the meantime flying columns are being sent daily along the roads and through the bush.

On April 1 a force of 214 British and Americans and 150 friendlies was surprised in ambush at the German plantation of Vaslelo. The rebel force opened fire on the rear, left flank and front of the Anglo-American force. The friendlies bolted, but the marines and bluejackets stood their ground splendidly, Americans and British firing shoulder to shoulder.

The Colt automatic gun with the landing party became jammed, and the Americans and British were practically at the mercy of the rebels. But "retreat" was sounded three times before the marines and bluejackets retired.

Lieut. Angel H. Freeman, first lieutenant of the Tauranga, who was in command of the allied force, was shot through the heart.

Lieut. Philip Lanhorn Lansdale, of the United States cruiser Philadelphia, had his leg shattered while endeavoring to fix the jammed gun.

Seaman Hunt, of the British cruiser Porpoise, had an extraordinary escape. He remained with Lieut. Lansdale until clubbed over the head and knocked senseless. The bluejacket revived as the natives were cutting off his right ear and were turning him over in order to cut off his left ear. At this juncture a shell from the British cruiser Royalist burst on the battlefield, scaring the rebels, and Hunt succeeded in escaping to the beach, although severely stabbed in one foot.

The same night the friendlies found the bodies of all the officers, headless. The bodies were buried with all honors at Mulinun on Easter Sunday. Their heads were subsequently brought in by some French priests and the graves were reopened and the heads buried with the bodies.

Lieuts. Freeman and Lansdale were capable and popular officers. The former was single and the latter was married in June.

The officers who returned are Lieut. George E. Cave, of the Porpoise, and Lieut. C. M. Perkins, of the Philadelphia. All behaved splendidly. Lieut. Cave took command of the retreat.

Capt. Stirdee, of the Porpoise, was away on an expedition with his cruiser, and Gaunt's brigade was also absent on duty.

The loss of the enemy is not known, but probably 50 of the rebels were killed and many were wounded. The bodies of three rebels were found near where Lieut. Lansdale and Ensign Monahan, of the Philadelphia, were killed. The priests buried 38 rebels and much blood was seen on the road over which the Mataafans had been dragging their dead and wounded. There were also pools of blood behind the cocoanut trees, the bullets from the American and British rifles going right through thick trees and killing men hiding behind them. Some of the rebels fired from the tops of cocoanut palms.

The rebels opened fire near the town Tuesday evening.

It is now proposed to summon another war ship, to distribute more arms among the friendlies and to import additional friendlies from Tutulea. It is also suggested that troops might be obtained from New Zealand or Sydney, N. S. W.

If a sufficient quantity of arms could be obtained about 2,000 friendlies could be used against the Mataafans. But they are not brave and have not shown fighting qualities, excepting those with Gaunt's brigade, and that force may not accomplish much.

Adm. Kautz, Capt. E. White, of the Philadelphia, and the American officers generally have earned golden opinions, as have Capts. Stuart and Sturdee, of the British navy. They are doing everything possible and everyone recognizes that better men could not be handling the situation.

The Samoans say that Mataafa on three occasions had resolved to surrender, but the German consul, Herr Rose, advised him not to do so and he now says he will never give in, but will fight to the death.

There is constant fighting with the natives around Apia, and the life of no European in the islands is safe.

Lieut. Phillip Lanhorn Lansdale was born in the District of Columbia, February 15, 1868, and entered the naval academy June 6, 1873. He graduated in 1878 and was promoted ensign in 1881, and after duty at the Washington navy yard, was transferred to the Philadelphia in June, 1890. He was made lieutenant, junior grade, in 1893. He was in charge of the caravals at the World's fair in Chicago, and after receiving his full lieutenancy was a short time on the battle ship Massachusetts.

Ensign John B. Monahan was appointed to the naval academy as a cadet from the state of Washington, entering Annapolis on September 7, 1891. He graduated and was made an ensign in July, 1897, being assigned to the Philadelphia, to which vessel he was attached up to the time of his death.

BERLIN, April 13.—In an interview a foreign official, who is authorized to speak for the minister of foreign affairs, said Wednesday:

"We have received several official dispatches saying that the Tanu people for a fortnight past have been raiding and pillaging around Apia, destroying mainly German property. They are armed with weapons furnished by the British.

"We also received to-day a dispatch from the commander of the Falke, confirming the ambuscade and the loss of the Americans and British. The ambuscade may possibly have been on a German plantation, as nearly all the property around Apia is German. The government regrets extremely the occurrence, for which, however, it is in no way to blame. Such hostile encounters must naturally be expected when the Anglo-American action in crowning Tanu has made nine-tenths of the Samoans their enemies. It shows strongly how necessary is the prompt departure of the commission with adequate instructions. Although the German commissioner has not yet been formally appointed he is ready to start for Samoa within half an hour of the three governments clearly defining the mode of operation and the powers of the commission. Why does England needlessly delay agreeing? It is the only way to prevent ceaseless bloodshed in Samoa. Unless the commission starts soon such encounters may reoccur any day.

"Of course, now that fresh blood has been spilled, the excitement of the Americans and British may increase. But Germany is blameless. The same thing happened to our men in 1888. The Samoans also cut off the heads of the German victims then. That is one of the Samoans' pleasant habits. If Adm. Kautz had the power to re-establish peace all might be well. But he needs a much stronger force than now available under his and the British command at Apia to subdue Mataafa and his warlike hosts."

Increased Wages.

LEBANON, Pa., April 13.—The Pennsylvania Bolt and Nut works and the East Lebanon Iron Co. have posted notices of a second increase of ten per cent. in the wages of their employes, to take effect May 1. The Lebanon Manufacturing Co. has increased the wages of its laborers ten per cent.

LEE TO M'KINLEY

Governor of South Dakota Demands Return of Volunteer Regiment.

The South Dakota Volunteers Have Fulfilled Every Obligation They Owe to Their Country and Should Be Returned to Their Homes.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 14.—A special to the Pioneer Press from Pierre, S. D., gives the text of a letter from Gov. Lee, of South Dakota, to President McKinley demanding the return of the South Dakota volunteers from the Philippines. He recites the fact of enlistment to fight for humanity against Spain, declares that auch war has ended and his state feels that "the South Dakota volunteers have fulfilled every obligation which they owe to their country and its flag, and should be allowed to return home." He says: "We view their present or future retention as unconstitutional and a violation of law which called the organization into being, and feel sure that they will not be retained against their will, against the law and against the moral sense of the people of our state without offering some sound reason for so doing."

He knows of no war exigency at the present time, says congress has not declared war against the inhabitants of Luzon and that "the constitution does not permit your excellency nor any commission appointed by your excellency to make a declaration of war."

He declares the present course "repugnant to the fundamental principles of this government, a violation of the declaration of independence, a repudiation of the theory upon which we engaged in the war with Spain, and utterly inconsistent with your excellency's splendid announcement respecting the policy to be pursued toward Cuba."

He is unable to "reconcile the slaughter of our soldiers in the Philippines" with "our code of political ethics or with the tenor of our Christian religion." He speaks of the volunteers as "impressed into a service to the purpose of which is the direct opposite of the motive which caused them to enlist."

THE BOTTOM DROPPED OUT.

A Cave-In in the Great Volcano Near Honolulu—All Attempts to Locate Bottom of Crater Unavailing.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—Passengers on the steamer City of Rio de Janeiro, from Honolulu, state that on March 23 the bottom of the great volcano fell out, followed by great clouds of dust and smoke. Some alarm was felt by the guests of the Volcano house, occasioned by the noise and the frequent landslides which followed, but some of the guests became reassured and started to investigate the phenomenon. A hole 150 feet in diameter showed the extent of the cave-in. All attempts to locate the bottom of the crater were unavailable and some authorities place it at 800 feet below the mouth of the crater. Further developments were awaited with much interest.

THE BIRTH OF JEFFERSON.

The Anniversary Held in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, by the Democratic Club—Oratory and Flowers.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The dinner of the democratic club, in honor of the anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, was held Thursday night at the Metropolitan opera house. Looking from the tiers to the floor of the vast dining hall the tables seemed like great beds of roses. The 32 tables on either side of the speakers' table. Either table was piled with a mass of roses and ferns intertwined. So abundant were the flowers that some of the guests were hardly able to see each other over the floral banks.

Swans and vases of alabaster held flowers; there were cornucopias of horns of plenty filled with flowers and fruit and the scene was set off with ribbons of cardinal silk.

The floor of the auditorium was raised to a level with that of the stage by a temporary floor making one rectangular room of immense size. The tables were set in rows paralleled with Thirty-ninth and Fortieth streets. The guests of honor were at two tables set about under the proceniun arch and at right angles to the other tables. The stage was set with gorgeous palace scene of the court of Lonis XIV. Four great electric chandeliers lighted up the picture.

Conspicuously placed at the west end of the dining hall was the inscription:

JEFFERSON.
1743—1899.
Democratic Club.

This was composed of incandescent lights. It surrounded a picture of Thomas Jefferson.

Tall silver condlabara with shades harmonizing with the floral effect were on all the tables.

The guests began to arrive at 6 o'clock, but the dinner did not begin for an hour and a half after that.

There were fully 300 more guests than the 1,500 planned for, but all found seats. This is said to be the largest number ever accommodated at a banquet in the history of the city. The great dinner to President McKinley at the Waldorf Astoria was served to only 900.

Speeches were made by Richard Croker, Perry Belmont, Augustus Van Wyck, and others.

The Balk Rule Changed.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—During the practice games of the various baseball clubs it was found that the balk rule adopted by the national league was unsatisfactory and many complaints were made in regard to it. The old rule, in relation to the bases, provided that a motion made by the pitcher to throw to any base without delivering the ball should be a balk. A change has been adopted to make the rule apply to first base only.

The Coal Combine a Go.

SCENE OF THE FIGHTING BY GEN. LAWTON'S ARMY.

WOMAN IN BLACK

Mrs. Eckroate Heard the Shots and Saw Mrs. George Fire Them.

The Person Then Walked Away to a Vacant Lot Through Which the Person Ran—The Person Identified as the Woman Now on Trial.

CANTON, O., April 15.—Additional cross examination of Mrs. Mary Finley opened Friday's proceedings in the trial of Mrs. George for the murder of James D. Saxton. This was chiefly directed toward proving that the witness has been coached for her direct testimony. Mrs. Mary Nauman related conversations of Mrs. George. In one, the latter told of having kept Saxton from entering the Althouse home by pointing a pistol and making him come away with her. Mrs. George asked Saxton if he was ready to die then, and said she could have killed him then, but wanted her husband, Mr. George, to get some of his money first. She also detailed other threats made by Mrs. George.

Mrs. McAllister related what Mrs. George said of her grievances against Saxton. John L. Jackson, a colored janitor, testified that Mrs. George often came to him at the block where he worked and said to him she would kill Saxton if he did not settle with her and quit going with Mrs. Althouse.

CANTON, O., April 17.—The Mrs. George trial opened Saturday morning with Miss Mattie Grimes on the stand for cross examination. She explained that she especially observed Mrs. George's flushed face when she passed her because she (the witness) had heard of Saxton's death and had been told of some of the relations between Saxton and Mrs. George.

Policeman E. E. Willis was called to say that Mayor Rice was Mrs. George's counsel the morning after the arrest, but evidence was excluded. Mrs. Oberlin, with whom Mrs. George roomed, described Mrs. George's appearance and dress when she left the house the morning of Saxton's death.

Mrs. Christina Eckroate presented startling testimony. She testified to going to her window on the night of the murder after hearing two shots, and to seeing a person bend forward and fire two shots towards the ground and then walk away to a vacant lot through which the person ran. She identified the person as Mrs. George. She had previously often noticed a woman parading up and down the walk in front of the Althouse residence whom she learned to know was Mrs. George after peace proceedings had been commenced by Mrs. Althouse.

Mrs. Eckroate is the first witness examined either in this hearing or in any of the preliminary proceedings who claimed to recognize the "person in black."

There had been some gossip about a "surprise eye witness" to be introduced.

In cross-examination the defense sought to show that the witness did not know Mrs. George well enough to identify her and that the street was too dark for any one to recognize a person across the street.

Mrs. Eckroate is passed middle life and the mother of grown children. The family is humble, but respected by those who know them. On the stand Mrs. Eckroate talked directly on the subjects asked her.

She showed no unwillingness to answer the defense as readily as the state. She did, however, show indications that she did not comprehend all of the language and questions addressed to her.

GEN. LAWTON'S EXPEDITION.

It Was Ordered to Return to Manila and the Towns Taken From the Insurgents Were Evacuated.

MANILA, Philippine Islands, April 17.—Maj. Gen. Lawton is returning with his expedition to Manila, by order of Gen. Otis, after evacuating the towns of Paete, Longos, Lumban, Pa Gasajan and Santa Cruz, from which the rebels had been driven.

Gen. Lawton's troops are needed in the movement north of Manila and Laguna de Bay will be left to the insurgents until the rainy season, when the water will be higher, thus enabling the army gunboats to get into the rivers. The launches captured from the insurgents are to be returned to their former owners in Manila. Gen. Lawton said in an interview:

"With the force I have there is no doubt I could go through the whole island, but if a government is to be established it will be necessary to garrison all the towns. It would take 100,000 men to pacify the islands. I regret the necessity of abandoning the captured territory."

Five Men Badly Injured.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 17.—By the falling of an elevator used on a building scaffold on the Fahy block, in this city, Saturday, five men were precipitated to the ground, a distance of 40 feet.

CHATHAM, N. B., April 17.—The county almshouse was burned early Saturday morning. Four of the inmates, aged people, were burned to death. A number of others were severely injured.

WERE LED INTO AN AMBUSH.

Five Men of the North Dakota Regiment Were Killed and Two Wounded, One Dying Shortly Afterward.

MANILA, April 13.—Starting in easterly direction along the road to Pansangha a party of 60 sharpshooters under Lieut. Southern, of the Washington regiment, came upon a trench across the road about a mile out of Santa Cruz. Lieut. Southern was wounded.

The Americans then advanced with the mounted guns and the 14th infantry battalions in the center, Linek's battalion of the 1st Idaho on the right and Fraine's battalion of the North Dakota infantry on the left, both flanking. The trench was carried without loss to the Americans.

Pansangha was found deserted.

Four monuments on the border of the village celebrate the proclamation of Filipino independence, issued last year and glorify "Aguinaldo, the liberator."

The troops on entering the abandoned houses found them in perfect order. A few guerilla shots were exchanged, and one member of the 14th regiment was shot in the leg by his comrades who were aiming at a Cariboo. One Filipino was killed and five were wounded in the encounter beyond Tongas. This was an ambush. Eight men of the North Dakota regiment moving in single file through the woods received a volley from a clump of bushes about 50 feet away. Only one got off unhurt. He dragged a comrade, with four bullets in his body, to the main force and then led the troops back to the spot of attack. The Filipinos were easily scattered.

Additional Filipino dead found north of Santa Cruz swell the number of the enemy killed on Monday to 150, including Paolo Aguirre, one of the leaders, and 12 officers.

According to the statement of some of the prisoners, the Filipinos drove a 100 Spanish prisoners and 12 priests into Santa Cruz at the point of the bayonet on Sunday night. Four other priests died of starvation.

It appears that the Filipino force at Santa Cruz consisted of 300 rifles and 1,000 bolos. As he lacks sufficient troops for garrisoning, Gen. Lawton will withdraw from the towns entered. Not a house has been burned.

It is hoped that this respect for property will convince the natives of the good intentions of the Americans.

At Pansangha a woman was found hidden in a basket and a youth buried in mud, except is to his head. Both were given food and money.

All non-combatants are released with American proclamations to be distributed to their friends.

Lieut. Brooke has brought to Manila one of the captured steamers with five of the American dead, ten of the wounded and 50 who were sick. Most of the sick attribute their disorders to the Cuban campaign. Through the treachery or ignorance of the Filipinos' pilot the steamer was stranded a whole day, the provisions failed and there was some suffering on that score.

Gen. Lawton is marching north, along the road between the hills and the lake, with the gunboats Napidan and Laguna de Bay abreast of his troops. The enemy is retreating northward.

On Wednesday the troops crossed the Paghanjan and concentrated at Lambun, at the mouth of the river. After leaving two companies of the 14th regiment to guard the entrance of the river, the troops marched to Longas and found it deserted. Furniture which had been dropped in the flight of the natives was scattered along the trails leading into the hills.

Maj. Weisenberger's sharpshooters were sent toward Paetos Ancontonia in the afternoon. They ran upon a nest of rebels in some thick bushes, which afforded a splendid cover. Five men of the North Dakota regiment were killed and two were wounded, two of the former dying after having been brought to Longas church, where Father McKinnon administered the sacrament to them.

The main body of the American troops, while at dinner in Longas, heard the firing and advanced to the support of the sharpshooters. A scout from a hill saw the little fight and many white coats running into the hills. The Laguna de Bay, at the beginning of the fight, shelled the hills, making them too hot for the enemy.

The Americans entered San Antonio at sunset without meeting with any resistance. Twenty unarmed prisoners, bearing copies of the proclamation of the United States Philippine commission, which they had somehow secured, were afterward released and sent outside our lines with bundles of proclamations to distribute.

The 4th cavalry is guarding Santa Cruz.

Secretary Alger Home.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—A dispatch has been received at the war department from Secretary Alger, who has just arrived at Ft. Monroe, saying that he will reach Washington Friday afternoon. It has been expected that the secretary would go to New York, but he changed his mind since leaving San Juan.

Honor Awaiting Gen. Wheeler.

CHICAGO, April 15.—A Washington special says Gen. Wheeler will soon be made military governor of Manila.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., April 12.—The Journal prints the following:

"Editor Milwaukee Journal—Dear Sir: I am just in receipt of your favor of March 22, in which you say:

"It is asserted here that many Democrats who voted for McKinley in 1896 feel that they were trifled with by the Republicans, and are likely to vote the Democratic ticket again at the next Presidential campaign, though they may not be in full accord with the platform."

"And ask:

"What, in your opinion, would be the wise course to pursue toward these people? In what way may their reaffiliation with the party be best facilitated?"

"In reply, would say that I have no authority to speak for the Democratic party, and, in what I say, express only my own opinion. I am satisfied that you are correct in saying that many of the Democrats who voted for McKinley are disappointed with the Republican administration and will vote the Democratic ticket in the future. I think that the same statement could be made in regard to many of those who voted the Palmer and Buckner ticket. The doors of the party are always open to receive new additions, whether they be new convert or former members of the party.

"To err is human, and those who erred in 1896 have only to admit it and subscribe to the party creed in order to be taken back into the party. They may dissent from some portions of the platform, as some did in 1896, and yet subscribe to the platform as a whole.

"I have found among the Democrats no hostility toward those who wish to return, provided they recognize that the Democratic party has now a platform that is satisfactory to the Democrats. A Democrat who comes back merely for the purpose of fighting against the reaffirmation of the Chicago platform will not find the party congenial. Those who recognize that they erred in 1896 are not likely to insist upon prominence in the party management until they have time to bring forth words meet for repentance. If they do aspire to prominence they will have to convince their associates of the sincerity of their purpose to aid the party in its fight against plutocracy.

"The only unwelcome guests are those who deserted in 1896 and still claim to be better Democrats than those who remained with the party, and who demand the surrender of the Chicago platform as the price of their return. Only those who are willing to stand upon the last platform ought to have a part in the writing of the next platform. Yours truly.

"WILLIAM J. BRYAN."

Four picked mare mules, average weight 1,500 lbs., were recently sold in Kansas City for $[illegible].

In Montgomery county an agent of a St. Louis manufactory has bought over two million pounds of last year's tobacco crop.

R. B. Hutchcraft purchased Monday in Cynthiana, from nine to ten thousand bushels of wheat from Harrison county farmers at 64c to 65c.—Paris Kentuckian.

There are more empty tobacco barns than was ever known at this time of the year since tobacco-growing has been an important industry in the history of Bath county.—Outlook.

Cattle have not done well this winter unless they were stall fed. When it was not bitterly cold it was wet and cattle never do well when their food is wet and easily gets muddy.

A muddy barnyard makes life harder for the farmer and for his help; neither does it help the reputation of the farmer. Drain it and keep it clean. At least let the manure be covered or regularly hauled out.

Sheep feeders have been getting about as much for lambs as for sheep a year older, and the lamb trade has developed wonderfully. A revolution upon this basis seems to be working its way through the live stock trade entire. It at least insures a quicker return on the money invested.

One of the very best crops a farmer can grow is the artichoke, writes H. B. Hillyer, in Texas Stock and Farm. It is splendid hog feed. It is easy to grow. From 500 to 1,000 bushels per acre have been grown. The hogs will harvest it. Once planted it is there for life. Every man owning a farm ought to have his artichoke patch. Strange, indeed, it is so little known, and so few farmers avail themselves of this valuable aid to cheap bacon.

Of late years an effort has been made to introduce the cultivation of tobacco in Canada on a large scale. It is said nearly 10,000,000 pounds were grown in 1898. A deputation of the growers waited upon Sir William Macdonald and urged him to use Canadian grown tobacco in his great factories, but he peremptorily declined. Canadian tobacco, like the German product, looks well enough, but is devoid of flavor and the other qualities required to make a good "chew."—Courier-Journal.

County Clerk Morgan, of Bedford, has the Krag-Jorgensen gun which his brother Harry brought from Porto Rico. The gun is guaranteed to the Government to shoot accurately 1,800 yards, but it will shoot three or four miles. Mr. Morgan, with several others, tested the shooting qualities of this death-dealer the other day. They went down in a valley back of Bedford and fired at a black locust tree six feet in circumference, the ball going through, struck a rock on the side of the hill, a glancing lick and went 2 or 3 feet in the ground. It was dug out and found to be as perfect as when put in the gun. It was also fired at a solid sycamore tree much larger than the locust with the same result.—Milton News.

The proclamation to the Filipinos will probably have to be read to them through a megaphone.—Pittsburg News.

CROP AND STOCK.

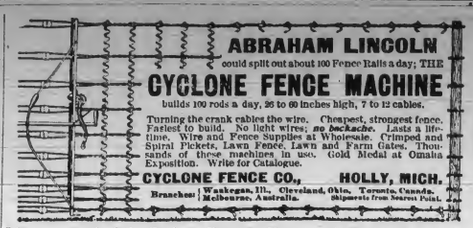
A Washington county farmer sold 1,125 bushels of orchard grass seed at 65c delivered on the cars.

S. C. Carpenter, of Millersburg, sold to Capt. Fee, of New Orleans, a handsome pair of carriage horses for $1,500.

The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association will have this year the largest number of entries since 1893, there being 1093, which closed March 15.

A hog weighing 1,600 pounds and when dressed 1,350 pounds, was killed at New York. It measured nine feet from the tip end of its nose to the end of its tail; was two and a half feet across the hams and six feet in girth.

About this time of the year the poultry fever attacks about two thirds of the rural population, and they start in to get rich in one season's operations. One good thing about it is that it's a fever that only requires a small amount of money and some time to abate.



E. W. Lee, who returned from Atlanta Saturday, says that fewer mules were sold in the South this winter than for several years. This was due to the very low price of cotton. The price was so low, in fact, that much cotton was actually not gathered.—Danville Advocate.

Less corn will be put in this spring than for years, partly because of the wet weather and partly because of the determination of many farmers to raising something more profitable. They claim that as it can most always be bought in the fall at $1.25 per barrel, it is cheaper to buy than to raise.—Stanford Journal.

Draft horses are in eager demand again. They seem to be taken in considerable numbers for export to Germany. A London buyer for the English market bought coach horses at Indianapolis a few weeks ago at prices ranging from $200 to $550. Common horses for service on farms can be bought at very low prices.

Conditions are such now that it will certainly be four or five years before a supply of horses can be prepared for market sufficient to meet the demand and reduce prices, and it seems probable that it will take even longer. In the mean time there is a very reasonable prospect of a distinct advance in market values of all horses belonging to any of the saleable classes.

A locust grove makes a profitable addition to any farm. The trees makes a lasting post, and it will enrich land, adding nitrogen to the soil. Trees can be grown from the seed, or young shoots can be gathered by the car load from old thickets, and if they have a small percentage of roots, they will start off in the spring. They should be planted rather thick, so as to grow tall and straight and free from heavy limbs.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1899. NO. 27.

THE Filipinos do not appear to be as near whipped as they were a few weeks ago.

THE proposed electric railway down the Ohio river has brought on a newspaper war between Rising Sun and Aurora.

GOV. BRADLEY gave Dr. Hunter another roast at the Louisville convention, last week. The preach in the Republican party in Kentucky is getting wider.

THE Pennsylvania Legislature adjourned without being able to elect a United States Senator. The G. O. P. is getting in a bad shape in States other than Kentucky.

IT is said that Thos. B. Reed has concluded that it is time for him to retire from public life and engage in something to make a living, and with that in view he will begin the practice of law.

THE annual meeting of the Kentucky Press Association will be held at Henderson on July 11 and 12. From that city a junketing trip will be made to Petoskey, Mich., via Chicago, the entire outing occupying about a week.

IN an interview Senator Teller declares in favor of maintaining the silver Republican organization throughout the country. He says the silver Republicans must unite with Democrats next year in support of the Chicago platform. He considers it useless to look for anything from McKinley Republicans.

A LOUISVILLE paper which says it will not support Bryan in 1900 if nominated, is trying to dictate to the Democrats of Kentucky who they shall nominate for Governor. The Democrats will not recognize the Post in their councils, and the candidate whose cause it has espoused has already suffered because of its effort to assist him.

M. S. QUAY was acquitted, last week, of the charge of conspiring to defraud the State of Pennsylvania, and within about fifteen minutes after the rendering of the verdict the Governor of the State had appointed him to fill the vacancy in the office of United States Senator, occasioned by the failure of the Legislature to elect.

ABOUT the stormiest convention held in Kentucky for a long time was that held by the Republicans in Louisville, last week, to nominate a candidate for the Second Railroad Commissioner's District. Gov. Bradley was on hand and headed the Bradley faction in that district, making it "a hot old time in the convention," still it was in the interest of harmony that fails to harmonize.

A SHARP reprimand to the military censor at Manila was sent by the War Department, because the remarks of Gen. Lawton about 100,000 men being needed in the Philippines to be cabled to this country; it is said that Gen. Shafter also got a hint from the same source that he was doing too much talking about his belief that it would be necessary to kill off half of the Philipinos before we could keep peace on the islands.

The Evening Post would like to see the Democratic ticket elected in November, but it has said over and over again it would not support Goebel; that it would not support McChord; that it would not support Blackburn, and further that it would not support Bryan should he be nominated next year.—Louisville Evening Post.

And the Evening Post, although supporting Mr. Hardin for the Democratic nomination, is not sincere when it says it would like to see the Democratic ticket elected in November. It has no record as a Democratic paper, and brings under suspicion all the Democrats whose cause it espouses.

THE Georgia people have carried lynch law to the extreme. The first negro lynched last week deserved death, but the terrible torture administered to kill him, does not speak well for a civilized people. The negro was guilty of an awful crime, but of what are those guilty, who mutilated his person, tortured him at the stake, and then fought over fragments of their victim's body which they wanted to preserve as souvenirs?

WANTS AN ORAL DISCUSSION.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I am very grateful to you for your kindness in giving space in your paper to the many writers in this theological controversy. I am devoutly thankful to God for the meeting held at Burlington, which gave rise to this controversy, not that I am one of the "Bills," a natural born fighter, but I am one who believes that a fair presentation of the two or more sides of great and important questions will result in good. We had not flattered ourselves with even the belief that our utterances were profound, but that they only expressed simple truths. But whether they were characterized by any depth of thought or not, it seems, by the rumbling of thunder about us that we have caused others to think. The office editor of the Lutheran World virtually acknowledges that he was downed by some of the shots, but what he dislikes most, is having sand rubbed in his eyes after he is down. My esteem ed brother has my sympathy, for no one can see well or write well with sand in his eyes, and from the way he writes it is evident that something has obscured his usually clear vision.

I know the editor of the World so intimately and am so favorably impressed with him that I do not believe he would, under any circumstances, misrepresent anybody, with his eyes open. And yet his article abounds with serious mistakes which puts us and other religious bodies in a false light before the public. With his article before me I will now attempt to review that portion which refers to the communion question, as I take it as an effort to controvert some truths which the writer presented in the Burlington meeting.

I. In defining the position of Baptists on the subject, he says, "The Baptist church says it is the Lord's table and we invite all we think are the Lord's people to partake of it." Will the editor of the World please tell us which Baptist church said that? Remember we have no ecclesiastical head, no conglomeration of little bodies into one great body calling it a church, bnt each church as a body stands upon its own independent foundation. I challenge the brother to furnish proof that any Baptist church in this country, any association or any Baptist convention ever laid down such a platform as he represented. We utterly repudiate this and I ask the brother in all kindness to furnish his proof or to retract his statement. I would pay but little attention to this accusation if reading between the lines was not so plain. It is an historical fact that Baptists have ever been spoken against—that they are narrow, bigoted and selfish. I have always thought that this opinion concerning us was based upon ignorance of our position, and the article before me confirms this belief of mine. It is well known by Bro. L. and the Pedo-Baptist world that our invitations to the Lord's table extend no further than our own Baptist churches. Now, assuming for us "that we invite all we think are the Lord's people," he makes us say that no Christians are to be found outside the Baptist churches, while the fact is, we recognize Christians in all the denominations. We are even so liberal that we think, possible that some of the Lord's people may not be members of any church, notwithstanding the fact that they were not sprinkled when babies, nor immersed after they grew up. My parents are members of the Lutheran church, under the pastoral care of Bro. Lentz. Having known them for a life time, I can testify that they are conscientious Christians. Nearly all of my ancestors were Lutherans and a more godly set of people could not be found than they. I was converted in a Presbyterian meeting, and recognize in them a Christian ministry and largely a Christian constituancy. So in reference to all the denominations. Our reasons, therefore, for not inviting them to the Lord's table is not that we unchristianize them. All of these facts I clearly set forth in my paper read at the Burlington meeting. I will not ask for space to give them here, but will furnish them to all doubting Thomases on application to me.

II. In the reflections of the World's editor, he seriously protests against "strange omissions," but is charitable enough to believe we "meant no injury." He says, "mention was made of transubstantiation, consubstantiation and the symbolic view held by Baptists." Then he raises the question, "why is nothing said about the Calvanistic view held by the the great body of the Reformed churches of which the very large and influential Presbyterian church is the most prominent?" Now, I confess that I thought I was giving the Presbyterian view when I gave the symbolic view. In giving this view I said, that Baptists are not alone in holding the symbolic view, but that we hold it in common with most of the leading evangelical denominations. I certainly included the Presbyterians, though I did not personate them. But, Bro. Lentz says, "very few of the Reformed churches accept the symbolic view of Zwingle." Of course, he means to say that the Presbyterians, in particular, reject the symbolic view. In investigating this subject I labored under the disadvantage of not having in my library any Lutheran authority on the Presbyterian view, and had to content myself with what Presbyterian authority I had at my command. My favorite commentary is Dr. Albert Barns on the New Testament. I have it in eleven volumes. In vol. 1, page 300, commenting on Matt. 26:26, "This is my body," he says, "This represents my body" * * * "It is not meant that his body would be literally broken as the bread was, but that the bread would be a significant emblem or symbol to call to their remembrance his sufferings." Then the learned Dr. goes on to cite many symbolic scriptures, (the identical passages that I quoted in my paper) to substantiate his symbolic view of the communion. While I stand ready to defend all the statements made in my paper, I will now turn this part of the fight over to Bro. Lentz and his Presbyterian friends. Let it be remembered that Dr. Barnes was a leading Presbyterian scholar and acknowledged authority by his denomination. It is clear therefore, that either Bro. Lentz or Dr. Barnes has misrepresented the Presbyterian view. We would be pleased however, in our ignorance, to be informed by Lutheran authority, what the Presbyterian view is.

III. Complaint is made in the article before me, because the Lutheran view is not mentioned. It is evident that the brother's eyes were bothering him here, for a little further on he says that consubstantiation was mentioned and adds, "Possibly enough some reckless writer has caused the good brother to believe that Lutherans teach consubstantiation; but this I would very positively deny." Under the head, nature of the Lord's Supper, I discussed transubstantiation and gave it as the Catholic view. I also discussed consubstantiation and gave it as the Lutheran view. But this the brother positively repudiates. Now, the "reckless writers," who led me to believe the statements I made, were the authors of the "Augsburg Confession," the compilers of our leading encyclopedias and Dr. Noah Webster, the great English lexicographer. The Lutheran church teaches that "The Augsburg Confession rightly interpreted is in accord with the Divine Word." Article X of the Confession says, "In regard to the Lord's Supper, they (the Lutherans) teach that the body and blood of Christ are truly present and are dispensed to the communicants in the Lord's Supper. And they (the Lutherans) disapprove those who teach otherwise." Now, let us write just under this quotation, Webster's definition of consubstantiation, "The union of the body of our blessed Saviour with the sacramental element." Then Webster adds, "The Lutherans maintain that, after consecration of the elements, the body and blood of Christ are substantially present with the substance of the bread and wine, which is called consubstantiation or impanation." Webster takes this definition from the encyclopedia. My brother positively denies what Mr. Webster says, yet I have never heard of the great body of Lutherans aggregating "five, or possibly ten times the number of Baptists in the world," repudiating Mr. Webster as a standard, or calling in question the statements of the encyclopedia. I think the only difficulty is, Bro. L. has not looked into his dictionary to ascertain the meaning of consubstantiation. But I hope, under the treatment of a good occulist he may soon be able to read and interpret the meaning of terms.

In conclusion I will say that if any desire to controvert our principles let them put their heads together, select their best man and we will find a man to meet him in an oral discussion of the issues between us.

This I write in the best of spirits and to show that we are sincere in the belief of what we advocate and are ready to stand by it. I hope that this will be the last time that I may feel called upon to express myself through the public press.

GOOD ROADS.

[Owen Lawson]

The widespread and rapidly growing interest in improved highways among all classes of citizens is only one more link in the chain of evidence that Kentuckians are always alive, not only to their personal comfort, but to their material interests as well. While they enjoy the exhilaration of driving a fast trotter over smooth, hard roads they realize that the same roads enable the farmer to reach his market at less than one-fifth the expense entailed by the old mud roads, and the consideration that touches the pocket is the one that rules the world. And this financial consideration, in its relation to highway conditions, does not more closely affect the farmer than other citizens. Manufacturers, merchants, farmers, professional men of every class, and, in fact, all public spirited individuals who consider the welfare of their state and community, as well as their personal interests, realize that reduced cost of transportation adds to the wealth of the producer and enables him to enjoy many luxuries which under reversed conditions are denied him. Nor is financial gain the only advantage to be derived from good roads, for ease of communication promotes education and provides opportunities for social intercourse, which in less favored localities can be enjoyed only to a limited extent.

In referring to the "producer" as a beneficiary of good roads it is not intended that the term should apply to the farmer alone, for the manufacturer and his employe, as factors in the production of wealth are quite as important as the agriculturalist, and the same is true in some degree of every individual who aids in the distribution of the products required by the consumer. It must be admitted that every person is a consumer, and it is apparent that, with the exception of a very small proportion of the population, all Americans are producers. The farmer and the city dweller are mutually dependent, each upon the other, for supplies. Either without the other must be deprived of many comforts which have now become necessities, and, on the other hand, whatever contributes to the welfare of one must prove beneficial to the other. This fact is more forcibly illustrated in connection with the public highways than in any other way, for the same road which makes it possible for the farmer to reach his market cheaply, also enables the merchant and manufacturer to distribute their products at small expense, and each is benefitted either in reduced expenses or in lower cost of goods.

Since it is so plain that all classes are benefitted by good roads, it should be equally plain that the cost of constructing the roads should be equitably distributed among all who reap the benefits. This proposition seems so reasonable that it cannot be successfully assailed, and the old theory that the farmer is the sole beneficiary of good roads, and must therefore construct them entirely at his own expense, is irreparably exploded. The benefits arising from improved highways being widely distributed, it naturally follows that the expense incurred in their construction should be borne in an equitable proportion by every citizen, and that any tax intended to defray such expense should be general, and levied upon personal and city property as well as upon farm lands and improvements. This idea is neither new nor revolutionary in principle, but is the crystallization of opinion following years of study on the part of our most thoughtful and progressive people. The demand for better roads has become so general throughout Kentucky that there is good reason for believing that the next session of the legislature will provide some means of relief from the burdens imposed by the existing road laws, and many candidates are basing their claims for votes upon their advocacy of good roads. Few of them, however, seem to have any definite idea of the provisions which they would embody in the desired law, and in this connection it might be well for them to study the results produced by similar legislation in other states.

The road law now in force in New Jersey furnishes probably the best illustration of the effect of modern methods as applied to the construction and maintenance of public highways. Under this law the abutting property pays ten per cent of the cost of construction, while the state pays one-third and the county the remainder. These proportions would, of course, vary in different states, because of local conditions, but the principle of distributing the expense is applicable to every state. It would be unjust to require the state to pay the entire expense. The county, which furnishes nearly all the traffic passing over the road, should contribute a generous share and the abutting property being enhanced in value by the existence of the road, should bear a fair proportion. In fact, the increased selling value of farm lands in New Jersey has so far exceeded the cost of the roads as to prove a source of unexpected profit to the owners, while the easy and inexpensive means of reaching the markets at all seasons adds materially to the income derived from farm products. So universally popular is the law that more petitions for new roads are filed than can be granted promptly, and almost the entire time of the Highway Commissioner is occupied in hearing the pleas of farmers who urge immediate consideration of their claims. The New Jersey law, because of the length of time it has been in operation, offers the best opportunity to those who desire to acquaint themselves with the merits of the state aid system, though the Higbie-Armstrong law in New York, and the Hamilton road law in Pennsylvania, more recently enacted, are operating to the entire satisfaction of the citizens of those states.

CROP AND STOCK.

After a hog weighs 200 pounds he becomes too expensive for profit, and, moreover, at this weight brings his best price. He is a pig up to 140 pounds, and will make his best gains upon milk and other dairy refuse.

The Soy bean, (incorrectly termed Soja bean) which is gradually coming into cultivation in this country as a stock food, has been used as a food for man in Japan and China for hundreds if not thousands of years.

Sheep are especially adapted to a farm that has run down and is infested with weeds. They require less capital than any other kind of live stock, and the farmer who cannot buy sheep cannot go into any kind of stock raising. A small flock that is well cared for will eat the weeds that are, so hurtful to the cultivated crops and will restore much of the fertility that has been wasted by a bad system of farming.

While cotton may always remain the staple crop of the South, as is claimed by many who are wedded to their idols, it will not always be the only money crop, for already the low price of cotton has caused many farmers to turn their attention to live stock, and wornout lands will soon be restored to their primitive vigor by this means. Live stock growing is the South's greatest hope for relief from the bondage of over-production of cotton.

The breeding of fine horses, which has been largely neglected for a number of years, is receiving a wonderful impetus this season. Farmers have commenced to realize that the world of commerce cannot be moved without good horses, and the increasing domestic consumption and foreign demand must advance the price of horses suitable for the market. Many counties are commencing to take active interest in the subject and in many local organizations are formed for the purpose of purchasing prime breeding animals. This is a movement in the right direction, as the day for scrub stock is past.

The beautiful white laurel which will soon be in blossom, is not only a deadly poison to sheep but is poisonous to cattle, horses and even goats. Even cases of human poisoning may occur indirectly from eating the meat of animals which have eaten this shrub. Its poisonous qualities are shown in experiments which have been made with chickens which were fed laurel leaves and then killed. Their meat, well boiled and well cleansed, was fed to cats with nearly fatal results. Cases have been known of children becoming poisoned through eating the young laurel shoots mistaking them for wintergreen.

IT now looks like Sam Jones, who bolted a Republican convention and was elected, as an independent candidate, mayor of one of the principal cities in Ohio, is going to be hard to down as a Republican candidate for Governor of the Buckeye State.

A LESSON FROM LIFE.

Dr. Talmage Eulogizes the Late Justice Stephen J. Field.

Religious Training Laid the Foundation of His Character — The Great Divine's Tribute to a Departed Friend.

(Copyright, Louis Klopsch, 1899.)

Washington, April 23.

One of the most notable characters of our time is the subject of Dr. Talmage's discourse, and the lessons drawn are inspiring. Text, 2 Samuel, 3:38: "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?"

Here is a pluried catafalque, followed by King David and a funeral oration which he delivers at the tomb. Concerning Abner, the great, David weeps out the text. More appropriately than when orighally uttered we may now utter this resounding lamentation: "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?"

It was 30 minutes after six, the exact hour of the sunset of the Sabbath day, and while the evening lights were being kindled, that the soul of Stephen J. Field, the lawyer, the judge, the patriot, the Christian, ascended.

Our departed friend came forth a boy from a minister's home in New England. He knelt with father and mother at morning and evening prayer, learned from maternal lips lessons of piety which lasted him and controlled him amid all the varied and exciting scenes of a lifetime and helped him to die in peace an octogenarian. Blot out from American history the names of those ministers' sons who have done honor to judicial bench and commercial circle and national legislature and presidential chair, and you would obliterate many of the grandest chapters of that history. It is no small advantage to have started from a home where God is honored and the subject of a world's emancipation from sin and sorrow is under constant discussion. The Ten Commandments, which are the foundation of all good law—Roman law, German law, English law, American law—are the best foundation upon which to build character, and those which the boy, Stephen J. Field, so often heard in the parsonage at Stockbridge were his guidance when, a half century after, as a gowned justice of the supreme court of the United States, he unrolled his opinions. Bibles, hymn books, catechisms, family prayers, atmosphere sanctified, and good surroundings for boys and girls to start from, and if our laxer ideas of religion and Sabbath days and home training produce us splendid men and women as the much-derided Puritanic Sabbath and Puritanic teachings have produced it will be a matter of congratulation and thanksgiving.

Do not pass by the fact that I have not yet seen emphasized that Stephen J. Field was a minister's son. Notwithstanding that there are conspicuous exceptions to the rule—and the exceptions have built up a stereotyped defamation on the subject—statistics plain and undeniable prove that a larger proportion of ministers' sons turn out well than are to be found in any other genealogical table. Let all the parsonages of all denominations of Christians where children are growing up take the consolation. See the star of hope pointing down to that manger!

Notice also that our departed friend was a member of a royal family. There were no crowns or scepters or thrones in that ancestral line, but the family of the Fields, like the family of the New York Primes, like the family of the Princeton Alexanders, like a score of families that I might mention, if it were best to mention them, were "the children of the King," and had put on them honors brighter than crowns and wielded influence longer and wider than scepters. That family of Fields traces an honorable lineage back 800 years to Hubertus de la Feld, confessor of William the Conqueror. Let us thank God for such families, generation after generation on the side of that which is right and good.

While all parents cannot aspire to have such conspicuous households as the one the name of whose son we now celebrate, all parents may by fidelity in prayer and holy example have their sons and daughters become kings and queens unto God, to reign forever and ever.

Let young men beware lest they by their behavior blot such family records with some misdeed. We can all think of households the names of which meant everything honorable and consecrated for a long while, but by the deed of one son sacrificed, disgraced and blasted. Look out how you rob your consecrated ancestry of the name they handed to you unsullied! Better as trustee to that name add something worthy. Do something to honor the old homestead, whether a mountain cabin or a city mansion or a country parsonage.

Rev. David Dudley Field, though 32 years passed upward, is honored to-day by the Christian life, the service, the death of his son Stephen.

Among the most absorbing books of the Bible is the book of Kings, which again and again illustrates that though piety is not hereditary, the style of parentage has much to do with the style of descendant. It declares of King Abijam: "He walked in all the sins of his father which he had done before him," and of King Azariah: "He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his father Amaziah had done." We owe a debt to those who have gone before in our line as certainly as we have obligations to those who subsequently appear in the household. Not so sacred is your old father's walking staff, which you keep in his memory, or the eyeglasses through which your mother studied the Bible in her old age as the name they bore, the name which you inherited. Keep it bright, I charge you. Keep it suggestive of something elevated in character. Trample not underfoot that which to your father and mother was dearer than life itself. Defend their graves as they defended your cradle.

Notice also that our illustrious friend was great in reasonable and genial dissent. Of the 1,042 opinions he rendered none was more potent or memorable than those rendered while he was in small minority and sometimes in a minority of one. A learned and distinguished lawyer of this country said he would rather be the author of Judge Field's dissenting opinions than to be the author of the constitution of the United States. The tendency is to go with the multitude, to think what others think, to say and do what others do. Sometimes the majority are wrong, and it requires heroes to take the negative, but to do that logically and in good humor requires some elements of make up not often found in judicial dissenters or, indeed, in any class of men.

The Declaration of American Independence was a dissenting opinion. The Free Church of Scotland, under Chalmers and his compeers was a dissenting movement. The Bible itself, Old Testament and New Testament, is a protest against the theories that would have destroyed the world, and is a dissenting as well as a Divinely inspired book. The Decalogue on Sinai repented ten times "Thou shalt not." For ages to come will be quoted from law books in courtrooms Justice Field's magnificent dissenting opinions.

Notice that our ascended friend had such a character as assault and peril alone can develop. He had not come to the soft cushions of the supreme court bench stepping on cloth of gold and saluted all along the line by handclapping of applause. Country personages do not rock their babies in satin-lined cradle or afterward send them out into the world with enough in their hand to purchase place and power. Pastors' salaries in the early part of this century hardly ever reached $700 a year. Economies that sometimes cut into the bone characterized many of the homes of the New England clergymen. The young lawyer of whom we speak today arrived in San Francisco in 1849 with only ten dollars in his pocket. Williamstown college was only introductory to a postgraduate course which our illustrious friend took while administering justice and halting ruffianism amid the mining camps of California. Oh, those "forty-niners," as they were called, through what privations, through what narrow escapes, amid what exposures they moved! Administering and executing law among outlaws never has been an easy undertaking. Among mountaineers, many of whom had no regard for human life; and where the snap of pistol and bang of gun were not unusual responses, required courage of the highest metal.

Behind a dry goods box, surrounded by tallow candles, Judge Field began his judicial career. What exciting scenes he passed through! An infernal machine was handed to him, and inside the lid of the box was pasted his decision in the Pueblo case, the decision that had balked unprincipled speculators. Ten years ago his life would have passed out had not an officer of the law shot down his assailant. It took a long training of hardship and abuse and misinterpretation and threat of violence and flash of assassin's knife to fit him for the high place where he could defy legislatures and congresses and presidents and the world when he knew he was right. Hardship is the grindstone that sharpens intellectual faculties and the sword with which to strike effectively for God and one's country.

Notice also how much our friend did for the honor of the judiciary. What momentous scenes have been witnessed in our United States supreme court, on the bench and before the bench, whether far back it held its sessions in the upper room of the exchange at New York or afterward for ten years in the city hall at Philadelphia or later in the cellar of yonder capitol, the place where for many years the congressional library was kept, a sepulcher where books were buried alive, the hole called by John Randolph "the Cave of Trophonius!" What mighty men stood before that bar pleading in immortal eloquence on questions of national import!

How suggestive the invitation which William Wirt, the great Virginian, wrote his friend inviting him to yonder supreme courtroom: "To-morrow a week will come on the great steamboat question from New York. Emmett and Oakley on one side, Webster and myself on the other. Come down and hear it. Emmett's whole soul is in the case, and he will stretch all his powers. Oakley is said to be one of the finest logicians of the age, as much a Phocion as Emmett is a Themistocles, and Webster is as ambitious as Caesar. He will not be outdone by any man if it is within the compass of his power to avoid it. Come to Washington. It will be a combat worth witnessing." The supreme court has stood so high in England and the United States that the vices of a few who have occupied that important place have not been able to disgrace it, neither the corruption of Francis Bacon, nor the cruelty of Sir George Mackenzie, nor the Sabbath desecration of Lord Castlereagh.

To that highest of all tribunals Abraham Lincoln called our friend, but he lived long enough to honor the supreme court more than it had ever honored him. For more than 34 years he sat in the presence of this nation and of all nations a model judge. Fearlessness, integrity, devotion to principle, characterized him. No bribe ever touched his hand. No profane word ever scalded his tongue. No blemish of wrong ever marred his character. Fully qualified was he to have his name associated in the history of this country with the greatest of the judiciary.

As at 12 o'clock day by day on yonder hill the gavel falls in the supreme courtroom, and it is announced that the chief justice of the United States and the associate justices are about to enter, and all counselors at the bar and all spectators rise to greet them, and the officer with the words: "Oyez, oyez, oyez!" announces that all is now ready for a hearing and exclaims: "God save the United States of America," so I wish we could in imagination gather together those who have occupied that high judicial place in this and other lands, and they might enter, and after the falling of some mighty gavel had demanded attention we could look upon them—Marshall, the giant of American jurisprudence, and John Jay, of whom Daniel Webster said in commemoration: "When the spotless ermine of the judicial robe fell on John Jay, it touched nothing less spotless than itself," and Rutledge and Cushing and Ellsworth and Joseph Storey, called the Walter Scott of common law, and Sir Matthew Hale and Lord Eldon and Lord Tenterden and Sir James McIntosh and Mansfield and the long line of lord chancellors and the great judges from both sides of the sea, and after they had taken their places in our quickened imagination and distinguished cases of centuries which they decided might again be called on, after the assembled nations had ejaculated: "God save the United States of America," "God save Great Britain," "God save the nations."

Ah, how the law honors and sanctifies everything it touches! Natural law. Civil law. Social law. Commercial law. Common law. Moral law. Ecclesiastical law. International law. Oh, the dignity, the impressiveness, the power of law! It is the only thing before which Jehovah bows, but He bows before that, although the law is of His own making. The law! By it worlds swing. By it the fate of centuries is decided. By it all the affairs of time and all the cycles of eternity will be governed. We cannot soar so high, or sink so deep, or reach out so far, or live so long as to escape it. It is the throne on which the Almighty sits. To interpret law, what a profession! What a responsibility! What an execration when the judge be a Lord Jeffreys! What a benediction if he be a Chancellor Kent!

Have you ever realized how much God has honored law in the fact that all up and down the Bible He makes the judge a type of Himself and employs the scene of a courtroom to set forth the grandeurs of the great judgment day? Book of Genesis: "Shall not the judge of all the earth do right?" Book of Deuteronomy: "The Lord shall judge His people." Book of Psalms: "God is judge Himself." Book of the Acts: "Judge of quick and dead." Book of Timothy: "The Lord is the righteous judge." Never will it be understood how God honors judges and courtrooms until the thunderbolt of the last day shall pound the opening of the great assize—the day of trial, the day of clearance, the day of doom, the day of judgment. The law of the case on that occasion will be read, and the indictment of ten counts, which are the Ten Commandments. Justice will plead the case against us, but our glorious advocate will plead in our behalf, for "we have an advocate with the Father—Jesus Christ, the righteous." Then the case will be decided in our clearance, as the Judge announces: "There is now, therefore, no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus." Under the crowded galleries of cloud on that last day and under the swaying upholstery of a burning heavens and while the Alps and Himalayas and Mount Washington are falling flat on their faces we will be able to understand the significance of those Scripture passages which speak of God as Judge and employ the courtroom of earth as typical of the scene when all nations shall be brought into tribunal.

To have done well, all that such a profession could ask of him, and to have made that profession still more honorable by his brilliant and sublime life, is enough for national and international, terrestrial and celestial congratulation. And then to expire beautifully while the prayers of his church were being offered at his bedside, the door of Heaven opening for his entrance as the door of earth closed for his departure, the sob of the earthly farewell caught up into raptures that never die. Yes, he lived and died in the faith of the old-fashioned Christian religion.

Young man, I want to tell you that Justice Field believed in the Bible from lid to lid, a book all true either as doctrine or history, much of it the history of events that neither God nor man approves. Our friend drank the wine of the holy sacrament and ate the bread of which "if a man eat he shall never hunger." He was the up and down, out and out friend of the church of Christ. If there had been anything illogical in our religion he would have scouted it, for he was a logician. If there had been in it anything unreasonable, he would have rejected it, because he was a good reasoner. If there had been in it anything that would not stand research he would have exploded the fallacy, for his life was a life of research. Young men of Washington, young men of America, young men of the round world, a religion that would stand the test of Justice Field's penetrating and all-ransacking intellect must have in it something worthy of your confidence. I tell you now that Christianity has not only the heart of the world on its side, but the brain of the world also. Ye who have tried to represent the religion of the Bible as something pusillanimous, how do you account for the Christian faith of Stephen J. Field, whole shelves of the law library occupied with his magnificent decisions?

And now may the God of all comfort speak to the bereft, especially to her who was the queen of his life, from the day when as a stranger he was shown to her pew in the Episcopal church, to this time of the broken heart. He changed churches, but did not change religions, for the church in which he was born and the church in which he died alike believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, His only begotten Son, and in the communion of saints, and in the life everlasting. Amen.

AN EXPERT SWORDFISH.

The Captive Fish Shows Skill and Judgment in Fencing with a Frenchman.

Hank Carruthers, of Block Island, R. I., an old-time fisherman, last year caught a young swordfish, not more than two feet long, which had refused to leave the dead body of its mother, which he had harpooned after an exciting fight. The young fish survived the transportation to a tidal pond behind the Carruthers homestead, and the entrance to the pond was closed with a net to prevent his escape. Since then Mr. Carruthers has tamed the fish so that it will feed from his hand, and the neighbors had become so accustomed to the sight that they did not notice it any more. Last month a French gentleman engaged boar with the Carruthers family, and he took delight in watching the antics of the graceful fish, which now is more than four feet long. Soon he managed to gain its confidence, and one day lately the neighbors were called in to witness a most arousing spectacle. The French gentleman, who is a well-known New York fencing teacher, M. Tierce, had been trataing the fish furtively. He had made a soft pad of leather, which he adjusted on the tip of his sword like the button on a foil, and the two gave an exhibition bout of fencing which could not be equaled for nicety of action and correctness or dash in the Fencer's club. The fish apparently knows all the rules of the game, and carefully refrains from committing fouls. He cuts and slashes swiftly, and several times he caught M. Tierce unawares and nearly transfixed him. The Frenchman has offered Mr. Carruthers a large sum for the fish, which he wishes to exhibit.—N. Y. Press.

Sunlight and Air.

When the rays of sunlight are allowed to freely play through our houses and around us, the blood flows more easily, digestion is better, the color brighter, and the mind clearer. Compare the children of the sunlight home with those of the shadow and shade, where shutters and blinds are closed to prevent the fading of furniture and carpets. These shade people suffer from two evils—first, from lack of sunshine, the very life and power of all living things; second, from impure, stale air. Fresh outdoor air is rarely allowed to sweep through such houses save once a week—Fridays, by common consent in this country—when in a very useless way the dust is stirred up from the carpets by sweeping, and too often thrown out of doors instead of being at once burned. Houses closed during the summer should have windows reciently tight to keep out dust, but the shutters should be left sufficiently open to admit the sunlight, the great enemy of all bacteria, mold, rust and moths.—Ladies' Home Journal.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT

Swamp-Root, The Great Kidney Restorative and Healer.

ITS MARVELOUS SUCCESS IN ALL KIDNEY, BLADDER AND URIC ACID TROUBLES,

To Prove for Yourself the Wonderful Merits of This Great Discovery, You may Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free By Mail.

What your kidneys need is a gentle, healing, tonic influence, that will soothe their irritability and gently regulate them.

The only thing that will do this is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the ideal Kidney Restorative.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these useful organs.

What more natural?

The Kidneys filter and purify the blood.

When they don't your whole body must suffer.

If you are sick, doctor your kidneys, because as soon as they are well they will help all the other organs to health.

The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may have a sample bottle of this famous kidney remedy sent free by mail, postpaid, by which you may test its virtues for such disorders as kidney, bladder and uric acid diseases, and urinary troubles, obliged to pass water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, constant headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, indigestion, nervousness, skin trouble, anaemia, Bright's disease, neuralgia, rheumatism, bloating, irritability, worn-out feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion.

If your water when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

The great discovery, Swamp-Root, has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all the readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

M'KINLEY IS PROFITABLE.

An Administration That Does Not Interfere with the Trusts.

A number of prominent, but so far as party control goes, uninfluential republicans are promoting a movement toward electing some nominee of their party, other than McKinley, for president in 1900.

Some "back number" republicans such as "Bill" Mason and "Tom" Reed labor under the delusion that intellectually, oratorical gifts, zeal for the public welfare according to their light, and such old-fashioned statesmanship still constitute a valid claim for leadership in the republican party.

To the extent that Mason, Reed and kindred politicians revolt from the "Hannaism" of their party, and hope to defeat Hanna's representative, they will encounter certain disappointment. The position of the republican party is clearly defined and its stand is firmly taken. It is the party of centralization of commerce, wealth and government powers. It is the partisan of trusts and the patron of large aggregations of wealth that are dependent upon the noninterference of the government with their processes of plundering the people.

The republican party of to-dny presents the largest, closest and strongest compact between "business men" that the world has ever known. By "business men" is not meant the legitimate merchants and manufacturers, but that class of men whose minds and souls are wholly swayed by insatiable greed for money, and who are endowed with almost superhuman genius for gaining money through unscrupulous methods. Nowhere else on earth are so many of such men to be found as in this country. Never before has there been a country with such enormous wealth open to plunder.

But little consideration is necessary to make it perfectly obvious that McKinley is the most "profitable," which to the real republican leaders means that he is the only available candidate of their party in 1900.

In marketing their securities, the trust managers confidently promise immunity from government interference during McKinley's tenure of office.

As the events of the recent war tended toward crowning McKinley with factitious glory, and suggesting his reelection, trusts multiplied and their stocks were easily floated.

It may be noted that the damaging disclosures brought out by the board of inquiry and the recent slump of prices of "industrial" stocks were coincident. If these stocks are so sensitive to a slight waning of McKinley's prospects for reelection, it is easy to foresee the panic in such stocks that would follow McKinley's defeat, involving as it would the confession that "Hannaism" had lost its grip on the government.

There are fully two billions of dollars of "trust" stocks, and the estimate is conservative that these stocks would decline in value from 25 to 50 per cent. in the event of McKinley's defeat. From the view point of the "trusts" "the business interests" of the country demand McKinley's renomination. The trust managers rely upon the fact that this nation has "expanded" to silence inquiry about the disgraceful executive mismanagement that has accompanied this expansion. They hope to get McKinley before the people, with some kind of a "crown of glory" jammed down over his head. They will then rely on their peerless capacity for using money where it will attract the most votes to insure his election.

McKinley is the ideal candidate for the trusts. If he were subjected to the "X"-ray, no object would be seen except the figure of Hanna. The trusts have absolute control of the republican party and McKinley is its inevitable nominee in 1900.—Chicago Democrat.

A CRUEL BLOW FROM HANNA.

The Republican Boss Rages When Mentioned in Connection with Beef.

The most significant circumstance of the beef investigation that has thus far appeared is the angry denial of Senator Hanna of any connection whatever with the purchase of the beef. He sent this denial hot from his winter residence in Thomasville, where everything was so lovely a few days:

"I see in the newspaper reports that one Maj. Lee has attempted to drag my name into the case by questions which conveyed the impression that I was present at some conference where beef contracts were discussed. I wish to say that I never had anything to do with any army contract, nor even exchanged a word with any official of the war department on that subject. I make this statement in order that it may have the same publicity as was given to the contemptible insinuations of this man Lee."

This is the most cruel blow that Alger has received yet. It is the unconscious admission that Hanna believes the bad beef charges to be true, and it reveals the secret opinion in Hanna's heart about the secretary of war. Hanna isn't a sensitive man. He is not so scrupulous in his political acts as many other men. He would do things that the late Thomas F. Bayard would scorn even to think of. But the beef scandal is too much for Hanna. When they mention his name in connection with Alger's beef he roars out a denial that shakes the mountains in Georgia. He doesn't want to rest for a moment under the imputation that he would be guilty of even knowing what kind of meat Alger was furnishing to the soldiers.—Utica Observer.

——Carl Schurz say that Lincoln and Cleveland loom above Jefferson and Jackson and all the other presidents. Day, of Ohio, has a different estimate of greatness from Carl of Schurzland. Day says that, when it comes to bigness in statesmanship, generalship and seamanship, McKinley, of Canton, swipes the presidential bakery. Mark Hanna, of Slushfundery, seconds Day's motion. —St. Louis Republic.

EXPANSION'S COST.

Running Into Debt to Allow Hanna & Co. to Exploit the Philippines.

In a recent speech at Philadelphia Carl Schurz, in denouncing imperialism and militarism, called attention to their enormous cost.

"By honest and strenuous effort," he said, "we have paid off the bulk of the heavy national debt left by the civil war, and we have been very proud of that achievement. We are now in the way of running up a new national debt, of which, if we go on with the new policy, nobody can foretell to what figures it will rise."

Few persons have considered the matter from this point of view. They have seen some of the costs of expansion in the injury done to American institutions and principles and the development of Algerism, Eaganism and corruption, but they have not fully appreciated the fact that a brilliant military career is expensive, and the people will have to tax themselves to carry it out.

The debt statement issued by the treasury department for the month of March presents this comparison:

Interest-bearing debt of the United States—
Outstanding—
March 1, 1865	$1,182,149,050
March 1, 1898	884,106,220
March 1, 1893	585,034,360
March 31, 1899	1,046,775,220

The war tax bill, although it added $50,000,000 a year to our revenue, has not sufficed to meet the demands imposed on us by expansion. The current deficits will necessitate further additions to our debt. There will not be the slightest trouble about negotiating the bonds—our credit is so good—but increased indebtedness means greater interest to pay and an increase of taxation to the war basis of 1861-65, that will prove a heavy burden to the people. It was borne willingly enough then, although it was very hard on the poorer classes; but who to-day can point out in the Philippine war any profit to the country, any American principle at stake that will justify the administration in piling up the bonded debt and necessitating an increase of taxation to pay the interest thereon? We will pay a heavy bill out of the pockets of the people for what only a few syndicates will make anything out of. We are running into debt to allow Hanna & Co. to exploit the Philippines and provide the inhabitants of those islands with watered railroads and various trusts and combines.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

THE ISSUES OF 1900.

Questions Which Will Have to Be Settled in the Next Presidential Election.

Those who have the good of the American people at heart are now considering the questions which will come up for discussion in the campaign of 1900. There can be no doubt that the Chicago platform will be readopted in full by the next democratic national convention, and that the money plank will be no less emphatic. But there will be other questions of vast importance upon which declarations will be made—new questions, suggested by new conditions; and perhaps none will be more actively discussed than that relating to trusts. The next democratic platform, like the last one, will be a powerful expression of Jeffersonian doctrine and will command approval.

On the subject of the issues in 1900 William J. Bryan, in a recent letter to the New York Journal, says:

"Circumstances determine the relative importance of questions, and no one is able to say at this time in what proportion the various issues will engross public attention. I have no doubt that the Chicago platform will be reaffirmed. Unless the republicans withdraw their demand for an increase in the standing army, that question also will be under discussion. The issue raised by the threat of imperialism may be settled before the campaign opens, or it may occupy an important position in the campaign. The anti-trust issue will doubtless hold a more prominent place in 1900 than in 1896, because the rapid increase in the number of trusts in the last two years has aroused the public to a realization of the viciousness of the trust principles."

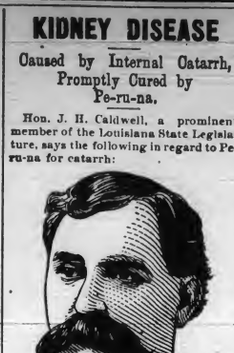
This is doubtless as wise a prognostication as could be made at the present day.—Illinois State Register.

PRESS COMMENTS.

——"Mark Hanna leads a strenuous life," says the Boston Globe. There are a great many strenuous things connected with Mark's occupation.—Chicago Democrat.

——When a stranger, looking like Secretary Alger, passes along the street in an American city, the folks shout "Beef!" at him. This would indicate that the army meat ration is embalmed in the American heart.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

——Alger has declared more than once that he intends to stay as long as the administration stays, but it is clear from the tenor of all his declarations to the effect that he recognizes the possibility of a contingency necessitating his getting out. Perhaps a contingency of that sore will arise. It would make a hit if it did.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.



——Trusts are the direct and baleful outgrowth of the high protective system of custom-house taxation, which has glutted the home market and shut us out from foreign markets that geographically belong to us, thus by artificial process of contraction forcing an artificial relief in combinations to limit production and enhance prices. In the end it will find its solution in free trade come in through the open door.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

——When the republicans went into power, their platform promised the reform of the currency. What steps have been taken to keep this promise? In what way has there been any reform? What has become of this impulse, anyhow? With war scandals to apologize for and responsibility for the trusts to be assumed and broken promises to be explained it would seem that the republicans have no easy sailing.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

KIDNEY DISEASE

Caused by Internal Catarrh, Promptly Cured by Pe-ru-na.

Hon. J. H. Caldwell, a prominent member of the Louisiana State Legislature, says the following in regard to Pe-ru-na for catarrh:

"I have used Pe-ru-na for a number of years with the very best results for catarrhal diseases. I shall never be without it. I never fail to recommend it when an opportunity presents itself."—J. H. Caldwell, Robeline, La.

CHILDREN OF OLD MEN.

Seventy Years No Bar to the Acquisition of Interesting Families.

Cases of children being born to men verging on the three score years and ten, which are declared by the Psalmist to constitute the span of human life, are by no means so rare as might be imagined, says the New York World.

The present earl of Leicester, one of the only peers of the realm who witnessed Queen Victoria's coronation, was 71 years of age at the time of the birth of his youngest daughter, whose eldest sister, aged 49, is already a grandmother. The famous French Field Marshal Pelissier, duke of Malakoff, was 68 when he married, and his only daughter, recently divorced from the Polish Count Zambiska, was born a year later. His fellow field marshals, Canrobert and Bazaine, likewise married when they were in the neighborhood of 70, and each left several children.

The father of Queen Isabella of Spain, old King Ferdinand, was 68 at the time of her birth, and 69 when her sister, the late Duchess de Montpensier, made her appearance in the world. Ancient history furnishes many more such instances, among the most notable being, perhaps, those of Cato, King David, and last, but not least, Father Abraham.

WANTED PAUL TO TELL.

A Tipsy Wayfarer Who Is Familiar with the Scriptures Asks a Question.

A man of the North side saw a masculine member of the human race tumble down on the sidewalk the other evening, hopelessly intoxicated. Disgusted at the sight, he was about to pass on unheedful of his neighbor's misfortune when the story of the good Samaritan flashed across his mind and he resolved for once to be charitably helpful. He accosted the fallen one and assisted him to his unsteady feet, and after much persistent interviewing succeeded in ascertaining the number of his home. Thither he piloted his swaying companion and was rewarded on the doorstep by a volley of thanks and a most importunate invitation to enter and take a drink.

"No," responded the modern Samaritan, emphatically. "I won't go in and take a drink, and you'd better follow my example and get to bed as quickly as you can."

"All right, I guess I will," muttered the tipsy lost, drowsily. "But tell me your name, anyway. I want to know the name of the man who brought me to my door."

As his eloquence and voice were waxing in strength, the Samaritan thought it wisdom to comply in some way with his associate's desires, and at the same time had no intention to reveal his own identity.

"Paul is my name," he answered, at last, in compromise, turning to go down the steps.

"Come here, Paul," eagerly called the other man at once. "Come back and answer the question I've had it in my mind to ask you for years. Paul," he continued, impressively, "did you ever get an answer to your letters to the Ephesians?"—Chicago Chronicle.

The Dark Secret.

"It's not dark enough yet," she whispered, as she peered eagerly up and down the street.

"There's no one in sight," he replied, after a careful survey.

"But some one may come round that corner at any minute and recognize us, and then I should want to die."

"Well, then, we'll wait a bit."

What dreadful deed did those two contemplate doing?

He was about to give her her first lesson in riding a bicycle.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Advantages of Direct Buying.

Certain manufacturing institutions have in recent years inaugurated a new system of disposing of their products which is unquestionably to the advantage of the consumer. Among the pioneers in this new method of doing business was the Elkhart Carriage and Harness Manufacturing company of Elkhart, Ind. These people began this plan 20 years ago and have adhered to it strictly ever since. The result has been so entirely successful that they are to-day the largest manufacturers of carriages and harness in the world selling to the consumer exclusively.

The advantages to the consumer are almost beyond estimate. He gets better goods, better and larger selections, and he buys at a much lower price. There is no risk, as this firm ship vehicles or harness everywhere for examination, and guarantee every article they manufacture and sell. The Elkhart Carriage and Harness Manufacturing company publish a large illustrated catalogue, which they will cheerfully mail to all who request it.

Among His Impediments.

"You've got a lot of baggage," remarked the Washington friend who had accompanied him to the railway station.

"Yes," responded the retiring congressman, "but I carry something on my mind that weighs me down more than all this stuff put together."

"What is it?" inquired the other.

"It's my 'ex!'" said the departing statesman, with a dry sob.—Chicago Tribune.

Two Valued Opinions.

A prominent western railway man, in speaking of the passenger service of the New York Central, says: "It begins right, ends right, and is right in the middle."

An officer of one of the transpacific steamship lines says: "There is no train service in the world comparable with that of the New York Central's Empire State Express."

The best is the cheapest, and the best is always best. The New York Central stands at the head of the passenger lines of this country and is fairly entitled the title of "America's Greatest Railroad."—Buffalo Commercial, February 14, 1899.

The Fourth Dementia.

"Golf?" the physician said, with a sigh. "Golf, or, more correctly, golficitis, must be designated the fourth dementia. Golfeitis is a permanent addition to English manias, and is attracting the attention of thinking alienists. This mania differs from others in that it is not acute in its chronic stages and is curable. The symptoms are a loathing for legitimate business, an abnormal disposition to copious profanity and nervous irritation, a passion for giddy and eccentric garments, a profound contempt for truth, a hatred of domestic restraint, accompanied by flushed face and a depraved love of out-of-doors."—Coiling.

The Natural Cure for Indigestion.

Do you have pain in the stomach after eating? Do you have a yellow tongue? Wind on the stomach? Constipation? These things arise from Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

Digestion depends on digestive fluids or "ferments" secreted by certain glands. When the secretion becomes insufficient, Indigestion results. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cause these glands to resume their normal action and good digestion follows.

Artificial ferments (of which most so-called Dyspepsia cures are composed) may give temporary relief, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People afford a permanent cure.

Poor digestion often causes irregularity of the heart's action. This irregularity must be mistaken for real, organic heart disease. A case in point: Mrs. Eiten Colson, New port, Ind., had suffered for four years with stomach trouble. The gases generated by the indigestion pressed on the heart, and caused an irregularity of its action. She had much pain in her stomach and heart, and was subject to frequent and severe choking spells which were most severest night. Doctors were tried in vain; the patient became worse, despondent, and feared impending death.

She noticed that in intervals in which her stomach did not annoy her, her heart's action became normal. Reasoning correctly that her digestion was alone at fault she procured the proper medicine to treat that trouble and with immediate good results. Her appetite came back, the choking spells became less frequent and finally ceased. Her weight, which had been greatly reduced, was restored and she now weighs more than for years.

That others may know the means of cure we give the name of the medicine used—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. —New Era, Greensburg, Ind.

Florence

Mrs. Ann Oheran is some better, but is not out of danger.

Geo. Ammerman, of Covington, was calling on friends here, Sunday.

Stanley Clutterbuck and wife, of Burlington, and H. W. Ryle and wife, of Erlanger, were guests at J. H. Ryle's Sunday.

Jacob Rice and his brothers and sisters had the remains of their father and mother moved from the old family burying ground to the Florence cemetery last Friday.

There was quite a delightful hop given by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carpenter, at their pleasant home near town, Monday night of last week. A very large number of young people enjoyed the delightful occasion, until a late hour, when they thanked Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter for the splendid entertainment, and left for their homes.

Mrs. Julia Stansifer, of Covington, is the pleasant guest of J. M. Riggs and family.

Miss Jessie Gordon, of Burlington, was the guest of Miss Loula Souther, last Saturday.

Fred Moore and wife, of Brighton, O., were the guests of Welburn Riggs and family, several days last week.

Mrs. Anna Cullum, of Home City, Ohio, and Mrs. C. M. Schooley, of Sedamsville, O., were the guests of J. S. Cullum and sister, last Sunday.

Miss Estelle Sederberg, of Taylorsport, is staying with her grandmother, Mrs. Allen Southey, and going to school to Mrs. Watkins, at Pt. Pleasant.

The flag raising at Pt. Plesant school house, April 19th, was a decided success. A good crowd was present, notwithstanding this being the busy season of the year. Several good speeches were made and patriotic songs sung. The day was beautiful and every one seemed glad that they were living in such a glorious country and were proud that "old glory" was floating over another school house in Kentucky.

Walton.

The small pox scare is all over, but the sore arms from vaccination will remain with us for some time.

Elijah Northcutt, who has been sick all winter, was on the streets, one day last week, looking as well if not better than he did last fall.

We must be going to have a good harvest as Diers has the old Whipps tobacco house filled with improved mowers, binders and other agricultural implements which are going off freely.

Mr. George Casey, who had such a severe attack of the grippe, is slowly convalescing. He had thought himself an immuue and did not pay much attention to the first symptoms and the disease took such a firm grip on the old fellow that the chances were about even that he would not recover. It is probable he will now take better care of himself, as he does not consider himself as much of an immune as he did a little while ago.

Commencement week of Walton Academy begins Sunday, May 7th, with a baccalaureate sermon by Rev. James Rogers. The evening of May 11, the elocution class will have a declamation contest, at the close of which Rev. James E. Moss will deliver the oration that won the state medal at the inter-collegiate contest. The evening of May 12th the graduating exercises will be held at the Christian church. Miss Anna Orr Rice, of Covington, will sing on this occasion.

There is no one in town who takes more pains to adorn his premises than our old friend Jacob Kipp. The little plot of ground at his house has always been adorned with choice and rare flowers that pleased the eyes of all. Some miscreant went into the yard on Friday and Saturday nights and stole his choice hyacinths and tulips and trampled upon the pretty flower beds which he had so carefully tended. It is also not an occasional thing for them to take up the flowers planted on the graves in the cemetery: they would not hesitate to pick up anything like a pocket book or whatever else might please their fancy. The only way in which people can add to the appearance of the town is by [illegible] paint and whitewash, and these they don't steal only because they cannot.

Petersburg.

Ira Carpenter is working in the Aurora Steam Laundry.

Chas. Bahn found a new hat floating in the river Sunday evening.

The Island Queen had 2,000 people on her last trip down, Sunday.

Frank Smith has the finest and thriftiest field of wheat in the bottoms.

Strauss & Co., shipped 200 head of cattle from the Distillery to Baltimore, Monday.

Ira Theetge had the remains of his wife placed in the vault built for that purpose, Monday.

J. I. McWethy sold his match horses at private sale in Cincinnati, to an eastern dealer for $200.

Miss Gracie Grant entertained the elite of the town and surrounding country, Saturday night.

Chas. Bahn, Ed Pease and others have a new sein and their box is always full of nice fresh fish of all kinds.

Hon. Thos. Randall and Col. Hubert Walton, of Utzinger, were driving leisurely down the sand road Sunday.

J. J. Loder's horse fell with him while riding along Sixth street, Cincinnati, bruising his hip and leg badly.

The barge of coal that sunk at the distillery some time last winter, drifted to the Indiana side just below town.

E. Y. Randall and S. G. Botts went over back of Aurora, Sunday, to see a Mr. Kerr, who was 100 years old that day.

E. P. Berkshire and Miss Maud Wingate, Leslie Walton and Miss Birdie Holton went to Madison on the Louisville, Sunday.

News is scarce and unless some one dies or gets married or the black measles do something funny this column will come up missing.

Langdon & Creasy shipped their goods on the Dick Brown, Saturday night and started up business in the Smith buildiug, Monday.

Mrs. Carson sold her property in town and will move to St. Louis, Mo. Miss Carrie Thomasson goes with her much to the regret of the young people.

The "jollie six" made their annual bow to the public Sunday. Athletic sports of all kinds interspersed with fried fish and ice-water were relished by the multitudes in attendance.

Flickertown.

Some of our boys seem to be very fond of honey.

Woodie Sullivan is talking of going to Tennessee in the near future.

B. R. Gaines delivered several loads of wheat to Ben Belden, at Petersburg last week.

Willie Warford has gone to Lexington, where he expects to make his future home.

J. B. Tolin, our cheerful Petersburg correspondent, was visiting his mother one day last week.

Marshall Terrill went to Cincinnati, last Wednesday, to buy some cattle, but he could not find any that sulted him.

Sunday school at the Woolper school house every Sunday afternoon. Come, every body, and help the good work along.

Another of Petersburg's handsome young men has got in the habit of visiting our town quite often. It's all right, Joe.

The small boy with his fishing pole and bait can be seen night and day. Some of them have caught some very —bad colds.

Louis Wessmer is having Edward Gaines' tenant house repaired. His son-in-law from Newport will move in as soon as it is finished.

Gunpowder.

R. O. Beemon delivered his crop of tobacco to Thos. Stevenson, last Wednesday.

Quite a number from this neighborhood attended Mr. Weaver's sale last Saturday.

If the weather is favorable the most of the corn in this neighborhood will be planted this week.

Lewis Weaver and wife, of Georgetown, are visiting relatives here, and attended his father's sale.

Mamie, the little daughter of W. H. Garnett, has been quite sick with pneumonia, but she is some better.

Uncle Jeff Utz was in our burg last Saturday, and we are glad to report his health much better than it has been for some time.

E. H. Blankenbeker is having a new roof put on the house occupied by Ed Snyder. Jas. Murry, of Florence, is doing the work.

J. H. Corbin is having a porch built to his house, which adds greatly to the appearance. Dave Brown, of Florence, is doing the carpenter's work.

Ed Snyder, one of our up-to-date farmers, finished planting corn last Friday. His theory is, the early bird gets the worm, but he should remember the worm sometimes gets the corn.

Union.

"Uncle" Moses Lane will leave for Frankfort, Friday, to visit his son.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Collius, of Crittenden, attended church here, last Sunday.

Tommy Huey has been running the farm this week, and he seems as happy as a lark.

Miss Therese Lassing is entertaining her cousin, Mrs. Moses Tousey, of Anderson, Indiana.

Miss Quizzenberry leaves, this week, for Baltimore, where she will engage in missionary work.

Elbert Wilson and wife returned to Kenton county, Friday, after a pleasant visit with Mrs. Mary Hedges and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Judge extend sincere thanks to the friends who came to their assistance so promptly after the fire, lightening the burden that fell so heavily upon them.

N. D. Gaines and son, Collins, of Texarkana, Texas, were the guests of relatives and friends in this county, last week. Since going west Mr. G. has prospered, and his many friends here are glad of it.

Dr. Rouse and sister, of Limaburg, were in Union one day last week. The doctor was negotiating for the opera house, and making other arrangements toward an entertainment to be given early in May. Watch the Recorder.

The Weaver sale, last Saturday, was [illegible] and every [illegible] at fair prices. Men, whose heads were silvered by the frosts of 70 winters, were willing to testify they had never seen such a variety of articles offered at a sale.

Dr. Violett, of Gallatin county, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Garrison, Saturday. He was enroute to Texas, and it is rumored that the doctor carried, in his left hand, inside vest pocket, a writ of attachment for one of the "Lone Star State's" fairest daughters.

Rev. Davis preached Friday night, Saturday, Sunday morning and night at the Presbyterian church. He also held a special service at the house of M. C. Norman on Sunday afternoon, that his son, Everett, whose health forbids his attending church, might enjoy the comfort and pleasure of listening to the services.

Robert L. Willis, Esq., of Big Bone, was in town, Friday, to buy one of the celebrated "Voshell telescopes" for use in the observatory on top of his residence. He was very much pleased with his purchase, and claims that it is the finest instrument he ever saw. After making three observations with it Saturday, objects at a distance of 20 miles were seen as though only 20 feet away. Hairs on a bald man's head, at a distance of 10 miles, looked like fishing poles that B. L. Norman and Sol Long used last week fishing all day and not catching a bite. A man who was 5 miles away was brought so close that he could be heard, distinctly, telling another man at Moore's Hill to go on and explain to Mr. J. Harvey Walton what a wonderful machine the V. telescope has become.

The elegant home of James A. Huey presented a brilliant appearance, last Thursday night. The moon was moving across the heavens like a chariot, the wheels of which were filled with spokes of fire as it threw over Pleasure Hill its brightest beams of light, adding beauty to the stately evergreens as they continuously swayed to and fro under the pressure of a balmy southern breeze, bowing as a welcome. The interior was brilliantly lighted, and, as we glanced over the richly furnished apartments, and saw so many eager, happy faces, and heard the sound of so many familiar voices ringing out in merry laughter or buzzing in quiet conversation, we were more than glad to be there. The evening was to be devoted to closing exercises of Miss Quizzenbury's school. The pupils were Misses Anna Aylor, Martha Lassing, Ella Taliaferro, Rachael and Sarah Conner, Nannie Huey, Messrs. Joseph Huey, Ephraim Norman, Philip Taliaferro. The program was lengthy, and consisted of recitations, speeches, songs, solos, debates and class prophesies. Miss Quizzenburg has taught at Pleasure Hill Academy for eight months, and judging from the proficient work of Thursday night, we feel certain that the teacher and patrous were justified in looking so radiant with happiness and satisfaction as the program was carried out. Lack of space prevents the writer from speaking of the individual efforts of the class, but we feel that each individual did so well that the hearts of their parents, teacher and friends, swelled with emotions of love, pride and respect for them, and that, alone, is sufficient reward. Misses Anna Aylor and Martha Lassing, and Messrs. Joseph Huey and Ephraim Norman engaged in a debate as to the rights of savages to real estate, that proved interesting. The young men went on to show how savages held real estate by divine right, or, else by discovery, but the young ladies proved that a savage is too lazy to hold any rights, either divine or otherwise—see page 120 decisions of the Supreme Court of the World—and found it easier to move than to pay rent or defend title. The judges found in favor of the young ladies 112 per cent. to 88 for the young men, who submitted very gracefully, of course. Mr. and Mrs. Huey extended the hospitality of their home with a lavish hand, and everyone of the large audience was enabled to enjoy the exercises in perfect comfort and ease. We noticed in the audience, and from distant points, Mr. and Mrs. Crouch, of Gallatin county; Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Rice, of Covington, and Mrs. Joseph Collins, of Grant county.

Rabbit Hash.

Any afternoon you can see the usual game of croquet.

Sid Clements shipped 18 nice hogs from here last Tuesday night.

There is certainly a mistake about Rabbit Hash being in favor of free turnpikes.

Ben Kent, of Switzerland county, Ind., was calling on his best girl here Saturday evening and Sunday.

Mrs. Ella North and children, of near Aurora, Ind., were visiting her mother and sisters here part of last week and the week before.

Last Sunday Lewis Stephens, Ben Scott and Colin Kelly, took a trip down the river on the City of Cincinnati and returned on the City of Louisville.

Last Thursday Miss Connie Stephens of Hathaway, was visiting her sister, Mrs. Nannie Stephens, and when returning home in the afternoon, her horse threw her off near J. J. Stephens', but fortunately she was not hurt.

Francesville.

Wash Tanner moved to Francesville last Mouday.

What has become of our Mound Field Farm correspondent?

Our carpet weaver is kept busy, but she is still taking orders.

Miss Lou Graves is visiting her aunt, Mrs. M. M. Graves, in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Annie Beall visited her sister-in-law, Mrs. Holland Goodridge, last week.

We think from all signs that spring has come in earnest. The men and boys are gardening; the women and girls cleaning house.

Miss Julia Beall spent Wednesday of last week with Mrs. Emma Kilgour. Miss Julia is delightful company, having the best memory of any one in the neighborhood makes her an excellent reference for any event in the last 65 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Wainscott are the oldest couple in our neighborhood. They are respectively nearly 90 and 80 years of age. Their son Ben, gave up a lucrative business at High Bridge to come and live with them. He deserves all the respect and honor that we can bestow.

Limaburg.

Thermometer reach 90 on the 21st.

About all the farmers have planted gardens.

Several of the farmers will plant corn this week.

Louis Weaver was visiting John P. Utz, Sunday.

A fine shower of rain fell here on Monday morning.

Born, to Sam Cummins and wife, a bouncing boy, on 23d. Sam is all smiles now.

Mrs. John Baker and Wm. J. Utz each have a peach tree that has blooms on it.

Wallace Tanner has typhoid fever very bad, but the doctor thinks he is some better.

Geo. E. Rousels the early bird in this neighborhood. He finished planting corn on the 19th.

We are looking for the telephone that is coming from Indiana in the near future. Limaburg will be a station.

Hebron.

Doll Allen and family were visiting relatives here, Sunday.

Fishing is the fad here, especially by moonlight. Ask Dr. Sayre about it.

Will Graves and wife were guests of Chas. Stephens and wife, Sunday.

Miss Grace Bullock went to the city, Sunday morning to visit her cousins.

Mrs. Thos. Cleore and Mrs. Mabel Sayre visited Mrs. Joe Pickleheimer, Friday.

Perry Aylor and family were visiting Mrs. Aylor's mother near Constance, Sunday.

Chas. Craven and family, of Burlington, were visiting Mrs. Craven's parents near here, Sunday.

Several persons from the Pt. Pleasant neighborhood attended Sunday school here, last Sunday.

Misses Daisey Harding and Kite Clayton were guests of Miss Neva Hafer, Saturday night and Sunday.

An unusually large crowd attended Rev. Lentz's evening services here Sunday. The sermon was very impressive.

The Jephthah club will give an entertainment at Union, May 6. It will give a full dress performance at the hall, May 3. Admission 10 cents.

Misses Ireue and Edna Herrou, of Wyoming, Ohio, were the pleasant guests of Miss Mary Riddell, last Sunday. In the afternoon Miss Mary entertained several guests in honor of the Misses Herron.

Bellevue.

Many of the peach trees are dead.

William Huey is in the lead in planting corn.

Rev. Utz was not able to mluister to his church on last Sabbath.

Andrew Acra was the guest of his brother, Charles, Sunday last.

O. N. Grant is building an addition to his house—pantry and porch.

J. R Clutterbuck and wife, of Burlingtou, were guests of her sisters, Sunday.

Michael Clore surveyed ¼ acre, or two lots, to trustees of I. O. O. F. lodge at this place.

A. C. Kelly has bought a lot of Peter Deck, and will estublish a coal yard in the near future.

Ben Drake has moved to his summer residence on the river, occupying the Brittenback property.

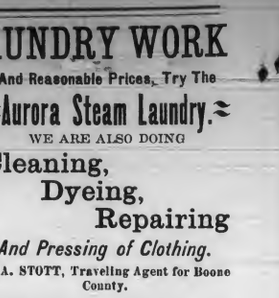
Mrs. Etta Smith, wife of Dr. Geo. Smith, of Weisburg, Ind., is the guest of her father and sisters near here.

Business meetings of the Baptist church will be held at 3 p. m. for the next six months, on the fourth Saturday.

James Lawell is having a well driven near his residence. The parties sunk it 35 feet the first day, and 2 the second.

Rel Sullivan lost a valuable horse. It became frightened while hitched to a plow with a revolving cutter, and ran away, cutting off both hind feet.

Our Republicans friends, judging from resolution recently passed, in convention assembled, are somewhat nauseated over the effect of the civil service law, enacted by them. Take your medicine, brethren, even though it retains in office some who differ from you politically.



Constance.

Rev. F. Bryfogle, of Moody, New York, Training School, will lecture at the Mission, next Sunday.—John Peuo was kicked in the right side by a horse the other day.—Rev. Watkins baptized Miss Sadie Zimmer and Miss Ella England, Saturday.—The Pt. Pleasant W. M. Circuit Court.

The term of Circuit Court that adjourned last Friday was longer than usual, and several cases of importance were disposed of.

When we went to press last week, Luther Kirtley, colored, was on trial for malicious shooting and wounding, and was given a fine of $50. His prosecution grew out of a shooting scrap pulled off by him and Henry Osborn, colored, here in Burlington, last February, and in which Osborn received a bullet wound in one arm.

Last Wednesday was Constance day in the circuit court, and a large delegation from that precinct was in town at an early hour. The famous cow case, in which Joel Peno sued John Peno for $30 for shooting his cow, and which had been appealed from the quarterly court, was the drawing card. The case was called for trial immediately afternoon and the hearing of testimony consumed the remainder of the day. The case was submitted to the jury without argument by counsel, and in a few minutes the jury returned a verdict finding that Joel Peno had been damaged in the sum of $10 by John Peno by shooting his cow, and that John Peno had been damaged to the extent of $10 by the frequent trespasses of the cow, and further, that each should pay one-half the cost of the action. With this peculiar verdict each of the parties was satisfied, and claimed a victory, while disinterested parties who heard the trial were unanimous in pronouncing the verdict a just one.

Several years ago Mrs. Lucinda Lindsay, of Florence, died, leaving a will in which she devised to her grand-daughter, Cleora Savage Myers, her house and lot in Florence. The land constituting the lot had been purchased in parcels, and in a suit to construe the will and settle the testator's estate, the Boone Circuit Court held that the devisee to the grand-daughter carried the house and the original purchase of land on which it stood, and the remainder of the lots were sold that the proceeds might be divided among the heirs. B. A. Dulaney became the purchaser of the property, and paid the purchase money, and the court gave him a deed. An appeal from the judgment of the Circuit Court was prosecuted by the devisee, and the Court of Appeals reversed the judgment of the lower court, holding that the will bequeathed to Cleora Savage Myers the house and entire parcel of land, and under this opinion of the Appellate Court the Circuit Court last week granted the devisee a writ for the possession of her land, and the purchase money was ordered refunded to B. A Dulaney.

The suit of Annie E. Beemon, &c., against the T. A. Snider Preserve Co., was called for trial last Wednesday. The jury was soon obtained and after noon it was sent, in charge of the Sheriff, to the defendant's large canning factory near Walton, to examine the premises. In this suit the plaintiffs claimed that they were damaged in the sum of $5,000 by reason of the drainage from the defendant's canning factory, when in operation, running down upon their land and killing the grass, destroying the stock water and making their dairy cattle sick. J. C. Clore and Frank Curley represented the plaintiffs, and J. G. Tomlin, C. C. Cram and John Vest, the defendants. The trial consumed two days, and every point was contested. The jury was given the case at noon Friday, and after about an hour's deliberation it returned a verdict for $250 in favor of the plaintiffs.

The suit of Perry L. Aylor against E. Mannin for $2,000 for defamation of character was continued by the court Friday afternoon, there not being time in which to hear the testimony, nearly everybody being witnesses on one side or the other.

In the case of A. M. Edwards against Fannie Edwards for the custody of the children, Estill and Harry, the court entered the following order: "Came parties by attorneys and the plaintiff, A. M. Edwards moved the court for an order herein awarding him the care and custody of the two infant children, Estill J. Edwards and Harry Edwards, to which the defendant, Fannie Edwards, objects, and the motion being heard and the court being sufficiently advised, sustains the objections and overrules said motion, and refuses to award the care or custody of either of said children to said A. M. Edwards, and the court being satisfied from the private examination of said children by the court separate and apart from each other and all other persons, and from other proof introduced on said motion, that it is to the best interest of each of said children that the defendant, Fannie Edwards, should have the care and custody of both children, it is now ordered and adjudged that the mother of said children, the said Fannie Edwards, be and she is hereby awarded the care and custody of both of said children until further ordered by this court. It is also ordered that said Fannie Edwards shall not remove either of said children out of the jurisdiction of this court, and that the plaintiff, A. M. Edwards, shall be permitted to visit and see said children, not less than twice a week if he so desires, on such days as he desires, and if said children desire said Edwards is to be permitted to take said children to his home once a week and keep them not to exceed twenty-four hours, provided the home of said Edwards is in the jurisdiction of this court. But neither plaintiff nor defendant are to take either of said children out of the jurisdiction of this court, and it is further ordered that the said Edwards pay to the defendant, Fannie Edwards, for the support and maintenance of said children the sum of $25 per month, payable on the 21st day of every month until further order of this court."

In the case of B. A. Dulaney vs R. S. Richardson, Dulaney was given a judgment for $116 18.

COURT NOTES.

Court adjourned about 10 o'clock Friday night, having been in session for eleven days.

The Sheriff took Kite Story, who was convicted of manslaughter, to the penitentiary, last Saturday.

It is seldom that the petit juries are not discharged until the last day of the term, but such was the case this time.

One juror who was not done gathering his corn grew very restless before he was mustered out of service Friday at noon.

There were more jury trials during the term than there had been at any preceeding term for years. In no instance did a jury hang.

Juror Lancaster, of Beaver, made good use of his bike during the term, making the round trip from home on it every day, except one, during his period of service.

Gray, Cram, Dickerson and Menefee, represented Grant county; Gaunt, Carroll county; Myers and Hall, Covington; Adams, Erlanger; Clore and Rogers, Cincinnati; Dyas, Tomlin, Curley and Vest, Walton, in the legal profession.

Solon Early, of Petersburg, expected to engage in a campaign of watch trading while not in the jury box. He carried a trading watch in each pocket, and was frequently seen to fish them out. How many trades he made during the two weeks is not known.

While Judge Greene was delivering his ruling in the Edwards case, the shades of discretion were retained, the court room, and the crowd present was intensely quiet, and, taken altogether, the occasion was one of deep solemnity. The Judge was very much affected, and several times his voice faltered and tears appeared in his eyes. It is seldom that a court is called upon to discharge a graver duty than that devolving upon Judge Greene in this case.

Nice shower Sunday night.

Rev. Wm. Peno will begin a protracted meeting at Fairview, Ky., this week.

From three Irish potatoes Willis Clore raised one bushel of nice potatoes, last year.

T. E. Randall, has a good Jersey cow and a calf for sale. The cow is a good and an easy milker.

Walton public school closes Friday eveuing, April 28th, with an entertainment at the Opera House, Walton, Ky.

J. A. Duncan and M. F. Wingate have made arrangements to buy wool again this season, and will pay the best prices for the best wool.

C. R. Crigler, of Limaburg, brought to this office, last week, some of the nicest yellow Jersey sweet potatoes, we have seen in a long time.

The dance at the Boone House, last Friday night, was attended by a large crowd, and was one of the most enjoyable cotillion parties given there for a long time. The dancing was kept up the entire night.

STRAYED—From my premises on the night of the 15th inst., a light bay mare, 9 years old and 15 hands high. Any information as to her whereabouts will be thankfully received.
CLINTON GAINES, Bullittsville.

Last Sunday night during his sermon, Rev. Hoover made use of an illustration in which he used the words fire three times in succession, each time a little louder. The second time he exclaimed "fire," his tone was loud enough to partially awaken three prominent members who were asleep in their seats well up in front, and when the word was pronounced a third time in a still louder tone, these three brothers gathered their hats and made for the door, believing that a fire was raglug out in town. You may imagine their surprise when they were informed as to why the minister shouted, "fire."

John M. Turner, familiarly called "Happy Jack," who lived near W. A. Gaines' on the Petersburg pike, died last Saturday afternoon, after several weeks' illness of diabetes, in his 82 year. He was a member of the 55th Kentucky regiment in the Union army during the civil war. He occupied an humble position in life, but was a man who had a big heart filled with kindness, and, as a consequence, had a great many friends. He leaves a widow and two or three sons. The remains were placed in the Hebron vault last Sunday afternoon in the presence of quite a concourse of friends and relatives, after the reading of a chapter and prayer by J. B. Crigler.

Mr. Daniel Hoffman, of Petersburg, handed us the following item, one day last week: "In rambling over the hills about Gasburg, a few days, since we came to the old Mosby farm, settled in 1796, by Daniel Mosby. We visited the old family burying ground and in looking over the head stones of the dead, we copied a few dates, which may be of interest to old people: Daniel Mosby, born 1747, died 1805; Tomas Allen, born 1756, died 1825; Richard Parker, born 1760, died 1809; Archibald Huston, born 1769, died 1826; Artemus Piatt, born 1771, died 1818; Susan Sebree, born 1790, died 1815; Robert Mosby, born 1787, died 1882; Mary Mosby, born 1795, died 1864; Martha Allen, born 1761, died 1815.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

In response to a call from Verona in your valuable paper of the 12th inst., and the solicitations of many friends from other parts of the county, I will on the first Monday in May at Burlington, announce myself a candidate subject to the action of the Democratic party, to represent the county of Boone in the next Legislature. Appreciating the honor they would confer, and recognizing the obligations and responsibilities I would assume, I sincerely thank those who signed the call, for the interest they have taken in my behalf and the confidence they have manifested in my fitness for the position. Resp'tiy., J. W. KENNEDY.
Union, Ky., April 24, 1899.

A dispatch from Lawrenceburg to the Cincinnati Enquirer, says: "City Clerk Joe Frazier has in his possession a flat stone that bears upon its surface the distinct outlines of a human face. Every feature is perfect and clearly possible to the naked eye. Under a magnifying glass the expression of the countenance is one of terror and appears to be that of a beardless young man. What adds interest to the strange tracings on the stone is the fact that it was found on the Kentucky side of the river at the ill-fated spot where Billy Fee, the victim of the shanty boat murder some years ago, knelt and pleaded in vain with his heartless murderers to spare his life. The stone attracts considerable curiosity and superstition invests it with weird significance because of its being found in such a grewsome locality."

PERSONAL MENTION.

H. W. Blyth was at home, Sunday.

Atty. Gaines made a business trip to Petersburg, last Saturday.

H. Kroger and son, of Florence, were in Burlington, Monday morning.

H. G. Blanton, of Erlanger, was doing the gallant act in Burlington, Sunday.

Leonard Kite and wife, of Waterloo, were visiting at R. S. Cowen's, Sunday.

Miss Edna Bryan, of Cincinnati, has been a guest at Mrs. Cowen's for several days.

John and Scott Peno, of Constance, were among the early arrivals in town, Monday.

Rev. C. G. Jones, of Covington, was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Hoover, Monday night.

Ab Gaines, J. O. Huey and William Bondurant were in town, Monday, closing a real estate deal.

H. L. Harrison and wife, of the North Bend neighborhood, were among the visitors to town, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Armstrong, of Covington, were guests of Mrs. Annabel Kirkpatrick, Sunday.

Mrs. Hattie Arnold, of Williamstown, has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. T. W. Finch, for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lodwick, of River side, Ohio, were guests at Judge Riddell's Sunday, as were also Jas. A. Riddell and wife, of Hebron.

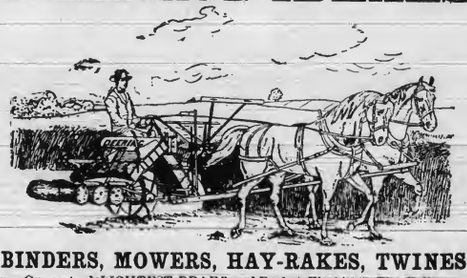
On account of a wreck on the Q. & C. in Tennessee, Elmer Beall and B. B. Allphin did not reach home from Frankfort until Sunday afternoon.

Miss Annie Beemou's school at the Cason school house, is progressing nicely with a large attendance, and she is having the spleudid success she so much deserves.

The linen shower given Miss Frances Finch, last Friday afternoon, by Mrs. W. L. Riddell, was a very happy affair, and Miss Frances received many handsome and useful presents.

Met our Moundfield Farm correspondent at Hebron Sunday, and he invited us to go home with him and get some strawberries, but the want of time denied us the pleasure of the feast.

J. D. Gaines, of Texarkana, Texas, was meeting his many friends here, last Friday. He moved away from this county fifteen years ago, and in that time there has been a great change in his appearance, he having become much larger and quite gray. He has, evidently, taken good care of himself, and his host of Boone county friends were glad to meet their affable and clever companion of yore.



R. W. Rouse, of the Limaburg neighborhood has a Thiriud sow and several pigs for sale.

There will be a game of base ball at the Burlington park in the afternoon of Saturday week.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

FRENCH word makers are now engaged in trying to coin a sufficiently scientific sounding name for the peculiar phase of insanity developed by the Dreyfus agitation. Twenty-five persons afflicted with the Dreyfus mania have recently been admitted to Paris insane asylums. From other French cities there come similar reports.

THE phenomenon of ice freezing on the surface of Lake Chelan in warm weather, when it rarely or never freezes in winter, was reported the other day. The steamer Stehekin encountered thin ice covering a large surface of the lake four or five miles above Lakeside on her down trip. The fact is sufficiently vouched for by credible witnesses.

REV. DAVID MACRAE, of Dundee, Scotland, now on a visit to this country, says: "Thirty years ago I paid a visit to Mrs. Stonewall Jackson at her home, and was presented by her with the overcoat which her husband wore when he received his death wound. It was a heavy rubber-faced garment, and the fatal bullet hole and stains of blood were plainly visible."

GREYSTONE, the country residence in which Samuel J. Tilden took such pride, will be sold at auction early next month. The sale is the outcome of a suit in partition brought in behalf of the Tilden heirs, and several parcels of city property will be put under the hammer at the same time. Mr. Tilden's city residence, 14 Gramercy park, will be sold at the same time.

IT has been stated that every piece of land between the King William statue and Trinity square, London, E. C., cost 1,000 guineas a yard. This would mean about £117 per square foot, or over £5,000,000 per acre. The ground in the vicinity of the bank of England is estimated to be not worth less than £2,000,000 per acre. Land in Pall Mall has changed hands at £500,000 per acre.

THERE is a new rival to the chamois skin vests so long worn by women for extra warmth. These new vests are of paper. Those who have worn them pronounce them less bulky, just as warm and less expensive than the chamois. They are so cheap, indeed, that they can be thrown away and a new one purchased without troubling the conscience of the woman with only a moderate purse.

AT a recent meeting of the Academie des Science, Paris, M. Marey presented a new phonograph which speaks so distinctly that one can scarcely recognize any difference between the original voice and its reproduction. On the same occasion M. Dusaur described a new method of amplifying the sounds of the phonograph just as a photograph is enlarged. It is done by causing the phonograph to speak into a second phonograph having a cylinder of larger diameter.

MAURICE GRAU is a very happy man. At the first annual meeting of stockholders of the Maurice Grau Opera Co., which was held the other afternoon at the Metropolitan opera house, he was able to report that the profits of the opera season just closing would not be less than $110,000, and to announce that the board of directors had declared a dividend of 35 per cent. on the $125,000 common stock, including the 5 per cent. required by the by-laws to be paid on the investment.

SIXTY-ONE men were kept busy serving the wines and mineral waters at the Croker $10 dinner in New York a few days ago. They had nothing else to do while the banquet lasted, and this was fortunate, for their time was fully employed in dispensing the 3,000 quarts of champagne, and the 2,600 quarts of other kinds of wine. Of all this, it was affirmed at the close of the banquet, not a drop was left. The 2,400 quarts of mineral water, however proved more than ample.

PERSONS who are compelled to make use of public drinking fountains may relieve their minds to a great extent of fear of infectious microbes by supplying themselves with a lip guard and protector which has been recently patented by Alvah C. Tebbets, of Boston. It is merely a metal or rubber shield which slips over the edge of the drinking glass and is held in place by the natural spring of the material. This prevents one's lips from coming in contact with the edge of the glass, and thereby prevents infection.

THE Novosti, of St. Petersburg, gives a description of roses that are jet black in color, and which are the result of ten years' toil and thought by a florist named Fetisoff, in Woronesch, Russia. This man has produced some remarkable effects in the garden world. His latest success with the black roses has stirred up quite a sensation among the lovers of flowers in Russia. Some specimens were sent to to the czar by Fetisoff, and a beautiful collection of them has been sent to London to be exhibited at the coming annual flower show.

THE new Havana police force is having a great deal of trouble. Scarcely a night passes without the killing of one or more policemen, citizens or soldiers. The Cuban is too excitable, too nervous to make a good policeman. It will not be long before the American provosts will have to begin policing the streets again. Although there are strict orders against selling any intoxicating drinks to the soldiers in Havana, the men get liquor some way, and one drunken soldier or sailor will make things remarkably interesting for three or four of the Cuban policemen.

GUNS SILENCED.

The Dakota Regiment Encountered the Rebels at Novatiches.

The Rebels Left Many Dead on the Field—Gen. Lawton Will Endeavor to Outflank the Filipinos Before He Joins Gen. MacArthur.

MANILA, April 24.—Gen. Lawton took the field at daybreak Saturday with a column of troops, consisting of the North Dakota regiment, two battalions of the 3d infantry, the 22d infantry, two guns of Scott's battery, three troops of the 4th cavalry, and Gale's squadron, equipped in light marching order. This force starting at 5 o'clock Saturday morning over the Novaliches road, traversing the country previously cleared of rebels, but subsequently reoccupied by them. It is to be presumed that Gen. Lawton by this movement will outflank the enemy before joining Gen. MacArthur north of Malolos.

The Dakota regiment first encountered the enemy in front of Novaliches at 8:15 a. m. The rebels opened fire on our troops but their fire was silenced 15 minutes later, the enemy retiring in bad order and the Americans advancing along the rough roads around Novaliches. They were considerably annoyed by the fire of the rebel sharpshooters from the jungle for two hours.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the rebels were in full flight, leaving many dead on the field, and our troops were compelled to take a brief rest in the shade as the heat was overpowering.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The war department has nothing new from Gen. Otis, but it has reason to believe that he was surprised at the easy march Gen. Lawton was having in the interior to the northeast of Manila. Gen. Otis only designed it to be another "reconnoisance in force," but it may develop into a round-up, with the object of striking the railroad north of Caloocan. It is understood Gen. Lawton took only three days' travel rations with him, but if no strong body of insurgents is developed by his advance, supplies can be sent after him from Caloocan.

NO LIVES REPORTED LOST.

Steamship Glenogle Crashed Into the Steamer City of Kingston at Tacoma —The Latter Cut in Two.

TACOMA, Wash., April 24.—The steamship Glenogle crashed into the steamer City of Kingston about 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning off Brown's Point, cutting the City of Kington in two just abaft the boilers. The 12 passengers and crew of the Kingston were saved through the prompt action of officers of the Glenogle and Kingston and two ships lying in the harbor. So far as known no lives were lost.

Rev. Horace H. Clapham, rector of Trinity church, occupied the state room struck by the Glenogle's prow and was pinned in the wreckage for several minutes, only being released by the parting of the steamers. His forehead was cut slightly but he was not seriously hurt.

The Kingston was cut in two pieces which have been towed to the harbor here.

STATE MILITIA ORDERED OUT

Fears That An Attempt Will Be Made to Lynch George W. Kerlin, Now in the Atlanta Jail.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 24.—Gov. Candler stated Sunday evening that he had been advised that a mob of citizens of Fayetteville and Woolsy were coming to Atlanta to take Geo. W. Kerlin from the jail here and lynch him. Kerlin murdered Miss Pearl Knott near Woolsy several days ago and threw her body in the river. The governor immediately ordered eight companies of the 5th infantry (state militia) to be in readiness to march to the jail upon order. It is believed, however, that the troops are held in readiness to be sent to Palmetto in case of an uprising of Negroes there.

IS ON TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE.

A Negro Preacher, Charged With Hiring Sam Hose to Murder Farmer Crawford, May Be Lynched.

PALMETTO, Ga., April 24.—Elijah Strickland, the Negro preacher who is accused by Sam Hose, the Negro burned to death near Newnan Sunday, of paying him (Hose) $12 to murder Farmer Alfred Cranford, was captured by a mob of people from this vicinity three miles out of town Sunday night. He was brought to Palmetto and at midnight was placed on trial for his life by a court composed of those who had arrested him. Speeches for and against his character were made and the trial was in progress early Monday morning.

Hobart Not a Candidate.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Vice President Hobart will not be a candidate for re-election, according to information given out here. Ill health is the cause. QUAY DECLARED NOT GUILTY.

The Jury Acquits Him of Charge of Conspiracy—Gov. Stone Then Appoints Him United States Senator.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 22.—At noon Friday Gov. Stone appointed M. S. Quay senator from Pennsylvania, the appointment to hold until the next session of the legislature. The following is Gov. Stone's official announcement of the appointment:

To the President of the United States Senate, Washington, D.C.: Sir—By virtue of the power vested in me as executive of the state of Pennsylvania, under Article I, Clause II, Section 3, of the constitution of the United States, I hereby make temporary appointment of the Hon. Matthew Stanley Quay, to be United States senator from Pennsylvania until the next meeting of the Pennsylvania legislature, to fill the vacancy now existing in this state.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM A. STONE, Governor.

The appointment was made immediately upon the receipt by Gov. Stone of a message from Philadelphia announcing the verdict of acquittal in the senator's case. The appointment is a great triumph for the Quay faction.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—Senator M. S. Quay was Friday morning acquitted of the charge of conspiracy to use the state's funds. The jury rendered a verdict to that effect at 11 o'clock. Many notable republican politicians of the state were in the courtroom, and many ladies were among the spectators. All the attorneys and others connected with the case were on hand.

Judge Biddle resumed his seat on the bench, and at 10:57 court was formally opened. Then the jury filed in and took their seats. All of the 13 answered to their names.

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" asked the crier.

"We have," answered the foreman, as he presented the bill of indictment.

"What say you, do you find the defendant guilty or not guilty?"

The foreman answered in a voice audible throughout the courtroom:

"Not guilty."

Pandemonium followed this answer. The spectators arose and cheered and there was a simultaneous rush to congratulate Senator Quay. It is understood that from the first ballot the jury stood 11 to 1 for acquittal.

Senator Quay left the courtroom with his attorneys. He refused to make any statement at present. District Attorney Rothermel also declined to make any statement. Nor would he say whether the other charges against Quay would be tried.

Gov. Stone said that in appointing Col. Quay he felt that he had done the fit and proper thing. He thought it would make the issue, and is better done now than by waiting for weeks. The authority cited by the governor says that the governor of any state may make temporary appointment during a recess to hold until the next legislature meets.

A NATIONAL COMMANDERY.

Meeting of the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War Held in New York—Officers Elected.

NEW YORK, April 22.—A meeting of the naval and military order of the Spanish American war was held here Friday night. Commander Brig. Gen. Cloud presided.

It was decided to incorporate the organization and adopt an insignia and organize a national commandery and adopt a national constitution and by-laws. After discussion it was resolved to address all United States volunteers as "late United States volunteers."

The following officers were elected: Commander, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, U. S. V.; senior vice commander, Capt. Henry Taylor, U. S. N.; junior vice commander, Brig. Gen. Wallace Randolph, U. S. V.; secretary, Lieut. Dr. J. Sears, U. S. N.; treasurer, Ensign Frank W. Toppan, U. S. N.; registrar, Lieut. Theo. C. Zeregs, U. S. N. V.; chaplain, Charles A. Parks.

A DUEL WITH PITCHFORKS.

At Chicago Edward Zikmond Stabbed to Death Horace Scott, Colored—Zikmond Surrendered.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Armed with pitchforks Horace Scott, colored, and Edward Zikmond, a young white man, fought a duel to death in an alley at the rear of 1830 Indiana avenue Friday afternoon. Scott was stabbed in the breast and died in a few minutes. Zikmond surrendered to the police three hours later. There had been ill feeling between the men for some time and Friday afternoon when Zikmond attempted to drive through the alley, and was unable to do so because a wagon in Scott's charge blocked the passage, the old quarrel was renewed with the above result.

Supreme Court Adjournment.

WHEELING, W. Va., April 22.—The street car strike situation continues to improve. A full service was again given Friday but the public continues to stay off the cars.

ARMY DISASTER.

An Engagement at Quengua in Which Seven Americans Were Killed.

Rebels Subsequently Attacked and Driven From Their Trench to the Second Trench a Mile Away—Nebraska Regiment the Loser.

MANILA, April 24.—Four men of the Nebraska regiment, including Col. Stetsenberg, Lieut. Sisson and three men of the fourth cavalry were killed and 44 wounded in an engagement at Quengua. The Filipinos retreated with small loss. The engagement developed into a disastrous, though successful fight. The insurgents had a horseshoe trench about a mile long encircling a rice field on the edge of a wood.

The following were killed;

Col. John M. Stetsenberg, of the 1st Nebraska regiment, formerly of the 6th cavalry.

Lieut. Sisson (perhaps Lieut. August C. Nisson), of the same regiment.

Two privates of the Nebraska regiment.

Three privates of the 4th cavalry.

Most of the wounded belong to the 1st Nebraska regiment.

Maj. Bell, with 40 cavalrymen, encountered a strong outpost. One of his men was killed and five were wounded by a volley.

The Americans retired, carrying their wounded under fire and with great difficulty, being closely pursued, a fog enabling the enemy to creep up to them.

Two men who were carrying a comrade were shot in the arms, but they continued with their burden.

Maj. Bell sent for reinforcements to rescue the body of the killed cavalrymen, and, a battalion of the Nebraska regiment, under Maj. Mufford, arrived and advanced until checked by volleys from the enemy's trenches.

The Americans lay about 800 yards from the trenches, behind rice furrows, under fire, for two hours.

Several men were sunstruck, one dying from the effects of the heat, as they lay there waiting for the artillery to come up.

Finally the second battalion arrived, and then Col. Stetsenberg, who had spent the night with his father at Manila, came upon the field. The men immediately recognized him and raised a cheer. Col. Stetsenberg, deciding to charge as the cheapest way out of the difficulty, led the attack at the head of his regiment. He fell with a bullet in the breast, dying instantly about 200 yards from the breastworks.

Lieut. Sisson fell with a bullet in his heart, the bullet striking him near the picture of a girl suspended by a ribbon from his neck.

In the meantime the artillery had arrived and shelled the trenches.

The Filipinos stood until the Nebraska troops were right on the trenches and then they bolted to the second line of intrenchments a mile back.

The Nebraska regiment lost two privates and had many wounded, including two lieutenants.

The Iowa regiment had several wounded.

The Utah regiment had one officer and three men wounded.

Thirteen dead Filipinos were found in the trenches. Their loss was comparatively small on account of their safe shelter.

The Americans carried the second trench with small loss and are holding the town Sunday night.

Col. Stetsenburg has won a reputation as one of the bravest fighters in the army. He always led his regiment and had achieved remarkable popularity with his men since the war began, although during his first colonelcy the volunteers, who were not used to the rigid discipline of the regular troops, thought him a hard officer.

The loss of the Nebraska regiment in the campaign is the greatest sustained by any regiment, and Sunday's disaster has greatly saddened officers and men, who promise to take fierce vengeance in the next fight.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The following message regarding the fight at Quengua, was received at the war department Sunday:

"MANILA, April 23, Adjutant General, Washington: A reconnoisance on Quengua place, six miles northeast of Malolos, made by Maj. Bell and a troop of cavalry this morning resulted in contact and battle, in which four battalions of infantry and four pieces of artillery became engaged. Enemy driven from intrenchments at Quengua with considerable loss; our casualties quite severe. Col. Stetsenberg and Lieut. Sissons, 1st Nebraska, killed, also several enlisted men. Considerable numbers wounded, not yet reported.

(Signed) OTIS."

Cigars Seized at Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 24.—It was learned Sunday night that something over 100,000 cigars has been found by the internal revenue officers in Pittsburgh, bearing stamps issued by the Jacobs factory, Lancaster, Pa. Returns from the balance of this district have not as yet been reported.

A Strong Man's Secret.

The strongest man on earth says the secret of his wonderful power is perfect digestion. Hostette's Stomach Bitters makes digestion easy, and cures all complaints arising from weak stomach, such as indigestion, biliousness and all liver and kidney silments. As a blood purifier and nerve tonic it is marvelous. It is recommended by all physicians, and is sold by every druggist in the country. Everybody needs it at this time of the year.

Proof Positive.

Two men were standing outside a jewelers' window admiring the gorgeous display of glittering gems that lay before them. Presently one of them, pointing to an object in a red plush tray, said:

"Just look at that scarfpin, representing a fly. Anyone can tell that's not real."

"Well, I should think so," answered the friend. "Who ever saw a common fly with such a bright appearance? Why, it makes me weary when I think that the jeweler who produced that fondly hoped that some one would purchase it to deceive his friends. If I saw that on a man's scarf I could tell directly that it was an enameled imitation."

At that moment the object of their condemnation moved across the tray, flew in the air, and vanished. The two men looked at each other, gasped, and moved away without a word.—Pearson's Weekly.

AN ORDINARY OLD COIN.

But It Served to Bring Out the Failings of Weak Humanity.

"Say!" said the street car conductor to a mild-mannered man who was deeply engrossed in his newspaper. "Say, young feller, I don't want thats quarter. I can't use it." The mild-mannered man continued to hold out his hand for his change, but paid no other attention to the conductor.

"See here!" yelled the conductor, getting red in the face, "you can't pass no quarter like that on me. It's slick. I can't take it for more than 20 cents."

The mild man looked up and said: "I'm sorry, because you gave me that very quarter yourself last night, and I've been laying for you since. Well, give it here." He took the quarter and gave the conductor a nickel. As he took the quarter from the conductor he suddenly dropped his newspaper and gave a chuckle.

"Well, well!" he exclaimed; "here's luck. Bless me if that isn't an 1832 quarter with 14 stars and an arrow. It's worth $3.82." He slipped it into his pocket with evidence of much satisfaction.

A hungry-eyed man in the corner, who had overheard the conversation, jumped up and said to the conductor:

"Isn't that the very quarter I gave you yesterday morning? I missed that quarter. It was a pocketpiece and a valuable coin. I remember now that I gave it to you. I demand it!" he said, looking fiercely at the mild man. "If you are a gentleman you will give it to me."

"It isn't yours. You never gave it to me. My wife gave me the coin by mistake; it's part of a collection that's been in the family since 1827!" yelled the conductor.

"I tell you it's mine," said the hungry-eyed man. Thus they wrangled and quarreled all the way downtown.

"No," said the mild man to a neighbor, as he stepped from the car. "It's only a plain, ordinary old shiny quarter that I've been trying to pass off for a week. We were all lying. It's worth about 22 cents."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Oh! how I wish more suffering women would accept your kind offer and be relieved. There is no need for women to suffer. Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will relieve them."

MRS. IDA PETERS, Milan, Tenn., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—When I wrote to you the first time asking your advice I was a great sufferer. Menstruations were irregular, sometimes a week too soon and then a week or two late, and when they appeared were very profuse; great pain and tenderness in the bowels, pain in back and limbs, leucorrhœa all the time. I was weak and nervous and had no appetite. Burning and choking sensation in my throat. I received your reply and followed all your instructions and now I am cured. I owe my recovery all to you. Pinkham's advice and her wonderful remedies."

ELLA E. BRENNER, East Rochester, Ohio, writes: "I have been thankful a thousand times since I wrote to you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I followed your advice carefully and now I feel like a different person. My troubles were backache, headache, nervous tired feeling, painful menstruation and leucorrhœa. I took four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one box of Pills, one package of Sanative Wash and am now well."

MRS. MAGGIE P. STINE, New Berlin, Pa., writes: "I have suffered with terrible backache in the small of my back for about seven years, and could never get anything to help me. I tried several physicians, but found no help. I have now taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and feel like a different woman."

MRS. H. A., 124 S. Cedar Street, Owosso, Mich., writes: "Nearly three years ago I wrote to you asking advice in regard to my health. I was so miserable; suffered from painful menstruation and backache, was nervous, dizzy and faint. I received such a kind letter from you, telling me just what to do. I followed your advice and I now am recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I thank God for this pain destroyer."

Testimony on Behalf of Mrs. George Concluded Friday.

Brief Examination, by Agreement, Saturday and Testimony in Rebuttal--The Jury Will Probably Be Charged Wednesday Afternoon.

CANTON, O., April 20.—In the trial of Mrs. George Wednesday nothing was developed in the cross examination of Mrs. Huth in regard to the delay of the street car on which Mrs. George went west on the night of the tragedy. Jacob Adams testified to passing a man on Lincoln avenue, between Tuscarawas street and the Althouse residence, shortly before the shooting, and a little further south he passed Saxton and spoke to him.

Adams in cross-examination was somewhat confused on the time of the incidents he related, but partly explained this away by the difference between sun and standard time. He also said he had talked about a dozen times with Andrew Wielandt about what he related in testimony. Wielandt is a private detective.

Former Mayor George Rex testified to observations made Monday showing that a cherry tree interferes with the line of vision between the window where Mrs. Eckroate claims to have seen the shooting and the Althouse steps. E. D. Bomberger testified to the same observations and to the same effect.

Frank Hildenbrandt said he was the first to reach Saxton's body. He heard a groan and found the body after striking a match. He said the night was dark and misty. An electric light shed light on the upper part of the steps but none on the body. He said people could not be recognized in the darkness on that night.

Upton Shutz testified to the darkness of the night, that foliage of trees was heavy and that burdock burrs were numerous along a vacant lot in West Tuscarawas street.

George Swett gave similar testimony.

At noon Mr. Welty said the case would probably go to the jury by the middle of next week. He said the defense would probably conclude this week. Former Constable Jackman was further examined after noon. He told of replevining goods in Saxton's block claimed by Mrs. George and Saxton's objection to her going into the room to identify the goods.

CANTON, O., April 21.—The defense in the George trial began Thursday morning its attack on state witnesses claimed to be addicted to the opium or morphine habit. Dr. Eyman, superintendent of the state asylum for the insane at Newburg, testified as an expert. He said a person addicted to the habit loses honor and truthfulness and retains little or no principle.

Of 1,050 patients in his asylum, he estimated 50 to 100 were morphine victims. This testimony is most important and valuable to the defense. Mrs. Eckroate, who was the only witness who identified Mrs. George as the murderer, is an admitted morphine user.

Alva Whipple, P. E. Mook and Mrs. Mook testified to the darkness of the night. W. B. DeWees, Mrs. Maud Randall and Joseph A. Lippert testified to burrs growing along the sidewalk next to the house where Mrs. George roomed.

Thomas Shepard, the former janitor, was recalled and testified to having heard Saxton say he would kick Mrs. George out of the block if she didn't stay out.

S. S. Kaufmann, cashier of the national bank, testified to issuing drafts to Saxton to the amount of $300, which were cashed in South Dakota either by Mrs. George or others for her.

James Haddell, night clerk at the Hotel Federal, Allegheny, testified that Saxton and Mrs. George registered as G. D. Smith and wife, of Toledo, on March 24, 1896.

An alibi is promised by the defense. A woman who lives near the scene of the murder will swear that Mrs. George was in her house at the time of the shooting.

Attorneys for Mrs. George say they will account for her whereabouts during all of the time between 6 and 7 p. m.

CANTON, O., April 22.—The defense sought to show Friday by Miss Florence B. Klingler that in 1896 Mrs. George was making preparations to go to housekeeping. It was excluded until better evidence of a promise to marry her had been furnished. The witness also testified to passing Saxton on his way west at 5:55 the evening of his death. At 6:25 she said Mrs. George came to her home on Marion street and remained there until 6:50, when she went to Sterling's law office. These hours constitute an alibi, it being practically a physical impossibility to have been at the Althouse home at the hour of the shooting and at the Klingler home at 6:25.

E. J. Schlabaeh, a druggist, testified to having sold one-eight ounce bottle of morphine to Mrs. Eckroate at intervals of a week or two. Harry A. Taylor testified to Mrs. George and Saxton going to Allegheny in March, 1896.

Joseph Eckroate, husband of the woman who testified that she had seen and recognized Mrs. George in the act of firing two shots into Saxton's body, looking from her bedroom window, was called to the stand at the opening of the trial of Mrs. George Friday morning. He testified that his wife had been using a white powder presumed to be morphine, for the past 12 years. He said it made her drowsy and irritable.

Fred P. Shanafelt and Alex Garzer, druggists, also testified to selling morphine to Mrs. Eckroate. Former Policeman H. A. Smallfield, was prevented from telling about finding Mrs. George in the Saxton block after midnight one night.

Miss Effie Darr told of passing Mrs. George near the Lindeman house about 5:20 the evening of Saxton's death, and Mrs. Ella Fink testified to seeing Mrs. George at that house during the day and leaving it at 5:30, also to the presence of burrs and Spanish needles in the yard.

Miss Alice Mandebaugh testified to having often seen Mrs. Althouse enter the Saxton block in 1898.

CANTON, O., April 23.—The testimony on behalf of the defense in the trial of Mrs. George was concluded Friday. A brief cross examination, by agreement, will be conducted Saturday morning and then testimony in rebuttal will be offered. If this is concluded before the regular hour for noon adjournment court will then adjourn two days. The jury will probably be charged Wednesday forenoon. The features of Friday were the calling of Sampie C. George, the former husband of the defendant, to the stand, the alibi of Mrs. George and the effort to impeach the testimony of Mrs. Eckroate, the woman who claims to have recognized Mrs. George in the act of firing two of the shots.

CANTON, O., April 24.—Mrs. Lizzie Miller who saw the man in the mackintosh cape and sailor hat soon after the death of Saxton, was not on hand for cross-examination by the state when court opened Saturday. A doctor had been sent to investigate her physical ability to attend and the state reserved the right to take up the subject latter.

Then rebuttal on behalf of the state began. County Surveyor J. S. Hoover was called to testify as to the distances between points named in testimony for the defense. It was especially sought to show that the accused might have left the scene of the tragedy after the shooting and reached Florence Klingler's home at the hour named by that witness.

In an effort to rebut Mrs. Lindeman's testimony about Mrs. George not having a revolver concealed the day of the murder, policeman McCloud was called to show that Mrs. George had inside her corsage that day a number of napkins intended to improve her form. This was held incompetent in rebuttal.

Michael Barr, post office money order clerk, said he saw Mrs. George in the office at 2:50 and 3:15 the day of the murder. This was in contradiction of Mrs. Lindeman, who said Mrs. George was with her all of the afternoon. He also identified two letters in Mrs. George's writing.

Mrs. Lizzie Miller sent a medical certificate of inability to appear in court.

Sample C. George was called to fix the time of settlement with Saxton at two days before Saxton's death. The memoranda of settlement was offered in evidence.

Dr. A. C. Brant testified as a scientific witness on the morphine habit and also on an examination of Mrs. Eckroate. He said she shows no symptoms of the habitual use of opium.

Dr. A. B. Walker followed Dr. Brant and the remainder of the morning was devoted to medical testimony on the morphine habit.

Dr. Walker testified as to Mrs. Eckroate and that examinations show no symptoms of the habit in her case.

AN EXCURSION TRAIN STONED

Visitors Loaded With Ghastly Reminders of the Burning of Sam Hose, Attacked, Presumably By Negroes.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 24.—One special and two regular trains carried nearly 4,000 people to Newnan to witness the burning of Sam Hose or to visit the scene of the horrible affair. The excursionists returning Sunday night were loaded down with ghastly reminders of the affair in the shape of bones, pieces of flesh and parts of the wood which was placed at the Negro's feet.

One of the trains, as it passed through Fort McPherson, four miles out of Atlanta, was stoned—presumably by Negroes. A number of windows were broken and two passengers were painfully injured.

REPRESENTATIVE S. L. BAIRD

Religious Services Held Over His Remains in Washington—The Body Now on the Way to Bastrop, La.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Religious services over the remains of the late Representative Samuel L. Baird, of Louisiana, who died here Saturday, were held Sunday afternoon in the parlors of the Riggs house, where the deceased resided while in Washington. Rev. Dr. R. H. McKim, of the church of the Epiphany, officiated. There were many floral offerings, including a magnificent cross of roses and lilies from the Louisiana delegation in congress and a beautiful masonic emblem from the state lodge of Louisiana. The body was placed in a private car which left here at 10:45 Sunday night over the Southern railroad and is scheduled to reach Bastrop, La., the late home of the deceased, on Wednesday, where the body will be interred.

NEGRO LYNCHED.

In the Presence of Many People Sam Hose Was Burned to Death.

Before the Body Was Cool It Was Cut to Pieces and Bones Crushed—Ex-Gov. Atkinson, Who Interfered, Was Threatened With Death.

NEWNAN, Ga., April 24.—In the presence of nearly 2,000 people, who sent aloft yells of defiance and shouts of joy, Sam Hose, a Negro who committed two of the basest acts known to crime, was burned at the stake in a public road one and one-half miles from here Sunday afternoon. Before the torch was applied to the pyre, the Negro was deprived of his ears, fingers and other portions of his anatomy. The Negro plead pitifully for his life while the mutilation was going on, but stood the ordeal of fire with surprising fortitude. Before the body was cool it was cut to pieces, the bones were crushed into small bits and even the tree upon which the wretch met his fate was torn up and disposed of as souvenirs. The Negro's heart was cut in several pieces as was also his liver. Those unable to obtain the ghastly relics direct, paid their more fortunate possessors extravagant sums for them. Small pieces of bone went for 25 cents and a bit of the liver crisply cooked sold for 10 cents. As soon as the Negro was seen to be dead, there was a tremendous struggle among the crowd which had witnessed his tragic end to secure the souvenirs. A rush was made for the stake and those near the body were forced against it and had to fight for their freedom. Knives were quickly produced and the body was soon dismembered.

The mob was composed of citizens of Newnan, Griffin, Palmetto and other little towns in the country roundabout Newnan, and of all the farmers who had received word that the burning was to take place.

Hon. W. Y. Atkinson, formerly governor of Georgia, met the mob as he was returning from church and appealed to them to let the law take its course. In addressing the mob he used these words:

"Some of you are known to me, and when this affair is finally settled in the courts you may depend upon it that I will testify against you."

A member of the mob was seen to draw a revolver and level it at Gov. Atkinson, but his arm was seized and the pistol taken from him.

Hose confessed to killing Cranford, but denied that he had outraged Mrs. Cranford. Before being put to death the Negro stated that he had been paid $12 by "Life" Strickland, a Negro preacher at Palmetto, to kill Cranford. Sunday night a mob of citizens was scouring the country for Strickland, who has left his home, and will lynch him if caught.

Gov. Candler has been asked to send troops here to preserve order for a day or two, as it is feared the Negroes may wreak vengeance, many threats to that effect having been made.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 24.—The Constitution says Monday: "The terrible expiation which Sam Hose was forced to pay for his crime will arouse a flood of discussion carried on by those who know the facts on the one side and by those who do not care for facts on the other.

"But, while the form of this criminal's punishment can not be upheld, let those who are disposed to criticise it look into the facts and by these facts temper the judgment they may render.

"An unassuming, industrious and hard working farmer, after his day's toil, sat at his evening meal. Around him sat wife and children happy in the presence of the man who was fulfilling to them every duty imposed by nature. At peace with the world, serving God and loyal to humanity, they looked forward to the coming day.

"Noiselessly the murderer, with uplifted ax, advanced from the rear and sank it to the hilt in the brain of the unsuspecting victim. Tearing the child from the mother's breast he flung it into the pool of blood oozing from its father's wound.

"Then began the culmination which has dethroned the reason of the people of Western Georgia during the past week.

"The wife was seized, choked, thrown upon the floor, where her clothing lay in the blood of her husband, and ravished.

"Remember the facts! Remember the dark night in the country home! Remember the slain husband, and, above all, remember that shocking degradation which was inflicted by the black beast, his victim swimming in her husband's warm blood as the brute held her to the floor!

"Keep the facts in mind!' When the picture is painted of the ravisher in flames, go back and view that darker picture of Mrs. Cranford outraged in the blood of her murdered husband."

TORONTO, Ont., April 24.—In some parts of the province there is something of a cattle famine because of the large number shipped into the United States since the quarantine was removed.

Three Persons Killed By a Train.

BARABOO, Wis., April 24.—Four young people were run down Saturday by the Chicago & Northwestern fast mail at Crawford's crossing near this city. They were walking on the track. Three were instantly killed.

PORTO RICO PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Sub-Director Clark Makes a Report—American Teachers Are Paid $50 Per Month and Transportation.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—In a report to the secretary of war Dr. Victor S. Clark, sub-director of public instruction in Porto Rico, says that only $54 a month can be offered to American teachers with transportation to the island from New York. The English speaking supervisors are men and through them it is hoped to weed out abuses and develope some system of control.

Dr. Clark has prepared a revised course of study containing only such subjects as are taught in American schools. As understood in this country there is no system of higher education in Porto Rico. No school on the island affords adequate means for American college work. There are normal institutions for boys and girls.

The public schools are kept open 12 months in the year and six days in the week. In summer only morning sessions are held. There is no co-education of the sexes. No school houses exist on the island, the schools usually being held at the residences of the teachers. Only a part of the pupils have text books.

In many cases the pupils take to the schools the chairs which they occupy. The pupils study aloud. About 525 schools are reported in the island and a little over $300,000 is annually paid for their support. A great desire is manifested to learn English. New text books are being published in this country to replace the Spanish books now in use. A pedagogical museum and American library has been established at San Juan.

THE GOLD BRICK SWINDLER.

Hirsch Coppelman Pleaded Guilty in New York and Was Sentenced to Four Years and Ten Months in Prison.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Hirsch Coppelman who pleaded guilty a month ago to swindling Jacob Bernstein, of Cincinnati, out of $13,000 by means of the gold brick scheme, was sentenced Friday by Judge Newberger to four years and ten months in prison. Saul Jacobs is now serving a sentence of seven and a half years in Sing Sing prison for the crime committed by Coppelman who was arrested in Chicago after having made a confession to Minnie Jacobs, the daughter of Saul Jacobs. Miss Jacobs searched the country for the real offender in order to effect the release of her father. A petition is now being signed for the pardon of Jacobs. It will be sent to Gov. Roosevelt.

THE MISSOURI RIVER FLOOD.

At Surbank, S. D., Cattle Are Reported to Be Drowning—Body of Water Fifteen Miles Long and Eight Miles Wide.

VERMILLION, S. D., April 22.—The flood situation is far worse Friday night than at any time this week and the Missouri river has risen two inches in five hours. Stock left on farms between the Missouri and Vermillion rivers can not now be taken off. At Surbank cattle are reported to be drowning. From Vermillion for 15 miles west toward Yanktown and eight miles south of Nebraska Bluffs the country is almost a solid body of water from two to four feet deep. The land east towards Sioux City is fast being submerged.

CRIPPLING SAMOAN REBELS.

Samoa Villages Burned by British Officers—All the Boats of the Natives Captured and Taken to Apia.

LONDON, April 22.—According to a letter received here Friday from a British naval officer at Apia, Samoa, dated March 18, the British cruiser, Porpoise, Capt. Sturdee, in order to cripple the rebels, cruised around the coast of Upolu, burning villages and carrying to Apia all the boats of the natives. As their boats are regarded by the Samoan islanders as their most valuable possessions, it was believed that this plan would really inflict greater hardship upon them than the destruction of their villages.

SHERMAN VISITS M'KINLEY.

The President Greeted Him Warmly and Expressed Congratulations Upon the Ex-Secretary's Recovery.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Ex-Secretary Sherman was one of the president's callers Thursday. The ex-secretary has so far recovered that he is able to take a short drive each day. Although his recent severe illness has left him wan and thin, he looked remarkably well Thursday, considering his advanced age. The president greeted him cordially, expressing his warmest congratulations upon his recovery. Mr. Sherman remained but a few minutes.

Laurence Sterne, the English writer, had fine theories about conjugal behavior, but did not carry them into practice. He said one day to Garrick: "The husband who behaves unkindly to his wife deserves to have his house burned over his head." The famous actor said, quietly: "I hope yours is well insured."

THE DOLLAR DINNER.

William J. Bryan at the New York Jefferson Banquet.

Declares for the Chicago Platform Without Change—Monopoly and Militarism Republican Evils.

The widely heralded "dollar dinner" given by New York democrats in honor of Thomas Jefferson's birthday, Saturday evening, April 15, was the scene of an enthusiastic reception to the champion of free silver, William Jennings Bryan, who was the leading guest of the occasion. Mr. Bryan spoke upon democratic differences and divisions over the Chicago platform as follows:

"I am glad to have this opportunity to join with Chicago platform democrats in celebrating the birthday of Thomas Jefferson. I need offer no apology for coming to New York. Indeed, I would be ungrateful if I did not appreciate the loyalty of 550,000 voters who in this state supported the ticket nominated in Chicago. While my opponent carried the state, our ticket received more votes in the state of New York than it did in any other state, and you who supported the ticket walked through the furnace when the fires of criticism were seven times hotter than they have been before during the present generation.

On the Price Per Plate.

"The discussion of the price per plate has observed, to some extent, the more important differences between this banquet and the one given last Tuesday night at the Metropolitan opera house. A democrat has the right to pay as much as he pleases for a dinner. The amount paid merely determines whether the rank and file of the party, or only the leaders, shall meet around the board. The political character of a banquet, however, is determined not by its cost, but by the sentiments which are woven into its post-prandial oratory.

"Those who accepted the party creed as set forth in the last national platform have a right to meet and renew their vows to Jefferson and encourage each other in the effort to apply the principles of Jefferson to present conditions, to the end that justice in government and equality before the law may be restored to the people. Your presence here does not indicate hostility toward those who left the party in 1896. A party is an association formed for the purpose of giving force and effect to the political principles held in common. When differences in principles arise separation is not only necessary, but desirable.

"The members of the republican party cannot complain because certain republicans left the party rather than accept the St. Louis platform. Neither can members of the democratic party complain because gold democrats left the democratic party rather than accept the Chicago platform. The silver republicans organized a party and took to it a name which distinguished it from the regular republican party, and silver republicans, true to their organization, are not attempting to control the policy or write the platform of the republican party.

"They openly joined with the democrats in 1896, and their sympathy for the believers in the Chicago platform is as open today as it was then. The gold democrats organized a separate and distinct party, but instead of calling themselves gold democrats they described themselves as national democrats, and in Nebraska and some other states had their electors placed upon the ticket as democrats with nothing to distinguish them from the electors who represented the regular democratic party.

Political Bigamists.

"Either Chicago-platform democrats must abandon their convictions or the democrats who deserted the party must abandon the views they entertained in 1896. A man cannot be a political bigamist. He cannot be wedded to the name of one party and the principles of another party. All that we contend for is that those who deserted us in 1896 shall divorce themselves either from our party name or from the political principles of opposing parties. Democrats are not dismayed when they hear the Chicago platform denounced this year by those who denounced it in 1896.

"It was satisfactory then to those who supported it, and it is equally satisfactory to them now. It was an invitation to those who believed in equality of the law and a menace to those only who used the instrumentalities of government for private gain. It was written by the voters and it cannot be unwritten until the voters speak again to their chosen representatives. In fact, events have vindicated that platform, rather than condemned it.

"The Chicago platform denounced the gold standard as un-American and anti-American. It pledged the party to do what it could do to secure a restoration of the double standard. The president admitted our contention as being just when he sent a commission to Europe to secure international aid in abandoning the gold standard. We did not believe in 1896 that international bimetallism was possible. Events have shown that it is a delusion.

"The republican platform pledged the party to maintain the gold standard until parity could be secured from abroad. What could be more absurd—dear to expert aid from foreign financiers when we remember that the purpose and effect of the gold standard has been to increase the purchasing power of the dollar and to enable London financiers to control the standard money of the world. The democratic party cannot abandon its demand for independent bimetallism unless it is willing to turn the control of the finances of the United States over to foreign financiers. A nation strong enough to help the people of Cuba to secure independence is strong enough to demand, secure and maintain a financial policy of its own.

Sixteen to One Ratio.

"The Chicago platform named a ratio of sixteen to one as the only ratio by which bimetallism could be restored. What party has arisen since to suggest another remedy? Those who objected to sixteen to one are making no efforts to secure bimetallism at any other ratio. They are determined, not constructive, in their efforts. They oppose without proposing. Bimetallism cannot be restored until a ratio is fixed, and those who oppose bimetallism under any conditions will not be permitted to emasculate the platform and render the party an adjunct to the republican party in its effort to make the gold standard permanent through deceptive promises.

"The Chicago platform denounced the scheme then being developed to retire the greenbacks and substitute a national bank currency. That scheme is now fully developed. The proposition to give to the national banks a monopoly of the paper money of the country is supported by many who complain against the industrial trusts. Is it insincerity or cowardice which leads them to attack the small trusts and make peace with the money trust? If the republicans succeed in passing the bill now before congress the greenbacks will be retired by an issue of bonds drawing 2% per cent. interest, and the national banks will be permitted to issue bank notes to the par value of the bonds, and will have the present tax of one per cent. on circulation reduced to a small fraction of one per cent.

"In other words, the people will be taxed a little more to pay the interest on the bonds, and the banks will be taxed less upon their circulation and allowed to issue more notes. Under the new law a bank with a capital of $100,000 can invest its capital in bonds, and then upon the bonds being deposited issue $100,000 in bank notes to take the place of the money invested in the bonds. Thus the bank will be permitted to draw interest upon the bonds and at the same time use the money covered by the bonds, a privilege denied to every other class in the community.

"The democratic party will continue its attack upon the principle of monopoly wherever it appears, whether in the standard money trust, the paper money trust, or the industrial trust. Instead of making its anti-trust plank narrow enough to suit those who are alarmed at the soap trust, but oblivious of the dangers of a money trust, it will invite all who will oppose monopoly to stand upon a platform broad enough to attack the principle wherever manifested.

"I need not refer to the subject of militarism and assure you that I have found no disposition among the democrats to permit the maintenance of a large standing army. Even the republican party, with all its tendency toward centralization, and its disregard of the taxpayers, did not care to incorporate in its last platform a demand for an increase in the army.—A temporary increase such as the democrats in congress consented to can be justified, but this increase must be limited to the settlement of the questions which made the temporary increase necessary.

"The opposition to imperialism has grown so rapidly that the president was constrained to deny any purpose to enter upon such a course. But the denial is of little value when the purpose upon the part of the administration is so apparent. The proclamation issued to the Filipinos plainly indicates a purpose to govern them without their consent and to tax them to suit our purposes rather than their own. According to the plan thus far outlined, the constitutional guarantees which protect the people of the United States will not be extended to the Filipinos; our people will govern themselves; the Filipinos will be governed by the executive through officers appointed by him. In this outline we shall have a republic, in the Philippines a despotism. A despotism is not relieved of its name because of its benevolence.

On Government of Filipinos.

"A government wherein authority rests upon force, and where the people have no voice in making and executing the laws under which they live, is despotic in its form. When we pleaded for independence for the Filipinos, we pleaded for our own people, rather than for them. We believe in the doctrine of self-government, and are not only unwilling to deny it to alien races, but we fear that a denial of it in one part of the nation will lead to the abandonment of it entirely. The moment force is raised above reason, the moment might is substituted for right in the government of any part of this country, that moment decay attacks the fundamental principles of the republic. If the people become sufficiently indifferent to the doctrine of self-government to permit its abandonment in the orient, they will not long defend it here. It is a significant fact that those who in 1896 were willing to borrow a financial system from England are now foremost among the people who would borrow a colonial policy from England. How long before they would be willing to borrow the laws of entail and primogeniture and the splendors of a royal court and a titled nobility?"

Hanna Is Hurt.

Queer how touchy men will be upon some subjects and blandly indifferent to others equally delicate. Here, for instance, is Mr. Hanna using the Associated Press to repudiate with great vehemence the mere insinuation that he was in Secretary Alger's office while beef contracts were being discussed. He denounces Maj. Lee as a contemptible person and manifests much distress at what her terms a vile insinuation. One would be warranted in deeming Mr. Hanna a gentleman of the finest sensibilities when his honor is involved. Yet we cannot forget that this same Mr. Hanna was charged—not by implication, but in good set terms—with bribery; that he was summoned to defend himself at Columbus, and that he ignored and still ignores the charges, which are sustained by the testimony of a cloud of witnesses under oath. In other words, Mr. Hanna supports with equanimity the unanswerable charge that he is a briber and corruptionist, but resents with fiery indignation the insinuation that he is on friendly terms with Alger. This is pretty tough on Alger, whatever may be thought of Mr. Hanna's ethical standard.—Chicago Chronicle.

That Money Power.

In all the talk about the money question there is just one thing which should never be lost sight of. The people must retain the function of creating money and this right must not be handed over to the men who want to grow richer by controlling the currency of this country. There are many trusts in the United States, but the greatest and most threatening of all is the money trust. The function of expanding and contracting the volume of the currency belongs to the government and not to the individual. In the hands of a money trust the manipulators of the currency can increase their wealth by contracting the volume and increasing the purchasing power of the money they possess.—Chicago Democrat.

——In his speech at the Roosevelt banquet in Chicago Postmaster General Smith said of the Philippines: "We are there with healing and blessing. We are there with the Bible and civilization." Is slaughter of the Filipinos the correct shorthand for a part of the "healing and blessing" that Mr. Smith describes? Are our battlings wadded with "Bibles?" We have already killed more of the natives than the Spaniards butchered in 100 years. Is this "civilization"—with a big C? "Deliver us from cant!" was the prayer of rugged and honest Thomas Carlyle.—N. Y. World.

——Senator Hanna's denial that he was ever present at any conference concerning army beef contracts and his vehement repudiation of "the contemptible insinuations of that man Lee" may create the impression in the public mind that this Falstaff "doth protest too much." Maj. Lee's casual questioning of Eagan appears to have pierced the Ohio senator's ordinary thick armor and brought forth a conspicuous howl of distress.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

——The situation in the president's own state is most discouraging to his prospects of reelection and has already caused great alarm in the ranks of the Ohio faithful. The people, however, may be content. The Ohio machine has for years been one of the most corrupt and domineering of the many political organizations of the country and anything that will tend to limit its power for evil is to be welcomed as a wholesome change.—Rochester (N. Y.) Herald.

William Marshall, aged seventy, of Boyle county, was found dead in his corn crib. He had died while gathering up an armful of corn. He was one of John Morgan's men.

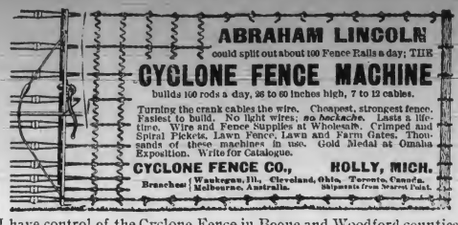
John Woods, aged 16, and Miss Sallie Bilyen, aged 13, were married at Russellville. When the ceremony was ended the groom handed the officiating minister twenty-five cents.

Near Lafayette, Christian county, in a fight between William Freeman and his son on one side, and W. A. Dills and R. T. Dills, brothers, on the other, one of the Dills boys was killed and the other mortally wounded.

Oak and ash timber is in great demand, and now that the weather has opened up so that the timber can be cut and floated the mountain men are putting a great deal of it on the market, but are selling all at an advance price.

Judge Hobson, of the Court of Appeals, has handed down an opinion reversing the judgment of the Kenton Circuit Court in the case of the Commonwealth against J. B. Respess. Respess was indicted on four counts for operating a pool-room. He was convicted on the fourth indictment and then pleaded former conviction as to other indictments, and was sustained by the lower court. The Court of Appeals holds that conviction in one case does not bar proceedings in other cases.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.



[Courier.]

Dr. J. M. Wilson made a good sale of fine Jersey cows on last Monday. He sold eight young cows and calves for $50 per head to a party in Laurel county.

For the first time in many years the Republicans of Grant county have recognized the colored brother. The regular convention, last Saturday selected Eugene Lair and Hubbard Robinson, colored gentlemen, as delegates to the convention at Richmond, May 2.

The committee that went to Frankfort on last Thursday to meet the State Board of Equalization and protest against the proposed raise of 40 per cent. on lands and personalty and 30 per cent. on town lots, succeeded beyond their fondest expectations. The committee met the State Board and after a very short and pleasant interview with them succeeded in having the proposed raise in Grant county reduced from the excessive amount proposed to 12 per cent. off lands and personalty, subject to equalization, and nothing on town lots. The reduction in the amount of taxes to be paid by Grant county citizens will amount to $11,000, and this much the taxpayers are saved by the work of the committee.

The Boone county Republicans in convention at Petersburg, last Saturday, denounced the McKinley administration in most vigorous language. We were not aware that there was a sufficient number of Republicans in Boone county to denounce anybody. Boone county which is no larger and no better, except that it has more Democrats, than Grant county, can in a close place turn out 2,000 Democratic majority. It would be more in accord with the general propriety of the times for Boone county Republicans to lay low and say nothing. There is an old saw that "the emptier the barrel the more noise it makes." We have often noticed that the smallest minority can do more general denouncing and raise more fuss than a respectable majority. Here's to the Boone county Republicans. Had we more like them, the Democrats could carry the State 100,000 more or less.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

has demonstrated ten thousand times that it is almost infallible

FOR WOMAN'S PECULIAR WEAKNESSES,

Irregularities and derangements. It has become the leading remedy for this class of troubles. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence upon the menstrual organs. It cures "whites" and falling of the womb. It stops flooding and relieves suppressed and painful menstruation. For Change of Life it is the best medicine made. It is beneficial during pregnancy, and helps to bring children into homes barren for years. It invigorates, stimulates, strengthens the whole system. This great remedy is offered to all afflicted women. Why will any woman suffer another minute with certain relief within reach? Wine of Cardui only costs $1.00 per bottle at your drug store.

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rev. J. W. SMITH, Camden, S. C., says: "My wife used Wine of Cardui at home for falling of the womb and it entirely cured her."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1899. NO. 28.

INDIANA has a State law that is causing foreign insurance companies to be looked after.

THE acquittal of Mrs. George for the killing of Saxon in Canton, Ohio, meets public approval. Everybody was for the woman.

THE Aurora City Council took the back-track, and will permit the Rising Sun people to enjoy the convenience of an electric road.

THE Democratic State convention is drawing nigh, and the friends of the several candidates for State officers, are working like bees.

C. H. ACRA, of Bellevue, was in town yesterday, and was appointed deputy county clerk, and went home prepared to attend to official business.

J. W. HANCE, of Jackson Landing, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination as representative from Carroll and Gallatin counties, in the next Legislature.

HARDIN accuses Stone of voting for gold bonds while a member of Congress, and Stone accuses Hardin of running for Governor in 1895 on a gold platform, and each proves the other guilty as charged.

THE death of Esq. Benjamin Ryle, of Rabbit Hash, creates a vacancy in the Fiscal Court of this county. The County Court Monday appointed R. L. Roberts, of the Big Bone precinct to fill the vacancy.

THE Lexington Banner says, "any Democratic candidate for any State or district office who opposes the Goebel law, the McChord railroad bill, the Chinn school book bill, or Jo Blackburn for United States Senator, had as well keep out of Livingston county. This county is Democratic."

LAST Monday D. E. Castleman, Chairman of the Boone County Democratic Executive Committee, received notice that the Committee of this Senatorial district will meet at Sparta, Gallatin county, next Friday, to fix time and place and manner of nominating a Democratic candidate for State Senator.

THE Republican Railroad Commissioner's convention held in Louisville, adopted the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That we utterly condemn the recent attempt of the Democratic party in this State to thwart the will of the people and subvert free elections by the enactment of the infamous Goebel election law."

It is now time that the position of all the Democratic candidates for Governor be known as regards that law.

LOCAL politics came to the top Monday, and two candidates for Representative stepped to the front, and declared their desires to look after Boone's interest in the next General Assembly.

About two o'clock p. m., the ringing of the Court-house bell called the voters to the Circuit Court room, where it was understood the candidates would make speeches. A good crowd soon assembled to learn what was on tap politically.

D. E. Castleman was master of ceremonies, and introduced J. W. Kennedy, of Union, who, in a neat speech, reviewed the history of the two great political parties, and advocated Democratic principles from start to finish. He announced his candidacy for the legislature, and said if elected he would serve the people to the very best of his ability.

Judge Ben Stephens, of Florence, was next introduced, and in a brief speech announced that he was a candidate, and declared in favor of the reduction of expenses all along the line, and for Joe Blackburn for Senator. The speech of each of the candidates was well received, and the canvass is now on, and bids fail to be an interesting contest.

Dr. Crouch, of Union, and Hon. N. S. Walton, of Petersburg, each made a speech in response to calls. They were given close attention throughout their remarks, which were brief. It was stated on the streets Monday that both of these gentlemen will be candidates for State Senator.

TO THE CHURCHES.

Hear A Parable of The Travlers.

A certain King had a number of servants. Since the native land was sterile and yielded poor fruits, he called his servants unto him, and sent them forth to establish permanent homes in a distant, but far better land. He said to them, "my son has gone before you; he will meet you at the border and welcome you into the goodly land. But since the way is difficult—infected by savages, wild beasts and pestilent diseases, here are directions sent by him for your guidance." He handed them a scroll and they departed. From the scroll they read: "Each servant shall love his fellow servant as himself. Yea, so sincere and great shall be this love that ye shall be one."

But the servants and their families often strove against each other. This strife especially deterred the aliens, through whose country they passed, from joining them, for the King had instructed them to take with them all the aliens they could pursuade to go. Several of the servants demanded that the others should all join their family and do as they did and think as they thought; and said if they did not do so, they were not true servants of the King. All who, for conscience sake, refused to do so they would not fellowship with, and refused to let them eat of the King's meat at their tables.

When they reached the border of the better land, the son of the King met them, and inquired of them about their journey. They gave him a truthful account of their trials and difficulties, and as they spoke of their own strifes, they who had been selfish complained against the others and said: "Master, we were right, but these others would not agree with us, but refused to think as we thought, and to do as we did, therefore we refused to let them eat with us, neither would we eat with them. Now, we desire of thee, inasmuch as they will not agree with us, and, are, therefore wrong, that you give us a separate land and surround it with a high wall so they cannot encroach upon us."

Then the son said to them, "we have no separate countries, nor wall of partition in this land: but all are children of one father, and members of one family. Did ye not read the scroll? Did I, therein, anywhere command you to make others think as you think? But as ye separated yourselves by the way, and thus grieved your fellow-servants, and greatly hindered the winning of aliens; and you still have a heart of separation, it is now too late to teach you to obey and love. I will separate you. Depart into the land of darkness and death." Then were they dumb with astonishment, for they had thought that they were right.

J. W. HARRIS.

Meeting of the District Board.

The Executive Board of the North Bend Association of Baptists met with the Bellevue Baptist church, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. The visiting ministers were Elders J. A. Kirtley, C. G. Jones, T. P. Eaton, S. E. Davies, M. J. Hoover, Sam'l Burgess and B. F. Swindler. The following churches were represented: Bullittsburg, Big Bone, Burlington and Sand Run.

Tuesday morning devotional exercises were conducted by Bro. Sam'l Burgess. The body was then organized with Thomas Roberts chairman, and M. J. Hoover secretary.

Bro. S. E. Davies discussed Church Worship. In part he said that the life and progress of a church depend upon the worship. We now have a more perfect form of worship. Old forms would not allow stoves or fire in the places of worship. The length of service is now much shorter than formerly. Under the old forms every man had to go in the meeting house whether he worshipped or not. Men were appointed to keep order and prevent sleeping. The evil tendency of today is men staying away from worship. The music today is brighter, more hopeful and triumphant. There is a constant improvement in the form of worship. The worship in the Episcopal and Catholic churches is beautiful in form but produces little or no effect. His idea was that every one should take part in the service.

Dr. T. T. Eaton spoke of the form killing the spirit of worship. He urged all to reject every form not sanctioned by the Scripture.

Bro. M. J. Hoover spoke of Baptists in history. History showed that the Lutheran church was originated by Martin Luther, A. D., 1525; the Episcopal, from the Romish church, by Henry the 8th, A. D. 1534; the Presbyterian church, by John Calvin, A. D. 1516; the Methodist church, by John Wesley, A. D., 1739; the "Christian church," by Alexander Campbell, A. D. 1829. History does not assign to Baptist churches a human founder or a post-apostolic date of origin. Mosheim says: "Before the rise of Luther and Calvin, there lay secreted in almost all the countries of Europe, persons who adhered tenaciously to the principles of the Modern Dutch Baptists." * * "The origin of Anabaptists is hid in the depths of Antiquity." Zwingli says: "The institution of the Anabaptists is no novelty, but for 1300 years has caused great trouble to the church." Dr. Ypeig, Prof. of Theology, in the University of Groningen, and Rev. J. J. Dermont, both members of the Dutch Reformed church, say, "Baptists may be considered as the only Christian community which has stood since the apostles, and as a Christian society has preserved pure the doctrines of the gospel through all ages."

He next spoke of the persecution of the Baptists. Many suffered the torture of whips, thumb-screws, pincers and racks. The contumacious were silenced in flames, overwhelmed in floods or settled by the headsman. Romanists, Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Independants and Lutherans, each in turn, as they gained power, tested their logic of torments on Baptists.

Epi-copacy kindled its fires in Smithfield, burned Baptists and others. Calvin had Michael Servetus burned to death in 1553. Martin Luther said of the Anabaptists, "let the sword exercise right over them." He next spoke of Baptists and civil and religious liberty. Bancroft says: "Freedom of conscience, unlimited freedom of mind, was from the first a trophy of the Baptists." The celebrated John Locke says: "The Baptists were the first and only propounders of absolute liberty: just and true liberty; equal and impartial liberty." George Washington said of the Baptists that "they had been throughout America uniformly the persevering promoters of the glorious Revolution." Through their influence the amendment securing religious liberty was made to the Constitution. He spoke of the liberality of the Baptists. Thomas Hollis, a Baptist, founded two professorships in Harvard College, and Ebenezer Lane, a Baptist, contributed the foundation of Lane Theological Seminary, and gave it to the Presbyterians.

Dr. T. T. Eaton next discussed the subject, "A New Testament Church." He said that the church had no place in the Old Testament, but belonged strictly to the New Testament. The word church is used only once in the Old Testament, and then it means a congregation. Jesus says, Matt. 16:18, "on this rock I WILL build my church." The action is emphatically future, whereas he had for four thousand years, been building the universal church. A New Testament Church is a local, independent body. This is seen from the reference made by the inspired writers to the churches at Colosse, Philippi, Ephesus and other places. It was an independent body because it attended to its own affairs, settled all questions in the body itself. The local church was the highest ecclesiastical authority known to the New Testament writers. It was composed of them who are sanctified, called saints. A Christian is a saint, i. e. set apart for the Lord's service. Christian is a partisan name. Saint is the correct name. A New Testament Church was composed only of people who gave evidence of conversion; it did not acknowledge either infants or the unconverted as having any connection with it. Again, it is composed of baptized believers. The converts were baptized at Philippi; at Corinth; and throughout Asia Minor. He next spoke of the officers of a New Testament Church, showing that there were only two, as follows: Elders, Bishops or Pastors, and Deacons. Elder, Bishop and Pastor are used in the New Testament to denote one and the same person. There is no distinction made between the terms. Again, the duties of the Elder, or Pastor or Bishop are clearly defined in the New Testament, while there is not one word said about the duties of a ruling Elder. He then spoke of the Discipline of a New Testament Church. Paul instructs the church to exercise discipline. The church is the sole executive body. It can not pass any legislative enactments but simply to execute the enactments of divine authority. Again, a New Testament Church did not depend upon rites and ceremonies, but upon Christ for salvation.

Dr. Kirtley spoke of the Responsibilities of a Christian, 1st, to his God; 2d, to his church; 3d to the world. This responsibility grows out of the new relationship between the regenerated man and his God. He becomes a new creature in Christ Jesus by the new birth. He is born of the truth and the spirit. Of his own will begat he us with the truth. He is dead to sin and alive to holiness. He has received distinguishing grace, and hence owes distinguishing service. He owes supreme allegiance to the Lord; he is to lead a life of holiness, and promote the cause of Christ in every way. He must contend earnestly for the faith once for all delivered unto the saints. He must help maintain the worship of God and look after the spiritual growth of the church. He dwelt at length upon personal responsibility. Women are fellow-helpers but not preachers. They must do good unto all men, especially unto the household of faith. The Christian's responsibility to the world is great. He must labor to spread the Gospel throughout the world as well as to maintain it at home. He must seek, through the publication of the Gospel, the salvation of the world. He must set before the word a Godly life in order to be unto the world a light to bring the world to see Jesus.

Bro. C. G. Jones spoke on the Lord's Supper. He made a full comparison, between the Christian, Episcopal, Presbyterian and the Methodist and the Baptist churches on the communion, from the writings of leading men of the "Christian church," the Prayer book, Confession of faith and the Discipline. He showed that in theory these great denominations were close communionists notwithstanding the fact that they are open communionists in practice. Members of the Christian church hold that they could not commune until they were baptized and nothing is baptism save immersion. However, if unbaptized persons wish to commune they offer no objection. The Episcopal Prayer book says that before one shall be permitted to partake of the sacraments of the Lord's Supper, that person must be confirmed or ready and anxious to be confirmed. He also showed that no one is authorized to administer the Lord's Supper in the Episcopal church and in the Presbyterian church except by ministers lawfully ordained by these respective bodies. In speaking of the teaching of the Methodist church on the Lord's Supper, he used the Discipline of 1898.

Bro. B. F. Swindler gave a full discussion of "Why I am Baptist." He spoke of both negative and positive reasons. His early idea of becoming a Christian was change of heart. Baptists believe in a spiritual regeneration. Works do not figure in passing from death unto life. Salvation does not turn upon baptism. The Baptists go to the New Testament for guidance in all matters. The New Testament teaches that the immersion in water in the name of the Trinity is the only valid baptism; it also teaches the baptism of believers only. The complete separation of church and State.

Bro. T. L. Utz closed the exercises of the day with an account of his own experience. He was sprinkled when an unconscious babe, into the Lutheran church. He was trained up by pious parents, members of that church. When a man he was converted in a Presbyterian meeting. By a study of the New Testament he saw that he had never been baptized. He was baptized and became a member of Big Bone church. His remarks made a very deep impression upon all present.

Wednesday the Board met, and after transacting the routine work adjourned to meet with the Oak Ridge church, July 13 and 14.

A PLEA FOR THE CHILDREN.

Who will contend for the rights of the children? Some have contended for "Woman's rights," some for the "Laborer's rights" and all for their own "Religious rights," but when the children shall have their rights, another generation will not pass until all will be righted. The child's rights are legion—beginning with a right to a welcome into this world and continuing as long as he remain a child. He is a coward who will not defend his home, but what is home without the children? Nothing so dear to man as his own offspring, and yet the helpless have been long neglected. We have discussed good roads for Boone county, but let us consider which road we shall put our children on.

We talk of who shall represent us in the Legislature, but how shall we be represented by our children 25 years hence is of far greater importance. Some take great pains that they may have the best trained dog or horse: we can not afford to neglect our crops: but the children? how little thought and time given to them? Let every father and mother—every minister and lover of humanity ask, "what can I do for the children?

We pass by the physical training that may be so essential to their health, happiness and usefulness; have not time and space for what might be said in favor of education and improvement of our already splendid school system; but call attention to that which is of far greater importance—the spiritual training of our children. An intellectual giant is preferable to a Sullivan; and God places greater value upon goodness than upon intellect. Ten years in the ministry has convinced me that the world is to be made better through the children. We can easily direct their minds in the way they should go, but the old tree will break before it will bend. How few are they who have departed from the way in which they were brought up. They are as putty in our hands and we are molding their lives—shaping their destiny. Will not God hold us responsible for what they shall be? Surely I am my child's keeper.

I would not have any body neglect the home training and daily study of the Bible for the one hour in class on Sundays; but I would emphasize the Sunday School and have all Christian people unite to make it better. Who are the rogues and ruffians, loafers and liars, gamblers and drunkards of our country? Are they the Sunday School children of a few years ago? If such is the exception, why not crowd all the children into the Sunday School? 'Twould save time and money and trouble and souls. Kentucky is not up with many States in Sunday School work; and, I believe, Boone county is far below the rank she should hold in the State. Perhaps the Sunday School is father behind than anyother department of church work. Boone county has the teachers, she has the wealth, has the children; shall she lack the energy to carry on a live, progressive Sunday School work? Put your thinking cap on and let us see how many good methods we can have suggested at our June convention for helping this work. If you are for temperance, morality, good citizenship, or christianizing the world; put every effort into the Sunday School and you shall reap a bountiful harvest in one generation.

Can not this work be accomplished through "The Boone County S. S. Union"—including every Sunday School in Boone county? Let every worker come up to this convention full of enthusiasm. Place: Point Pleasant church; Time, Friday, June 9, 1899. Officers, Pres. Geo. W. Watkins, Constance, Ky.; Secy. Mrs. Ora. Russell Riggs, Constance, Ky.

We want a report from every Sunday School read at this convention. Let every Supt. see that the blank sent by the Secretary is filled out and returned to her with the necessary contribution to pay into the State work.

GEO. W. WATKINS.

IN this issue will be found the announcement of James W. Kennedy, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature. Mr. Kennedy is a gentleman whose democracy is beyond question, and who is eminently qualified for a good representative. THERE is a conflict in the testimony as to the climate at Manila. Some represent it as very deadly, while Consul Williams says the thermometer has not been above 95 degrees or below 57 in a year, and that the death rate is small.

A EUROPEAN government servant was recently married to a native woman in Samarang by the Mahommedan ceremony. It took place in the mesjid, and it was conducted by the penghulu, but the bridegroom was not present. He had given written notice that he would not put in an appearance, but he sent his hat, and that was, according to native custom, quite sufficient. She married the hat.

THE latest fashion in the way of sending royal messages is by phonograph. The queen recently sent a message in this manner to King Menelik and his majesty was highly pleased. It is doubtful, however, whether the message would be suitable for more civilized monarchs, for the dignity of her majesty's voice could hardly be maintained through the medium of a phonograph.

WHAT is said to be the largest check ever paid in a life insurance transaction for a "paid-up" policy and annuity was that given the other day by Samuel Newhouse, of Salt Lake City, to J. A. THE old Lincoln homestead, near Hodgensville, has been sold to Mr. David Crear, a millionaire, of New York city, by Mr. A. W. Dennette, also of New York, and former owner of the farm. The deed transferring the ownership was recorded in the county clerk's office at Hodgensville, Ky., recently. The consideration is not definitely known, but in all probability it exceeded $10,000, which, it is said, Mr. Dennette has refused on several occasions.

THE fastest time authentically recorded for a railroad locomotive is a rate of 102 miles an hour, although claims have been made for other locomotives of 110 and 112 miles an hour. A slight rising grade would be sufficient to reduce an engine's speed capacity to a marked extent, and it would, therefore, be necessary to have ideal conditions to enable the locomotive to accomplish the limit rate of 120 miles. But this speed could not be sustained for any considerable distance.

A DAY OF STORMS.

Gales Prevailed Throughout Nebraska and Iowa Sunday, Doing Damage.

In Saunders' County the Storm Destroyed Everything in Its Wake—Large Quantity of Stock Was Killed—Several Persons Injured.

AVOCA, Ia., May 1.—A tornado struck this place at 3:30 p. m. Sunday, doing considerable damage to property. The storm moved in a southerly direction and passed through the outskirts of the town. Two houses on the outskirts were blown down but no one was hurt. In the confusion, as this dispatch is sent, it is impossible to learn the names of the occupants as they are newcomers.

Three miles southeast of Avoca a farmer named Hunt lost his barn and part of his stock. His house was slightly damaged and two members of his family slightly injured.

The storm next struck Oakland, four miles south of Avoca. Near this place the barn on the farm of Richard Files was utterly demolished and some stock killed. The family was absent at the time. A man named Pollock, residing on an adjoining farm, lost his barn, some cattle and had his house partly wreck, but no one was hurt. A mile further on the wind wrecked the house, barn and other outbuildings of John Hunt, a farmer. The contents of the house were strewn all over the surrounding country. One member of the family was slightly injured. Between Avoca and Oakland telegraph and telephone poles were prostrated and communication cut off for several hours. Trees three inches in diameter were either twisted or torn up by the roots. The wind was accompanied by rain.

OMAHA, Neb., May 1.—This has been a day of severe storms in Nebraska, and all sorts of rumors are coming in to Omaha Sunday night about serious damage done by the wind. For the past three days gales have prevailed throughout the state, accompanied by rain, and in a few places a fall of hail. In western Nebraska dust storms made life well nigh unendurable and started prairie fires, which did considerable damage.

Saturday night severe thunder storms prevailed in the eastern part of the state and continued up till noon Sunday. At Omaha the rainfall was the heaviest known for years at this season, doing some damage to private property and washing out sewers in some parts of the city. Along the line of the Union Pacific the wind has done considerable harm. At North Platte Sunday a hundred telegraph poles were prostrated. At Valparaiso, in Saunders county, a wind approaching the proportions of a tornado demolished some farm buildings and killed some stock. Wahoo, the county seat of Saunders county, reports slight damage by wind.

Heavy rains, accompanied by strong winds are reported at Fairbury, Geneva, Fremont, Columbus and Schuyler.

VALPARAISO, Neb., May 1.—A tornado Sunday passed through Saunders county, about four miles west, destroying everything in its wake. A large quantity of stock was killed. One child was slightly hurt. The damage to property will amount to several thousand dollars. The storm went in a northerly direction and was about a quarter of a mile wide.

DISASTROUS PRAIRIE FIRE.

Everything Destroyed in Its Path—Mrs. Rolla Livingston and Her Son Burned to Death.

COLERIDGE, Neb., May 1.—A prairie fire burning in the hay flats at Onlong, the northern tier of the county, ten miles from this place Sunday afternoon, passed into the track of a tornado and was swept with the speed of the wind diagonally across this county for 25 miles, destroying everything in its path. The only lives lost, as far as known, were those of Mrs. Rolla Livingston and her five-year-old boy. The woman saw the fire coming and ran to a pasture to release the family stock. The boy followed her. Both were knocked down by the terrified animals. The fire passed over them before they could get out of the way. The body of the boy was almost consumed and Mrs. Livingston lived but a few hours.

A great many cattle were overtaken and burned. A large number of farm houses were destroyed, and the families escaped by seeking refuge beyond the track of the storm. The path of the fire was nearly one mile wide.

Some of the losses are: Rolla Livingston, $15,000; Stanley Martin, $20,000; David Walker, $10,000; Isaac Pritchell, $2,000; W. A. Bennett, $5,000; Joseph Hodgkin, $20,000; Wm. Weber, $25,000; James Parsons, 300 head of stock, etc., $12,000; Wm. Zook, large number of horses and cattle, $10,000.

Two Miners Killed.

NEW YORK, May 1.—A premature explosion in the Richmond iron mine at Port Orange, N. J., killed two miners, Charles McPeak and James Williams and terribly injured William McPeak, who will probably die.

The Warrants Drawn.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Four United States treasury warrants for $5,000,000 each will be drawn Saturday and transmitted to the secretary of state, to be used in settlement of the $20,000,000 due Spain under the Paris treaty.

A DINER'S VALUABLE FIND.

Councilman McAllister While Dining With Capt. Coghlan Bit Into a Clam and Found a Pearl Worth $5,000.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—A beautiful pearl, the value estimated at $5,000, has come into the possession of Councilman K. R. C. McAllister, of the First ward, chairman of the Dewey day celebration. While the officers of the Raleigh were being dined at the Hotel Walton, McAllister presided at the board. As he bit heavily upon a clam he was greatly surprised to find something hard, like a stone in his mouth.

He took from his mouth a hard, shining substance, the luster of which aroused the curiosity of the diners. Councilman Lang, an expert on precious stones, at once pronounced it a pearl of great value. Capt. Coghlan christened it the "Raleigh," and Mr. McAllister has decided that this will be its name.

Experts have estimated the value of the stone at $5,000, and all agree that it is one of the most brilliant pearls ever seen in this country.

MR. SCHURMAN UNDER FIRE.

The President of Cornell University Had a Narrow Escape From Death at the Fight at Malabon, Philippines.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 1.—Mail advices from Manila received Saturday are full of interesting incidents of the fighting before Malabon. President Schurman, of Cornell university, a member of the Philippine commission, had a narrow escape from death while with Gen. Wheaton's brigade. He was sitting on a trench when a large rebel force opened fire. A stray shot warned him to seek cover, which he did by speedily falling into the trench.

He lay there more than an hour, while the Filipinos sent Mauser bullets singing over his head. An occasional bullet would graze the top of the trench and shower the college man with dirt.

The rebels were finally dislodged and President Schurman returned to Manila.

MUSTERED OUT OF SERVICE.

The 161st Indiana Regiment Paid Off at Savannah, Ga.—On the Way to Washington to Be Reviewed.

SAVANAH, Ga., May 1.—The 161st Indiana regiment, Col. W. T. Durbin, was mustered out of the service Sunday. The payment of the men was commenced by three paymasters. An unusual incident of the muster out was the fact that a great many of the retail stores of the city opend their stores for the accommodation of the men and to deliver packages sold to them Saturday. The first section of the three trains that carried the Indina's to Washington left the depot at 2 o'clock. The others followed within a few minutes. The regiment will arrive at Washington Monday morning and in the afternoon will be reviewed by the president from the portico of the white house.

After reviewing the command the president will receive the officers and men in the presidential residence.

A BARN BURNER LYNCHED.

Willis Lee, Colored, Taken From the Jail at Osceola, Ark., and Hanged in the Jail Yard by Forty Men.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 1.—Information was received in Memphis Sunday night that Willis Sees, a Negro, aged about 50 years, was taken from jail at Osceola, Ark., Sunday morning at 1 o'clock and hanged in the jail yard by a mob of 40 men. Sees was in jail on a charge of barn burning. After being suspended in mid-air twice the Negro confessed the crime of which he was charged and he was then hanged.

Several houses have been burned in the neighborhood of Osceola recently, and this is given as the reason for the mob taking the law into its jurisdiction.

Mrs. George Considers an Offer of Marriage.

SANTON, O., May 1.—Offers of marriage have been sent to Mrs. Anna George. One of them has been considered. Mrs. George said Saturday she thought it the duty of every woman to marry and have a home, and part of her lecture would be on that line. She also intimated that she would not be adverse to trying a matrimonial venture again but would not commit herself definitely on that point.

Fire at Sturgis, Mich.

STURGIS, Mich., May 1.—The Hotel Thornton burned to the ground Saturday. The Sturgis, Aiman and McLaughlin blocks were also consumed, and the fittings of the Citizens' bank badly scorched. The loss is estimated at $75,000. The blaze started from an unknown cause in the lamp room of the hotel, and spread at a tremendous rate.

An Advance of Wages.

JOLIET, Ill., May 1.—Six hundred employes of the Western Stone Co., in the Joliet, Rockport and Lemont quarries will Monday receive an advance of 25 cents per day. Other quarries will also make a similar advance.

The Spaniards Pleased.

MADRID, May 1.—The prospect of peace in the Philippines is hailed with satisfaction, as likely to lead to the early liberation of the Spanish prisoners in the hands of the Filipinos.

GEN. OTIS' TERMS.

General Amnesty the Only Terms American Commander Will Give.

The Envoys Practically Admit That Their Army Was in Very Desperate Straits and Are Thoroughly Whipped—Will Surrender Soon.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Gen. Otis cabled the war department that the conference with the Filipinos terminated Saturday morning. He says they wanted three weeks in which to allow their congress to decide whether hostilities should cease. The proposition was declined. The representatives returned to the insurgent lines. Gen. Otis says the insurgents are tired of fighting and are no doubt seeking the best terms.

In another cable Gen. Otis expresses thanks to the president for his appreciation of the work of the army in the Philippines.

It is stated at the war department that the insurgent leaders probably will confer and seek another conference with Gen. Otis, and that the general will no doubt grant general amnesty.

The full text of the dispatches from Gen. Otis are as follows:

MANILA, April 29.—Ajutant general Washington: Conference with the insurgent representatives terminated Saturday morning. Their request of cessation of hostilities for three weeks to enable to call their congress to decide whether to continue prosecution of war or propose terms of peace. Proposition declined and full amnesty promised on surrender. Believe insurgents tired of war but seek to secure terms of peace through what they denominate their representative congress. OTIS.

MANILA, April 29.—Adj't Gen. Washington: The congratulations of his excellency, the president, for which all grateful, will be conveyed as directed. OTIS.

MANILA, May 1.—The envoys from Gen. Luna were very hospitably treated by Gen. Otis, who provided them with a house and with a guard and permitted them to visit friends here. Returning to the palace Saturday morning, the envoys saw an illustration of American resources. A long train of wagons and pack mules was just starting with provisions for Gen. Lawton, who has reached Marunco.

LONDON, May 1.—Members of the Filipino junta here made the statement to a correspondent Saturday that the peace negotiations between the United States authorities at Manila and Gen. Luna were unofficial in character. Gen. Luna, the junta asserts, does not represent Aguinaldo's government. It is further asserted by the junta that secret negotiations between Dean C. Worcester, of the United States Philippine commission, and a representative of Aguinaldo, have been in progress since before the attack on Malolos. The following conditions, it is alleged, were proposed after the capture of Malolos. The Americans to issue a proclamation granting the Filipinos self-government and political, civil and religious rights similar to those enjoyed by the people of Canada; the Filipinos to control international mercantile relations; Americans and Filipinos to enjoy equal rights in the islands; Manila to remain in the possession of the United States until congress decides otherwise; the American flag to fly over the capitols of the islands and in the most prominent positions along with the Filipino flag, except at Manila, where only the American flag shall fly, all vessels to fly the American flag with that of the Filipinos; the Roman Catholic clergy are to be under the same administration as that in the United States; Spanish clerical direction and intervention to be abolished; the statu quo of rural property belonging to the religious orders to be maintained, without return to the antebellum state of affairs; hospitals and schools formerly administered by the orders, to be handed over to the government, the orders to retain only their present town property; the secular clergy to retain their property.

A Saloon Keeper Killed.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 1.—Russel Sorver, a saloon keeper of Coalburg, this county, was found dead on the C. & O. tracks Sunday with a bullet wound in his body. John Killinger, a merchant of Coalburg, has been arrested for the crime. It is said Killinger killed Sorver for paying too much attention to Killinger's wife.

Later it has been ascertained that the wives of Killinger and Sorver were quarreling and their husbands took part. Killinger emptied both barrels of a shotgun in Sorver's side, killing him instantly.

Gold Found in Tennessee.

TOMPKINSVILLE, Ky., May 1.—A gold mine assaying $40.50 per ton in gold and $150 in silver has been discovered on the farm of Joe Livingston, at Willeppe, Tenn. Joe McKinney, an old miner of Jacksonville, Col., is pushing the development of the mine.

Libel Suit Against Senator Clark.

BUTTE, Mont., May 1.—State Senator Fred Whiteside has filed a libel suit agaist United States Senator Clark for $100,000. The suit grows out of recent bribery charges.

A HEART'S OUTPOURING.

These Was Something About Flavius That Was Somewhat Effluvious.

Pinkie Billmore sat with her face half averted from him.

In the young man's flushed cheek, trembling lip and agitated manner there were unmistakable signs of a coming outburst.

The emotions of an overcharged heart could be crushed down no longer.

Flavius Josephus Millsap was no stranger to the Billmore mansion. He pervaded it three or four evenings every week, as a rule, and oftener still as a frequent exception.

Everybody in the house, from the aged grandmother to the kitchen lady, knew he came to see Miss Pinkie.

Even Miss Pinkie knew it, despite the fact that he had never explicitly said so.

In like manner he knew she was perfectly willing for him to pervade the mansion, according to rule or exceptionally, though she had never actually expressed herself to that effect.

Yet she sat with her face half averted from him.

Such is the contradictory, tantalizing, exasperating habit of the young woman of all climes, kindreds, tongues, and periods of the world's history.

Young woman! Young woman! What an abject fool thou hast made of the worshiping young man from time immemorial, even when—but this is a digression.

"Pinkie"—the voice of Flavius Josephus Millsap again broke in upon the stillness—"you know what I want to say!"

"Yes," she replied, softly, "I know. You want to tell me that this style of wearing my hair isn't becoming to me. That's because you're not used to seeing it. When you become accustomed—"

"You know well enough it isn't that!"

"You want to ask me why I didn't acknowledge the receipt of that box of candy you sent me by a messenger boy. I did not know till after he had gone away that it had come from you, and I thought I would wait till I saw you—"

"You know well enough it isn't that, either."

"Then I'm sure—"

"Pinkie—"

He made a slight motion as if to take her hand.

But she still sat with her face half averted from him.

"Pinkie, why do you think I've been coming here for the last six months?"

"Seven months," she murmured.

"This was not encouraging, on the face of it, but he went ahead:

"The fact of the matter is, Pinkie Billmore, I have been coming here because I can't keep away. Ever since I met you—do you believe in love at first sight? I do!—ever since I first met you I have known you are my fate! Dearest and best—"

She put up her hand.

"O, not now, Flavius! Not now!"

She still sat with her face half averted from him.

"Why not, Pinkie? Why not? What is the matter?"

"Flavius"—it was almost a sob—"have you been eating onions?"—Chicago Tribune.

Abolish the Death Penalty.

At Albany the law-makers are wrangling over the abolition of the death penalty. The man who succeeds in passing such a bill will prove as great a benefactor to the breaker of man's laws as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has to the breaker of nature's laws. If you've neglected your stomach until indigestion, constipation, biliousness, liver and kidney troubles are upon you there's but one cure—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Don't fail to try it. The English of It.

"You Americans call things by such queer names," said the Englishman.

"What's wrong now?" asked the New Yorker.

"Why call these things elevators, when they take people down as often as they take them up?"

"Well, what do you call them in your country?"

"We call them lifts."

"Well, I can't see that the word lift expresses their use any better than elevator."

"Oh, yes, it does. Don't you know you can lift persons down as well as lift them up?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Burglary in the Future.

"Curse me luck!" hissed the burglar, and fled into the night. Bear in mind, if you please, that all crime was now disease, mercy, and all diseases the work of germs. The burglar perceived, in the cellar window where he tried to enter, one of the latest electric automatic spraying devices, and endeavored to avoid it. But fortune was against him. HARD TO GET.

The Girls Were Learning to Make Hair Flowers and They Wanted White.

A venerable white-haired clergyman recently preached in the church of a friend. He had hardly got back to the vicarage from the church when the door-bell rang and a young lady asked to see him. He received her. They talked about the sermon and other things, until finally she asked, diffidently:

"Oh, won't you please give me a lock of your hair?"

"Certainly, my child," said the old gentleman, flattered at the request. "I'll send it to you to-morrow." And he did.

On his return to his own home he had five more requests of the same kind, and he proudly boasted to his wife that he was glad to see that he had not yet lost his power to please. All went well until his wife received this note:

"Dear Mrs. Fourthly: Won't you please ask your husband to send me just a little lock of his hair? We have all been taking lessons in making hair flowers. So many of the other girls asked him, and he sent it to them, that I thought I would rather ask you to get it for me. Won't you please do this for me. It is so hard to get white hair for lilies of the valley."

This was a terrible blow, and the less now said about locks of hair in that old gentleman's presence the better.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

HEALTHFUL OLD AGE

A CHARMING grandmother!

What a pleasant influence in the house is a delightful old lady in good health!

MRS. MOLLIE BARBER, St. James, Mo., writes: "I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during change of life, and have passed through that critical period safely. I suffered for years with falling of the womb and female weakness. At times could hardly stand on my feet, also had leucorrhœa. I tried several good doctors, but instead of getting better, grew worse all the time. A friend advised me to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. I did so and after taking six bottles, was cured of both leucorrhœa and falling of womb. I am now enjoying good health and feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. I would recommend it to all women suffering as I was."

MRS. N. E. LACEY, Pearl, La., writes: "I have had leucorrhœa for about twenty years, falling of womb by spells for ten years, and my bladder was affected, had backache a great deal. I tried a number of doctors. They would relieve me for a little while, then I would be worse than ever. I then thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Eleven bottles of Compound and one box of Liver Pills cured me and I am now sound and well. It helped me through the change of life period. I am fifty-five years old."

FLAG OF TRUCE.

Filipino Agents on the Way to Manila to Sue for Peace.

In a Fight Near Apalit, the Enemy's Loss Was Heavy—They Have Been Driven Back Far Into the Interior And Are Demoralized.

MANILA, April 28.—Gen. Luna, Aguinaldo's chief of staff, has sent an insurgent colonel through the lines under a flag of truce to ask for a cessation of hostilities.

MANILA, April 28.—The Filipinos will seek peace through Emanuel Arguelles and Lieut. Jose Bernal, chief of Gen. Luna's staff. They entered Gen. MacArthur's line, carrying a flag of truce. They are en route from Manila by train to confer with Gen. Otis regarding terms of surrender.

MANILA, April 28.—The main body of the Filipino army, under Gen. Antonio Luna, was routed Thursday morning by Gen. MacArthur.

The Kansas and Montana volunteers pursued the fleeing enemy, driving them to a position beyond Apalit, four miles west of the Rio Grande river. The enemy's loss was heavy. Our loss was only one killed and six wounded, including three officers.

MANILA, April 28.—Gen. MacArthur's division crossed the Rio Grande Thursday, and advanced on Apalit, completely routing the flower of the rebel army.

Most of the rebels fled to Apalit station, where two trains were waiting them. They left hurriedly, presumably for San Fernando.

The towns of San Vincente and Apalit were simultaneously burned and evacuated by the natives.

Twenty prisoners were captured, including a Spaniard.

The American troops also captured a brass cannon and a quantity of arms and ammunition, and the same evening they captured a Maxim gun on the railroad.

The fighting lasted from noon to 4 o'clock.

The American loss is one of the Montana regiment killed and three officers and six men wounded.

MANILA, April 28.—At Calumpit for the first time a large body of Filipinos attempted to face the Americans in open ground. The Filipinos in the trenches were dispersed after making a ridiculously feeble resistance; but Gen. Luna's brigade came upon the field from Macabebes on the double quick, the two regiments preserving a perfect formation.

The Americans from the south bank of the river, which is higher than the north bank, could see Gen. Luna mounted on a black horse, galloping frantically along the lines and apparently exhorting his followers to make a stand. He finally succeeded in getting them spread in an extended line of battle which would have done credit to a civilized army.

But when the American bullets showered thickly among them, stirring clouds of dust from the sandy soil, the Filipinos again showed that no amount of drilling could fortify them sufficiently to make them face the American rifles, and their train puffed up the track with its load of dead and wounded, in plain sight of the Americans, who were entering the town so closely that the rebels barely slipped out of their victors' hands. The Montana regiment made a rush to capture the train, running up the track, yelling shrilly and even dropping their guns in the pursuit, but the engine backed off hastily, leaving the bodies of six warriors to their enemies.

Twenty Filipinos who came to meet the conquerors, bearing a white flag, declared heartily that they were sick of fighting, adding that food was very short in their camps. They ate the army rations given to them with an eagerness that testified to the truthfulness of their statement. One who had been severely wounded dragged himself after his comrades, showing remarkable nerve.

Fifty Americans were overcome by the heat and Col. Funston dropped, utterly exhausted, after the battle. The men of the Kansas regiment cheered him crazily when he went among them.

Thursday night the flames of burning villages and scattered huts gave the horizon a glow as of sunset and the crackling of the bamboos as they caught fire sounded like musketry in battle.

THE KIRKSVILLE CYCLONE.

Half the Residences and Other Buildings Demolished and Many Persons Were Killed and Injured.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., April 29.—As a result of the tornado that swept through the eastern portion of this city Thursday evening, demolishing half of the residences and other buildings, 200 families are homeless and more than 30 dead bodies and 70 injured persons have been recovered from the ruins. More than a dozen of the injured will die.

Although rescuers have been searching the ruins ever since the storm spent its fury, many are still missing and it is thought that a considerable number of the unfortunates were consumed in the flames that broke out soon after the storm had ceased. The work of rescue continues, but it may be days before the total number of victims is known.

Phoenixville, Pa., Firm Receives a Contract to Build Twelve Steel Bridges for the Russian Government.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—The Phoenix Bridge Co., whose works are located at Phoenixville, Pa., and the executive officers in Philadelphia has received a contract to build 12 steel bridges for the Russian government, and work will be commenced on the structural material in a few days, the designs and plans having already been decided. The bridges are for the Eastern Chinese railroad, the southeastern extension of the Trans-Siberian railway.

The work on the bridges is to be pushed with all speed so that the structural material will reach its destination before winter sets in.

The material will be shipped to St. Petersburg and thence by rail to Vladivostock.

SHE'S INNOCENT.

The Jury Declares Mrs. George Not Guilty of George Saxton's Murder.

Mrs. George Took Each Juryman by the Hand and Thanked Him—She Then Received the Hearty Congratulations of the Crowd.

CANTON, O., April 29.—At 10:27 a. m. Friday the jury in the case of Mrs. Anna George, on trial for the murder of George D. Saxton, filed into court and announced their verdict, which was "Not guilty."

Before the verdict was read the court cautioned the audience that there must be no demonstration. In spite of that there were loud cheers as the clerk read the verdict of "Not guilty."

A score of women rushed to Mrs. George and shook her hand. Congratulations were also extended to her attorneys. She worked her way to the jury box, took each juryman by the hand and gave them a word and a nod of thanks. Then the court said she was discharged, and released the jury.

Mrs. George remained in the court room for some time after the verdict was announced, acknowledging the congratulations of her friends. She then went to the Hotel Conrad, a block from the court house, in company with Mr. and Mrs. McElheny, her cousins, who have been with her during much of the hearing and at 12:45 was eating dinner with them at the hotel. The jury was out just 25 hours and 45 minutes and during that time 22 ballots were cast.

The interval between these ballots was spent in reviewing the case and discussing its various phases. After the jury reported, it was said that the first or preliminary ballot was taken at 12:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, or a half hour after they had been closeted in the jury room. This ballot showed four jurymen favoring a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree and eight jurymen for a verdict of "not guilty" or acquittal. As the story goes, the second ballot was taken at 2 p. m., and resulted the same. This was also the result of the third ballot, taken 45 minutes later at 3:15 o'clock. The fourth ballot was taken and the result is said to have been two for guilty in the first degree and seven not guilty, one for second degree and two for manslaughter. At 4 p. m. Thursday the fifth ballot was taken with eight for not guilty and four for manslaughter. This was the result of all the succeeding ballots up to the fourteenth ballot at 2 o'clock Friday morning. The fifteenth ballot was taken at 4:30 o'clock Friday morning, resulting in nine for not guilty and three for manslaughter. The sixteenth ballot was not taken until 6:15 o'clock Friday morning when the vote showed eight for not guilty, three for manslaughter and one for assault and battery. At 8:45 Friday morning the 17th ballot was taken by the jury, returning to the eight for not guilty and four for manslaughter. Forty minutes later the 18th ballot was taken showing ten of the jurymen for not guilty and two for manslaughter. The 19th ballot was taken at 9:30 a. m., resulting in nine for not guilty and three for manslaughter. At 10 a. m., the 20th ballot was taken, showing 11 for not guilty and one for first degree murder.

The same result was obtained in the 21st ballot. The 22d and last ballot was taken at 10:22 o'clock, with a unanimous vote of the 12 men being that of "not guilty."

A number of women friends and acquaintances called on Mrs. George in the parlor of the Conrad hotel, and a number of traveling men introduced themselves and offered their congratulations. Juryman Miller was one of the callers, and to him Mrs. George expressed her warmest thanks, saying she had known him as her staunch friend from the first.

A number of congratulatory telegrams were delivered to her. To a reporter she said she would go to her old home in Hanoverton Saturday and visit her mother, Mrs. Lucinda Ehrheart, for a few days. Then she would return to Canton to gather up her belongings and arrange for the future. As to the future she said she had no definite plans as yet. She has been invited to go to the seaside for an extended vacation during the summer, and she said she would probably accept the invitation.

To Be Concentrated at the Presidio.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—Three thousand recruits and 20 officers will be concentrated at the Presidio. The large post will be converted into a regular recruiting and receiving rendezvous for troops. There are over a thousand men here now under command of Col. Barbach, 3d infantry, and Capt. Hardin, 18th infantry, adjutant.

Struck by a Tornado.

LONDON, April 29.—At Newmarket Friday Todd Sloane won the 1,000 guinea stakes on Pierre Lorillard's Sibola, a horse bred in America. The betting was 13 to 8 against Sibola.

THE MONUMENT UNVEILED.

In the Presence of the President and Three Generations of the Grant Family the Grant Statue Was Uncovered.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—In the presence of President McKinley and his wife, members of his cabinet, three generations of Gen. Ulysus Grant's family and a great crowd of people, Miss Rosemary Sartoris, grand daughter of Gen. Grant, Thursday unveiled an heroic equestrian statue of her illustrious grandfather in Fairmount park. Although the day was not a holiday in honor of the event, there was a great outpouring of patriotic citizens. Flags were everywhere displayed throughout the city, and all the ships in the harbor were gaily decorated in colors. This city each year commemorates the birthday of Gen. Grant, but never did it celebrate it as it did Thursday.

President McKinley and Mrs. McKinley enjoyed themselves immensely during their outing Thursday. Everywhere they were warmly greeted by the people, to which both of them graciously responded. The president showed no signs of his recent slight indisposition. Next to the president and his wife, Mrs. Grant and Miss Sartoris shared the attention.

The ceremonies of the day were concluded by a public meeting at the academy of music Thursday night. The spacious building was crowded to the doors. President McKinley and all of the other distinguished people who attended the unveiling exercises were present. Speeches eulogistic of the famous soldier-president were made. The oration was delivered by Hampton L. Carson.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—The Grant monument, as it now stands, is exactly the same size as the one in Union square, N. Y. It was designed by Daniel Chester French and Edward C. Potter, both American artists. The former modeled the figure of Gen. Grant and the latter the horse. They have endeavored to depict the hero in the position of a dignified and quietly imposing "silent man on horseback," and in so doing have departed entirely from the conventional. There is an absence of the dramatic action shown in the prancing steed and the waving sword.

THE WILL OF JUSTICE FIELD.

The Bulk of His Real and Personal Estate is Given to His Widow—Other Bequests.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The will of the late Stephen J. Field, formerly associate justice of the United States supreme court, was filed for probate Thursday. It was dated May 25, 1897. Mrs. Field, widow, and Sarah Condith Smith, his sister-in-law, are named as executors. Justice Fields' real estate and most of his personal property are bequeathed to Mrs. Field. Bequests of paintings and books are made to Mrs. Emilia F. Ashburn, of San Francisco, a niece; to Associate Justice D. J. Brewer, of the United States supreme court, a nephew; to Stephen Field Christy, a grand nephew, and to David Dudley Field, a grand nephew. To Wm. Joice, who was messenger to Justice Field for 25 years, $500 is left.

CYCLONE-SWEPT

The Eastern Portion of Kirksville, Mo., Levelled By a Wind Storm.

The List of Dead Will Reach Between Fifty and Sixty—Almost a Thousand People Were More or Less Injured—Heavy Loss.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., April 28.—The eastern part of the city was levelled by the cyclone and the estimate of dead is now placed at forty. Number injured not known. Wires are down and communication is practically cut off.

A gathering storm that had been threatening all afternoon broke upon Kirksville at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night in all the fury of a cyclone. A path a quarter of a mile wide and as clean as the prairie was swept through the eastern portion of the city and 400 buildings, homes and mercantile, were levelled to the ground in scattered ruins.

In the heavy rain that followed the people who had escaped turned out to rescue the injured. For two hours not much was accomplished, as all was confusion, but by 8 o'clock 25 dead bodies had been taken from the ruins. It is confidently expected that the list of dead will reach between 50 and 60, if not exceed that. Almost a thousand people were more or less injured. Daylight will be necessary before an adequate estimate of loss of life and property can be had. Each blanched face reports a new calamity.

Intense darkness prevailed after the cyclone and the rescuers were at a disadvantage for a short time until fire broke out in a dozen places in the ruins and shed light over the scene. No attempts were made to extinguish the fires, partly because the rescuers had no time and partly because of the need of light. On both sides of the storm's path the debris was piled high and burned fiercely. In all probability a number of bodies have been incinerated.

The storm first struck the eastern portion of the city near that part occupied by the boarding houses of the students of the American School of Osteopathy, State Normal school and McWard's seminary. It was just supper time for the students, and it is thought very probable that the list of dead will be well filled with students, as a large number of these boarding houses were demolished.

As far as known Thursday night these three institutions of learning escaped the storm. The storm then went northwest and wiped out Patterson's nursery, pulling the trees out of the ground and hurling them through the city. A second edition of the cyclone followed the first, 20 minutes later.

It came as an inky black cloud widely distributed and covered the whole town but passed above the houses, doing no material damage and gathering fury as it went. It undoubtly struck the ground a few miles out of Kirkerville. It is reported over 30 dead bodies have been taken from the ruins.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., April 28.—A tornado, probably the same one that swept over Kirksville, struck Newtown, a small town in Sullivan county, Thursday night and caused terrible destruction. It is reported that 15 people were killed in the city and that many others were killed in the country near there. A great number of buildings were blown down. Heavy rain followed the tornado, adding greatly to the damage. A Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad bridge is said to have been washed out.

Only a partial list of the casualties can be obtained.

Reports coming in from the country district state that many farmers have suffered severely and that several lives have been lost outside of Kirksville. The home of Henry Lowe, three miles north of town, was demolished and Mr. Lowe and three children were crushed to death. Other members of the family escaped. Other fatalities are reported from the country, but no names are given.

ANOTHER BIG COMBINATION.

Nearly All the Manufacturers of Silk Ribbons and Broad Silks in the Country to Combine.

NEW YORK, April 28.—The World Friday says: Circulars have been issued by the promoters for a combination of all the concerns in this country engaged in the manufacture of silk ribbons and broad silk goods. Many have signified their willingness to enter the deal. Among the largest manufacturers who have refused are the Cheney Brothers, of Connecticut, and Schwarzbach, Huber & Co., who have mills at Union Hill, N. J., and in Pennsylvania.

Floater in the Ohio River.

BELLEVILLE, W. Va., April 27.—The remains of an unknown floater, apparently 40 years old, with light hair, sandy mustache, weight 175 pounds, was found by the crew of the steamer Oncida in the Ohio near here. A coroner's inquest is in progress.

Peace Jubilee King.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Col. E. B. Hay is to be king of the peace jubilee. The wheelmen's parade will be a big feature of the revelries. The Elks will turn out 900 strong.

THE PEACE OVERTURES MADE

Filipino Commissioners Have an Unsatisfactory Conference With Gen. Otis at Manila—Another to Be Held.

MANILA, April 29.—The Filipino advances for peace have been fruitless. Col. Manuel Arguelesea and Col. Jose Bernal, who came into Gen. MacArthur's lines under a flag of truce, told Gen. Otis that they were representatives of Gen. Luna, who had requested by Aguinaldo to ask Gen. Otis for a cessation of hostilities in order to allow time for the summoning of the Filipino congress, which body would decide whether the people wanted peace.

Gen. Otis replied that he did not recognize the existence of a Filipino government. There will be another conference Saturday.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Gen. Otis telegraphs the war department Friday morning that the commanding general of the insurgents received directions from the insurgent government to suspend hostilities pending negotiations for the termination of the war, and that insurgent staff officers are on the way to Manila for that purpose.

The text of Gen. Otis' dispatch follows:

"MANILA, April 28.—Adjutant General, Washington: After taking Calumpit, MacArthur's division crossed the Rio Grande river in the face of great obstacles, driving the concentrated forces of the enemy back on the railroad two miles. MacArthur reports that passage of the river remarkable military achievement, the success of which due to daring skill and determination of Col. Funston, under discriminating control of Gen. Wheaton.

"Casualties slight; number not yet ascertained.

"This morning chief of staff from commanding general of insurgent forces entered our lines to express admiration of the wonderful feat of the American army in foreing passage of the river, which was thought impossible. Staff officer reports that insurgent commanding general has received from insurgent government directions to suspend hostilities pending negotiations for the termination of the war. Staff officer with party is now en route to Manila and will arrive soon. Lawton's forces well in hand in vicinity of Angat, east of Calumpit, where he is waiting supplies to be sent to-morrow. Yesterday morning, force of 1,500 insurgents attacked troops at Taguig; driven back by Washington regiment. Our loss two killed, 12 wounded. OTIS."

The dispatch from Gen. Otis was immediately telegraphed to President McKinley at Philadelphia. The officials of the war department all believe that the hostilities are about concluded.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—Immediately upon receiving from Washington the dispatch of Gen. Otis, President McKinley sent the following message of congratulations and thanks to the soldiers in the Philippines:

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—To Otis, Manila: Your message announcing the achievements of MacArthur's division and the proposal by the insurgents of suspension of hostilities most gratifying. Convey to officers and men heartfelt congratulations and gratitude for their signal gallantry and triumph. WM. MCKINLEY.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The end of the Filipino insurrection is in sight in the opinion of army and navy officials. A telegram from Gen. Otis Friday announced that Aguinaldo had taken what is regarded as the first step toward surrendering, namely, requesting a cessation of hostilities. Secretary Alger said as the department closed that, while it could not be said that peace was assured, he regarded the prospects as of the brightest and felt confident that the end of the insurrection was near. To his mind there would be a repetition of the negotiations which were had before Santiago.

TERRIBLE MISTAKE MADE.

The Healthy Eye of Thomas Stewart Removed Instead of the One That Had Been Sightless for Seven Years.

MONTREAL, April 29.—Seven years ago Thomas Stewart, then ten years old, lost the sight of one eye, the blade of a penknife having been accidentally run into it. Dr. Alexander Proudfoot attended him. Recently Dr. Proudfoot advised the removal of the useless eye as the only means of preserving the other intact. This was agreed to and the delicate task was entrusted to Dr. Proudfoot, who is assistant oculist and aurist to the general hospital. The operation took place at the family residence, and at its conclusion it was found that a terrible mistake had been made—the healthy eye had been removed. On recovery from the effects of the anesthetic the patient found himself blind.

Death of Maj. E. O. Brown.

TOLEDO, O., April 29.—Maj. E. O. Brown, prominent on the state staff of Gen. Hartsuff during the late war, died here Friday, aged 64. He was one of the most prominent men in G. A. R. circles in Ohio.

Hospital Building Burned.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 29.—The hospital building at the Iowa Institution for Feeble Minded Children at Glenwood burned Friday. About 50 inmates of the institution were rescued with difficulty. Loss $20,000.

The grist-mill of Aaron Gregory blew up Saturday evening and caused quite a sensation.

Mrs. C. C. Hume and Miss Sallie Finnell made a business trip to Warsaw, one day last week.

Died—At Louis Record's on the 25th ult., little Gracie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John West. The remains were interred in the Paint Lick cemetery. If we all were as pure as little child when it takes its flight to the Savior's arms, we would be certain of entering the Father's kingdom. Jesus said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." May the bereaved mother and father know that their little Gracie is asleep in the arms of Jesus, to be awakened on the judgment morn.

Gunpowder.

Uncle Henry Dixon, of Richwood, was in the neighborhood last week.

Mrs. L. M. Rouse was the guest of Mrs. Florence Floyd, last Saturday.

Mrs. Lena Keller, of Hillsboro, Ill., is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. Z. Tanner, of Florence.

Mrs. Bentham is still at the hospital but she is doing well, and unless she has a relapse she will be able to return home in a few days. Her daughter, Mrs. E. O. Rouse, who has been with her during her stay at the hospital, returned home last Friday.

After a long and severe illness, Mrs. Sarah Snyder, wife of J. P. Snyder, died the 28th ult, at the age of 51 years. While her sufferings were great, she bore them very patiently to the end. She was a noble, christian lady, and her kind and generous disposition won for her a host of friends. Early in life she united with Hopeful church, and was an exemplary member until death. The funeral services were conducted by Pastor Lentz, at Hopeful church, after which the remains were interred in the Hopeful cemetery in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends. A husband, one son and three daughters survive her.

Midway.

The past two weeks have been clear and dry, especially favorable for farming and the good old farmers have used it to an advantage.

Robert Newcom, who is working for M. C. Carroll, was disabled in his back, and Mr. Carroll had to employ another hand on the farm.

Mrs. Elva Melvin is teaching school at Big Bone, while Miss Eliza Ellis is instructing the young ideas how to shoot at Beaver Lick.

John Taylor, merchant and daily mail dispenser, at Beaver Lick, reports business as carrying on nicely at the mercantile establishment.

Ellis Carroll has added much to the appearance of his newly purchased farm recently, but setting out an orchard, fencing and otherwise improving it.

Mr. G. B. Miller, of the Springs, son of W. R. Miller, has located at Normansville, where his father intends to set him up in the grocery business.

Mr. Cousummer Houston, of Union, our affable and accommodating huckster, who makes weekly hauls through Midway, reports the business easy at last weeks' prices.

T. J. Hughes, the popular merchant at Beaver, was canvassing the country, last week, in quest of those who want to purchase Piano self-binders, mowing machines, &c., of which he carries a good stock at his place.

Mr. Chas. Sleet is building an elegant dwelling house on the site of the old Hughes house which was consumed by fire last fall. A celebrated contractor from Cincinnati, has the job and is pushing it forward at a rapid rate.

Good roads talk still clings to our people, who remember the terrible, impassable condition of the mud roads during the winter months, and the pike question is going to be one of some prominence before the people this fall.

Owing to the RECORDER'S notice, recently, of "Uncle Jeems" Marksburry's Excelsior Salve, which he is handling at Normansville, he has met with unprecidented sales, all giving satisfaction, for all of which the RECORDER is entitled to a large size trial box.

W. C. Johnson and son are putting the inside wood work trimmings on the pretty new dwelling which they built, last fall, for Mr. Joe Cleek, but owing to the extreme cold weather of the winter, they had to wait till this spring for Mr. Theo. Chambers to put on a coat of patent plastering. When finished it will be the prettiest home in this vicinity.

Hathaway.

Tobacco plants are up nicely.

Farmers are busy plowing for corn.

Mart Williimson is here on a visit to his brothers.

Clark Rouse lost a valuable horse, not long since.

The Whipporwill has commenced with its regular evening racket.

Mrs Hade Stephens has been on the sick list for the past week or so.

Mrs. Jas. White and sons were guests of your correspondent, last Sunday.

Several from here attended the meeting at Bellevue, last Tuesday and Wednesday.

B. H. Stephens took his pole and line and went fishing for the first time last Friday.

W. T. Ryle, of near Flickertown, was the guest of his brother, on Gunpowder, last Sunday.

Miss Mary White and Mr. D. A. Cubbage made a pleasant trip to Gallatin county, last week.

Several of the local fishermen have made some very good catching of fish this spring out of Gunpowder.

Herman McNeely, of Gallatin county, made a flying visit to his brother of this place and purchased his big horse.

Minnie Sullivan, of this place was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Maud Arnsmith in the Union neighborhood, one day last week.

We were aroused one morning, last week, to hear a strange noise in our garden, and by luvestigation found it was our vegetables that were bursting forth with great rapidity.

Last Wednesday evening quite a crowd of young folks answered to invitations at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. White. The event of the evening was a music party given by the host and hostess, which was enjoyed by all present.

Mr. Dauley A. Cubbage, of Leitchfield, Grayson county, spent quite a pleasant week here visiting his relatives. Mr. Cubbage is a merchant in Leitchfield, and was burnt out, but has rebuilt again and will return this week, by Louisville, to purchase a new stock of goods to refit his store for the summer trade.

Beaver.

Mr. Editor, as spring with its flowers, flies and early vegetables has sailed in on us without the usual ten days legal notice, and all things are lovely and the goose hangs high, we venture a few items for the RECORDER from Beaver, the center of attraction for business and marble playing. Beaver is like other towns—has men, women and children to the number of 75, and they, strange to say, are about equally divided. Most towns have more children than older people, as a rule, so you see our town is the exception. Beaver has two stores, two churches, two tobacco shops, two horse-traders and one barber. T. J. Hughes has a cash register that is capable of keeping accurate account of the entire town from cellar to garret, but, "Mr. Jake attends strictly to his own business" and makes his machine do likewise, so it keeps only his business. A country merchant with the nerve and hustle to put in a $200 cash register is not found every day only in Beaver.

Mr. John Taylor, of the Mercantile Co., don't make clothes (as most tailors do) but he makes customers by his modest, pleasant ways of dealing.

Mr. Rusk, the barber, has a very good trade and is a great convenience to the people.

George Osman might very properly be counted a citizen of Beaver, because he loves to come down and be with us every day and see his grand-son.

Mrs. Amanda Hughes has begun to build a new residence, and where blackened walls stood a few months ago, will soon rise a fine modern house.

John H. Sleet has a magnificent home situated in a fine grove of forest trees where squirrels and birds have perfect comfort and safety, except when Sam and his dog begins to move around.

Geo. Jack and wife, of Walton, were in town, Saturday evening.

Geo. W. Sleet and son have been on the sick list for several days.

Frank Gordon talks politics with sense. He says voters ought to see that Boone's next representative is a man of action and not of words.

Joe Cleek's residence is nearing completion.

Bellevue.

Tobacco plants are looking fine.

Born, to W. S. Rice and wife, last week, a boy.

Several of the farmers in this neighborhood are done planting corn.

Willow stripping is the order of the day with the willow growers here.

Dr. J. G. Furnish and Master Joe, of Burlington, were here Saturday.

Ed Hopkins, of near Aurora, was the guest of J. M. Moody and daughters, Sunday.

E. L. Grant and family were guests of Miss Julia Dinsmore, last Saturday and Sunday.

J. T. Marshall is putting up some very nice monuments in the Bellevue Baptist cemetery.

W. H. Pope, of Huntsville, was among us last Saturday, looking for help for his wife.

Geo. Rector, of Egypt, returned from a visit to his brother, William, near Pete, last Sunday.

Jake and Dony Cook and others killed 4 or 5 foxes in the Middle creek neighborhood, last week.

Mrs. America Conner and son, of Cincinnati, arrived last Sunday, to visit her parents and children.

James Rogers is giving his residence two coats of paint. John Early, of Petersburg, is handling the brush.

W. C. Brown and wife, of Burlington, were visiting Mrs. Brown's parents, last Sunday, on Middle creek.

Drs. Williamson and Furnish were to see Aunt Polly Botts, last Saturday. She has been in feeble health for some time.

Little Warren, son of Evan and Ethel Acra, deceased, is very low with pneumonia at his grand father's Asa Cason.

Misses Mary Huey and Genie Moody and Weed Williamson attended the commencement at Rising Sun, last Friday night.

Henry Summer and John Winter, of Rising Sun, who are driving a well for J. H. Lawell, have reached a depth of 95 feet, and found about 4 feet of water.

E. L. Grant and others have purchased a sein, and their first attempt at fishing was last Saturday, when they secured about 100 pounds of fine river fish.

Flickertown.

Mrs. Martha Delph has moved into her new house.

Everybody busy planting corn and talking politics.

There are several had cases of spring fever in this neighborhood.

Miss Sadie Kirtley's school at the Berkshire school house closed Friday.

Miss Lizzie Aera, of Scatterville, was visiting her parents, a couple of days, last week.

Frank Voshell and wife entertained quite a number of young folks at their home, last Saturday night.

Jim Snyder says if the Petersburg boys don't stop taking our girls, he will take one from their town.

Mrs. Kate Smith and daughter, May, have returned home after a pleasant visit with relatives at Addyston, O.

Several from this neighborhood attended the minister's meeting at Bellevue, last Tuesday and Wednesday.

A very bad fire got started in Lystra Smith's woods, last Wednesday, but it was put out before any damage was done.

We are glad to hear that Miss Julia Smith has again chosen old Boone for her home. She is living with uncle John Smith.

It did not take Willie Worford long to get homesick. There is something in Flickertown that has attractions for our tow-headed German boy.

Nathan Walton, Geo. Walton, Jas. W. Gaines, Courtney and Hubert Walton, Malcolm and Lawrence Chambers were fishing in Woolper, Wednesday. They caught about as many fish as one man could eat.

Union.

Lee Huey, of Big Bone, planted corn several weeks ago.

Miss Hattie Gatson was visiting in Covington, this week.

Noah Tanner was taking the school census for this district, Monday.

Ernest Clements spent a week with relatives in Grant county, recently.

Mark Judge thinks he can buy a house cheaper than he can build a new one.

Mrs. Dr. Crouch attended the Davidson-Coffman wedding in Covington, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cropper, of Bullittsville, were the guests of Mrs. Elizabeth Huey, Sunday.

Mrs. B. W. Adams and Mrs. B. B. Allphin, of Burlington, were the guests of friends here, last week.

Granville Rouse has been putting up some of his celebrated woven-wire garden fence for Jimmie Huey.

Thos. Adams, of Hamilton, was telling us he has another bouncing girl at his house, and is also grand-pa.

Rev. Adams preached Sunday at the Baptist church, and Rev. Davis at the Presbyterian church Sunday night.

Thos. Carlisle and Milton Weldon are prospering in all their undertakings since they subscribed for the RECORDER.

James Bristow has been building a lot of harrows for his customers, lately, and they look strong and substantial.

W. W. Conner has been suffering with a peculiar stomach trouble for several years and is worse this spring than usual.

B. Clark owned a very unruly cow, but the "old nick" got after her one night and she has been a quiet, orderly beast ever since.

The hills of this section look as if soldiers were camped upon them, owing to the number of plant-beds covered with canvass.

H. W. Riley, assisted by Harry Riley and Col. Streightfoot, has made some improvements in their home that will add much to its convenience and comfort.

Miss Stella Myers entertained the Excelsior Club, Friday evening. The program consisted of recitations, solos and speeches. The evening was pleasantly and profitably spent and all united in pronouncing Miss Stella a graceful and charming hostess.

Dr. Rouse has completed arrangements to give the Cantata, "Jephtha and his Daughters," May 6th, in Union. The proceeds are to go toward buying seats for the Hebron church. This Cantata was produced at Hebron and Erlanger, last year, with great success under the doctor's direction.

Mrs. William Frazier, colored, died Monday, the 24th ult., and was buried at Beaver, Tuesday. "Aunt Teldy," as all knew her, was a faithful servant of the Frazier family during ante-bellum days and never accepted the fourteenth amendment advantages except to stay closer by the fortunes of those she knew and trusted. Mr. and Mrs. Gibson and J. L. Frazier saw that she was laid to rest in a manner becoming to her faithfulness and the respect they had for her to the last.

We met J. H. Aylor, of Gunpowder, and could sympathize with him in his trouble, for we had only 15 or 18 bolts to his one carbuncle. If there is anything along the highway of trials and tribulation in this world calculated to make a fellow climb up on the Washington monument (in case it was handy) or walk down the edge of some quiet creek or river and wish he was a Wm. Goat and could live a thousand years on fence stakes and cobble stones it is to have 15 bolts and want to work, and have to work or starve between meals.

We heard a man say, Saturday, that the burning of the negro rapist in Georgia, recently, was a shame upon the decency of any state and every member of the mob should be treated as the negro. In the language of Mr. Samuel Weller "d-m fine argument this," burn 1500 men whose souls were burning with indignation and wrath against a black hyena whose crime was blacker than hades itself, and one that only the devil himself or a nigger could commit. We are in favor of law and order at all hazards, but to hear a man who knows little or nothing about the situation in the south as it relates to homes being invaded and despoiled by these leather colored hyenas. Talk about patience and forbearance under such circumstances makes one weak and tired at the stomach.

Hebron.

Mrs. Mary Quick was very sick several days, last week.

Spencer Aylor, of Covington, visted friends her, Sunday.

Henry Getker and family were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Hossman, Sunday.

Miss Clara Hossman has returned from Ohio, where she has been visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodridge were pleasant guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hafer, Sunday.

John Fulton, of Florence, was the welcome guest of John Clore and family, Sunday.

Communion services were held at the Lutheran church Sunday. There was a large attendance.

It was Mrs. Chas. Goodridge instead of Mrs. Clore, who visited Mrs. Pickelheimer. They had a delightful river ride on the Pickleheimer boat.

Mrs. Geo. Kreyleich and little daughter, Mattie, of Utzinger, were guests of Miss Maggie Bullock, and attended Sunday School here, last Sunday.

After three months' of hard but pleasant work with her beloved pupils, to whom she had become very much attached, Miss Clara Clore closed her first school, last Friday. A short but entertaining programme had been prepared for the occasion, consisting of a number of appropriate recitations, essays and select readings. Each and every pupil did his or her part in a most excellent manner.

Gasburg.

Mrs. Ennis Nixon is quite sick.

A refreshing rain fell here late Friday afternoon.

Corn and melon planting were vigorously pushed last week.

Marion Bruce, who has been sick for some time, is slowly improving.

Noah Delph has built him an open air residence on the ice-house farm.

A big delegation in Hardin's interest will attend the mass convention from here.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans, of Petersburg, were visiting relatives and friends here, Saturday and Sunday.

There has been no backwater over the lower ford on Woolper for some time, but the mud is so deep that it is impossible to cross.

Henry Sullivan has moved into the tenant house on Geo. R. Berkshire's land, and Ira Kittle into Wm. Rector's house on Bear Wallow Ridge.

Verona.

The closing entertainment of the League Institute will take place on the evening of May 11th. All are invited. On the evening of the 9th the class in Zoology will give a public exhibition of their work in the hall. No admittance. Public examinations from 8th to 11th.

J. J. Griffith and Miss Frances Finch, daughter of T. W. Finch, were united in marriage by Rev. M. J. Hoover, at the M. E. Church, on the afternoon of April 25th. The church had been decorated for the occasion by the friends of the bride, and presented quite a handsome appearance. At the appointed hour, 3 p. m. the church was crowded by the friends of the bride, who had assembled to witness the marital ceremony. At the appointed time the bride and groom, preceeded by Messrs. E. S. McKim, Hugh Arnold, Ome Rogers and Edson Riddell, approached the altar by way of the left aisle, while Misses Katie Smith, Katie Huey, Kittie Gaines and Olga Kirkpatrick proceeded down the right aisle, all keeping time to a sweet wedding march, played by Miss Fannie Rice at the altar the party was met by Rev. Hoover, who with a solemn and impressive ceremony united the two hearts with but a single thought. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left for Cincinnati, where they took a train the next day for Iowa City, Iowa, where the groom and his brother conduct a music store. The bride carried to her new home the best wishes of a multitude of friends.

COUNTY COURT.

E. J. Gorman, of Walton, was granted druggist liquor license.

Mary J. Botts, of the Bellevue neighborhood, was adjudged an imbecile, and Ome Rogers was appointed a committee to take charge of her person and property.

B. L. Rice renewed his bond as guardian of Anna and Lottie Garrison.

A man and woman claiming to hail from Switzerland county, Indiana, applied for a marriage liceuse at the County Clerk's office, last Thursday. They said they were divorced only a few weeks ago, and that they have a son who is 18 years old. Clerk Adams did not take much stock in the statements the couple made, and refused to issue the license.

One of the most pleasant affairs that has taken place at Constance for some time was the marriage of Miss Anna Zimmer and Mr. C. C. Richmond, at the home of the bride's parents, Wednesday evening, April 26. The ceremony was witnessed by a large concourse of relatives and friends, Rev. G. W. Watkins officiating, after which the dining room doors were thrown open where a sumptuous supper was spread for all present. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and useful presents.

Esq. B. H. Ryle departed this life at his home in Rabbit Hash, last Sunday at 4 o'clock p. m. He was a son of the late David Ryle, his wife being a daughter of the late Samuel Calvert, and to them was born one son, Elbert, now aged about 16. Esq. Ryle was holding the office of Justice of the Peace in the third district, an office to which he had been elected on several occasions. He had been suffering with a combination of diseases for some time, and his death was not unexpected. The funeral was preached by Rev. T. W. Barker, at the East Bend Methodist church, of which deceased was a member, last Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Thomas Rice, of Crescent, was in town, last Thursday. That morning when he went to his barn a strange hound dog was in the building. Mr. Rice scolded the animal and as it passed him going out at the door, it snapped at his hand, striking him on the wrist, making a slight abrasion of the skin. Owing to the peculiar actions of the dog, and but of an abundance of caution he came down to Mr. Owen Tanner's to have the Tanner madstone applied to the wound, out Mr. Tanner did not apply the stone, considering to day or tomorrow a better time, when Mr. Rice will return for the application. Mr. Rice has many friends who hope nothing serious will result from the bite.

New Stock Yards.

To the Farmers and Live Stock Men of Kentucky, Especially the County of Boone:

I appeal to you in behalf of the Central Covington Stock Yards, which is a nice, convenient, up-to-date stock yard, situated on the K. C. Railroad, only a few squares from the old Covington Stock Yards, erected of late under the management of a company of good, practical business men, well known to the livestock trade, who will spare no pains in having and securing the best of accommodations for all who favor them with their shipments and business. It is useless to say these yards are the most accessory to the Southern trade, and its facilities are ample to accommodate the same. W. B. Kidd, of Clark county, President, is well know of Kentucky, being a shipper for many years, and of late an export buyer of Layman Bros. He will lend any aid possible to the enterprise. L. Rabenstine, of Rabenstine, Harris & Conner, is Vice-President, who has been connected in the commission business for many years in Cincinnati, and well knows the wants and requirements of the shipper. He and his associates will spare no time and pains in their labors for the interest of the shippers. J. S. Kidd, of J. S. Kidd & Co., is the general manager, who is deserving of any praise, and is kindly known to the live stock trade of Kentucky. Also Simon O'Donnell, now manager of the East Liberty, Pa., Yards, is also one of the directors, who stands today the largest export buyer of the United States, buying at his place from 50 to 80 car loads per day for foreign markets. It will be safe to say he will be represented at the new place, as well as many other Eastern buyers for smutt stock. The local market will be equal to anyother market for all kinds of stock. There are many influential men interested, who are not mentioued, and in all the management is very worthy of note.

The writer has the honor of being placed, by his associates, at the head of OUR Covington business, and will be equipped with able assistants, where we cordially invite your shipments, assuring you the market for your stock at a less expeuse than any other market tributary. Mr. Rabeustine and Mr. Harris will continue the Cincinnati business as before, each business lending assistance as the trade demands.

Feeling quite sure I may be able to extend a frequent invitation to my side, all cattle and sheep can be driven from Erlanger to these yards at much less expense and shrinkage than to ship to Cincinnati. The writer has made many tests in this matter; one for instance, in buying many loads of heavy cattle last season. One load of 17 cattle driven from near Union, lost over 600 pounds, laying one night in yards. another load of 17 cattle shipped the same distance gained 300 pounds with same feed and care, being same grade of cattle, would fully assure any reasonable mind as to the cheapest transportation. Even hogs, especially lights and mediums, which could easily be driven the distauce in less than four hours, saving an extra shrinkage and $3 50 freight. Some may argue when their stock is loaded and billed their troubles are over, but when you consider the delays of trains and other inconveniences they will change their minds, as many loads loaded at Erlanger at 4 P. M. would not be unloaded in Cincinnati before noon or later. Shippers from this station have all had this experience, and in the near future after advertising these yards (which will be before June 1st) the managers hope to convince you fully that the Central Covington Yards is the proper place to be benefitted in marketing your stock.

Feeling very thankful for your former patronage, and trusting that you will remember me at my new place,

Very respectfully yours,
J. M. CONNER.

The Stockholders of the Boone Co. Harvest Home Association met at their grounds, last Saturday, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Wm. TERRORS OF DRINK.

Dr. Talmage Preaches of the Evils of the Liquor Traffic.

In an Eloquent Sermon He Depicts the Drunkard's Woe—The Rum Fiend's Mission Is to Destroy All Good.

Copyright, 1899, by Louis Klopsch, Washington, April 30.

At this time, when the evils of the drink traffic are being widely discussed and the movement for the abolition of the degrading and brutalizing cuateen in our military camps is gaining many supporters, this sermon by Dr. Talmage, dealing with the broader aspects of the plague of intemperance should cheer and inspire the friends of temperance everywhere. His text is Exodus 11:6, "And there shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt."

This was the worst of the ten plagues. The destroying angel at midnight flapped his wing over the land, and there was one dead in each house. Lamentation and mourning and woe through all Egypt. That destroying angel has fled the earth, but a far worse has come. He sweeps through these cities. It is the destroying angel of strong drink. Far worse devastation wrought by this second than by the first. The calamity in America worse than the calamity in Egypt. Thousands of the slain, millions of the slain. No arithmetic can calculate their number.

Once upon a time four fiends met in the long world. They resolved that the people of our earth were too happy, and these four infernals came forth to our earth on embassy of mischief. The one fiend said: "I'll take charge of the vineyards." Another said: "I'll take charge of the grainfields." Another said: "I'll take charge of the dairy." Another said: "I'll take charge of the music." The four fiends met in the great Sahara desert, with skeleton fingers clutched each other in handshake of fidelity, kissed each other good-by with lip of blue flame, and parted on their mission.

The fiend of the vineyard came in one bright morning amid the grapes and sat down on a root of twisted grapevine in sheer discouragement. The fiend knew not how to damage the vineyard, or, through it, how to damage the world. The grapes were so ripe and beautiful and luscious. They bewitched the air with their sweetness. There seemed to be so much health in every bunch, and while the fiend sat there in utter indignation and disappointment he clutched a cluster and squeezed it in perfect spite, and lo! his hand was red with the blood of the vineyard, and the fiend said: "That reminds me of the blood of broken hearts. I'll strip the vineyard, and I'll squeeze out all the juice of the grapes, and I'll allow the juices of the grapes to stand until they rot, and I'll call the process fermentation." And there was a great vat prepared, and people came with their cups and their pitchers, and they dipped up the blood of the grapes, and they drank and drank and went away drinking, and they drank until they fell in long lines of death, so that when the fiend of the vineyard wanted to return to his home in the pit he stepped from carcass to carcass and walked down amid a great causeway of the dead.

Then the second fiend came into the grainfield. He waded chin deep amid the barley and the rye. He heard all the grain talking about bread and prosperous husbandry and thrifty homes. He thrust his long arms into the grainfield, and he pulled up the grain and threw it into the water, and he made beneath it great fires—fires lighted with a spark from his own heart—and there were a grinding and smashing and a stench, and the people came with their bottles, and they poured the fiery liquid, and they drank, and they blasphemed, and they staggered, and they fought, and they rioted, and they murdered, and the fiend of the pit, the fiend of the grainfield, was so pleased with their behavior that he changed his residence from the pit to the whisky barrel, and there he sat by the door of the bunghole laughing in high merriment at the thought that out of anything so harmless as the grain of the field he might turn this world into a seeming pandemonium.

The fiend of the dairy saw the cows coming home from the pasture field, full uddered, and as the maid milked he said: "I'll soon spoil all that mess; I'll add to it brandy, sugar and nutmeg, and I'll stir it into a milk punch, and children will drink it, and some of the temperance people will drink it, and if I can do them no more harm I'll give them a headache, and then I'll hand them over to the more vigorous fiends of the satanic delegation." And then the fiend of the dairy leaped upon the shelf and danced until the long row of shining milkpans almost quaked.

The fiend of the music entered a grogshop and there were but few customers. Finding few customers, he swept the circuit of the city, and he gathered up the musical instruments and after nightfall he marshaled a band, and the trombones blew and the cymbals clapped and the drums beat and the bugles called and the people crowded in, and they swung around in merry dance, each one with a wineglass in his hand, and the dance became wilder and stronger and rougher, until the room shook and the glasses cracked and the floor broke and the crowd dropped into hell.

Then the four fiends—the fiend of the vineyard and of the grainfield and of the dairy and of the music hall—went back to their home, and they held high carnival because their work had been so well done, and Satan rose from his throne and announced that there was no danger of the earth's redemption so long as these four fiends could pay such tax to the diabolic. And then all the demons and all the sprites and all the fiends filled their glasses and clicked them and cried: "Let us drink—drink to the everlasting prosperity of the liquor traffic! Here's to woe and darkness and murder and death! Drink! Drink! Drink!"

Oh, my young friends, I want to tell you that there is a point in inebriation beyond which if a man go he cannot stop! But sometimes a man will be more frank than that. A victim of strong drink said to a reformer: "It is impossible for me to stop. I realize it. But if you should tell me I couldn't have a drink until to-morrow night unless I had all my fingers cut off, I would say: 'Bring the hatchet and cut them off.'" I had a very dear friend in Philadelphia whose nephew came to him and was talking about his trouble and confessed it. He confessed he could not stop. My friend said: "You must stop." He said: "I can't stop. If there stood a cannon, and it was loaded, and there was a glass of wine on the mouth of the cannon, and I knew you would fire it off if I approached, I would start to get that glass of wine. I must have it. I can't get rid of this habit. I can't get away from it." Oh, it is awful for a man to wake up and feel that he is a captive! I hear him soliloquizing, saying: "I might have stopped three months ago, but I can't stop now. Dead, but not buried; I am a walking corpse. I am an apparition of what I once was. I am a caged immortal and my soul beats against the wires of my cage on this side and beats against the wires of my cage on the other side until there is blood on the wires and blood on the soul, but I can't get out. Destroyed without remedy!"

Again, the man suffers from the loss of usefulness. Do you know some of the men who have fallen into the ditch were once in the front rank in churches and in the front rank in reformatory institutions? Do you know they once knelt at the family altar and once carried the chalice of the holy communion on sacramental days? Do you know they once stood in the pulpit and preached the Gospel of the Son of God? We will not forget the scene witnessed some years ago in my Brooklyn church when a man rose in the midst of the audience, stepped into the aisle and walked up and down. Everybody saw that he was intoxicated. The ushers led him out, and his poor wife took his hat and overcoat and followed him to the door. Who was he? He had once been a mighty minister of the Gospel of Jesus Christ in a sister denomination, had often preached in this very city. What slew him? Strong drink! Oh, what must be the feeling of a man who has destroyed his capacity for usefulness? Do not be angry with that man. Do not lose your patience with him. Do not wonder if he says strange things and gets irritated easily in the family. He has the Pyrenees and the Andes and the Alps on him. Do not try to persuade him that there is no future punishment. Do not go into any argument to prove to him that there is no hell. He knows there is. He is there now!

But he suffers also in the loss of physical health. The older people in this audience can remember Dr. Sewell going through this country electrifying great audiences by demonstrating to them the effect of strong drink upon the human stomach. I am told he had eight or ten diagrams which he presented to the people, showing the different stages in the progress of the disease, and I am told tens of thousands of people turned back from that ulcerous sketch and swore eternal abstinence from all intoxicants. God only knows what the drunkard suffers. Pain flies on every nerve and travels every muscle and gnaws on every bone and stings with every poison and pulls with every torture. What reptiles crawl over his shivering limbs! What specters stand by his midnight pillows! What groans tear the air! Talk of the rack, talk of the funeral pyre, talk of the Juggernaut—he suffers all at once.

See the attendants stand back from that ward in the hospital where the inebriates are dying. They cannot stand it. The keepers come through it and say: "Hush up, now! Stop making this noise! Be still! You are disturbing all the other patients. Keep still now!" Then the keepers pass on, and after they get past then the poor creatures wring their hands and say: "O God! Help, help! Give me rum, give me rum! O God! O God!" And they shriek and they blaspheme and they cry for help and then they ask the keepers to slay them, saying: "Stab me, strangle me, smother me! O God! Help, help! Rum! Give me rum! O God! Help!" They tear out their hair by the handful, and they bite their nails into the quick. This is no fancy picture. It is transpiring in a hospital at this moment. It went on last night while you slept, and, more than that, that is the death some of you will die unless you stop. I see it coming. God help you to stop before you go so far that you cannot stop.

But it plagues a man also in the loss of home. I do not care how much he loves his wife and children, if this habit gets the mastery over him he will do the most outrageous things. If need be, in order to get strong drink he would sell them all into everlasting captivity. There are hundreds and thousands of homes that have been utterly blasted of it. I am speaking of no abstraction. Is there anything so disastrous to a man for this life and for the life to come? Do you tell me that a man can be happy when he knows he is breaking his wife's heart and clothing his children with rags? There are little children in the streets to-day, barefooted, unkempt, uncombed, want written on every patch of their faded dress and on every wrinkle of their prematurely old countenance, who would have been in the house of God this morning as well clad as you had it not been that strong drink drove their parents down into penury and then down into the grave. Oh, rum, rum, thou despoiler of homes, thou foe of God, thou recruiting officer of the pit. I hate thee!

But my subject takes a deeper tone when it tells you that the inebriate suffers the loss of the soul. The Bible intimates that if we go into the future world unforgiven the appetites and passions which were regnant here will torment us there. I suppose when the inebriate wakes up in the lost world there will be an infinite thirst clawing upon him. In this world he could get strong drink. However poor he was in this world, he could beg or he could steal five cents to get a drink that would for a little while shake his thirst, but in eternity where will the rum come from? Dives wanted one drop of water, but could not get it. Where will the inebriate get the draught he so much requires, so much demands? No one to brew it. No one to mix it. No one to pour it. No one to fetch it. Millions of worlds now for the dregs that were thrown on the sawdusted floor of the restaurant. Millions of worlds now for the rind flung out from the peach bowl of an earthly banquet. Dives called for water. The inebriate calls for rum.

If a fiend from the lost world should come up on a mission to the grogshop and, having finished the mission in the grogshop, should come back, taking on the tip of his wing one drop of alcoholic beverage, what excitement it would make all through the world of the lost and, if that one drop of alcoholic beverage should drop from the wing of the fiend upon the tongue of the inebriate, how he would spring up and cry: "That's it! That's it! Rum! Rum! That's it!" And all the caverns of the lost would echo with the cry: "Give it to me! Rum! Rum!" Ah, my friends, the inebriate's sorrow in the next world will not be the absence of God or holiness or light; it will be the absence of rum. "Look not upon the wine when it is red, when it moveth itself aright in the cup, for at the last it biteth like a serpent and it stingeth like an adder."

Thirty women in one of the western states banded together and with an especial ordination from God they went forth to the work and shut up all the grogshops of a large village. Thirty women, with their song and with their prayer, and if 1,000 or 2,000 Christian men and women with an especial ordination from God should go forth feeling the responsibility of their work and discharging their mission, they could in any city shut up all the grogshops.

But I must not dwell on generalities; I must come to specifics. Are you astray? If there is any sermon I dislike, it is a sermon on generalities. I want personalities. Are you astray? Have you gone so far you think you cannot get back? Did I say a few moments ago that a man might go to a point in inebriation where he could not stop? Yes, I said it, and I reiterate it. But I want you also to understand that while the man himself, of his own strength, cannot stop, God can stop any man. You have only to lay hold of the strong arm of the Lord God Almighty. He can stop you. Many summers ago I went over to New York one Sabbath evening—our church not yet being open for the autumnal services. I went into a room in the Fourth ward, New York, where a religious service was being held for reformed drunkards, and I heard a revelation that night that I had never heard before—15 or 20 men standing up and giving testimony such as I had never heard given. They not only testified that their hearts had been changed by the grace of God, but that the grace of God had extinguished their thirst. They went on to say that they had reformed at different times before, but immediately fallen, because they were doing the whole work in their own strength. "But as soon as we gave our hearts to God," they said, "and the love of the Lord Jesus Christ has come into our soul the thirst has all gone. We have no more disposition for strong drink."

It was a new revelation to me, and I have proclaimed it again and again in the hearing of those who have far gone astray, and I stand here to-day to tell you that the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ cannot only save your soul, but save your body. I look off to-day upon the desolation. Some of you are so far on in this habit, although there may be no outward indications of it—you never have staggered along the street—the vast majority of people do not know that you stimulate; but God knows, and you know, and by human calculation there is not one chance out of five thousand that you will ever be stopped. Beware! There are some of you who are my warm personal friends to whom I must say that unless you quit this evil habit within ten years, as to your body, you will lie down in a drunkard's grave; and, as to your immortal soul, you will lie down in a drunkard's hell! It is a hard thing to say, but it is true, and I utter the warning lest I have your blood upon my soul. Beware! As to-day you open the door of your wine closet, let the decanter flash that word upon your soul: "Beware!" As you pour out the beverage, let the foam at the top spell out the word, "Beware!" In the great day of God's judgment, when a hundred million drunkards shall come up to get their doom, I want you to testify that this day, in love of your soul and in fear of God, I gave you warning in regard to that influence which has already been felt in your home, blowing out some of its lights—premonition of the blackness of darkness forever.

Oh, if you could only hear intemperance with drunkards' bones drumming on the top of the wine cask the "Dead March" of immortal souls, you would go home and kneel down and pray God that rather than your children should ever become the victims of this evil habit you might carry them out to the cemetery and put them down in the last slumber, waiting for the flowers of spring to come over the grave—sweet prophecies of the resurrection! God hath a balm for such a wound, but what flower of comfort ever grew on the blasted heath of a drunkard's sepulcher?

PUBLIC MEN AS SMOKERS.

The President and All But Two of His Cabinet Enjoy Good Tobacco.

President McKinley is a great smoker. While a member of congress, he used to sit in front of the Ebbitt house each pleasant evening, with his feet propped up on a tree, his chair kicked back, enjoying an after-dinner cigar. It was a familiar sight to passers-by to see Mr. McKinley seated under the big tree facing the ladies' entrance to the Ebbitt house, comfortably, and often solitarily, smoking.

The president now smokes from four to ten cigars a day, although his smoking is done in the privacy and seclusion of the executive mansion.

After his morning meal he lights a cigar and puffs away while his morning mail is sorted. In the afternoon he usually enjoys a mild smoke, and in the evening, after dinner, he repairs to the cabinet room and blows into smoke a long black Havana perfecto.

The president's cigars are usually mild of flavor, although occasionally he delights in a heavy smoke. It is not often that the president is compelled to delve into his private purse for funds to pay for his cigars, as his political friends keep him pretty well supplied.

Vice President Hobart is an inveterate smoker. When there is a lull in the senate proceedings he retires to his private room and lights a mild domestic cigar and appears to enjoy it. When in his office, at his residence, a box of cigars is always at hand.

Secretary of War Alger usually has a box of cigars at his office, and after the department business is cleared away he closes the door and has a 15-minute smoke. He prefers mild cigars, foreign made.

Secretary of State Hay is a light but habitual smoker.

Secretary Gage likes cigars. When a visitor comes into his office with a lighted cigar the secretary never requests that it be thrown out. If he happens to know the visitor real well he will join him in his mild dissipation.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson smokes and chews incessantly. Secretary Hitchcock is also a free smoker.

Secretary Long and Postmaster General Smith are the only members of the cabinet who do not smoke. Mr. Smith never drinks anything stronger than mineral water.

Speaker Reed enjoys an occasional cigar if it be of mild flavor. He usually smokes when writing.—N. Y. World.

Came of Indian Kings.

Mrs. Stanton, of Chilton, Wis., a full-blooded Indian woman 90 years of age, is as proud of her birth and lineage as any woman in America. She is a direct descendant of King Philip. If the claim of the Narragansett Indians of Rhode Island against the United States government is allowed, Mrs. Stanton's share of the award will be about $100,000. It could hardly fall into better hands, as Mrs. Stanton's long life has been spent in good deeds. Mrs. Stanton was educated at an Indian school in this state, and with her husband emigrated to Wisconsin in the early 50's. She personally secured the county seat for Chilton, which was then known as Stantonville, and gave the town all the land on which the public buildings and churches stand. Mrs. Stanton years ago adopted as a son and educated Steve Nichols, who became Gen. Sherman's favorite Indian scout.—N. Y. Journal.

The keen-eyed stranger sidled up to the tall man who was hurriedly shuffling over his mail. "Beg pardon, sir," he said, "but if I am not mistaken you are one of the physicians of the sick author?" "I am," remarked the tall man. "Thank you," said the stranger. "Then I assume that yours is one of the names that appears on the hourly bulletin?" "It does," said the tall man. "Thank you again," said the stranger. "And now, what I want to suggest is that you permit me, for a handsome compensation, of course, to add these words at the bottom of each bulletin: 'Use Bulger's Blood Bitters! They fight off disease!'" "Sir!" snorted the tall man, trembling with indignation, "those bulletins are not advertisements." "Aren't they?" screeched the peppery stranger. "Then take your name off of 'em!" And he stalked away, leaving the tall man speechless with rage.—St. Louis Republic.

FRANCES WILLARD HOSPITAL

USES PE-RU-NA FOR CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

The Frances Willard Hospital, Chicago, Ill.

Miss Georgiana Dean was for three years missionary in Liberia under the M. E. Church from the training school in Chicago. After her return she studied nursing, graduating from the present Frances E. Willard National Temperance Hospital of Chicago. She is an enthusiastic friend of Pe-ru-na, as is evident from the following letter:

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 20, 1899.

Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—You will be glad to know of the happy results obtained from the use of Pe-ru-na among the patients under my care whenever prescribed by the physician. I have seen some very remarkable cures of cases of very obstinate catarrh of the stomach, where Pe-ru-na was the only medicine used. I consider it a reliable medicine.

Georgiana Dean.

The symptoms of catarrhal dyspepsia are: Coated tongue, pain or heavy feeling in the stomach, belching of gas, dizzy head, sometimes headache, despondent feelings, loss of appetite, palpitation of the heart and irregularity of the bowels.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

LAYERING THE GRAPE.

A Method of Propagation Which Many Horticulturists Declare to Be Without a Rival.

Layering is the simplest, surest and easiest method of increasing the grape, and is the best way to grow them where but few vines are wanted. There are two kinds of layers, called spring and summer layers, from the season at which they are made.

Summer layers are made in the summer, generally the last of July, from a branch of the same season's growth. They are likely to be weak for several years, and do not make as good plants as the spring layers. In making them, the wood should be slit for an inch or so near the buds that are covered. Bury about one foot of the cane four inches deep in the ground and it will be rooted by late autumn, when it should be separated and treated as a young vine; and it is generally best to get them well started in a garden or nursery before planting in the vineyard permanently.

Spring layers may be made by laying down any cane early in the spring. It will root in one season. By fall it will have made a good growth of roots,

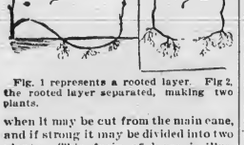

Fig. 1 represents a rooted layer. Fig 2, the rooted layer separated, making two plants.

when it may be cut from the main cane, and if strong it may be divided into two plants. This form of layer is illustrated in Figs. 1 and 2. By a little different treatment of the spring layer a vine may be grown from each bud on the layered cane. For this purpose some thrifty cane should be selected in autumn, pruned of its laterals and buried. In the spring it should be uncovered and only one shoot permitted to grow from each joint. After the new growth has started about six inches from each bud the whole cane should be layered about four inches deep, handling it carefully so as not to break the new growth.

Fig. 3 shows such a layer after it has rooted. It is a good plan to cover it not more than three inches at first, and to fill up the trench as the shoots grow. If covered four inches deep at once the young growth will sometimes rot, though this seldom happens, and some skillful growers fill the trench full at once. In the autumn roots will be found growing from each joint, and these may be cut apart and treated as recommended for weak vines grown from cuttings. If this method of propagation is to be used to some considerable extent vines should be grown especially for the purpose. It is not a good plan to use fruiting vines for layering to any great extent, though it may be safely done in a small way.—Farm and Fireside.

BIRD DESTRUCTION.

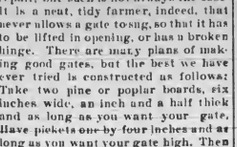
A Growing Evil Against Which the Farmers of the Country Should Protest Emphatically.

Through the middle states and in some parts of the south, a mischievous trade is carried on during the winter and the early spring. It is the slaughter of insect-destroying birds, to be sold as "reedbirds" in the city markets. "Reedbird on toast" is a favorite dish with the epicures; but the epicures seldom get the "reedbirds" they order.

Authorities at Washington declare that hundreds of thousands of robins, bluebirds, cedar-birds, shore-larks and other insect-eating birds are killed for this purpose every year. A single dealer in Washington received 5,000 robins in one shipment from North Carolina, and sold them all as reedbirds.

Not only is the traffic reprehensible as a commercial fraud, but it is a direct and very grave injury to farmers, whose fruit trees, shrubs and crops would be seriously injured, and in some cases ruined, if insectivorous birds were exterminated.

Through the work of the men of science in the government departments at Washington, our farmers are learning the value of insect-destroying birds to their fields and gardens. They are, therefore, neglectful of their own interests if they do not protest against this cruel and ruinous traffic, not only in the name of humanity, but because of the imperative needs of agriculture.—Youth's Companion.



Mud Roads Are Expensive.

Good roads associations will find an argument in the statement made by a farmer member of the Illinois legislature, who stated that it costs more to get grain from the average farm to the railroad station than to send it the rest of the way to Liverpool. There may be a slight exaggeration in the statement, but it correctly describes the enormous cost to the country of impassable mud roads.

A NEAT FARM GATE.

To Construct One That Will Weather Well Is Not Such a Serious Task as Many Think.

Upon every farm there must be gates. These gates should always be in good repair, but such is not always the case. It is a neat, tidy farmer, indeed, that never allows a gate to sag, so that it has to be lifted in opening, or has a broken hinge. There are many plans of making good gates, but the best we have ever tried is constructed as follows: Take two pine or poplar boards, six inches wide, an inch and a half thick and as long as you want your gate. Have pickets one by four inches and as long as you want your gate high. Then a brace one by four inches, long enough to reach from the lower corner of gate on hinge end to top corner, where the latch is to be placed. Lay the two rails down on barn floor or trestles, if you have them, the proper distance apart, and nail on your pickets, putting four nails in each end. Saw braces to fit in between rails without notching, and nail pickets to this. Bolt on hinges, having holes in same, so the bolts will pass through both picket and rail. At the other end bolt a paling on each side of the rail. Have a common latch made out of old wagon tire or any old piece of bar iron and when this is properly secured your gate is complete. Always use dressed lumber, so you can paint any desired color, red being usually preferred. A gate made in this manner will last for 20 years, if kept painted, and it will never sag a particle, and is good and strong. No mortising is required, and there are no notches, joints or holes to hold moisture and rot. It is also a very nice gate, not bad even for the front entrance. Almost any sort of boteh farmer can make it, the saw and hatchet being the only tools necessary to use in its construction. It can be easily made to fit when the gate opening is on a hillside and when one post is set lower than the other. All that is necessary to make such a gate fit is to give the rails the same pitch as the ground. It is the easiest gate made, and the best we have ever tried.—Orange Judd Farmer.

A NEAT FARM GATE.

RULE OF KING MUD.

The Annual Lamentation About His Cruelty and Tyranny Now Appears in Print.

Mud! mud!!, mud!!!

The newspapers from every corner of the nation bring the same old annual spring moan. Only the grief appears to be growing a little more inconsolable each year, as the public becomes more cognizant of the fact that bad roads are almost as unnecessary as they are unpleasant and unprofitable. A whole paper could be filled with complaints like the following from the Decatur (Ill.) Republican:

"The country roads are now in a worse condition than they have been for a number of years past. It is simply impossible for those who have not attempted to drive over the roads to realize what condition they are in. No grain at all is moving and the traffic of the farmers is practically blockaded. A few days ago an empty wagon was stuck in the mud on the streets of Monticello, and the roads outside of the village were even worse."

Or like this from the Latrobe (Pa.) Daily Clipper:

"The bad condition of the country roads is known to all who travel them, but our milkmen, who have to travel them early every morning, have the most experience. As an example we note the breaking of W. W. Nichols' wagon while coming to town with milk this morning. It is thought by some that the bottom has fallen out of some spots and wagon wheels should be steen feet high to plow through them."

If the object lesson to be derived from a study of the "horrible example" really counts for anything, the roads in every part of the country must soon show a marked improvement.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

DAIRY PHILOSOPHY.

If a little extra care will secure you one cent a pound more for your butter, it will be one dollar extra on a hundred pounds. Money is what we conduct the dairy for.

If we have kept a cow all winter that is unprofitable, do not let her eat up valuable grass during the summer. An unprofitable cow is unprofitable either on or off pasture.

The poor butter does not sell as quickly as good butter, and the longer butter is kept the worse it is. No wonder that so much butter does not bring the cost of its production.

Honor to the boy who thinks his father's knowledge pretty nearly perfect. But let no young dairyman, however, successful his father was as a dairyman, think that there is nothing to learn.

In nearly every paper devoted to the dairy that we pick up, we find kindnesses to the cow urged. Is it a fact that men are so reckless as to be brutal to the cows, and that so much space need be used to urge kindness?

Don't forget that there are more licenses being taken out to sell butterine than has ever before been the case. The stuff is not all honestly sold. Give the iniquity a whack in the dairy meetings and demand more legislation upon the subject.—Western Plowman.

STICKING TO ALGER.

In Spite of Republican Remonstrance the Beef Combine Holds On.

The New York Tribune is not only the foremost republican paper in the United States, but it is moreover a particularly zealous champion of the McKinley administration. It was an original McKinleyite in the ante-convention days when Thomas C. Platt and the machine in this state were assailing McKinley with every form of vituperation. The editor of the Tribune, Mr. Whitelaw Reid, has been twice designated by the president to confidential and important duties, showing the relations of mutual confidence which exist. Nevertheless, the Tribune has editorially done some plain talking about the beef scandal, and the Tribune's Washington correspondent says:

"It is a bad business, although republicans are perfectly confident of the president's rectitude of purpose. But, whether justly or unjustly, it is undeniable that many of the most clear-headed republicans of the capital feel that Secretary Alger is largely responsible for the situation created by this beef investigation. It is felt by these party men that through Gen. Alger's influence, impelled by those in the department who controlled him, the president in some sort has made himself the champion of Eagan by the ill-considered mitigation of as righteous a sentence as ever was delivered by a court, rendering the whole proceeding little better than a farce.

"Many practical politicians felt, and of late have often expressed the conviction that the president should let go of Secretary Alger. Some republicans no doubt admire the president for so doggedly upholding his secretary under fire, but they are not numerous. Few prominent republicans are found now who think he is acting wisely in doing so. A mere individual is nothing, the party is everything, in the estimation of these men. Gen. Alger's protracted retention in office, now of questionable policy in any event, and so obviously detrimental to the president's personal interests, is becoming a subject of deep speculative wonder everywhere and to everybody."

As the Tribune correspondent very justly says, "the beef inquisition has become a most extraordinary affair, and the light thrown on the methods of the war department bureaucracy by recent unexpected developments is a matter of grave concern to the country." But the question arises, is it not already too late for the president to unload? He has sentenced Eagan to a vacation on full pay; he has appointed a court of inquiry, composed of Gen. Miles' enemies, to investigate Miles' grave charges; he has rewarded the friends of Alger and Algerism, and, so far as he knows, will undoubtedly pigeonhole Gen. Miles, the common soldiers' friend.

Alger has openly announced that he will not go unless he is kicked out. To kick him out would involve the greatest publicity to all these various scandals. The administration seems to be between Scylla and Charybdis. It might get rid of Alger; but of its own complicity with and support for Algerism, it cannot get rid.—Albany Argus.

REED IN THE WAY.

The Republican Czar as an Obstacle to National Progress.

"Speaker Reed is no fool," Mr. Hanna is quoted as saying, when asked concerning the reported determination of the man from Maine to antagonize the administration.

There is a possibility that the Ohio senator overrates the stuffed czar's astuteness; Mr. Reed has been troubled with political strabismus ever since the national convention that nominated McKinley, and cannot see much farther than the pug nose on his face. Overfeeding is at all times disadvantageous, and Mr. Reed has fed with such gustatory ardor upon his own greatness and ambition, that his intellectual indigestion is undergoing a disorder of the most aggravated type. His system generates spleen like a weasel's, and yellow jaundice has had such an effect on his appearance that he has mistaken himself for a worshipful Chinese Joss.

As Mr. Reed stood before the house during the last hours before congress adjourned, he felt proud of himself, and his nostrils distended with the pantings of victory; he had defeated the Nicaragua canal bill; he had defeated the bill for promotions in the navy; he had been instrumental in making a scandal of the civil service laws and the census; in various ways, so far as he dared in the face of public opinion, he had frustrated the policy of the president, and had sprouted quills of displeasure and criticism at every measure like a fretful porcupine.

Reed is a big block in the way of national progress. He is a barnacle on the ship of state. Like John Sherman, but without as much reason, he is embittered by disappointment, and his spirit, crying "Havoc!" pangs for revenge like Ate, "come hot from hell."

After the lesson of the Oregon, the killing of the canal bill and the substitution of a measure but little if any better than the one passed by the Fifty-fourth congress was nothing less than a base betrayal of the people's interests, and this for the benefit of the grimy-handed agents of the Panama canal scheme, who brought shame and reproach to France as they will bring disgrace to this country if given the chance. The perpetuation of the Sampson-Schley controversy, itself one of the most regrettable consequences of the war, thus giving new force to the question as an element of discord in the navy, was an example of petty pettifogging unworthy of a backwoods court of justice.

—Mr. McKinley has told his friends he intends to keep out of the speakership contest and that there will be no administration candidate. The people could only ask one thing more of him in this matter, and that is that he look to it that there is no Hanna candidate.—Chicago Journal.

TRUSTS AND PROTECTION.

A High Tariff Abrogates the Only Law That Can Down Monopolies.

When Attorney General Griggs defends his inaction with regard to trusts on the ground that there is no law that is strong enough to curb them, it is evident that nothing will be done by the attorney general to relieve the people of trust oppression.

But there is another law besides that written in the statutes that can reach the trusts, and that is the law of supply and demand.

Protection abrogates this law because it shuts off the supply of commodities from abroad and leaves the demand without a competitive supply.

By removing this protection, as the New York Journal points out, competition could be revived and the rule of the trusts be broken.

Concerning this matter, the Journal pertinently asks:

"Why should we give the $7,000,000 borax trust the power to tax American consumers five cents a pound on borax?

"Could not the $30,000,000 Knit Goods company and the $50,000,000 print cloth pool get along without duties of 50 per cent. and upward on the things that people must wear?

"Would it not be possible for the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry company, capital $30,000,000, to make a living without nine dollars a ton protection?

"Is the $30,000,000 National Lead company in dire need of the proceeds of a tax of 1½ cents a pound on lead?

"Could not the $45,000,000 western lumber pool destroy our forests fast enough without the stimulus of a duty of two dollars per 1,000 feet on pine boards?

"Do the consumers of sugar feel morally bound to pay tariff taxes of $20,000,000 a year to the sugar trust and its allies, with their capital of $128,000,000?

"Are the various steel trusts, total capitalization $567,650,000, so poor that they must have outdoor relief in the form of duties of from $6.72 per ton upward on steel and its products?

"Is not the $59,000,000 American Tin Plate company a sufficiently robust infant by this time to be able to dispense with its pap of 1½ cents a pound on tin plates?"

These are significant questions, and if the administration wants to help the people it can do so by putting all articles controlled by trusts on the free list.

This would not require a long series of suits at law; by one simple amendment to the Dingley bill the good work would be accomplished. If those republicans are sincere who are arguing against trusts, they will urge the administration to make a move in the direction indicated.—Chicago Democrat.

HANNA'S DECREE.

The Republican Boss Is Busy Over a Successor to Czar Reed.

No one conversant with the facts of recent political history will doubt that Hanna will be consulted concerning the speakership of the Fifty-sixth congress. His say-so is likely to be an important factor in determining who shall be chosen to fill the place made vacant by the retirement of Mr. Reed.

The report that Hanna has decreed that the speaker of the next house shall be a man favorable to the Hanna-Payne subsidy bill is not calculated to excite surprise. It is entirely consistent with Hanna's record and affiliations.

Hanna's relation to the federal government is mainly of a business kind. He did not purchase a seat in the senate for the sole purpose of being near the president so that he might counsel him how to paddle his canoe safely through the shoals and quicksands of practical politics. Marcus, the Axgrinder, is not serving as the Sejanus of the administration purely for diversion or for the purpose of preserving his health. He has laid his services and talents upon the altar of his country, but, all the same, he intends to reward himself for his sacrificial offering by appropriating some of the golden candlesticks and jeweled ornaments.

Mark is a shipowner, and he has shipowning friends, the members of the Standard Oil trust among them. To remunerate them and him he has framed a measure known as the Hanna-Payne subsidy bill, whose mission is to legislate $400,000,000 out of the pockets of the people of the United States when congress meets. The speaker still be an important influence in engineering this scheme of robbery through the house. Mr. Hanna may be depended on to exert all his resources to secure for the place an individual pliant to his plans.—St. Louis Republic.

NEW YORK CENTRAL.

Its Passenger Earnings, Including Controlled Lines, Excel the Pennsylvania—A Stupendous Showing.

The passenger department of the New York Central system, including lines leased, operated and controlled, east from St. Louis and Chicago, is the largest paying institution of its kind in the world. It beats the Pennsylvania system with its leased and operated lines in the territory named by $1,535,755, and is so far ahead of any other system that comparison, to say the least, is odious. Poor's Manual, which is an authority on railway statistics, in its last yearly edition showed the passenger earnings of thirty-six of the leading railways, as follows:

Pennsylvania	$21,200,000

PARSNIP COMPLEXION.

A majority of the ills afflicting people to-day can be traced to kidney trouble. It pervades all classes of society, in all climates, regardless of age, sex or condition.

The sallow, colorless-looking people you often meet are afflicted with "kidney complexion." Their kidneys are turning to a parsnip color, so is their complexion. They may suffer from indigestion, bloating, sleeplessness, uric acid, gravel, dropsy, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, or irregular heart. You may depend upon it, the cause is weak, unhealthy kidneys.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble and both need the same remedy. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, will build up and strengthen weak and unhealthy kidneys, purify the diseased, kidney-poisoned blood, clear the complexion and soon help the sufferer to better health.

The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, such as weak kidneys, catarrh of the bladder, gravel, rheumatism and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

When writing be sure and mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

ALABASTINE

LABASTINE is the original and only durable wall coating, entirely different from all kalsomines. Ready for use in white or twelve beautiful tints by adding cold water.

ADIES naturally prefer ALABASTINE for walls and ceilings, because it is pure, clean, durable. Put up in dry powder form, in five-pound packages, with full directions.

LL kalsomines are cheap, temporary preparations made from whiting, chalk, clays, etc., and stuck on walls with decaying animal glue. ALABASTINE is not a kalsomine.

EWARE of the dealer who says he can sell you the "same thing" as ALABASTINE or "something just as good." He is either not posted or is trying to deceive you.

ND IN OFFERING something he has to sell when and tries to sell on ALABASTINE'S demands, he may not realize the error in so doing. You will suffer by a kalsomine on your walls.

ENSIBLE dealers will not buy a lawsuit. Dealers risk one by selling and consumers by using infringement. Alabastine Co. own right to make wall coatings to mix with cold water.

HE INTERIOR WALLS of every schoolhouse should be coated only with pure, durable ALABASTINE. It safeguards health. Hundreds of tons are used annually for this work.

N BUYING ALABASTINE, see that packages are properly labeled. Beware of large four-pound package light kalsomine offered to customers as a five-pound package.

UISANCE of wall paper is obviated by ALABASTINE. It can be used on plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or canvas. A child can brush it on. It does not rub scale off.

STABLISHED in favor. Shun all imitations. Ask paint dealer or druggist for tint card. Write for "Alabastine Era," free, to ALABASTINE CO., Grand Rapids, Michigan.

STATE NEWS.

Republican State convention will be held in Lexington July 12.

Winchester will vote on local option June 20. It is dry now.

Mrs. Minerva Reesor died in Meade county, aged 104 years.

The board of civil service examiners at Owensboro has been abolished.

One Maysville man claims he will handle 800,000 dozen eggs this year worth $80,000.

W. T. Ellis, postmaster and merchant at Ervingford, Trimble county, dropped dead.

Persimmon timber is in demand, and there are many inquiries for it in Kentucky timber districts.

Wm. Saulsberry, of Grayson, had his metallic coffin brought into his sick room that he might inspect it.

Miss Christine Bradley has been chosen to unveil the Kentucky monument at Chickamauga Park May 3.

F. S. Gray, of Trenton, Todd county, has patented a farm gate that he thinks will prove a "world-beater."

The farm near Hodgenville on which Abraham Lincoln was born has changed owners and will probably be converted into a park.

St. Francis de Sales Catholic Church, at Sixth and Broadway, in Paducah, will be torn down and replaced with a handsome $50,000 edifice.

Miss Maud James, daughter of United States Marshal A. D. James has been made a deputy United States marshal, the first woman in Kentucky to be clothed with this power.

The trial of Briggs Caldwell at Scottville for the alleged murder of Fount Justice and Charley Hancock seven years ago resulted in the jury failing to agree after occupying the time of the court for almost a whole week.

Nelson Crume, a colored man of Fairfield, probably wears the largest shoes in the State. They measure sixteen inches in breadth. The merchants always have his shoes made to order at the factory and brought on for him. He stands 6 feet 4 inches in his big shoes and tips the beam at 235 pounds.

While working at a sawmill at Joppa, Edmonson county, a few days ago, Jake Davis fell across a circular saw in motion and his body was sawn asunder, his legs falling on one side and his body on the other. He expired in a few moments. Young Davis was twenty-one years old and unmarried.

The Rev. I. F. J. McKinster has invented a mail crane that catches and leaves pouches when the trains are going at full speed. The old style crane only catches while the postal clerk has to fling the pouches out on the ground. He has patented the invention and has received commendable notice from the Post-office Department that has been for years searching for an invention of this character. The Rev. South Preston is interested with the inventor.

J. J. Moore, of Boyle county, was awarded $15,000 damages against the Stanford Turnpike Company for alleged carelessness in causing the death of his daughter. The child was killed while attempting to pass the toll-gate near Danville, while it was in charge of the soldiers a year ago. Moore sued for $30,000 and the road got a change of venue to Casey county. There the first trial gave Moore $17,000, but the Judge set the verdict aside on the grounds that it was excessive. The Turnpike Company will fight the case through all the courts.

With the assistance that they expect to secure in the way of subscriptions from the people, the Elks expect to hold the biggest exhibition ever held in the State. It will be a modern, up-to-date fair, with all the great attractions that can be secured, regardless of cost. The program will be a magnificent one, consisting of agricultural and mechanical exhibits, prize show rings of horses, cattle and other live stock. There will be attractions to please all classes, and there will be nothing left out of the program that is calculated to attract and please.

A most unusual occurrence took place near Spanishburg, in Mercer county, the other day. One of Sheriff White's deputies is a local preacher, and while he was occupying the pulpit at that place he noticed two much-wanted mountaineers in the audience for whom he had warrants. After the opening hymn was concluded he drew his pistol, to the great surprise of his audience, and coolly walking down the aisle, arrested both the fugitives, who were completely overcome with surprise. After putting the bracelets on the men he led them back to the pulpit, gave them a seat and concluded his sermon. Both men are now in jail at Bluefield.

A decision on a phase of the whisky question that will be of general interest, was handed down last week by the Court of Appeals in a case appealed from Mercer county. The question involved was whether the county court had the right to order an election on the liquor question in the city of Harrodsburg within three years from the time a similar election had been held in the county. The vote was taken in the county December 5, 1896, and the majority was against its sale. A vote was taken in the city of Harrodsburg on May 10, 1898. The lower court held that the city could hold an election on the question at any time independent of the county action, and this judgment was affirmed.

CROP AND STOCK.

The Danville Advocate notes the sale of 70 cattle, 950 to 1,050 pounds at 5 cents.

The discarded mules which the Government is selling at Chattanooga are bringing from $45 to $180.

Claxon & Chipley, of Owen county, sold to T. L. Vanmeter, of Clark, 80 head of fine feeders, averaging 1,162 pounds, at $4 65 per cwt.

About 1,000 cattle at Mt. Sterling on court day and quality fair. The best 800 pound steers sold at 5 to 5½ cents; yearlings at 5½ to 6 cents.

Cows will do much better with salt constantly before them. There is a difference in the churning of the cream, and the product is much better.

Baron Heyl, of Germany, bought of Shelby Harbison, of Lexington, a pair of elegant driving horses for $1,500. They will be shipped to Berlin.

The peach crop in Hancock county will be a failure. But apples seem to be plentiful, and from the bloom the plum crop will be a plentiful one.

The U. S. exported 61,000 horses in 1898, valued at $6,000,000. The imports were 2,286 head, valued at $2,000,000, Great Britain secured more than half of our exports.

Joel Fesler of Mt. Sterling, sold three fine harness geldings for $1,000. One of these horses, said to be the best gelding in Kentucky went to J. T. Crenshaw, of Lexington, for $600.

Spinal meningitis is prevalent among horses at Paducah, and there have been fourteen cases in a few weeks. Eleven of the horse died, and great alarm is being felt among stock owners in that section.

The department of agriculture has four scientific explorers abroad getting seeds and plants, one in Russia, one in the countries around the Mediterranean, one in the China seas and one in South America.

Thornton Cox, of Springdale, has just closed a contract with the Augusta Canning Factory for all the tomatoes he can raise on twelve acres of ground, at 20 cents per bushel.—Maysville Public Ledger.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, advised some of the colored people whom he met to plant clover and raise sheep and cattle. "The trouble," he said, "is that you keep too many dogs and too few sheep. The cost of feeding one dog would raise two sheep or one hog."

Stock cattle are higher than they have been for years, ranging from 4½ to 6 cents per pound. There were about 300 head at the Union stock yards on Monday, and were principally sold by the head and when weighed up were found to range as high as we state above.—Lexington Gazette.

The term cantaloupe when used to designate muskmelon, is usually very misleading. According to good authority, cantaloupe is a melon having a scaly or rough skin, of the warty appearance of the Hubbard squash, and is generally deeply furrowed when ribbed. Comparatively few are raised in this country.

Hon. C. M. Clay, jr., has been raising sorghum for several years as cattle feed. He sows it in May with a wheat drill, planting one bushel to the acre. It is cut with an ordinary mower before frost in Fall, and piled in large shocks. He leaves it in this condition, until he feeds it out. He says, that if properly put up, it will keep nicely all winter. He feeds it with corn in this form. He says his experience is that it is the cheapest and best feed grown.—Paris Reporter.

There is no reason for peach trees dying out in ten years, "bearing themselves out," some farmers will say. What they mean is "being starved out." A peach tree, barring accidents, should be good for twenty-five years. It should, however, have as good cultivation, liberal feeding, and as much general attention as an annual crop. It should be examined twice a year for borers and when its limbs begin to die out and look straggly—so that people ordinarily will say it is played out—it should be pruned back severely—cut way back—when new, vigorous shoots with dark green leaves will put forth, and the second year after a good crop may be looked for. There are many thirty-year old peach trees in the country.

One of the brightest little boys to be found anywhere is John Howard Greene, the seven-year-old pet of Judge J. W. Greene's household. John Howard gets away with his father in many a controversy, and nobody enjoys it more than the Judge. This is one of the latest: The Judge was twitting the youngster upon letting Hardin Hackett's little boy get ahead of him in his books. John Howard contended that Mr. Hackett's boy was older than he and ought to know more. This was hardly satisfactory, so the subject was not allowed to drop just yet. Finally the Judge said he couldn't understand why it was that Hardin Hackett's boy was smarter than his boy. No sooner said than the little fellow gave this clinching answer: "I reckon it's because Hardin Hackett's boy's daddy is smarter than your boy's daddy."

ARE YOU A DEMOCRAT?

An old adage reads: "There is a place for everything," and for everything to be in its place, the LOUISVILLE DISPATCH should find a place in the home of every DEMOCRAT in the SUNNY SOUTH. The Dispatch is the people's paper, owned by the people, and is always ready to fight for the cause of the people. IT STANDS SQUARELY ON THE CHICAGO PLATFORM, without the aid or consent of the Gold Bug Monopolies, and a fair comparison of its news service (now being furnished over leased wires by the New York Sun, the Chicago Inter Ocean and the Northern Press Association) with that of any other paper, will fully verify its Motto, "If you see it in the Dispatch it's so, and if it's so it is always in the Dispatch."

The Dispatch also has a staff of over 300 active correspondents in the South, and will POSITIVELY GUARANTEE MORE THAN DOUBLE THE SOUTHERN NEWS of any other Louisville paper. Get the Dispatch; it gives the news and tells the truth about it.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1899. NO. 29.

The report of the Court of Inquiry which investigated the charges of Gen. Miles in reference to the bad meat furnished the American troops is a flagrant insult to the intelligence of the American people. The evidence as published in the newspapers was unquestionably a vindication of Miles, but it is apparent that the verdict was determined, not by the evidence in the case but by the instructions of the War Department. The court was constituted for the purpose of whitewashing everything and everbody except the Commanding General who had the courage to expose the gross inefficincy of the administration of the War Department. The approval of this report by the President will add to the accumulation of evidence which convicts him of weakness and the most hopeless incapacity. His approval will be an act of cowardice more offensive to honest men than the conduct for which his Secretary of War was once court-martialed. It will humiliate and disgrace a great nation, which should honor the courageous performance of duty rather than condemn the officer who exposes the rottenness and inefficiency of a President's favorite.—Dispatch.

BECAUSE the Republican party in the State appears to be in a very unharmonious condition the Democrats must not think it will require no effort to defeat it next fall. The Republicans will indulge in the bitterest of quarrels among themselves, but when election day arrives they are all loyal supporters of their ticket and work for its success in the most harmonious manner, hence that party's ability to poll its full strength every time there is a slight probability of its achieving success. The Democratic party in Kentucky of late years does not act with the unanimity that use to characterize it. There are too many who think the party must cater to their individual preferences when it comes to making nominations, and if their favorites are not successful in the convention they often refuse to support the nominee, or if they do they throw cold water until the ballots are counted and the result is declared. When Kentucky Democrats act in harmony they are invincible, but they can not expect success when any considerable portion leave the party as was done in 1895 and 1896.

THERE is no question but the Republicans will endeavor to repeal the Goebel election law, to prevent any railroad legislation similar to the McChord bill, and defeat any school book bill that may be presented. These bills are issues that may be dodged by some of the candidates during the campaign, but after the two tickets are nominated the Republican candidate for Governor will compel his Democratic opponent to take position in regard to them and unless he does this in the canvass preceeding the nomination, a great many Democrats may be disappointed in the candidate they are now supporting.

THE colored Bishop, Henry M. Turner, said recently in a sermon in Atlanta, Georgia, that slavery afforded the negroes better protection than they enjoy under present conditions. He also announced as his belief that the race question in the south would never be settled, "until the negro obeys God's manifest will and returns to Africa."

LAST week Grant county tested her new stone crusher, and found it to be a success in every particular. It cost $900, can be operated at a cost of $16 per day, and will crush a perch of stone in from eight to ten minutes, putting about 100 perch of stone on the road in day.

LAWRENCEBURG gave her soldier boys a grand reception upon their arrival home, last week. The town belonged to them for two or three days.

THE stench arising from the report of the beef investigating committee is more offensive than that emitted by the rotten beef.

RICHARD CROKER and Thomas B. Reed are hobnobbing with the Prince of Wales and other English sports.

A CARD.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I hope no one will think that I have part or parcel in the Utz Jones and Crates Lentz controversy, but what I shall write will be written from a Pedobaptist standpoint.

It seems to me that the "well informed" brother from Walton has crawled in a hole and pulled the hole in after him, and if the editor of the World does not, it will be because he can't find a hole little enough. I do not think Pedobaptist preachers treat Baptist preachers fair. The poor fellows have enough to do to explain to their own people what the Bible teaches without having to turn aside and inform Pedobaptists what their own creeds and disciplines teach. But, no wonder, for it would take a Philadelphia lawyer to interpret some of the present day creeds and disciplines. Think of it will you, Bro. Jones had to turn aside from his own people at Covington to inform the "well informed" brother at Walton that which his own discipline taught. Now my good brother from Bellevue has been compelled to turn aside from those good old saints to explain to the editor of the World what the "Augsburg Confession of Faith" teaches. But editors are mortals as well as other people. Ask my good friend Riddell if that is not so? Now, my brethren Jones and Utz should be easy on the poor fellows; for remember that while the "spirit is willing the flesh is weak." You must remember that Paul was not a Baptist preacher, (according to the editor of the World) because he baptized the household of Stephanus and there were babies in it. This settles it; you must not attack the babies. A prominent Catholic writer said a short while ago as quoted from "The Irish Baptist Magazine" for April, 1899, in reference to infant baptism: "It was certainly invented by the Catholic church by virtue of the power invested in the head of the church, by our Holy Father, the Pope. The Holy Catholic church has never taught what Protestants preach (because untrue) that infant sprinkling is supported by the Holy Scriptures. I do not say all Protestants are guilty of this, as I understand there are certain sects who practice the "Immersion of believers." These are supported by scripture, and carry out the teaching of the New Testament on this subject to the very letter, but they deny the right of the Holy Catholic church to alter sacrament to suit circumstances. In this they are logically consistent. But the larger sects of Protestantism in this country are inconsistent in ascribing to scripture what they received from the Mother Church. Why should there be such a hue and cry against 'Ritualism' in the church of Ireland by so-called Protestants, while they cultivate in 'infant sprinkling' the very thing they denounce? To be candid, as a Catholic, I have no hesitation in saying if we gave up infant sprinkling, it would cut away from our church the very foundation of what Orangemen and others describe as 'Ritualism.' Yet Orangemen, (Lentz,) Presbyterians and others are bold enough to defend that which they received from us, and for which they have no scriptural authority. * Perhaps they are coming to believe with us in the infallibility of the church and its head, the Pope, and therefore still retain that which belongs to us only, viz: infant sprinkling. This one link still connects Protestants to the Mother Church: hence the yearning desire of the Pope to have the bonds still existing stregthened so that his rebellious children may return to his protection and care."

The above parenthesis is mine. I hope Bro. Lentz will get the sand out of his eyes when he reads the above quotation, and duly consider. I have written these few lines to show how things looked to a man up in the West Virginia hills.

The Boone County RECORDER is a welcome visitor. No one ever fully appreciates his home paper until he is separated from home. I scan its columns with eager eyes, and with the exception of some nonsense written by the Union correspondent, I look upon it as a newsy, clean paper fit to enter any home. Success to it.

Brethren, my advice is, have a District Board meeting every change of the moon. J. L. PRESSER.

Sistersville, W. Va.

IN his speeches Mr. Stone has claimed that he was wounded in the battle at Cynthiana during the civil war, but a man has come to the front who says he was within two steps of Stone when he was wounded at Mt. Sterling.

JONES TO CRATES.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Bro. Crates wrote a letter to Bro. Oney, and then tried to misrepresent Bro. Oney so as to prove that he (Crates) was a member of the Eleventh St. Church. But, Bro. Crate's "time is too crowded to permit of correspondence with the pastor of Central Methodist church, Kansas City, Mo." Poor man! the cares and duties of the Walton pastorate weigh heavily upon him! It does not take any longer to write a letter to a pastor in Kansas City than to a pastor in Covington. Some excuse is better than none, even with Bro Crates.

And now let me tell Bro. Crates that I have written a letter to Bro. Oney, and it will make very uncomfortable reading for Bro. Crates. In this letter Bro. Oney says: "On my arrival home from ten days' trip, I found your letter. I regret the discussion between you and Bro. Crates, and further more that Bro. Crates misconstrued my meaning in regard to his name being on church register. I suppose that it is on the register, but it is doubtless marked as being a member of the Kentucky Conference as is our custom on church register, showing the disposition of each member of the church. The large register to which I referred has now 1,135 names on it. I have not made a search among those names for Bro. Crate's name, that is the reason why I said what I did in regard to the large regis-ter. I will say that I do not regard Bro. Crates in any sense a member of the Eleventh St. church. So this ought to settle that point."

In addition I asked Bro. Oney these questions, which I give with his answers:

Ques. "Are you a member of any local M. E. church? If so, what church?"

Ans. "I am not."

Ques. "Did you deny the existence of Bro. Crate's name on the roll of members of Eleventh Street M. E. church?"

Ans. "Not his name but membership."

Ques. "As a matter of fact is Bro. Crates a member of Eleventh Street church?

Ans. "No."

Ques. "Bro. Crates says: 'True, I am not an active member,' &c. Is he a member at all? Could he be a member of Eleventh St., church and not be amenable to it?"

Ans. "No."

Comment is useless, and yet Bro. Crates quoted a sentence from Bro. Oney's letter and "misconstrued" the meaning of the letter, claiming that Bro. Oney had vindicated his absurd claim.

Bro. Crates comes out with a grand flourish and says: "I went from 11th St. church into the Conference and have never taken a letter, withdrawn, been expelled or died. Draw your own conclusion." And yet if Bro. Crates was not so densely ignorant or unwilling to tell the truth he would say plainly that his name had been "marked as being a member of the Kentucky Conference, as is our custom on church register." If he is ignorant of such a simple custom, how are we to take his word in anything? If he deliberately misrepresents facts, how are we to take his word in anything? Whose word shall we take in this matter, that of Rev. C. F. Oney, or J. W. Crates—which?

Bro. Crates next tries to redeem himself by discussing amenability, saying: "I used the term member as not involving amenability." Bro. Oney in the last question and answer above says that a man cannot be a member of the church and not be amenable to it. Shall we believe Bro. Oney or J. W. Crates—which?

Again, Bro. Crates tries to save himself by discussing connectionalism. Why of course if you take the Methodist church in the idea of unity, being composed of churches, conferences, bishops, presiding elders, pastors, &c., all these composing "The Methodist Church," I have never denied that preachers were members. But that has never been the point under discussion in this controversy. My contention all along has been that Methodist preachers were not members of local Methodist churches, while Bro. Crates contended that they were. I proved my contention by testimony from Bro. Oney, Bishop Hendrix, Bishop Horgrove and the Discipline of 1898. Shall we believe these, or J. W. Crates—which? "Draw your own conclusion."

And now let me call attention to a few things concerning the Lord's Supper. Bro. Crates says: "The page and paragraph in Discipline where the language quoted at the District Board meeting have not yet been produced." I did produce the page and paragraph of the things quoted, and much more besides. The fact is I did not say one half as much at that meeting as I produced in my other article. If I did not produce the page and paragraph for what I said at the board meeting I challenge Bro. Crates to produce my statements. I produced more than I said at that meeting. If he knows anything else that I have kept back, I challenge him to let us have it. He insinuates that I said some things I am afraid to repeat. Honestly I see no reason why any one should fear Bro. Crates If he cannot show other things that I said he will convict himself.

Bro. Crates says: "Bro. Jones cites a note at the bottom of p. 206, Discipline 1898, but it is simply an annotation and that in connection with the ritual not the doctrine or polity, and not a part of the text of the Discipline." That is a strange dodge to take. In other words Bro. Crates would rule out all that catches him in his wild statements. Now "annotate" means "to make explanatory or critical notes on or upon." These notes explain to the preacher how he is to proceed. The reader will find them all through the ritual. For instance on page 203 in directing the minister to administer the Lord's Supper we find this "annotation." "Then shall the minister first receive the communion in both kinds himself, and then proceed to deliver the same to the other ministers in like manner, if any be present." Would Bro. Crates be absurd enough to say that this has no meaning? It is the "explanatory note" to guide the preacher. Just so the "explanatory note" at bottom of page 206 is for the guidance of the preacher that "no person shall be admitted to the Lord's Supper among us who is guilty of any practice for which we would exclude a member of our church." I still assert that if Bro. Crates were to carry out his Discipline as he vowed to do no one but a Methodist would "be admitted" to the Lord's Supper in the Methodist church. For him to deny this is to stultify himself by denying the plain meaning of words.

The effort Bro. Crates made to dodge the "inveighing against" is amusing. It is really a pity to continue to poke a man who crawls into his hole and whines so piteously. Hear him: "The part of the Discipline quoted from to prove this is as follows: "If a member of our church endeavors to sow dissension by inveighing, &c." Notice—No one, in the report, 'if a member of our church' in the Discipline making it a horse of another color." Now who, but a man catching at straws, would offer that as an argument? The note says: "No person shall be admitted to the Lord's Supper among us who is guilty of any practice for which we would exclude a member of our church." Now any one with average sense can see that this is to be understood in the light of those practices for which they would "exclude a member." To find this it is necessary to turn to page 123, where, under the head "ot the Trial of a Member," we find those practices for which they would exclude a member. Then on page 123, ¶ 296, we find the very language, "if a member of our church endeavor to sow dissension in any of our societies by inveighing against either our doctrines or discipline, such person offending shall be first reproved by the preacher in charge, and if there be persistence in such practices, the offender shall be dealt with as in case of immorality." If Bro. Crates cannot see this, he may be a good judge of "a horse of another color," but he is not competent to understand the plain meaning of language. Does Bro. Crates mean to say that the "annotations" contradict the "doctrine or polity?" If so, why are they there? But in the absence of facts he must catch at straws. Again he says: "The trouble with all my opponents is to prove a point of creed they have been going to the laws of the church, instead of the articles of faith. But do not the laws of the church regulate the enforcement of the creed? Besides is there any conflict between the creed and the laws of the church? Dear Bro. Crates, the more you wiggle the worse your position becomes. For the honor of your church let me advise you to come out with a full confession that you know nothing about it. This would not be news to those who have read your articles.

But just one more word to this man whose troubles are already many. In his reply to Bro. Utz, March 29th, Bro. Crates says: "All the Methodist church has to say on the question of the sacrament is found in the 18th article of Religion, page 9, paragraph 18, discipline of 1898. The breadth and liberty of the Christ spirit is there expressed in the word Christians not Methodists." In reply to me, April 19th, he says: "The Discipline was made for the government of Methodists, not Baptists." In the former you see he says the Discipline is for "Christians;" in the latter he says it is for "Methodists, not Baptists." Bro. Crates contradicts himself. Will he please tell us which statment is true and which false? Shall we believe J. W. Crates of March 29th or J. W. Crates of April 19th.

In conclusion he fires off "Finis." Yes, very appropriate. "Finis" of "J. W. Crates, pastor in charge of Walton Methodist church."

Many Countries and Many Marrying Ages.

In Germany the man must be eighteen years of age before he can legally marry.

In Portugal a boy of fourteen is considered marriageable and a woman of twelve.

In Greece the man must have seen at least fourteen summers and the woman twelve.

In France the man must be eighteen and the woman sixteen. In Bilgium, the same ages.

In Spain the intended husband must have passed his fourteenth year and the woman her twelfth.

In Switzerland men from the age of twelve are allowed to marry.

In Austria "man" and a "woman" are supposed to be capable of conducting a home of their own from the age of fourteen.

In Turkey any youth and maiden who can walk properly and can understand the necessary religious service are allowed to be united for life.

In Hungary, for Roman Catholics, the man must be fourteen years old and the woman twelve; for Protestants, the man must be eighteen and the woman fifteen.

In Russia and Saxony they are a little more sensible, and a youth must refrain from entering into matrimony till he can count eighteen years, and the woman till she can count sixteen.

Northern Papers on Southern Mobs

To the Men of the North:

Look into your own hearts and your own records before you pass judgment finally upon the South and the character of its citizens.

What was your record during the draft riot? Was your excuse as good then as the excuse which the killers of the South have to-day.

You say the draft rioters were ignorant men whom you denounce. But the good men of the South denounce the Southern killings. The man who sets fire to a human being is not the intelligent citizen of his country; he is the expression of the worst citizenship—some miserable, good-for-nothing coward who seizes the opportunity to show his true self. Many Northerners who shudder at Southern crimes may not remember what happened during the draft riots. The negro orphan asylum was besieged. The negro babies were thrown from windows or their brains were dashed out against the walls.

In July, 1863, a mob of Northern men and women hunted a fleeing negro through Twenty-eight street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues. They caught him as he was endeavoring to escape through the rear of a tenement. They stripped him naked, hanged him to a lamp-post, cut open his breast and fastened to it an infamous placard. That was one of the many similar scenes in the North.

And the negro was an innocent man. He had harmed no one, his only crime was the color of his skin.

Compared to that crime of the North the deeds of the South just recorded are innocence itself.

Therefore, men of the North, you may condemn human nature, you may deplore human savagery, but you need not thank God that you are better than your brethren of the South—you are not better.—New York Journal.

A good joke is told in regard to the colored deck hands on the steamer Queen City. One night recently a corpse was put aboard that boat at Cincinnati, placed in a dark out of the way locality. Presently a drunken Irishman boarded the boat and staggered to the place and was soon sound asleep on the box, not dreaming that there was a dead man beneath him. The deckhands kept on loading the boat, casting a sly glance occasionally in the direction of the box. Finally the Irishman awoke, just as the boat was landing at a small town above and sat up on the box, rubbing his eyes. "Look dar!" yelled one of the rousters, pointing to the live corpse, and in five minutes every colored man on that boat was ashore, rushing pell mell up the grade, and it took the captain, clerks, and mates nearly an hour to explain, before they could get them back again.

THE chief amusement of the emperor of China is the training of goats and monkeys. The former he has, by dint of much patience, taught to do tricks of every kind. One is to jump through the paper windows which are found everywhere in China, from the palace to the cottage. It is said that the empress-dowager complains of the expense of having daily to replace the breakage.

THE customs receipts for Cuba for the first quarter of the present calendar year at all ports amount to $3,375,000. At this rate the total receipts for the year will not fall short of $13,000,000, and, as the imports are constantly increasing, it is believed that the total will be close to $18,000,000 for the entire year. This will be enough to meet the cost of government, including the army of occupation.

ONE of the queerest divorces in the history of Sagadahoe county, Maine, has just been granted by Judge Wiswell. William R Rush, aged 76, and his wife, Judith, aged 74, of Arrowsic, have secured a divore, agreeing to "part as friends." The woman retains the property which she had before marriage, leaving to her husband $75 in money, a house and minor articles, and the right to marry again.

THE president of the United States receives his salary in a warrant upon the treasurer at the beginning of every month, and Col. The warrant is signed by the chief of the warrant division and approved by the secretary of the treasury or one of his assistants.

PADEREWSKI lives in a house that is a veritable museum of musical relics. Articles that have belonged to all the great composers are everywhere and the faces of their departed owners gaze upon you from the walls. Flowers there are in profusion, for admirers send to the famous pianist great bunches daily. The whole of the wall in one room is occupied by the enormous laurel wreath presented to him at Leipsic.

JUST 50 years ago this spring the country was wild over the discovery of gold in California and companies of men were forming over the whole United States to start for the new El Dorado. Some went by Cape Horn, some by Panama, but most went overland. These in after years were the forty-niners. Marshall discovered gold at Sutter's Mill in 1848, but it was not generally believed until Polk confirmed it in his annual message.

A NEW remedy for sickness comes from Germany. The discoverer says that seasickness is due to lack of blood in the brain, and wearing red glasses will send the blood to the brain with a rush and so relieve the condition. He ascribes such benefit as may follow the use of champaigne and other stimulants, as well as the relief given by lying down, to the congestion of the brain produced, but asserts that the red glasses act more quickly and efficiently.

THE proprietor of a cafe in Paris uses large monkeys, or apes, as waiters. They are attired in the regulation waiters costume. Their tails have been cut off, and, unlike smaller specimens of the Simian tribe, they walk erect instead of on all fours. It has been contended that a monkey's chatter is a language, and that by education he could be taught to form with his tongue articulate labial, dental and aspirate sounds. The Paris cafe monkeys are handed checks on which the order is written.

PERHAPS the oddest suit of furniture is owned by Joseph Berger, a hotel keeper in Budapest. For many years he has made it his business to collect match boxes from factories of various countries. His collection aggregates 4,000 boxes. He ordered a skilled cabinet maker to equip a room with furniture made of these boxes. The outfit consists of a writing table with smoking apparatus, a fire screen, a cabinet, a chair and other smaller articles. Though the boxes are empty, they are adjusted so ingeniously that the pieces are fully as strong as the ordinary furniture.

ADM. NELSON'S famous flagship, the Foudroyant, has been broken up, and is being converted into curio relics. The stout old craft was overturned at her dock in a storm in 1897, and ever since has been steadily breaking up. The tons of copper bolts and sheathing have been sent to the manufacturing towns to be converted into medals, cups, cigar cases, etc. The timbers will be used in the manufacture of costly furniture. Lady Abercomby, whose grandfather, Sir Randolph Abercomby, died at the battle of Alexandria on the Foudroyant, has ordered a cabinet and a chair.

EXTRA CONGRESS

A Growing Belief the President Will Call One Early in the Fall.

Settlements Growing Out of Our New Possessions, Currency Reform, the Nicaraguan Canal, Merchant Marine and Other Questions to Be Considered.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—There is a growing belief among prominent members of congress that the president will call congress to meet in extraordinary session this fall, probably early in October. The questions which will come before the next congress for settlement, including as they do everything growing out of our possessions acquired as a result of the war with Spain and the general legislation, including that relating to currency reform, the Nicaragua canal, merchant marine, etc., are of such great importance that the president is inclined to regard it as advisable that congress should meet earlier than the regular session in December in order to get the work under way. The retirement of Speaker Reed will naturally entail considerable delay in the appointment of committees in the house as it is customary to allow a new speaker four or five weeks to make up his committees and this furnishes an additional reason why congress should be convened before December. Of the several senators and members of congress who are going abroad this summer the president has particularly inquired as to the length of their stay, and has hinted that it was advisable that they should be back in the erly fall as the necessity for an extra session might arise.

With others, it is said, he has discussed the subject, and, moreover, it was upon the president's direct suggestion that the caucus committee, appointed by the house republicans to formulate a currency reform measure, met when it did. There had been talk of postponing the meeting until fall, but the president suggested that it would be well to formulate a plan as early as possible, and this statement was made to the members when they met at Atlantic City as having come direct from the president, together with the further statement that the president might call congress in extraordinary session in the fall for the purpose, among other things, of passing a currency reform measure.

Representative Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, and Representative Curtis, of Kansas, both of whom are members of the caucus committee, saw the president Thursday. When the former left the white house he said he had no direct information upon the subject of an extra session, but that he had all along regarded an extra session as more than probable. At the white house no confirmation can be obtained of the statement that the president at the present contemplates calling congress together in the fall.

THE MATRICIDE ARRESTED.

Mrs. Augusta Styles, of Chicago, Shot and Killed Her Mother for Revealing a Secret of Her Early Life.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Mrs. Augusta Styles, after waiting two hours in a dark recess of a hallway at the entrance to Wallet's hall, Burling street and North avenue, Thursday afternoon, shot and killed her mother, Mrs. Catherine Schultz. Mrs. Schultz was to attend a meeting of the Martha Washington Frau-Verein, which was held in the hall, and the daughter lay in wait for her until she came. Five shots were fired, three taking effect.

Mrs. Styles, who is 25 years old, said she was driven to the act by her mother's revealing a closed chapter of her early life to Mrs. Styles daughter, 15 years of age. The child's parents were not regularly married and Mrs. Schultz is said to have disclosed this fact to her grandchild. The matricide has been arrested.

MOVERS' HORRIBLE FIND.

Gunny Sack, Which Contained Evidence of a Triple Murder, Discovered in a Creek Near Kirksville, Mo.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., May 5.—Movers camped two miles from town Thursday found in Bear creek a gunny sack which contained a woman's scalp and black hair, half of the right ear, and torn bloody clothing. A full outfit of woman's clothing, with complete garments for children of 3 and 1 years, were packed in the sack. Each garment was torn from the collar to the hem down the back and blood stained. It is believed that a triple murder was committed by a mover, who buried the bodies somewhere along the road.

Canada Sued for $15,000,000 Damages.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 5.—A syndicate, composed of 88 aliens, recently excluded from the Atlin gold diggings, has commenced suit against the Canadian government for $15,000,000 damages. The men held licenses granted before the passage of the exclusion act.

Two Brothers Drowned.

WEST BEDFORD, Mass., May 5.—Charles E. Kummer, jr., and Robert C. Kummer, brothers, were drowned Thursday in Lower Mystic lake while canoeing.

A DISPATCH FROM SCHURMAN

He Gives the Substance of Conferences With Filipino Commissioners and Asks for Further Instructions.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The state department Friday received a dispatch from President Schurman of the Philippine commission, giving the substance of the conferences with the representatives of Aguinaldo and asking for further instructions. While the text of the dispatch is not to be made public, Secretary Hay stated that it showed a very satisfactory condition of affairs in the Philippines, and pointed to a settlement of the difficulties there.

The reply of the president to Prof. Schurman's cablegram, it is understood, stated that he was very anxious to have the peace negotiations concluded at the earliest possible moment and to this end he desired that no unnecessary or humiliating conditions should be imposed upon the insurgents. It is believed in administration circles that as soon as Aguinaldo is convinced of the sincerity of the American government he will agree to surrender. He will be required, however, to lay down his arms. This will be the principal condition, and until an agreement on this point is reached the negotiations will not make any progress toward a conclusion.

A PREMATURE EXPLOSION.

Two Men Instantly Killed and Four Others Seriously Injured in a Stone Quarry at Yardley, Pa.

YARDLEY, Pa., May 6.—As a result of a premature explosion at the stone quarries of James Shuvelin Friday night, Shuvelin, the lessee, and John Burns, the foreman, were instantly killed; John Pott, another employe, had his right leg crushed, and three Italians, who were engaged in loading carts directly beneath where the blast exploded, were severely injured. Shuvelin and Burns were engaged in tamping the powder in the crevices of the rock when a spark from a steel rod which was used ignited the fuse. There were 225 pounds of powder in the hole at the time. The men were hurled over 100 feet into the air by the explosion and when found afterward were 200 feet away from the quarry. Pott's leg was crushed by a flying rock. Shuvelin had been engaged in the business at this place for over 20 years.

READY FOR THE TRIP NORTH.

The Former Spanish Cruiser, Reina Mercedes, Recently Raised, Towed Out Into the Harbor at Santiago.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, May 6.—The former Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes, which was sunk in the chaunel of Santiago harbor during the bombardment by Adm. Sampson's fleet on July 3 and which was recently raised, pumped out and brought to this city for repairs, left her moorings Friday and was towed to the center of the harbor in readiness to start for Newport News as soon as the towboat arrives.

Some practical navigators predict a repetition of the disaster which befell the Infanta Marie Teresa while on her way north if rough weather should be encountered, but the Reina Mercedes looks as if she were seaworthy.

FIRE AT GREENVILLE, N. C.

Twenty-Five Stores and Offices, the King House and Post Office Among the Buildings That Were Burned.

GREENVILLE, N. C., May 6.—Fire started at 10 o'clock Thursday night, in the upper floor of the two-story building occupied by E. M. Check as a barroom. An entertainment was in progress in the opera house at the time and the people rushed out almost panic stricken. The fire raged two hours before it was under control. Twenty-five stores and offices, King house and the post office are among the buildings destroyed. The total loss is estimated at from $100,000 to $150,000, with about $40,000 insurance. The full list of individual losers has not been ascertained. Everything in the post office belonging to the government was saved.

THE RURAL FREE DELIVERY.

The Service Is to Be Divided Into Two Grand Subdivisions, the Western and the Eastern.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The postmaster general Friday ordered that the rural free delivery service of the country be divided into two grand subdivisions, the western and the eastern. The former is to consist of the states west of the Ohio and its headquarters will be at St. Louis. The other division, comprising states east of the Ohio, will have its headquarters in this city. Francis M. Dice, of Crawfordsville, Ind., will have charge of the western division, and Henry Conquest Clarke, of Washington, of the eastern.

Wages Increased.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 6.—The Semett-Solvey Co., of Syracuse, which operate by-product coal plants in the east, central and south, granted an increase of 25 per cent. in the wages of its workmen Friday. About 1,500 men are affected.

Aid for Distressed Subjects.

BERLIN, May 6.—The government has telegraphed orders to the German consul at Manila to give pecuniary aid to distressed German subjects in the Philippines.

BEEF INQUIRY.

The Report and Findings of the Military Court Given to the Public.

Charges by Gen. Miles Investigated—Allegations That the Refrigerated Beef for the Army Was Treated With Chemicals Not Established.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—By direction of the president, who approves the findings, Acting Secretary of War Melklejohn Sunday made public the report and findings of the military court appointed to investigate the charges made by Maj. Gen. Miles, commanding the army, that the beef supplied to the army during the war was unfit for the use of the troops. The most important features of the report are:

The finding that the general's allegations that the refrigerated beef was treated with chemicals were not established; that his allegations concerning the canned fresh or canned roast beef were sustained as to its unsuitability for food as used on the transports and as a long continued field ration; censure of Gen. Miles for "error" in failing to promptly notify the secretary of war when he first formed the opinion that the food was unfit; censure of the commissary general (then Gen. Eagan) for the too extensive purchases of the canned beef as an untried ration; censure of Col. Maus, of Gen. Miles' staff; the finding that the packers were not at fault and that the meats supplied to the army were of the same quality as those supplied to the trade generally and the recommendation that no further proceedings will be taken in the premises.

The conclusion of the court, adverse to further proceedings based upon the charges, is as follows:

"It has been developed in the course of the inquiry, as recited in this report, that in some instances some individuals failed to perform the full measure of duty or to observe the proprieties which dignify high military command, but the court is of the opinion that the mere statement in the official report of the facts developed meets the ends of discipline, and that the interest of the service will be best subserved if further proceedings be not taken."

There is more or less criticism of Gen. Miles in various parts of the report. Probably the most direct instance is the one which states that beyond the criticism of officers found elsewhere is the report: "The court finds that against none of the officers commanding corps, divisions, brigades and regiments and their staff officers should a charge of guilty be brought.

"The court also finds that the major general commanding the army had no sufficient justification for alleging that the refrigerated beef was embalmed or was unfit for issue to troops. It also finds that he committed an error in that, having belief or knowledge, as claimed, that the food was unfit; that it caused sickness and distress; that some of it was supplied under pretense of experiment; that other beef was embalmed, he did not immediately report such knowledge or belief to the secretary of war to the end that a proper remedy might be promptly applied."

"The censure of Col. Maus, inspector general on Gen. Miles' staff, is based upon his failure to call attention to charges concerning the beef at Chickamauga contained in a report of inspection made by Dr. (or Maj.) Daly on the 26th of October last, in which he stated his belief that the beef was chemically treated.

"The silence of Col. Maus," says the court, "on so important a matter as the chemicalized beef reported by Maj. Daly and personally known to himself is most remarkable."

THE HEALTH OF ADM. DEWEY.

He Has Not Felt the Necessity of a Physician Since His Arrival in Manila—His Condition Is Excellent.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—On the steamship City of Peking, from China and Japan, was Dr. E. Page, surgeon on the flagship Olympia for the past year and a half. He makes the following statement regarding Adm. Dewey's health: "Adm. Dewey is in perfect health. He has not been more than 90 miles away from Manila since the first day of last May and he has not felt the necessity of a physician's aid. The reports concerning the admiral's physical condition have been grossly exaggerated. The climate of Manila is enervating, of course, but the commander of the fleet has been no more affected by it than any one else.

"The people of California will be disappointed at not seeing Adm. Dewey for he has determined to return to the United States in the Olympia by way of the Snez canal.

Fire in a Driving Park.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., May 8.—All the buildings connected with the Woonsocket Driving park were burned Sunday afternoon, and 50 pounds of dynamite stored in one of the stables exploded, shaking the country for miles around. At the time of the explosion A. C. Stair, the caretaker of the park was in an adjoining building 20 feet away and only received a few bruises, although a similar structure the same distance away on the other side of the dynamite, was completely demolished.

STEEL COMPANIES COMBINE.

Capital Stock Will Be Between $300,000,000 and $800,000,000, Possibly More—Deal Is Very Near Reaching.

CHICAGO, May 6.—John W. Gates has confirmed the rumor regarding the combination of all the large steel companies in the country and made the assertion that the deal was as far reaching as the ingenuity of the minds that conceived it could possibly make it.

Mr. Gates has just returned from New York where a recent meeting of the steel magnates was held for the purpose of arranging the details. The president of the American Steel and Wire Co. said that all the difficulties in the way of the combination had been removed and that the financing of the great combine which will control the entire steel industry of the country has been successfully carried to a conclusion.

The headquarters of the new company will be in New York, and according to Mr. Gates, the capital stock will be between $500,000,000 and $800,000,000, and he coolly remarked that the figure might reach $1,000,000,000. The president of the new company, he remarked, would be H. C. Frick, of Pittsburgh, who has been so closely identified with Andrew Carnegie. Regarding the other officers he professed ignorance.

Not the least interesting phase of the deal will be the complete retirement of Mr. Carnegie from the steel industry and the placing of his mantle upon the shoulders of Mr. Frick. In speaking of this Mr. Gates said that Mr. Carnegie would possibly not have any interest in the new concern, provided the terms he proposed to the combination were accepted. "And I suppose they have been," he concluded, "else the combine would not now be an assured fact."

Mr. Gates' company, the American steel and wire, was one of two concerns that held out against the combine until recently. The other is said to have been the Federal Steel Co. When asked about this Mr. Gates said the difficulty was really a small one and intimated that is was a matter of price. The company will be ready for operations by July 1, when, if present plans are followed, offices will be opened. Mr. Gates objects to having it called a trust and maintains that not a single element of a trust enters into the matter.

Continuing Mr. Gates said: "This is simply a combination of all the big steel companies into one concern, which purchases the various plants outright at figures that have been agreed upon and accepted. It will be a spleudid thing for the industry and the concern will begin business about July 1 at New York with Mr. Frick as president. As to the capital stock I can not say definitely, but it will be over $500,000,000 and may reach twice that sum."

TWO RADICAL BILLS PENDING

Voters in Alabama Must Be Able to Read the Constitution—School Revenues Derived From Taxes.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 6.—The house Friday morning laid upon the table, by a vote of 50 to 28, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill which seeks to repeal the constitutional convention act was passed Friday. It will pass that body by an easy majority Monday. The house is now considering two important amendments to the constitution, both in the interest of the white citizen. One seeks to require that all voters must be able to read understandingly any portion of the constitution of the state, but provided that the provision shall not extend to any eltizen whose anteeedents prior to 1861 enjoyed the privilege of suffrage. This provision is intended to preserve to the ignorant white voter his right to participate in elections.

The other bill seeks to apply the school revenues derived from taxes on property belonging to white men to the education of white children, and those derived from the colored man's taxes to the education of the Negro children. As it is, the school funds are distributed equally without regard to race, although the whites pay practically all of the taxes. The indications appear to be that both of these bills will pass. The franchise amendment is fashioned after the North Carolina law.

WINTER RESORT.

Gen. Robert P. Kennedy, of the Insular Commission, Makes a Report.

Not One-Fourth of the Island is Under Cultivation—Opportunities for Stock Raising Superior to Almost Any Part of the United States.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Owing to the large number of inquiries that have been received by the members of the insular commission since their recent return from Porto Rico, Gen. Robert P. Kennedy has prepared a statement as to resources and conditions in Porto Rico which he thinks will cover the points upon which the greatest interest has been manifested.

Concerning the people themselves Gen. Kennedy says:

There can scarcely be found upon the globe a more hospitable and warm hearted people than those of Porto Rico. They are in full sympathy with American institutions. There is a great deal of poverty in the island, as it is understood in the United States. That is, the people live in flimsily constructed huts, have few clothes and still less of ready money, but owing to the bounty of nature around them they can live with little work and few worldly goods and still not suffer from either cold or hunger. The stories of starvation upon the island are fabrications.

While the richer classes live well in beautifully appointed homes and have been for the most part educated abroad so that they speak English, the per cent. of illiteracy among the poorer classes is very high, reaching 90 per cent., but this is largely due to the fact that there are no schools worth the name outside of the largest towns, or indeed one might say in the whole island.

As to agricultural opportunities, I should say that not one-fourth of the lands in the islands are now under cultivation, and thousands of acres yet remain to be given over to husbandry. Lands are held at a good price owing to the promise of an influx of people from the United States. Still there is opportunity for many thousands of persons who really wish to engage in agriculture on the islands.

That there are great opportunities in Porto Rico is unquestionable. To young men desiring to seek permanent homes and who have a good stock of energy and enterprise, Porto Rico offers great inducements. But I would discourage the simple adventurer, who expects to reap a quick and unearned reward.

Sugar and coffee both require a large outlay in lands, materiel and improvements. The promise of both of these, however, is unequaled anywhere else in the world. An old coffee planter from Java, who has just bought a plantation, assured me that the climate and conditions were as favorable as he had ever seen. Tropical fruits of all sorts grow readily and are of the finest quality. I know of no place which offers greater inducements than does Porto Rico to Florida orange growers who are seeking a location outside the frost belt.

The opportunities for stock raising it appears to me, are superior to those in almost any part of the United States and this without disparagement to our own cattle country.

The climate of the island, in my experience, and from what I can gather of it from records official and otherwise, is all that could be desired. It is warm in summer and cool in winter, and even the densely populated city of San Juan is a remarkably healthy place. I look forward to the time not far distant when Porto Rico will be not only the garden spot of the United States, but one of the most popular winter resorts.

He May Come Home.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—There is reason to believe that President McKinley has been advised that Adm. Dewey contemplates coming home within a short time. His return will, of course, be dependent upon the success of the commission's present negotiations with the Filipinos.

As soon as they have laid down their arms it is expected that he will proceed with the protected cruiser Olympia to the United States, probably through the Suez canal to New York, and come immediately to Washington to consult with the president regarding the Philippines.

Death of Mrs. Wm. C. Whitney.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Mrs. Wm. C. Whitney, wife of the former secretary of the navy, died shortly before 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Bishop Henry C. Potter will officiate at the funeral services over the remains of Mrs. W. C. Whitney, which will be held on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at Garden City, L. I.

WARREN, O., May 7.—Section men on the Erie railroad have gone on a strike for an increase of from $1.15 to $1.25 a day. It includes all the hands between Niles and Leetonia.

DENOUNCED AT A BANQUET.

Gen Gomez Characterized as a Traitor to Cuba—An Anti-American Demonstration in Havana.

HAVANA, May 6.—The banquet given by members of the recently dissolved military assembly in honor of the aged Salvador Cisneros, Marquis De Santa Lucia, the first president of the second republic of Cuba, and of Gen. Mayia Rodriguez, was the occasion for an anti-American and anti-Gomez demonstration. Gen. Manuel Sanguilly, Col. Juan Gualberto Gomez, a member of the assembly's executive committee, and other speakers denounced Gen. Gomez as a traitor to Cuba in having given aid to the intervening power, "los Yankees," who were referred to in terms of dislike and suspicion.

The only voice raised in protest against such assertions among the hundred well known Cubans who were present, including the editors of most of the local papers printed in Spanish, was that of Senor Fidel Piena, editor of El Independente, who said that the Cubans would most speedily gain their independence by co-operating with the Americans, adding, "the purpose of the United States military authorities is to aid Cuba to prepare for self government and to leave as soon after as possible."

The local papers continue to fill their columns with stories of brigandage from every part of the island. Some imply that most of these reports are unreliable, others seem to adopt them by giving them special prominence. In the latter class are La Discussion and La Lucha, in the former are El Reconcentrado, La Libertad, La Patria and all the Spanish organs.

According to a dispatch from Cienfuegos, Senor Jicotea Perez, a Spaniard of high character and standing, disappeared on Sunday and Friday his corpse was found near the city, terribly macheted. The crime is attributed by the authorities to the same band of outlaws that burned the cane on the Constantia plantation. Bandits in the same district attacked the plantation Unidad, owned by Mr. Cullerach and the plantation Agcies owned by Senor Francisco Garcia; but they were finally repulsed by the rural guards, who killed two members of the band that have not been identified and a third who was recognized as Alfredo Rodridguez, a well known brigand and largely responsible for disturbances in Santa Clara.

Gov. Gen. Brooke announces that Senor Frederico Mora has accepted the post of supreme court fiscal, which was offered him Thursday and which he had said he would be unable to accept unless upon his own conditions.

SAN FERNANDO CAPTURED.

The Insurgents Evacuate the Town After Setting It on Fire—Gen. Lawton Still Quartered at Baliuag.

MANILA, May 6.—Maj. Gen. MacArthur's division advanced to San Fernando Thursday and found that the place had been evacuated by the rebels, who left only a small detachment to cover their retreat by train. Gen. MacArthur occupied the burning town without loss.

The rebels south of Manila attempted to rush through Brig. Gen. Ovenshine's line Thursday night. The attempt failed, but the rebels maintained a fusillade on the 4th infantry for several hours. The demonstration was ineffectual beyond scaring the inhabitants of Manila.

The outposts of the Idaho and California regiments beyond San Pedro Macati were also attacked during the night.

Maj. Gen. Lawton is still quartered at Baliuag.

NEW YORK, May 6.—A Manila dispatch to the Journal says Gen. Luna was wounded in the fighting near San Tomas Thursday. The dispatch also says that the monitor is shelling Paranaque, south of Manila.

TWO NEGROES EXECUTED.

Wm. Strather and Charles Winston, Both Colored, Pay the Penalty for Murder at Washington

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The double hanging of Wm. Strather and Charles Winston at the district jail passed off quietly. The two colored men started for the scaffold just at noon, and seven minutes later they were swinging from the gallows.

Several ministers were with them throughout the morning, and both men neglected a light luncheon sent them by the warden in order to sing and pray with their spiritual advisers. Winston and Strather both sang on the way from their cell to the scaffold and continued to sing till the drop fell.

The crimes for which Strather and Winston suffered the extreme penalty of the law were sim lar in the respect that each killed a woman because of jealousy.

All Quiet at Apia.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The navy department has been supplied by the cable companies with the following corrected statement of Adm. Kautz's cablegram of Thursday:

AUCKLAND, May 4, Sub-date, Apia, April 27.—Secretary Navy, Washington: All quiet at Apia. Matanfa and his chiefs in their letter of April 25 agreed to keep outside lines prescribed by British senior officer present and myself and to observe peace until arrival of commission. Think that there will not be more fighting. KAUTZ.

WAR'S END NEAR.

Commissioner Schurman Is Negotiating With Filipino Leaders.

The Filipinos Will Be Given a Form of Government Modeled After That of the United States—The Rebels Are to Lay Down Their Arms First.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Aguinaldo's emissaries to the American Philippine commission have formally admitted the sovereignty of the United States over the Philippine archipelago.

From a member of the cabinet it is learned that this admission was made to President Schurman at a conference held by him with Col. Arguelles and Lieut. Bernal several days ago. It was in reply to a direct question put to them by Mr. Schurman and the character of the answer was no doubt as gratifying to the commission as it is to the president.

As a result of the dispatch sent by Mr. Schurman it is the confident expectation of the president that the end of the rebellion is close at hand. This result will not be obtained without concessions, which have been recommended by the commission and which, by direction of the president, will be granted. These concessions contemplated giving to the Filipinos a form of government modelled after that of the United States.

The member of the cabinet with whom the correspondent talked, said that the commission had unanimously adopted a recommendation, which was submitted to the president in Mr. Schurman's dispatch, providing three departments for the government of the archipelago—first, the executive department; second, the legislative department, and third, the judicial department.

The executive department as recommended by the commission is to consist of a governor general, who shall

JACOB GOULD SCHURMAN.
(President of the United States Philippine Commission.)

have absolute veto power over any acts of the legislature and his cabinet, formed of leaders among the Filipinos and Americans. The legislative department will be organized as a result of the granting of suffrage to the Filipinos having property qualification. The president will be empowered to appoint the members of the judiciary just as he will be empowered to appoint the governor general.

What the cabinet officer regarded as the best feature of the whole matter was the acceptance of the commission's proposition by the Filipino envoys. It was learned that before the submission of this proposition to them they had asserted that they did not represent Gen. Luna, but Aguinaldo.

It is believed the presentation of the commissions proposition was in compliance with the request of the Filipinos, who desired to know what the promises made by the United States really meant. The first proposition made by them to the commission was for an armistice, during which the Filipinos proposed to call together their congress and through that body arrange for peace.

The proposition was refused without consideration. It was then admitted, the cabinet officer said, that the Filipino army was too weak to stand against the American force, which was greatly its superior. Aguinaldo, the envoys declared, is not fighting for the independence of the country so much as for the honor of the army and they thought it humiliating that they should be compelled to lay down their arms without first understanding what the United States proposed to do.

If the United States persisted in overriding the Filipinos by force, Col. Arguelles declared, the natives would retreat to the mountains and would continue for years a guerilla warfare, which would be to the great injury of the United States.

Mr. Schurman's communication made a deep impression upon the cabinet meeting, and after the meeting it was stated that the situation in Luzon, aside from its military feature, is most encouraging. In the instructions given to Mr. Schurman and his colleagues, they have been directed to act in a conciliatory manner toward the insurgents.

Dropped Dead While Preparing a Meal

CINCINNATI, May 7.—Mrs. Norah Graham, of 2604 Eastern avenue, dropped dead while cooking breakfast Saturday. She was found by her 7-year-old daughter. Dr. Meyers was summoned and notified the coroner. Her husband is an employe of the gas company.

CIRCLEVILLE, O., May 7.—John Parsells, a prominent G. A. R. man, was killed in a runaway accident Saturday morning.

MAJ. GEN. MILES WAS WRONG.

The Report of the Beef Court of Inquiry Will Be Made Public Soon—It is Satisfactory to the President.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The president sat up very late Tuesday night going over the report of the beef court of inquiry and making it ready for publication. It is said that it will be given out within the next 36 hours. The president is entirely pleased with the verdict of the court and not only because its findings are satisfactory, but because the report itself is so strong and convincing in its language as well as exhaustive in its character that beyond doubt justifies its findings.

The president also believes that the report, by its convincing proof, will, for the first time, set the vexed question before the public in its right light. In the first place, the president submitted 26 propositions to the court, these questions being the guidance in the inquiry. The court has brought in its findings in the shape of categorical and explicit answers to each question. This has allowed the court to not only show how Gen. Miles has been wrong and his charges unfounded, but it is enabled to place before the public in a most convincing manner the exact conditions and truth in regard to the beef used by the army. The following examples give some idea about the report:

The president asked: "Did the commanding officers in Santiago or Porto Rico, or the major general commanding, report during the war that either the refrigerated beef or canned beef was an unfit ration?"

The court replies that neither Gen. Miles nor any other commanding officer so reported.

"When were these reports first made, and by whom?"

This gave the court opportunity to point out that Gen. Miles made no report and never called attention to the matter until months after the war closed, when he made his allegations before the commission on investigation of the war and in the newspapers.

The story of the false scare by Dr. Daly is set forth in detail and with scathing criticism.

"If the allegations from the general commanding are established I want the court to find the cause and fix the responsibility for the fact, that the guilty may be properly punished," the president commanded.

The report replies that the allegations have not been established in any degree. Gen. Miles and others who have shared in the origin and circulation of these unsustained charges are not spared. Their conduct is made to appear in its true light. The president believes the complete exposure of this conduct to the public ought to be sufficient punishment. But he will insist that Gen. Miles and the other officers censured shall submit to the findings. The controversy must end now.

SEVERE WISCONSIN STORMS.

Hailstones an Inch in Diameter Fell at Black River Falls—Bridges and Dams Were Washed Away.

LACROSSE, Wis., May 4.—Nearly an inch of rain fell in 15 minutes Wednesday. The rain was accompanied by hail which broke thousands of panes of glass in conservatories.

At Pittsfield, Wis., during a severe storm of wind, hail and rain several buildings were blown down, including the shingle sheds of E. W. Ring & Co. Part of the roof of the Johnson house was also torn off.

At Black River Falls, Wis., the severest storm in years visited that place. Hail stones an inch in diameter fell. Several buildings were struck by lightning and bridges and dams were washed out.

MR. ATKINSON'S PAMPHLETS.

Secretary Long Intimates That the Administration Does Not Think of Interfering With Them.

HINGMAN, Mass., May 4.—John D. Long, secretary of the navy, was asked Wednesday for an expression of opinion in regard to the exclusion of Edward Atkinson's pamphlets from mails destined for the Philippines.

The secretary replied: "The administration would no more think of interfering with the personal liberty of Edward Atkinson than with that of Daniel Pratt, the great American traveler, if he were still alive."

Turkey Will Pay the Indemnity.

LONDON, May 4.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: The sultan has authorized the American minister (Oscar S. Strauss) to telegraph President McKinley that his majesty has promised to pay the American claim of $20,000 for losses sustained by Americans in Turkey during the Armenian massacres in 1895.

Tillman to Study Tobacco Culture.

COLUMBUS, S. C., May 4.—Senator Tillman left for Florence Wednesday to study the culture of tobacco. He proposes to make some experiments with the plant on his farm at Trenton. He has about sixty acres to devote to its cultivation.

APIA, Samoa, April 27, via Auckland, N. Z., May 4.—Mataafa, the rebel chieftain has accepted an armistice. The Germans, however, declined to sign the proclamation.

AGAINST EXPANSION.

Economic Reasons for Discontinuance of War.

Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin Talks Upon the Philippine Situation at Chicago Anti-Expansion Meeting.

On the afternoon of Sunday, April 31, Central Music hall, Chicago, was the scene of a tumultuous demonstration against the existing state of affairs in the Philippine islands and the policy of the administration relating thereto. Many prominent speakers were present, among them being Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin, professor of political economy, who said:

"I have great respect for those who differ from us and who believe that war and expansion are just and wise. But as they have a right to their opinions, so we have to ours, and let us calmly give the grounds for our beliefs, knowing that the fairness and intelligence of the American people will decide correctly between us.

"We are not now concerned with the right or wrong of the original war with Spain. That is past and gone. We are not here to discuss things which cannot be changed. There is here no need of words about how we came by the Philippines. We are there to-day as a fact. It is also a fact that we are in Cuba—but, thank God, we are not distributing liberty to Cubans with rapid-firing guns. Why are we doing it in the Philippines? Some one has blundered there, hence the useless expenditure by thousands of innocent lives and the consequent sorrow and loneliness in thousands of homes.

"Have we gone to war only after exhausting all the arts of diplomacy and conciliation? No, we have gone to war first, despising the arts of statesmanship. That is why we demand that war should cease until every device of peaceful negotiation shall be tried and tried in vain. We went there with uplifted club, saying: 'We bought you, you belong to us. Surrender outright or we will subjugate you.' And then because they did just what our forefathers did at Lexington and Concord we sent more troops and kill more natives to satisfy our prestige before the world. How like a coward and a bully before a helpless child! Have we forgotten the attempt of Napoleon I. to conquer Toussaint L'Overture with veteran battalions which melted away before the fevers of Hayti? Will not the day come when Aguinaldo may claim a niche in history alongside L'Overture as the defender of his country?

Trade Reasons Answered.

"They tell us we must stay in the Philippines in order to obtain markets for our goods and to give us a base for our trade with China and the east. Nay, one expansive nature says: 'We must expand our trade even if it costs 1,000, 10,000, 100,000 lives!' There you have merciless commercialism run riot. Is it really true that America has become a soulless statistical machine to make profit by trade? Have we no bowels of compassion? Have we nothing left of right, of justice, of honor? Are we ready to sell cool Anglo-Saxon lives in an indefensible war of conquest for a mess of pottage? Cursed be the day when that can be said of us! Now, even if we could gain trade and profit by such dishonor, there are not words enough in our vocabulary to express the abhorrence we should feel at such immorality. It is time to hear the voices of men of character ring clear and loud in protest against such a despicable policy.

"But if it should prove that in return for a policy of conquest instead of humanity, of murderous depopulation instead of peaceful negotiation, there would be no profits of trade to speak of, no expansion of trade that we might not have otherwise obtained without this enormous cost of money and life, then the men who have brought us into this pass ought to be shrivelled by public indignation and disappear from public life.

Increase Begins at Home.

"If we wish to increase our trade with the Philippines or any other nation we must look within, not without. Our ability to sell in competition with others depends upon the economical management of our natural resources, the skill and efficiency of our laborers, the organization of our industries, the invention and use of machinery, low cost of transportation by sea and land, a knowledge of foreign markets and adaptability to the customs and prejudices of our buyers. Why have the United States recently taken the lead of the world in the iron and steel trade? Because of the abundance and cheapness of our ores, the machinery by which it is loaded into and out of ships, the great capacity of new transports on our lakes, supplies of good coal, the new methods of coking by which the surplus is consumed, production in large quantities, skillful labor, scientific management and low cost of transportation. The reason why the bridge over the Niles in Egypt, let by Gen. Kitchener was awarded to an American firm was because the above advantages allowed us to build it cheaper and more quickly than the best firms of Great Britain. It makes no difference to our trade who owns the Nile if we can build the best bridge at the lowest cost.

Flag Follows Trade.

"They tell us, indeed, that trade follows the flag. It would be equally sensible to say that same follows the hunter or that the horse follows the cart. You may wave the flag until its honored stripes have been worn into tatters or you may cover the waters of Luzon with a new navy, but you will not increase our trade one shilling unless you have the economic advantages above enumerated, and if we have them we will inevitably have the trade without the military and navy. When our ability to compete in foreign markets is proved then there our trade will go, and later our protecting flag will follow.

"Again, there is little real gain to be made out of the Philippine trade to whom would the expansion of our territory be profitable? It is quite clear that the great body of our laboring men could not continue to live in that climate and that there is no future there for them. They can have no lust of conquest, because from them are recruited the brave rank and file who are always paying the cost of war with precious lives. Moreover on them falls a heavy part of the expenditure for war and expansion. The hundreds of millions of dollars which the Philippine islands are costing us must be paid for by taxes on our shoes, our clothing, our hats and on our tools of industry. It, then, the laboring class and the middle class pay for this war, who gains? I answer: Only the few favored ones who may obtain public office or concessions for banks, special franchises to build and operate street railways and other similar commercial privileges. That is, the workingmen and the taxpayer are to be impudently asked to offer their lives and property that syndicates may have a few more chances to fill their purses. How long will we go on patiently submitting to this exploitation of the country for the good of those who are influential in politics? (Applause.)

"Commercialism has sunk its fangs deep enough into politics already. It cannot go much farther without stirring the righteous indignation of justice-loving Americans. Too long has public office been given, not to selected fitness, but to service in advance of personal ambitions.

Fortunes Fill the Senate.

"Great fortunes, rather than great statesmanship, too often fill the senate. Arrogant wealth buys legislation, which should be as cheap for the frugal consumer as for the powerful producer. We send up an appeal—which will be followed by a shout of approval from the American electorate—for equality in treatment of all, both rich and poor, and for justice to the weak, whether white or brown.

"I have shown that we would have no more trade by owning the islands than we would have without them, since our success in foreign markets depends upon home conditions; that the only commercial gains by conquest go to the few at the expense of the workingman and the taxpayer; and that if we could buy more trade at the expense of human life it would be immoral.

"They tell us that we must go on with the war until the Filipinos are thoroughly subjugated. It is as if a great bully should be allowed to go on beating a child until the victim is helpless. No, I say, stay the blows of war until we know that right aims the blow. You know, everyone knows, that if we were to say to the Filipinos that our flag is there as a symbol of protection, that we are there solely to insure to them a free and independent government we would cease instantly; not another life would be sacrificed. But what is really meant when it is said that the war must go on until the natives are crushed, is this: We insist upon assuming that we are right, if we please, to govern the Philippines in our way, against their will; that we will make them acknowledge that by force; hence go on with the war to insure that we are big and strong enough to force them to be governed against their longings for freedom and independence. Further war is unnecessary except on the assumption that we have no intention to give them an independent government.

"Approach the problem any way you may, it ever harks back to a question whether it is our policy to subjugate or to free the islanders. We are opposed to all further war because we believe that the subjugation of the people under a foreign yoke; we propose a cessation of slaughter, because we believe that the Filipinos, as a matter of right can be free and independent under a protection by the United States which will save them from foreign aggression.

"They tell us there is nothing now to be done. Is it nothing to change war to peace? Is it nothing to stay the horrible slaughter of natives? Is it nothing to stop the operations by which our brave fellow citizens are killed by bullets and by equally deadly disease? The assumption that the war is inevitable is gratuitous. If we have not promised the natives a free and independent government try that at once. That is the crux of the whole matter. So, when they tell us there is nothing now to be done, I say the principal thing remains to be done—to assure the Filipinos as to the policy of the United States in regard to their liberty. When Burke was thundering in the commons for the conciliation of the colonies King George held that nothing could be done until the American colonists were subdued. Had King George granted us local self-government there would have been no war of the revolution. There was a great deal that King George might have done that he did not do. Indeed, there is a great deal for the United States to do, now and at once, in the Philippines, unless we wish to repeat the obstinacy of the house of Hanover.

"They tell us we are disloyal if we do not agree with any and every policy of conquest which may be arranged for us by the government; that we should not increase the difficulties of a bad situation; that we should not shake the arm of the man when he is taking aim. If a loyal soldier saw a column of our army defiling down by mistake into the road which led to disaster could he be more or less loyal if he held his peace and uttered no word of warning? If I saw my brother in an access of passion striking a child should I hold his arm to prevent the heavy blow which meant horrible and irremediable murder? Would I show more or less love and loyalty to him by withholding my dissuading voice, my preventing arm? Is it disloyal to keep our nation in the path of honor? We who love our country most wish most that its flag shall be unstained.

"The president of the United States declared at Atlanta December 15, 1895, that the flag has been planted in two hemispheres, which did not shake the arm of liberty and law, of peace and progress. Who will withdraw from the people over whom it floats its protecting folds? Who will pull it down? In South Carolina officers of the United States are to-day seeking to convict those who shot down the wife and young babe of the colored postmaster. The flag there protects those over whom it floats. In the Philippines we are not merely hounding colored natives with the bloodhounds of slavery days, but murdering them with rapid-firing guns—"nigger hunting" it is grewsomely expressed. The flag there does not protect those over whom it floats. It is here the emblem of tyranny and butchery. Who will rescue the flag from such desecration? Why, who else but he who is not ashamed to be called of the humanity for whom we went to war we call upon him to save our flag from dishonor. The common sense of the people knows that the flag cannot be immediately withdrawn, but the moral sense of the people demands that so long as it remains there its protecting folds will provide for white and brown alike a free and independent government and assurance from outside aggression."

Policy Assailed in Resolutions.

Resolutions attacking the administration's policy were adopted by the meeting as follows:

"The frank expression of honest convictions on political questions of public policy is vital to the health and even to the preservation of representative government. Such expression is, therefore, the sacred duty of American citizens.

"We hold that the policy known as imperialism is hostile to liberty and tends toward militarism, an evil from which it has been our glory to be free. We regret that it is now necessary in the land of Washington and Lincoln to reaffirm that all men, of whatever race or color, are entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. We still maintain that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. We insist that the forcible subjugation of a purchased people is criminal aggression and open disloyalty to the distinctive principles of our government.

"We honor our soldiers and sailors in the Philippine islands for their unquestioned bravery and devotion, and we honor the nation for the American lives that have been sacrificed. Their duty was obedience to orders; our duty is diligent inquiry and fearless protest. We hold that our government created the conditions which have brought about the sacrifice.

"We earnestly condemn the policy of the present national administration in the Philippines. It is the spirit of '76 that our government is striving to extinguish in those islands; we denounce the attempt and demand its abandonment. We deplore and resent the slaughter of the Filipinos as a needless horror, a deep dishonor to our nation.

"We protest against the extension of American empire by Spanish methods and demand the immediate cessation of the war of subjugation begun by Spain and continued by us. We believe that a foolish pride is the chief obstacle to a speedy settlement of all difficulties. As Mr. Gladstone said to England: 'We are strong enough . . . to cast aside all considerations of false shame . . . walking in the plain and simple ways of truth and justice.' Our government should at once announce to the Filipinos its purpose to grant them under proper guaranties of order the independence for which they have so long fought, and should seek by diplomatic methods to secure this independence by the common consent of nations. It is to-day as true of the Filipinos as it was a year ago of the Cubans that they are and of right ought to be free and independent."

A large aud appreciative audience greeted Bro. Rogers at the Baptist church Sunday night. It was a magnificent discourse and gave as much satisfaction if not more than the baccalaureate sermon Bro. Rogers preached a year ago.

The town was struck with horror, last Friday afternoon, when the news came of the untimely death of our respected and well beloved citizen, L. B. Stephens. No man had more friends and I never heard of his having any enemy. He had only last week written to our postmaster, Mr. James Metcalfe, that he was on his way home, but felt somewhat unwell and would stop at Sauders to driuk some of the sulphur water (it was his favorite mineral water) for which the place is noted. On the day of his death he had written a letter to his son Perry, a noted lawyer of Nashville, Tenn., but which he had wrongly addressed, Nashville, Ky. He changed it and was crossing the track to put it in the office, when the 7:45 train came along and struck him as he was making the last step across the road, killing him instantly. His funeral took place at the Baptist church here on Sunday at 11 o'clock, and although the rain came down in torrents, was attended by all who were able to get to the church. The remains were taken for interment to Highland cemetery.

Mr. Stephens was born at the old General Leonard Stephens homestead, on the Turkeyfoot road, in Kenton county, September 5th, 1819. He was married to Harriet A. Riddell April 26, 1849, and settled soon after at Richwood Station, this county, where he was engaged in farming until within a few years past. After the death of his wife he sold his farm and has since made his home at Walton, spending a quiet life here and in visiting his children aud grandchildren. He leaves a son, daughter and sister—H. P. Stephens, of Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Lucy Sbouse, of Louisville, and Mrs. Statira Bristow.

Miss Sallie Burkett is anxious to hear from a fine Alderney calf that has either strayed or been taken from her premises.

Col. Ed Bristow, of Kenton county, was visiting his brother near Union, last Thursday, and thinks that he may locate in Boone.

Saturday about 4 o'clock, p. m., Geo. Fane came running into town, and informed J. W. Conner that his son, Elmo, had shot himself, and was lying in the woods several hundred yards back of the house. Mr. Conner jumped into his surrey and drove immediately to the spot. The conditions were simply heartrending, for lying upon the grass was the lifeless form of the young man, with a rifle bullet through his heart. The report gained circulation rapidly, and scores of people rushed to the place. Peter Adams was the first person to arrive after Mr. Conner, and assisted to put the body into the surrey, and get it to the house, by which time the mother and two little sisters, who had gone to a meeting of the Baptist Ladies' Society, had arrived to view the lifeless form of the son and brother, they had left but a short while before in perfect health. Many versions of the fatal accident have been reported, but we learned from the father the following facts, and they are correct: Elmo and George Fane were shooting birds with a flobert rifle in the woodland pasture just back of Mr. Conner's residence, and, at the time of the accident, they were setting on the grass beneath a tree, watching for birds, the rifle lying on the ground between them, the muzzle towards Elmo. A bird flew into a tree near by, and Elmo reached for the gun, and was drawing it to him, when the hammer hung on a limb in the grass, the limb pulling the hammer back until it exploded the cartridge when it was released. The bullet pierced the left breast near the nipple, and ranged upward and passed, perhaps, directly through the heart, for the only words he is known to have uttered after being shot were: "George, I am shot!" and he fell back. George Fane was almost paralyzed so badly was he frightened, and not finding anyone at the house, he ran on to Union where he found Mr. Conner. The terrible accident shocked the entire community, prostrated the family with grief. Elmo was just stepping upon the threshhold of manhood, and being the oldest child was the pride of his parents, the light and sunshine of their home. He was a tower of strength in the eyes of his little sisters, whose tender hearts could cling to him like the vine to the oak. The RECORDER extends its kindest sympathy to the bereaved family. The funeral services were conducted Monday at 10 a. m. at the Union Baptist church by Revs. S. M. Adams, J. A. Kirtley and M. J. Hoover, and the large attenduace fully attested the very high esteem in which the unfortuuate young man was held.

The colt crop will be larger this spring than it has been for several years.

So far this spring the weather clerk has been very considerate of the needs of vegetation.

Rev. Wm. Penn, of Constance, closed a week's meeting at West Fairview, with five additions.

The Sheriff made several sales of land for delinquent taxes at the court house door, last county court day.

Quick and Tanner have made a good record in the construction of Castleman's stock and feed emporium.

Master Eddie Bentler has a very sore finger, the result of getting a fish-hook fastened in it and having it cut out.

Noah Clore received a nice Poland China boar from J. E. Rouse, of Yarnelton, Fayette county, one day last week.

There is a large locust bloom this spring, which fixes the belief with many that there will be a good crop this year.

According to an eminent chemist who has recently made an investigation, everything tonight for use on the table is adulterated.

The corn crop in this county will nearly all be planted by the close of this week. Some who planted early are now plowing corn.

A washing rain fell in the Locust Grove neighborhood, last Thursday morning, washing up considerable corn for those who had planted.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Cason's little grand child is recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia, from which, at one time, it was thought it would die.

Master Hider Hoover is getting about well from quite a severe injury received by a timber falling on his ankle down at D. E. Castleman's new barn.

There is a heavy apple bloom, but fruit men say that is no sign as to what kind of a crop will develop; that very often a heavy bloom is followed with a total failure.

Last county court day the road overseers made a heavy call on the Sheriff for the road money, one half of which was due that day as ordered by the Fiscal Court.

A severe hail storm visited Grant county last Thursday. The hail stones were so large that they killed birds, fowls and lambs, and destroyed many windows in residences.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Couner, of Union, have the sympathy of a great many friends in this and other parts of the county in the sore affliction so suddenly precipitated upon them.

Last Thursday was pension day, and several of the old soldiers and widows of old soldiers called at the County Clerk's office to have their papers made out for drawing their quarterage.

Frazier Miscal, of the Mudlick neighborhood, sent C. L. Crisler a pair of eye-glasses to be used in his search for Hardin supporters. A letter accompanied the glasses, explaining for what they are to be used.

Mrs. Craven's class in music and several others were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Roberts and daughters, last Thursday afternoon. Some excellent music was rendered by the class and was enjoyed by the other guests.

A. F. Rouse, who lived about a mile northeast of Burlington, died of consumption, last Monday, after several month's illness. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Lentz, yesterday afternoon at Hopeful church.

The writer and J. M. Eddins spent a few hours very pleasantly at Limaburg, last Thursday afternoon. It being a rainy afternoon several of the farmers of that neighborhood, came into the store to exchange ideas and trade jokes, and the occasion was one of the lively order.

Our Union correspondent gives the particulars of the fearful accident near that place, which brought sorrow, not to the family of she unfortunate young man alone, but to the entire community; while our Walton correspondent tells how, L. B. Stephens, one of the best citizens Boone county ever had, was killed by a train at Sanders, Carroll county.

Burlington's leading horse trader, "Mux" Osboru, colored, and Erastus Stephens, of Buffalo, who has made more horse trades than anyother man in Boone county, met last Saturday, and had a trade of which each got much the best. "Mux" says he is not afraid to go up against the best of them, and Uncle 'Rastus is somewhat that way himself, and has a record in his particular line that is hard to best.

Congressman Berry is incensed at the action of the Secretary of the Navy in regard to a request made by him for a trophy of the Spanish war, with which to decorate Newport's city park. He was told that these trophies would only be given to naval stations and military posts. He was therefore much chagrined to learn that Cincinnati and Canton, Ohio, were each to get a gun from the destroyed Spanish fleets, and he has written a letter to Secretary Long about the matter.

PERSONAL MENTION.

A. B. Rouse is home to spend the summer months.

Walter Lassing, of Union, spent Sunday in Burlington.

B. W. Adams and Master Jimmie Allphiu were in Rising Sun, Friday.

Rev. J. F. Carney will preach at the Universalist church next Friday night.

O. P. Couner was visiting his son-in-law, J. E. Rouse, at Yarneliton, last Sunday.

Mr. T. P. Crisler, of Bullittsville, was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. W. J. Rice, Monday.

Miss Mary Corn, of Bullittsville, will go to Louisville, this week to visit her relatives there.

H. W. Blyth and C. C. Hughes both employed in the revenue service, were at home Sunday,

Ome Rogers came over from Erlanger again Sunday evening to attend religious services here.

W. E. Vest and wife were visiting Mrs. Vest's sister in the Utzinger neighborhood, last Sunday.

B. F. Zimmer, of Constance, was in town Monday. He has sold a large lot of fertilizer here this spring.

John Bentler expects to move to Erlanger next week and requests those who owe him to come in and settle.

June W. Gale, of Owen county, and a candidate for Auditor, was in town one day last week, forming acquaintances.

Hear that Ves W. Gaines has rented a house in Burlington, and that he and his wife will soon be numbered among our citizens.

Our bachelor friend, Geo. W. Sandford, is anxiously awaiting good dirt roads, so he can use that buggy he has purchased for a matrimonial campaign.

B. F. Meuefee, who composes the entire legal fraternity of Crittenden, Grant county, was transacting business with the official occupants of the Courthouse, last Friday.

B. L. Gaines, of Carrollton, came up last week to visit his sister, Mrs. James E. Duncan, who is quite ill. Charles Duncan, of Kansas City, Mo., is at his mother's bed-side.

S. K. Dempsey and Mrs. Acklin Riggs, of Kenton county, were guests at G. G. Hughes' last Saturday and Sunday. Steve's many friends here were glad to see him again.

Rev. and Mrs. Hoover, Miss Ella Duncan, Mrs. W. F. McKim and Mrs. B. W. Adams will attend the Southern Baptist Convention which convenes in Louisville on the 12th inst.

J. M. Lassing and J. T. Dempsey have been expanding their domain down on Mudlick, and by a recent purchase of the Samuel Black heirs, they have annexed 31 acres of land.

Mrs. Jane Sutton, of Bellevue, was in town on business, last Friday. Mrs. Sutton is one of the good business women of this county, and there are few persons who can manage a farm better than she.

J. T. Marshall, of Bellevue, passed through town, Monday, enroute to the city to attend Buffalo Bill's show. He was driving his white pony and cart, one of the most unique outfits that has been in town for a long time.

On the 20th inst an entertainment will be given for the benefit of the Burlington Presbyterian church. The program consisting of music, recitalous &c., will be published next week. Several excellent vocalists from a distance will take part. Admission 25 cents, which price includes ice cream and cake.

Edward S. McKim has been appointed a storekeeper-gauger by Collector Comingore. He received his papers last Saturday, and will be ready for an assignment in a few days. He is one of the straight Republicans of this county, and is congratulated by many friends, who wish him constant work in the revenue service.

That terrific thunder storm, of last Thursday morning, caught Jas. Clore and Charles Wesbay on the road to town with loads of hay. They were both badly frightened, and at one time Jim was certain he was struck by lightning, and he felt of his head and side after he found he was not dead, to see how many bones were broken.

Dr. Moffet and Miss Ruey Dulaney, daughter of Dr. B. A. Dulaney, of Florence, were married last Saturday afternoon, in the Baptist church in Florence, in the presence of a large number of friends, Rev. Geo. N. Buffington, officiating. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, and the wedding was one of the prettiest that has been witnessed in Florence for a long time.

A quartette of dead beats struck the town last Friday afternoon. A boy using one crutch to assist his locomotion while he canvassed, was begging for money with which to secure transportation to Owensboro, which he claimed was his home. He claimed his lameness was the result of scrofula. Another boy was selling some small articles. The two men passed through town and stopped out on the Bellevue pike, where the boys joined them and a divide was made.

W. E. Vest had rather an exciting experience, one evening last week, just after dark. He was out hunting his cow which had failed to report at milking time, when he met an old hound that was full of fight and did not care with whom or what. It made a pass at Billie who repulsed the attack with his No. 10 brogans, but as soon as the dog recovered its breath it came up with a growl and renewed the trouble, when Billie caught it about the middle with the toe of his right foot and sent it flying end over end through the air. The dog lit on its feet and started for its adversary a third time, and Billie squared for the kick of his life, but misjudged the distance when he let fly his foot, and missing the dog he fell flat on his back, when, very much to his surprise and greatly to his relief, the dog tucked its tail and ran away, howling as though it had received a charge of No. 2 shot.

At a meeting of the Democratic Committee for the 23d Senatorial District, composed of the counties of Boone, Gallatin and Owen, held at Sparta, Ky., on Friday, May 5th, 1899, pursuant to a call of E. E. Lee, Chairman of said Committee, the following members were present: E. E. Lee, of Owen; R. B. Brown, of Gallatin, and D. E. Castlemau, of Boone, by proxy, J. M. Lassing. The following resolutions were adopted:

RESOLVED, That mass meetings be held at the county seat of each of the counties composing the Senatorial district, on Saturday, May 27th, 1899, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend a district convention to be held at Sparta, Gallatin county, on the 29th day of May, 1899, for the purpose of selecting a Democratic candidate for Senator in this district. The meetings at the county seats are to be called to order by the Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee in the respective counties. The basis of representation in said convention shall be one delegate vote for each 200 votes or fraction over 100 cast for Governor at the election in 1895.

RESOLVED, That by the compact entered into several years ago, Boone county is entitled to the Senator at this time. E. E. LEE, Chairman.
R. B. BROWN, Sec't'y.

RECALLS THE PAST.

Dr. Talmage's Sermon Is Largely Reminiscent.

Draws Helpful Lessons from the Experiences and Vicissitudes of Life—Memories of Home.

Copyright, 1899, by Louis Klopsch.

This sermon of Dr. Talmage calls the roll of many stirring memories and interprets the meaning of life's vicissitudes. The text is Psalms xxxix. 3: "While I was musing the fire burned."

Here is David, the psalmist, with the forefinger of his right hand against his temple and the door shut against the world, engaged in contemplation. And it would be well for us to take the same posture often while we sit down in sweet solitude to contemplate.

In a small island off the coast of Nova Scotia I once passed a Sabbath in delightful solitude, for I had resolved that I would have one day of entire quiet before I entered upon autumnal work. I thought to have spent the day in laying out plans for Christian work, but instead of that it became a day of tender reminiscence, I reviewed my pastorate; I shook hands with an old departed friend, whom I shall greet again when the curtains of life are lifted. The days of my boyhood came back, and I was ten years of age, and I was eight, and I was five. There was but one house on the island, and yet from Sabbath daybreak, when the bird chant woke me, until the evening melted into the bay of Fundy, from shore to shore there were ten thousand memories, and the groves were a-hum with voices that had long ago ceased.

Youth is apt too much to spend all its time in looking forward. Old age is apt too much to spend all its time in looking backward. People in midlife and on the apex look both ways. It would be well for us, I think, however, to spend more time in reminiscence. By the constitution of our nature we spend most of the time looking forward. And the vast majority of people live not so much in the present as in the future. I find that you mean to make a reputation, you mean to establish yourself, and the advantages that you expect to achieve absorb a great deal of your time. But I see no harm in this, if it does not make you discontented with the present or disqualify you for existing duties. It is a useful thing sometimes to look back and to see the dangers we have escaped and to see the sorrows we have suffered, and the trials and wanderings of our earthly pilgrimage and to sum up our enjoyments. I mean, so far as God may help me, to stir up your memory of the past, so that in the review you may be encouraged and humbled and urged to pray.

There is a chapel in Florence with a fresco by Guido. It was covered up with two inches of stucco until our American and European artists went there, and after long toil removed the covering and retraced the fresco. And I am aware that the memory of the past, with many of you, is all covered up with obliterations, and I now propose, so far as the Lord may help me, to take away the covering, that the old picture may shine out again. I want to bind in one sheaf all your past advantages, and I want to bind in another sheaf all your past adversities. It is a precious harvest, and I must be cautious how I swing the scythe.

Among the greatest advantages of your past life were an early home and its surroundings. The bad men of the day, for the most part, dip their hearted passions out of the boiling spring of an unhappy home. We are not surprised to find that Byron's heart was a concentration of sin when we hear his mother was abandoned and that she made sport of his infirmity and often called him "the lame brat." He who has vicious parents has to fight every inch of his way if he would maintain his integrity and at last reach the home of the good in Heaven. Perhaps your early home was in a city. It may have been when Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, was residential, as now it is commercial, and Canal street, New York, was far up town. That old house in the city may have been demolished or changed into stores, and it seemed like sacrilege to you, for there was more meaning in that small house than there is in a granite mansion or a turreted cathedral. Looking back, you see it as though it were yesterday—the sitting-room, where the loved ones sat by the plain lamp light, the mother at the evening stand, the brothers and sisters, perhaps long ago gathered into the skies, then plotting mischief on the floor or under the table, your father with a firm voice commanding a silence that lasted half a minute.

Oh, those were good days! If you had your foot hurt, your mother always had a soothing salve to heal it. If you were wronged in the street, your father was always ready to protect you. The year was one round of frolic and mirth. Your greatest trouble was an April shower, more sunshine than shower. The heart had not been ransacked by trouble, nor had sickness broken it, and no lamb had a warmer sheepfold than the home in which your childhood nestled.

Perhaps you were brought up in the country. You stand now to-day in memory under the old tree. You clubbed it for fruit that was not quite ripe, because you couldn't wait any longer. You hear the brook rumbling along over the pebbles. You step again into the furrow where your father in his shirt sleeves shouted to the lazy oxen. You frighten the swallows from the rafters of the barn and take just one egg and silence your conscience by saying they will not miss it. You take a drink again out of the very bucket that the old well fetched up. You go for the cows at night and find them pushing their heads through the bars. Of times in the dusty and busy streets you wish you were home again on the cool grass or the rag carpeted hall of the farmhouse, through which there came the breath of new mown hay or the blossom of buckwheat.

You may have in your windows now beautiful plants and flowers brought from across the seas, but not one of them stirs in your soul so much charm and memory as the old ivy and the yellow sunflower that stood sentinel along the garden walk and the forget-me-nots playing hide and seek mid the long grass. The father who used to come in sunburned from the field and sit down on the doorsill and wipe the sweat from his brow may have gone to his everlasting rest. The mother who used to sit at the door a little bent over, cap and spectacles on, her face mellowing with the vicissitudes of many years, may have put down her gray head on the pillow in the valley, but forget that home you never will. Have you thanked God for it? Have you rehearsed all these blessed reminiscences? Oh, thank God for a Christian father! Thank God for a Christian mother! Thank God for an early Christian altar at which you were taught to kneel! Thank God for an early Christian home!

I bring to mind another passage in the history of your life. The day came when you set up your own household. The days passed along in quiet blessedness. You twain sat at the table morning and night and talked over your plans for the future. The most insignificant affairs in your life became the subject of mutual consultation and advisement. You were so happy you felt you never could be any happier. One day a dark cloud hovered over your dwelling, and it got darker and darker, but out of that cloud the shining messenger of God descended to incarnate an immortal spirit. Two little feet started on an eternal journey, and you were to lead them, a gem to flash in Heaven's coronet, and you to polish it. Eternal ages of light and darkness watching the starting out of a newly created creature. You rejoiced and you trembled at the responsibility that in your possession an immortal treasure was placed. You prayed and rejoiced and wept and wondered. You were earnest in your supplication that you might lead it through life into the kingdom of God. There was a tremor in your earnestness. There was a double interest about that home. There was an additional interest why you should stay there and be faithful, and when in a few months your house was filled with the music of your child's laughter you were struck through with the fact that you had a stupendous mission.

Have you kept that vow? Have you neglected any of these duties? Is your home as much to you as it used to be? Have those anticipations been gratified? God help you in your solemn reminiscence, and let His mercy fall upon your soul, if your kindness has been ill requited. God have mercy on the parent on the wrinkles of whose face is written the story of a child's sin. God have mercy on the mother who, in addition to her other pangs, has the pang of a child's iniquity. Oh, there are many, many sad sounds in this sad world, but the saddest sound that is ever heard is the breaking of a mother's heart!

I find another point in your life history. You found one day you were in the wrong road; you could not sleep at night; there was just one word that seemed to sob through your barking house or through your office or your shop or your bedroom, and that word was "eternity." You said: "I'm not ready for it. Oh, God have mercy!" The Lord heard. Peace came to your heart. In the breath of the hill and in the waterfall's dash you heard the voice of God's love; the clouds and the trees hailed you with gladness; you came into the house of God. You remember how your hand trembled as you took up the cup of the communion. You remember the old minister who consecrated it, and you remember the church officials who carried it through the aisles; you remember the old people who at the close of the service took your hand in theirs in congratulating sympathy, as much as to say: "Welcome home, you lost prodigal," and, though those hands be all withered away, that communion Sabbath is resurrected to-day. It is resurrected with all its prayers and songs and tears and sermons and transfiguration. Have you kept those vows? Have you been a backslider? God help you. This day kneel at the foot of mercy and start again for Heaven. Start now as you started then. I rouse your soul by that reminiscence.

But I must not spend any more of my time in going over the advantages of your life. I put them in one great sheaf, and I call them up in your memory with one loud harvest song, such as the reapers sing. Praise the Lord, ye blood bought immortals on earth! Praise the Lord, ye crowned spirits of Heaven!

But some of you have not always had a smooth life. Some of you are now in the shadow. Others had their troubles years ago. You are a mere wreck of what you once were. I must gather up the sorrows of your past life. But how shall I do it? You say that is impossible, as you have had so many troubles and adversities. Then I will just take two—the first trouble and the last trouble. As when you are walking along the street and there has been music in the distance you unconsciously find yourselves keeping step to the music, so, when you started life, your very life was a musical time beat. The air was full of joy and hilarity. With the bright clear oar you made the boat skip. You went on, and life grew brighter, until after awhile suddenly a voice from Heaven said: "Halt!" and quick as the sunshine you halted, you grew pale, you confronted your first sorrow. You had no idea that the flush on your child's cheek was an unhealthy flush. You said it cannot be anything serious. Death in slippered feet walked round about the cradle. You did not hear the tread. But after awhile the truth flashed on you. You walked the floor. Oh, if you could, with your strong, stout hand, have wrenched that child from the destroyer! You went to your room, and you said: "God, save my child! God, save my child!" The world seemed going out in darkness. You said: "I can't bear it; I can't bear it." You felt as if you could not put the long lashes over the bright eyes never to see them again sparkle. If you could have taken that little one in your arms and with it leaped the grave how gladly you would have done it! If you could let your property go, your houses go, your land and your storehouse go, how gladly you would have allowed them to depart if you could only have kept that one treasure!

But one day there came up a chill blast that swept through the bedroom and instantly all the lights went out and there was darkness—thick, murky impenetrable, shuddering darkness. But God did not leave you there. Mercy spoke. As you took up the bitter cup to put it to your lips God said: "Let it pass," and forthwith, as by the hand of angels, another cup was put into your hands. It was the cup of God's consolation. And as you have sometimes lifted the head of a wounded soldier and poured wine into his lips, so God put His left arm under your head and with His right hand He pours into your lips the wine of His comfort and His consolation, and you looked at the empty cradle and looked at your broken heart, and you looked at the Lord's chastisement, and you said: "Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in Thy sight."

Ah, it was your first trouble. How did you get over it? God comforted you. You have been a better man ever since. You have been a better woman ever since. In the jar of the closing gate of the sepulcher you heard the clanging of the opening gate of Heaven, and you felt an irresistible drawing Heavenward. You have been spiritually better ever since that night when the little one for the last time put its arms around your neck and said: "Good night, papa; good night, mamma. Meet me in Heaven."

But I must come to your latest sorrow. What was it? Perhaps it was sickness. The child's tread on the stair or the tick of the watch on the stand disturbed you. Through the long weary days you counted the figures in the carpet or the flowers in the wall paper. Oh, the weariness of exhaustion! Oh, the burning pangs! Would God it were morning, would God it were night, was your frequent cry. But you are better, or perhaps even well. Have you thanked God that to-day you can come out in the fresh air; that you are in your place to hear God's name and to sing God's praise and to implore God's help and to ask God's forgiveness? Bless the Lord who healeth all our diseases and redeemeth our lives from destruction.

Perhaps your last sorrow was a financial embarrassment. I congratulate some of you on your lucrative profession or occupation, on ornate apparel, on a commodious residence—everything you put your hands on seems to turn to gold. But there are others of you who are like the ship on which Paul sailed where two seas met, and you are broken by the violence of the waves. By an unadvised indorsement, or by a conjunction of unforeseen events, or by fire or storm, or a senseless panic, you have been flung headlong, and where you once dispensed great charities you now have hard work to win your bread. Have you forgotten to thank God for your days of prosperity and that through your trials some of you have made investments which will continue after the last bank of this world has exploded and the silver and gold are molten in the fires of a burning world? Have you, amid all your losses and discouragements, forgot that there was bread on your table this morning and that there shall be a shelter for your head from the storm, and there is air for your lungs and blood for your heart and light for your eye and a glad and glorious and triumphant religion for your soul?

Perhaps your last trouble was a bereavement. That heart which in childhood was your refuge, the parental heart, and which has been a source of the quickest sympathy ever since, has suddenly become silent forever. And now sometimes, whenever in sudden annoyance and without deliberation you say: "I will go and tell mother," the thought flashes on you: "I have no mother." Or the father, with voice less tender, but with heart as loving, watchful of all your ways, exultant over your success without saying much, although the old people do talk it over by themselves, his trembling hand on that staff which you now keep as a family relic, his memory embalmed in grateful hearts—is taken away forever. Or there was your companion in life, sharer of your joys and sorrows, taken, leaving the heart an old ruin, where the ill winds blow over a wild wilderness of desolation, the sands of the desert driving across the place which once bloomed like the garden of God. And Abraham mourns for Sarah at the cave of Machpelah. As you were moving along your path in life, suddenly, right before you, was an open grave. People looked down, and they saw it was only a few feet deep and a few feet wide, but to you it was a cavern, down which went all your hopes and all your expectations. But cheer up, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, the Comforter. He is not going to forsake you. Did the Lord take that child out of your arms? Why, He is going to shelter it better than you could. He is going to array it in a white robe and palm branch and have it all ready to greet you at your coming home. Blessed the broken heart that Jesus heals! Blessed the importunate cry that Jesus compassionates!? Blessed the weeping eye from which the soft hand of Jesus wipes away the tear!

FREE SPEECH NOT TREASON.

The American People Do Not Approve of McKinley's "Benevolent Assimilation."

President McKinley wanted the Filipinos so ardently that he paid Spain $20,000,000 for them. His purpose was, as he himself assured the world by proclamation, benevolently to assimilate them. Of course, he could do nothing else, because there is a provision in the constitution of the United States against making them or anybody else slaves. Benevolent assimilation in effect takes the form of butchery. A dead Filipino is a benevolently assimilated Filipino.

There are fellow citizens of William McKinley who do not like the situation, and have no hesitancy in making their opinion public. We are assured that the cabinet has been seriously considering what in old Roman and imperial days was called lese majeste. We are assured, further, that what the president will do with citizens who oppose him is not yet decided, but it will not be surprising if a warning in the shape of a message will remind free critics characterized as mischief-makers that there is a serious law against treason, which will be enforced if there is any further attempt to tamper with the men at the front. Free discussion of William McKinley's use of American millions to purchase brown men of the antipodes and murder them is described as "tampering with the men at the front." We may feel reasonably sure that the president, sworn as he is to support the constitution and hoping, as he does, that he may be reelected chief magistrate a year hence, will not be unmindful of certain provisions in the fundamental law. One is that congress shall pass no law abridging the right of free speech; another is a lucid definition of treason, which shall consist only of levying war against the United States or adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. Incidentally, there are other provisions which the president must regard. He cannot clap citizens of the United States who do not agree with him in Fort Lafayette or any other stronghold of the United States, but he must proceed, unless he shall suspend the writ of habeas corpus, in due accordance with law. No conviction for treason can be had unless on the testimony of two witnesses of the same overt act, and it will hardly be contended that a declaration that it was a monstrous mistake to pay $20,000,000 for 10,000,000 of people and use them for targets is a treasonable act.

Criticism of President McKinley is not treason. It is not even a statutory offense, for while at common law it is an offense to libel the government constitutional systems have ignored this provision as inconsistent with the genius of free institutions. Mr. McKinley is shrewder than John Adams, who served but a single term in the chief magistracy. The initial triumph of democracy in the republic grew out of the tyrannous absurdity of the federals of John Adams' time, who insisted upon the passage and the vigorous enforcement of drastic alien and sedition laws, since when it has not been popular to talk as President McKinley's friends are now talking. If the administration should assume that the citizen of the United States who will not dumbly assent to all that is going forward in the Philippines shall be subject to harsh treatment there will be such benevolent assimilation of the McKinley administration next year as will destroy it. McKinley will be spared further worry about expansion and imperialism. For him the rainy season will set in with a vengeance, and instead of dining with comfort upon such a miraculous draft of fishes as fell to him in 1896, he will be doomed to a diet of that embalmed beef which he permitted to be fed to the soldiery, who no longer relish the tusk McKinley sets for them in an archipelago of the distant seas.

McKinley's advisers may make up their minds that the American citizen is bound to avail himself in mighty volume of his fundamental privilege of free speech before the major's work of "benevolent assimilation" of the Krag-Jorgenson rifle kind is fully consummated in the Philippines.—Chicago Chronicle.

—Let us have an end to this twaddle about "benevolent assimilation" and all the rest of that rot. It deceives nobody. We are simply conquering 8,000,000, more or less, of mightily mixed orientals, for what we think can be made of of them and their country. We may, after we get done killing, looting, burning and laying waste in general, try to bring the Tagals and the others up in the way they ought to go, but that will be done to gratify our own pride and in the hope that it will help toward lining our own pockets.—Chattanooga Times.

A POLICY IS NEEDED.

Human Lives Are Sacrificed While the Administration Halts and Hesitates.

It is reported that Gen. Otis is very much discouraged to find a desire on the part of the volunteer soldiers to be mustered out and sent home. The war with Spain, for which the volunteers enlisted, being over, they know that the further retention of them in service to fight in a different war is a violation of their rights. It is reported that not five per cent. of the volunteers are now in the Philippines, and they are to be sent home in transports. Gen. Otis asks that 17,000 volunteers be replaced by 20,000 regulars, thus indicating the increasing burden. We shall be constantly needing more and more men, and the more we spread out and slaughter, the greater the quantity of troops will be necessary to hold the country we have subdued. If we do not hold it with a strong force the natives will swarm back over it, and the subjugation will have been in vain.

The unhappy story that comes to us each day of the details of the fight, which result in fatalities, wounded men and victims of sunstroke, centers attention upon the question, what is it all for? With great loss we accomplish the result of driving the natives from an entrenchment about a rice field, and force them to retreat one mile to another entrenchment. If we have any definite purpose in doing this work it is time to state it. If the administration had any policy to announce that would appeal to the patriotism of the volunteers, there would be no clamor on their part to come home. Nor would there be any difficulty in securing plenty of other volunteers to help them if there was a general sentiment that the honor of the flag was in any danger. The work in hand does not seem so much like fighting for one's country as slaughtering ravages without purpose.

If the president hesitates to intrude on the prerogatives of congress in dealing with the Philippine situation, why not force congress to take up at once the task and take some measures to end the sickening slaughter in the deadly tropics? Our men are sweltering in a deadly climate, fighting a wild and ignorant foe, producing peace and order only by producing desolation. Our losses have been severe, and still the cry is for more men to go on with the work of destruction and desolation. The administration hesitates to make the call for regulars to take the place of volunteers who must be returned. The lack of enthusiasm in the operations there makes the president hesitate to call even for 35,000 men. Is his own faith in the righteousness and glory of this war wavering? If so, why not let congress confront the problem at once and settle it?

There are 10,000,000 natives and thousands of square miles of territory in the Philippines. We have only succeeded in killing about 6,000 or 8,000 thus far, and subduing a strip about 25 miles from Manila. Are we to keep on with the task in this way, or shall it be done in another way. Are we to impress the wild and ignorant of the benevolence of American freedom in this bloody manner, or is there some other way that the white man's burden can be performed?—Citizen Observer.

DEMOCRATIC ISSUES.

The Republicans Are Making Material for Them Every Day.

Democracy stands for the rights of the people, and the democratic party need not worry about an issue for the campaign of 1900.

There will be plenty of issues to be discussed and the republicans are making material every day.

While Richard Croker is not a safe guide and cannot be depended on to watch carefully over the interests of the masses, he is a shrewd politician and he sees plainly that one of the great issues which will be in evidence during 1900 is that concerning the trusts.

It is true that Croker and his organization are not authorized to speak for the democratic party, but Croker insists that his opinions respecting the issues of next year are shared at least by the democrats of New York, Connecticut and New Jersey, and they represent a vote which, in his opinion, the democracy must secure if they are going to win the next campaign. And in these points wherein Croker's opinions agree with those of democrats generally his advice may be taken as that of an expert in political manipulation.

Before leaving New York for Europe, Croker declared that the anti-trust issue, if it be taken up by the democratic party, will in all probability be found a successful campaign cry, and he is convinced that if Col. Bryan insists that the democratic party expresses itself against expansion, he will receive the support of less than 20 per cent. of the votes of the United States.

As to the anti-trust matter, Croker is undoubtedly correct, but it is too early in the day to talk intelligently about expansion.

Undoubtedly a majority of the people in this country are in favor of maintaining the dignity of the United States in the Philippines. There are few people who advocate a surrender to Aguinaldo, and as to the final disposition of the islands, there is room for future development.—Chicago Democrat.

—Public sentiment against the Philippine war has of late notably increased in volume and emphasis. This was due to the fact that the people began to realize to its fullest extent the menace of the situation. It was felt that the war was one of conquest, utterly at variance with American traditions and principles and demanding the sacrifice of American blood for purposes radically un-American in their tendencies.—St. Louis Republic.

It wasn't a fresh quarrel. It was the same old row. She said: "I don't believe all those tales about business keeping you in the city all night. I believe you are living a double life." Then he retorted: "I wish it was a single one." And all hopes of a reconciliation are shattered once more.—Pick-Me-Up.

WOODEN GUNS AND DYNAMITE

The Philippine Insurgents Are Driven to Sorry Straits in Their Warfare.

Recent copies of "The American," one of the enterprising newspapers published at Manila, contain details of the fighting that has been going on in the islands for two months. Here is an item that shows that the insurgents are up to anything if it will help them to win the day:

The insurgents have used almost every kind of weapon in fighting our boys, from old sixteenth century cannon to modern rifles. Had the Kansas boys pursued the insurgents a little closer in attacking Caloocan, they would have been met by a shower of dynamite. On entering the insurgent trenches near the railway depot, Sergt. Freeman of the engineers, found 29 hand grenades of this violent explosive in two boxes, each containing ten sticks. He was ordered to bury the stuff by the commanding officer.

Here, too, is an odd statement, which, The American says, was made by an old Spanish officer:

Many relic hunters have trampled the battlefields over in search of war trophies in the shape of knives and guns but have been surprised to find only dummy guns made completely of wood with a barrel of polished cocoanut. They suggest that the war is more of a child's play than a stern reality.

A Spaniard who had served two years as a captain of volunteers in the Spanish army makes the following statement in regard to the use of these guns:

The insurgents have always been very short of arms. Years ago when we used the Remington rifles they had nothing but knives, but when we discarded the Remingtons for Mausers a large number of the former fell into the hands of the insurgents. As they still possess a very limited supply every precaution is used to prevent the loss of a gun to the enemy, and this is where the wooden guns come in handy. A regiment is lined up with two men out of each set of fours armed with rifles and the other two armed with dummies. In an engagement the unarmed men hug the trenches, while the armed ones raise and fire. As soon as one of the men is wounded his mate throws away his wooden gun and takes that of his comrade. Thus after a day's heavy fighting, though the number of killed may be immense, the firing line is just as strong as before the battle.—Detroit Free Press.

Shad Despised in Colonial Days.

It is a singular fact that in colonial days the shad was a despised fish. Hired men used to stipulate in their contracts that only a certain amount of shad should be fed them each week. In a certain paper read before the American Fisheries association a few years ago Charles Hallock told of a prosperous family who were eating shad for dinner when a knock was heard at the door. Fearing to be caught eating shad by a visitor, they thrust the fish under the table.

Shad were peddled at one cent each in the colony towns. The New England rivers were full of them. Indians speared them in large quantities and smoked them for winter use, but the settlers would not look at them. The possibilities of this delicious fish have been revealed to civilized people only within the last 50 years.—N. Y. Herald.

DEADLIEST OF WEEDS.

Broom Sedge, a Native of the South, Has Begun to Infest the North and West.

There is a weed far more deadly than and yet discussed, that is the broom sedge, Andropogon scoparius, the "grass" of the worn soils of the south.

All southern farmers know this pernicious weed, that creeps into their pastures and meadows, rooting out timothy, rooting out blue-grass, rooting out all useful vegetation, covering the abandoned fields with a reddish brown and waving in the wind like the grass of a western prairie. They know, too, that animals will starve to death when broom-sedge grows up to their eyes. It seems to have some nutritious qualities when green and fresh, and in the arid west it is a common grass on some ranges and is there esteemed, though unworthy even there of the esteem in which it is held, I have no doubt.

Of late this weed is creeping northward. It has invaded West Virginia. It has crossed the Ohio river and is seen in Ohio and Pennsylvania and doubtless eastward. It comes first as a single tuft of yellowish red grass, standing above the other grasses. It has a light, cottony seed and feathery top. The seed blows about and the clumps increase. Sooner or later all the valuable grasses have disappeared and the sedge reigns supreme. Then the field must be plowed, cleaned and reseeded. It is hard to plow, but doubtless is of benefit as a soil builder, at least as a soil fertility arrester.

I know of townships that once were excellent grazing countries that are now practically worthless because of having been overspread with this vile weed. It is especially dangerous to allow it to get started where the plow cannot, or should not, go. Hand labor can cope with it only when first it makes its advance.

Another matter. Northern men have made sad mistakes in making locations in the south where the land was overrun with broom-sedge which in their inexperience they mistook for grass. Lands have been bought at far more than their real values, live stock has been turned on broom-sedge pastures and been starved, almost before the owners realized the cause of the trouble. One should study this matter well before investing in a farm in the south. Of course it may grow on good land; only do not depend on the sedge to support any northern bred animals.

Dig out and burn the first clump that appears in your neighborhood and tell your neighbors of the danger. A stitch in time saves more than 900 in such case as this.—Joseph E. Wing, in Country Gentleman.

USE GOOD PAINT ONLY.

It Lengthens the Life and Usefulness of Lumber and the Metal in Farm Implements.

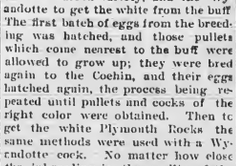
It is reckless to permit buildings, yard fences, wagons, machinery and implements to go without paint. A well-painted wire or yard fence, of course, looks better than one that is unpainted. But it is not the looks so much as the preservation of the object painted that is the purpose of painting. The life of anything that we usually paint is greatly lengthened by an application of a coat of paint. There is usually too much false economy where we paint a building. The average man thinks he can do it the cheapest. Never was a greater mistake made. "How can it be done the best?" should be the inquiry. Many paints hardly last a year. They crack and blister and by holding the dampness in these cracks, are worse than no paint. Pure white lead and oil will last seven or eight years; and if once or twice during that time a coat of oil is applied, the surface will be brightened and the protection increased. In the use of good paint some one who understands something about painting had better be employed. The job will be more neatly and economically done.—Western Plowman.

Measure for Exactly Paintings.

It is hardly possible to make land too rich where the early crop of potatoes is to be planted. The rich soil insures early growth of the plants, and that they will come up with thick, vigorous stalks, which is the unfailing sign of a good crop. Too much manure will cause rot in potatoes late in the season, but with early potatoes the crop is generally harvested before it has time to either mature or rot. Generally the early potato crop may be got off in time to plant cabbage for a late crop, and there will be richer soil for the cabbage roots than there was while the potatoes were growing.

COLOR IN POULTRY

It Requires But a Few Years to Entirely Change the Colors of Any Particular Breed.



The Madison square poultry show held recently in New York was a most interesting exhibition of the different breeds, and the New York Post, discussing the exhibition, has this to say as to the production of the colors to which most fanciers attach so much importance: One interesting feature of the poultry show which closed recently in the Madison square garden was the exquisite coloring of the birds. The show of buff and white Plymouth Rocks was a particularly good one, and when it is considered that but a short time ago there were only one or two on exhibition, the increase to do this year is remarkable. This is due to fashion more than anything else, as the few shown were so much liked that the breeders went to work at once to develop those colors. That it can be done is evident from the number shown this year. They are all high-class birds, and are the culling from many more than were entered. The method of producing the colors wanted is simple. The cock is the one which is most important, and when one of the right color is secured—no matter what his breed is so long as it is good—he is bred to pullets as near as possible to the right color. In the case of the Plymouth Rocks, the Cochin cock was used to develop the buff from the old barred variety, and the Wyandotte to get the white from the buff. The first batch of eggs from the breeding was hatched, and those pullets which come nearest to the buff were allowed to grow up; they were bred again to the Cochin, and their eggs hatched again, the process being repeated until pullets and cocks of the right color were obtained. Then to get the white Plymouth Rocks the same methods were used with a Wyandotte cock. No matter how close the inbreeding is, the quality of the birds or the eggs is not affected. With other breeds, the colors wanted are produced in the same way, and it requires but a few years to entirely change the colors of any breed.

FANCY EGG TRADE.

Poultrymen Should Aim to Sell Directly to Consumers Able to Pay Fair Prices.

Do not sell to local store-keepers if you can do better at a distance. If possible, secure customers among clubs, fashionable hotels, and high-class private trade.

Make egg production a study. Manage so as to have an abundance of eggs when prices are at their best. In regard to the color of the shell, it pays to cater to the wishes of your trade. The Leghorns, Spanish and Minorcas are all producers of white eggs. Brahmas, Langshans, Cochins and Wyandottes lay brown eggs. The flavor of eggs is affected by the food. To produce fine fla vored eggs, the hens should be fed on clean food. The feed trough, drinking vessels and the litter in which the grain is scattered should be clean. Keep your hens out of the barnyard and big lots. The unpleasant odor and flavor of some eggs are caused more by the putrid meat and decaying vegetables that the hens have eaten than by age.

Egg cases are cheap, and you should have your own. Keep them clean, and when the fillers become soiled replace them with clean ones. Gather the eggs every evening and put them in the cases as you collect them; this plan will save handling them again. A strictly fresh egg has an attractive "bloom" that disappears with age and is rubbed off by handling. Keep all the small eggs and those that are soiled for home use.—M. B. Keech, in Farm and Home.

Sheep Eat Many Weeds.

The fact that sheep will eat many weeds that cattle refuse is a point in their favor which should not be overlooked. If the weeds are kept down by sheep they will be destroyed, thus saving labor to the farmer, which is the important item in the expenses. An old sheep breeder, who has made sheep his specialty for years, reports that there are several sources of profit from the flock. First comes mutton, then lambs and next wool, to which may be added the destruction of weeds and the improvement of the land, the sheep dropping the manure uniformly over the surface of the land, and pressing it into the soil with their feet.

Fresh Blood as Food.

The albumen, or white, of an egg is somewhat similar to blood in composition, and the poultryman will find it very profitable to procure fresh blood from the slaughter-houses wherever it can be obtained. It can be put in a bag and cooked or it may be mixed with two parts corn meal and one part shorts, baked into cakes, and crumbled for the fowls whenever it is needed. Fed to hens it increases egg production, being cheaper than meat and much more beneficial.—Farm and Fireside.

The quality and quantity of wool depends on the condition of the sheep, the well fed sheep producing the best and the heaviest fleece.

SAVED THE SECRET.

He Hoodwinked His Trusting Wifey But at What a Fearful Cost to Himself.

He had been out late. When he reached his residence the church clock was chiming five. Heavy, weary, disgusted, he opened the front door with some difficulty, and softly toiled up the stairs, entering the bed chamber with elaborate caution.

Thank goodness, she was asleep!

He dropped into a chair, and, without taking off his coat or hat, began to remove his shoes. One he placed with great care upon the floor. But as he took off the other it slipped out of his hand and fell with a loud noise.

"Wife!" awoke on the instant.

She looked at him and then at the summer sunlight that streamed through the blinds.

"Why, George, what are you getting up so early for?"

Talk about reprieves!

"Why, my dear," replied George, with the utmost equanimity of which he was capable, "I found I couldn't sleep, so I thought I'd get up and go out and take a walk."

And out the poor wretch went, dragging himself round wearily for an hour upon the verge of tears and torpor.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

HOW HE LOST HER.

He Struck Out and She Gave Herself to the Young Man Who Didn't Play Ball.

A bright flush overspread the face of the young girl in the pink shirt waist, who sat in the grand stand, as the stalwart young man who had played in the field in the first half of the inning stepped to the plate, bat in hand.

"Lane 'er out, old man!" "Three-base hit!" "Good boy!" "Home run!" "Hit it in de nose!" "Swat it good an' hard!" sang out the cranks.

The stalwart young man carelessly lifted his cap, replaced it, grasped his bat with a firmer hold, moved it in graceful circles over his shoulder, while the pitcher was doing the preliminary mysterious juggling with the ball that marks the high-priced player, and as the leather sphere—it is the correct form to call it a leather sphere—came toward him like a rifle shot he swung his bat.

"Ah!" groaned the crowd.

He had fanned the air.

This phrase is also the correct form.

Again the high-priced pitcher juggled the ball mysteriously, again it came like a rifle shot, again the young man at the plate swung his bat—

And again the crowd groaned:

"Ah!"

The high-priced catcher rolled the ball carelessly down to third, put on his mask, came close behind the bat, spread his high-priced legs apart, placed his hands on his knees, leaned forward, and made an imperceptible signal to the high-priced pitcher.

The vast crowd held its breath.

Which is also the correct thing to do at a critical moment like this.

Like a shot the ball sped toward the plate.

With a mighty lunge the young athlete swung his bat a third time.

It smote only the air.

Another groan burst from the crowd.

He had not only struck out, but put the side out.

"Mr. Spoonamore," said the young woman in the pink shirt waist, turning with pale cheeks and flashing eyes to the pimply-faced young man who sat by her side. "I said 'no' to you the other day. I say yes now. I will marry you whenever you like!"—Chicago Tribune.

China's Powerful Sword.

There is an ancient and dreadful sword in China. It gives to any man who happens to hold it the power to cut off the head of any one he wishes without danger of punishment. All people free from this sword as fearfully as stomach ills flee before the approach of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This famous remedy cures all forms of stomach troubles, beginning with constipation and ending with liver and kidney disease. It will be found in all drug stores and it always cures.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of ot ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WOMEN WHO EARN THEIR LIVING

SALESWOMEN understand what torture is. Constantly on their feet whether well or ill. Compelled to smile and be agreeable to customers while dragged down with some feminine weakness. Backaches and headaches count for little. They must keep going or lose their place.

To these Mrs. Pinkham's help is offered. A letter to her at Lynn, Mass., will bring her advice free of all charge.

MISS NANCIE SHOEE, Florence, Col., writes a letter to Mrs. Pinkham from which we quote:

"I had been in poor health for some time, my troubles having been brought on by standing, so my physician said, causing serious womb trouble. I had to give up my work. I was just a bundle of nerves and would have fainting spells at monthly periods. I doctored and took various medicines, but got no relief, and when I wrote to you I could not walk more than four blocks at a time. I followed your advice, taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier in connection with the Vegetable Compound and began to gain in strength from the first. I am getting to be a stranger to pain and I owe it all to your medicine. There is none equal to it, for I have tried many others before using yours. Words cannot be said too strong in praise of it."

MISS POLLY FRAME, Meade, Kan., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I feel it my duty to write you in regard to what your medicine has done for me. I cannot praise it enough. Since my girlhood I had been troubled with irregular and painful periods and for nearly five years had suffered with falling of the womb, and whites. Also had ovarian trouble, the left ovary being so swollen and sore that I could not move without pain. Now, thanks to your wonderful medicine, that tired feeling is all gone, and I am healthy and strong."

Nervous People.

Nervous people not only suffer themselves but cause more or less misery to everyone around them. They are fretful, easily worried and therefore a worry to others.

When everything annoys you; when your pulse beats excessively; when you are startled at the least unexpected sound, your nerves are in a bad state and should be promptly attended to.

Nervousness is a question of nutrition. Food for the nerves is what you need to put you right, and the best nerve food in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

They give strength and tone to every nerve in the body, and make despondent, easily irritated people feel that life has renewed its charms. Here is proof:

Miss Cora Watrous, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. I. C. Watrous, of 60 Clarion St., Bradford, Pa., was seized with a nervous disorder which threatened to end her life. Eminent physicians agreed the trouble was from impoverished blood, but failed to give relief. Mr. Watrous heard Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were highly recommended for nervous disorders, and gave them a trial. Before the first box had been taken the girl's condition improved. After using six boxes her appetite returned, the pain in her head ceased, and she was stronger than ever before. "My daughter's life was saved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Mrs. Watrous. "Her condition was almost hopeless when she commenced taking them, but now she is strong and healthy. I cannot recommend these pills too highly."—Bradford (Pa.) Era.

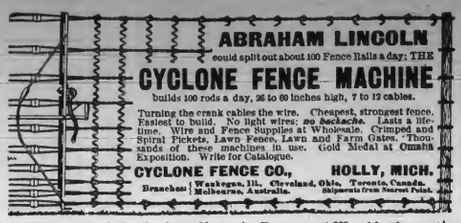
A local authority at Stouter's Point says there will be three cyclones in Kentucky this year, but that the force of each will be spent before the blow strikes this State.

It is said that the Kentucky Fish and Game Club has hired several detectives to watch the different streams this summer for the purpose of catching seiners and dynamiters.

Mrs. Robba Eckler, of Dry Ridge, Grant county, has filed, in the Grant Circuit Court, a suit for divorce and alimony. She has been married about a year, and alleges drunkeness and unkind treatment on the part of Mr. Eckler, who is wealthy, and will resist her prayer for alimony.

W. M. Shipp, former cashier of the defunct Midway Deposit Bank, was released from the penitentiary after serving a two years term for making false entries in the bank's books. He was immediately rearrested and placed in jail at Versailles, to answer in court next month to several more indictments.



Mary Harris has filed a suit at Bowling Green, for divorce from L. A. Harris and charges that she was forced to marry defendant by threats made to kill her or do her great bodily harm. The couple were married at Munfordville June 30, 1898, just a little more than one month after the bride was divorced from W. H. Hall.

Acting Governor Worthington pardoned James Brown, of Louisville, sent up in 1893 for life, for bigamy, under the third conviction law. Judge Charles G. Ritchie filed an extended brief in which he takes the ground that the two other convictions of Brown were made in Indiana, and that further the third conviction law provides that it shall be appleable to parties convicted of felony.

The Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment of the Jefferson Circuit Court in the case of the Union Warehouse Company, of Louisville, vs. John W. Prewitt's administrators. A judgment of $12,000 was rendered against the Warehouse Company for the death of Prewitt. This is sustained by the court. Prewitt was killed by falling into an open elevator shaft. He was a prominent Clark county farmer.

J. N. Richardson, of Simpson county, acted very carelessly with dynamite with which he was killing fish in Sulphur Fork. He walked out on a log which extended over water eight feet deep to place the dynamite. The dynamite exploded and tore his left hand into shreds, burned his right shoulder and face and blew his right eye out of socket. The shock he received affected his brain and his death is expected. He is seventy-two years old, and was a Federal soldier in the war between the States.

Two men were killed and three others seriously, if not fatally, injured by the explosion of the boiler at Barrett McKnight's sawmill, in Christian county. The killed are Barrett McKnight, proprietor, aged 50 years, whose body was disemboweled, burned and torn all to pieces, and Effie McKnight, his brother, aged 40 years, scalded and neck broken by a piece of timber striking it. The injured are John White, both legs broken and perhaps fatally burned; T. T. McKight, hurled 50 feet, left arm torn from the body and other serious injuries, and Eph Osbrook, body mangled and bleeding from burns and cuts. The noise of the explosion was heard five miles.

CROP AND STOCK.

Prospects for a wheat crop in Clark county are not good.

Allen Prewitt, of Montgomery county, lost five horses in one day from spinal meningitis.

Thos. Coleman, of Mercer county, purchased of different parties 12 head of fine work mules at from $100 to $125 per head.

Prices for timber land in the mountains are advancing to the gratification of owners, and several important sales have been made in the past few weeks.

At Winchester on Court day butcher cattle sold at 4 cents per pound. Allen Bros., of Lincoln county, refused 5 cents for a lot of 600 pound steers.

Farmers in most counties report the growing wheat as coming out wonder ully since the cold weather ended, and prospects are now good for an average yield.

Webster county farmers say it is a mistake about there being a scarcity of tobacco plants. They say plants are plentiful and in as fine condition as in past seasons.

Bohemian geese, which are driven long distances to market, are shod before starting on the journey by being sent repeatedly over patches of tar mixed with sand. This forms a hard crust on the feet, enabling the geese to travel over great distances.

J. E. Clay has bought six varieties of cow peas which he will plant as an experiment for feed for stock. Other farmers will also experiment with cow peas. The Stanford Journal says that E. E. Patterson will put in 100 acres of cow peas and soja beans this spring. Mr. Patterson says that they make better feed than corn for cows, sheep and hogs.

There will be preaching at Gunpowder church next Sunday, M. L. Aylor requests us to state.

Manila papers recently received at Seattle, Wash., are full of letters from regular soldiers protesting against the volunteers receiving all of the credit for fighting in the Philipines. The regulars claim that every volunteer regiment has a newspaper man in its ranks who keeps the island and home papers filled with stories claiming all sorts of brave things for their respective troops. One regular kept track of the number of insurgents the volunteers claimed to have killed. At the end of March it reached 38,784. He remarks: "When we came here we were told the insurgent forces numbered about 40,000. Now I am certain there must be some left, but it does not appear so according to these reports." The regulars say volunteers correspondents give their officers personal puffs in the reports sent out that they may secure privileges. The story against which the greatest objection has been made deals with the rescue of a company of Fourteenth regulars by the California volunteers. There was absolutely no truth in the report home, and even the California troops were angry.

FROM CARROLL COUNTY.

[News]

A horse R. H. Stanton was plowing Monday evening ran off and coming down in town, turned down Court from High, thence down Main to the drug store of M. A. Geier & Co., which it entered through the front door and going clear through out the back door, into a small yard. It is remarkable that no great damage was done, when the arrangement is considered the greatest being the breaking of a single show case.

Tobacco plants are plentiful and growing nicely in some localities, but in others they are nearly a total failure. In some sections the flea has devoured the plants.

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. I. ADDISON, M.D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use Wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it a most excellent preparation for female troubles."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1899. NO. 30.

THE power of speech has returned to an Ohio man, who had been unable to speak for many years.

THE Catholic Knights of America, by a vote of 432 to 29, have decided to admit women to the order. This question has been pending in the order for many years.

GOV. BRADLEY and party were well pleased with the reception accorded them, last week at Chattanooga, the occasion being the unveiling of the Kentucky monument in Chickamauga Park.

THE Ohio Republicans are having a very interesting time in their conventions as to who shall be their next candidate for Governor. A great many are watching John Sherman's movements, believing that he would like to serve his State in that capacity.

THE resignation of Dr. W. H. Whitsitt as President and Instructor in Church History of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, was accepted by the Southern Baptist convention in session in Louisville, last week, by a vote of 22 to 20.

ONE day the news from the Philippines is to the effect that the war is about ended, and the next day's dispatches will tell of a strong force of Filipinos strongly entrenched at some point, while at other points they are receiving arms and supplies in large quantities.

THE Louisville city printing has been taken away from the Dispatch, and it threatens to devote some attention to the councilmen who voted against it, nearly all of them, it says, having records that will be thoroughly ventilated. Had the Dispatch been awarded the job it was after the ventilation business would not be indulged in is a fair presumption from the threat it has made.

THE School book Monopoly, which has been growing fat on Kentucky patronage along with that of some other States, is becoming alarmed at the outlook so far as Kentucky is concerned and is flooding the State with a comparison of prices paid for school books in Indiana and Kentucky. They attempt to trap the unwary giving net totals, making a difference of 9 cents per year to the child, but it so happens that their "net" price for Indiana is the actual cost of the book to the child, while their "net" price for Kentucky is the cost to the book dealer; so the real difference, taking the figures of the Book Trust itself, is not 9 cents per year, but a little more than 29 cents. Multiplying 29 cents by 700,000, the number of school children in Kentucky gives over $200,000. This is rather a neat little sum for Kentucky to pay each year more than her neighbor, Indiana, pays for books. And this is taken from figures sent out by the Book Trust.

THE gall of the beef contractors is second only to that of Secretary Alger. It might have been supposed that they would have been more than satisfied to be exonerated from all blame for the bad beef, which the report of the Court of Inquiry admits was furnished the soldiers—the report declaring that the beef was all good when it left the hands of the contractors agents—but they are not; they are actually demanding the punishment of Gen. Miles, because he dared, in the interest of the men in the army, to say that the beef was unfit to eat. They are citing the action of the committee of the German Reichstag which favored a bill discriminating against American meats as proof of the injury done their business by the charges of Gen. Miles. Alger would gladly have Miles bunished, but Mr. McKinley will hardly consent. He fears that Congress will tackle the beef question anyway, but hopes that a Congressional investigation may be escaped by allowing the matter to stand just where it was left by the report of the Court of Inquiry. If the talk of several indignant Senators and Representatives counts for anything, the matter will be hdare from io Congress.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Please allow me space for the good of true Democracy, and the faithful among us. Now, I believe in free-silver and the old Democracy. I also believe that the faithful workers among us should be rewarded and not aliens. We welcome those who see their mistake—in wanlering from the fold, but do not believe they should go from the mourners bench—to be "deacons"—right off. Oh! no. Let them learn ot the faithful awhile, and follow them quietly, and so show forth signs of true repentance and real conversion. Let them go hungry awhile, and be baptized in the waters of humiliation. "It is not right to give the bread of the true children to such as these."

We are approaching a very important crisis in the history of our party in the old Democratic State of Kentucky. To lose this time means much. It is not only important to the Democrats of Kentucky that we elect a Democratic Governor of the simon pure, free-silver type, but for the success of Democracy in the United States in 1900

There is not a true Democrat in Kentucky, who does not long to rid the State of the corrupt, extravagant and arrogrant Republican rule. We know that they came into power in the State of Kentucky by fraud and the connivance of the "Gold-bug Democrats."

We must then not only decide whether or not the old Democratic Commonwealth of Kentucky shall take her natural and proud position in the Democratic ranks, where she honestly belongs, and whether or not Kentucky is for Bryan and free-silver in 1900; but what is also of vital importance, whether or not, we will place our affairs and our rights in the hands of our old, tried, faithful and true friends, or in the hands of gold-bugs, mugwumps and camp followers, or put it mildly, in the hands of those whose sincerity we doubt. These things are of great import and I trust every true Democrat will understand what I mean, and how important for them to be at the Burlington convention.

We are all all true Democrats, anxious to present an undivided front to the enemy, and make the fight of our lives—to carry the State for Democracy. In order to do this we must nominate for Governor, and the entire State ticket, men whose democracy, like the chastity of Ceasar's wife, is not only pure but unquestioned.

Of the two prominent names before the people for Governor, there is one, and one only, whose Democracy is unquestioned. You know without naming, who I mean. The Hon. P. Watt Hardin, an original free-silver, simon-pure, Bryan Democrat, 1 yard wide and 16 long. He has not worked his party, but has worked faithfully for his party all his life, and is a poor man still. He worked for free silver before the Chicago platform was made, and has been working for it ever since. It was P. Watt Hardin that Mr. Bryan said, pointing to him, during a speech in Central Kentucky, "that Kentucky owed more to that man than any one in the State." To this all silver-true-Democrats, responded, amen.

Of Mr. Goebel, I have nothing to say, except to remind you of his past and present political record. Briefly stated it is this way: Before the Chicago convention, Mr. Goebel was a gold standard man, and fought free silver with all his power. After the convention. He has done nothing to convince Democrats that he has changed at all—and much to prove the contrary. All during the hard fought campaign of '96, Mr. Goebel was frequently asked to help his party and declare publicly for free-silver, but not once did he open his mouth, and saw his fellow Democrats defeated without once offering to raise as much as his little finger to help them. Now, he wants these same free-silver Democrats to elect him Governor of their State. He is knocking at the door of the rocked-ribbed, free-silver county of Boone, and asking them to help him. Will we do it? No! We are for a free-silver Democrat—Watt Hardin, who has always stood by his colors. In victory and defeat, he has always stood true to Democracy. You say, Mr. Goebel fought for Joe Blackburn, yes, but not till the popular side was plain to the sight of even ordinary men, and the Gubernatorial bee was humming in his bonnet. Then he also took advantage of the occasion to pass a law—the Goebel bill, which I hope is alright, notwithstanding its suspicious origin and questionable working. At least it gave Mr. Goebel two friends, who hold office under it, in every county in the State. Not a bad start in the race for Governor. These officers and a few "Gold-bug" Democrats are his chief lieutenants in Boone county, as well as over the State. This is the way it looks to me, and I believe, if the Goebel ring gets into power in the State of Kentucky that they will instruct the delegates to the next National Convention to vote for John G. Carlisle for President or some other obnoxous gold-bug.

"Gold-bugs" who voted for McKinley, in secret, are the worst kind of Republicans and we do not want them in power in Kentucky, as at Washington. This must not, this shall not be. Let every free-silver Democrat take warning before everlastingly too late.

Boys, get out the old free-silver, Bryan clubs and carry the old flag to Burlington, June 17th, and vote for P. Watt Hardin and free-silver.

AN ORIGINAL FREE SILVER DEMOCRAT OF BOONE COUNTY, KY.

The purpose of the foregoing array of assertions is to create, on the part of Boone county Democrats a doubt as to Senator Goebel's devotion to the cause of free and unlimited coinage of silver, but it requires something more substantial than mere assertions to sway thinking people, and of such are Boone county Democrats. Now, while it is not the intention of the following to take a laurel from the brow of any Democrat, it is the purpose to recall some of the political events in the history of Kentucky, in which Senator Goebel took an active part in behalf of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and for which he received the universal plaudits of the silver men.

In the Democratic State convention held at Lexington in 1896, the free silver sentiment that prevailed in, and dominated, that convention was intense in the extreme, and the gold-bug who chanced to be a delegate was given an extremely chilly reception. Of this convention Senator Goebel was a member, and here is what Capt. W. T. Ellis says of the part Goebel took in that convention: "At Lexington, in 1896, before the assemblying of the Chicago convention, as a delegate from the county of Kenton, I happened to know that he was actively and cordially cooperating with those who were insisting that silver be restored to the free and unlimited coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1."

Judge Goodnight says: "Before Kentuky had declared its financial policy, I worked side by side with Senator Goebel at Lexington in 1896, helping to organize that convention and shaping its platform, which was ratified Chicago." The above are testimonials of two gentlemen, who, while members of Congress from this State, distinguished themselves as advocates of the free and unlimited coinage of silver. How is it that they are making public declaration of that character, and supporting Goebel for Governor, if his record on the money question is in the least tainted? It is not to their interest to deceive the Democrats of Kentucky.

Nor is this all that occurred in that free silver convention at Lexington in 1896. In recognition of William Goebel's ability as a leader and his fidelity to the party, he was made a member of the Democratic Executive Committee for the State-at-large, an honor never before conferred on a member of the party in Kentucky, and this position he continued to fill to the entire satisfaction of the Democratic party until he became a candidate for Governor, when he resigned. The political history above recalled was made prior to the Chicago convention, and shows that the charge that "before the Chicago convention, Mr. Goebel was a gold standard man, and fought free silver with all his power," is absolutely incorrect. If Goebel was an enemy to free silver, why did the Lexington convention assign him to such important duties? That was not the way it punished gold bugs.

At the Lexington convention is not the only time and place that William Goebel has been shown that he enjoyed the fullest confidence of the free silver Democrats of Kentucky. Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn, the great free silver apostle of Kentucky, placed his political fortunes in Goebel's hands in that memorable fight made for Blackburn's reelection to the United States Senate. Blackburn recognized Goebel as thoroughly sound on the financial question and a brilliant leader, and he was not deceived. Men may proclaim that they are for free silver and yet deceive you, but when they have stood the test that Senator Goebel has there can be no mistake as to their sincerity, notwithstanding unsupported assertions to the contrary.

William Goebel was one of the men who gave Kentucky her first platform on the money question, that spoke in unmistakable tones for free silver, and in his very first speech in his present canvass he announced that he would not accept the nomination for Governor unless the platform reaffirmed the Chicago platform.

Goebel has not only been prominent in party councils for several years, but he has been a Democratic leader in the shaping of State legislation. Only a few years ago, the farmers of this and ajoining counties who are compelled to use the Lexington pike as the avenue over which to convey their produce to market claimed that the tolls being collected by that corporation were excessively burdensome, and Goebel came to their relief and had passed a law requiring that road to reduce its tolls, and the farmers who use that road are saved, annually, considerable sums by that reduction. Immediately after the last Presidential election Democrats all over Kentucky claimed that her electoral vote had been stolen for McKinley. Goebel, to protect the Democratic party against a repetition of the fraud claimed, introduced into the legislature and had passed a law for the purpose of securing honest elections, and its single trial indicates that it will prove a success. He is now advocating the passage of law by the next legislature, which if passed, will relieve Kentucky of the school book trust, and save to parents between $700,000 and $800,000 annually. He also advocates the passage of a law that will prevent railroad extortion in the matter of freight rates, and which if passed by the legislature, will save to those who ship farm produce by rail, many hnndreds of thousands of dollars each year. He is against all trusts, combines and corporations that seek to rob the people, and they are all arrayed against him in this campaign, and hope to be able to receive enough assistance from the people to compass his defeat. Are the people going to permit trusts, combines and the like to dictate to them who shall not be Governor of Kentucky?

Of the Goebel election law, the writer of the foregoing article says: "At heart it got Mr. Goebel two friends, who hold office in each county in the State." Very often an overenthusiastic writer allows his pen to get the advantage of his judgment, and the above quotation is attributed to that fault. O. S. Watts, of Bullittsville, and Jas. N. Pearson, of Florence, two honest, up-right citizens, and uncompromising free silver Democrats are the election commissioners under the Goebel law in this county. For their official services in 1898, under that law, they each received the measly sum of $4, just the price of two malays, and this reflection upon these two gentlemen is unwarranted, as it is also believed it is in the other 236 cases. A person who publishes to the world that free silver Democrats can be influenced by a $4 office has a very poor opinion of their stability, and, on that account he ought to feel a delicacy in declaring himself one of a class he convicts of being so easily corrupted.

IT is the sense and substance of the decision given by Hon. R. J. Tracewell, comptroller of the treasury, that the civil service rules and regulations are not a law, rather a custom which the President may enforce or disregard at his pleasure. This means the administration is under no obligations to continue in office a horde of Democrats put under civil service by Cleveland's blanket order. Still what's the use of kicking? Didn't all of us Republicans vote for civil service in 1896. —Lawrenceburg Press.

Mrs. R. O. Hughes died at the residence of her father in Warsaw, last Sunday.

The Boone Couoty S. S. Union.

We want to put the S. S. work in this county equal with any in the State. To do this each S. S. must be brought to its best; and this will require that each individual in the S. S. must do his part. The cold winter, which closed many of our schools, is past. The dirt roads are again passable and the schools reorganized. Let us all take hold with renewed vigor. If we do not fill the same position we did last year let us fill the one we are in better. Training the coming generation in this most important line is a work every one may well engage in. Lawyers, doctors and teachers should become interested. Father and mother should make it their study. Look about and get the right material in the right place. Strive for better teachers, not more learned. Let the teacher cast about to secure more pupils and then to give them the bread of life.

Let us see this year how many of the Church we may get into the S. S., and how many of the S. S. into the Church. Nothing can be accomplished without thought and labor. Do not be satisfied with a plan, but try to get the best plan. And, if we shall each give some times in planning and put forth energy in carrying them out, we shall not come to our Convention fruitless. We can not have a report for a long period, but we can have a good report. I call upon every Superintendent, Minister and Teacher to see that their school is enlisted. Work your home school up and then come to the Convention and tell what you have done and hear what others have learned. We shall expect the State Sec'y., with us at this convention.

The Boone County Sunday School Convention will be held at Pt. Pleasant Church, Friday, June 8th, 1899.

GEO. W. WATKINS, President.
ORA RUSSELL RIGGS, Secretary.

A word of explanation in reference to the program. While it has been arranged without consulting the parties, yet every speaker is requested to be present and fill his place. Each subject is gived twenty five minutes time—half for the first speaker and the remainder for discussion. Where two speakers are assigned to the same subject the second is to take the place, if first speaker is not present—if both present the second is to open the discussion. Each Minister is assigned ten minutes time to speak on what he shall think most profitable. Let everybody come, and we will have a good and profitable time. There will be dinner on the ground.

GEO. W. WATKINS, Pres.

CROP AND STOCK.

Tobinsport strawberry growers predict that the crop of berries will be greater this year than ever before.

A large stock barn at the Harry Wilkes race track, near Waco, blew down killing several horses and a number of hogs.

Mr. Barker and other capitalists of Carrollton have incorporated a company, for the manufacture of plug tobacco to be located at that place. The capital stock is placed at $150,000.

Mr. J. B. Blankenship, of near Beaver Dam, is the owner of a ten-months-old calf which has but two feet, says the Hartford Republican. During the intense cold weather of the late winter the calf's feet were frozen. Its hind feet came off at the the first joint and it now appears that its fore feet will come off at the first joint also.

W. S. Barnes, of the Melbourn Stud, and Mrs. Byron McClelland will sell 65 thoroughbred yearlings, by 20 different sires, under the auspices of Fasig, Tipton & Co., Madison Square Garden, New York, on the evening of June 19. This will be the first thoroughbred sale by the new firm. These yearlings are the finest lot ever gotten together in Kentucky.

Hogs weighing from 175 to 250 pounds command the highest prices because such hogs yield the largest percentage of high priced meat—they are not too fat. There are times when special cuts are wanted, or when lard is scarce and high, that heavier and fatter hogs will command a premium. There is always a demand for 170 to 190-lb hogs, suitable for making the best bacon, and they sell at top prices even when the general average weights are running heavy.

One of the greatest mistakes made by stockmen is overstocking of the pastures. The Government has recently been investigating the great stock ranges of the Southwest and finds that they have been overstocked to a point where they are about ruined. This is particularly the case with Texas, where the conditions are now so bad that it is feared the injury is permanent. The grasses and what serves for sod are killed out and the land if it bears anything at all, henceforth brings forth only weeds.

An exchange says: "The latest and most novel use for old newspapers that has come to our notice occurred Saturday when a gentleman stepped into this office and purchased 100 or more to feed his hens. He tears the paper into shreds and soaks it in sour milk until the whole mass becomes a pulp when he feeds it to his hens, and claims that it adds greatly to their egg producing qualities. The newspaper is gradually extending its field of usefulness. From food for thought it has expanded until within its sphere is already included food for goats and hens."

The Winchester Sun seems discouraged as to the wheat prospect in the bluegrass. It says: "Reports covering the bluegrass region indicate that there will be a shortage of at least fifty per cent. in the wheat crop this year. The continued rainy weather at seeding time curtailed the acreage, besides delaying the season until very late. A small per cent. of the planting that was done before the wet weather set in is doing fairly well and promises an average yield, but a great majority of the fields are thin and spotted and many of them have been plowed for other crops. Representatives of harvesting machine manufacturers who have been traveling through the section for the past month are considerably discouraged by the outlook. Their sales have fallen off at least one-half, owing to poor crop prospects."

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

ARIZONA'S oldest white resident is Charles L. Poston, who braved the Apaches in 1854 and has lived in the territory ever since. He has just been voted a pension by the Arizona legislature.

THE will of Col. John P. Dameron, of Randolph county, Missouri, who died recently, leaving property valued at $20,000, contained the following singular provision: "I have no wife or children, but if any come forward and lay claim to my property they will be given $25 each on establishment of that fact."

PORTLAND, Ore., is one of the healthiest cities in the world. In 1893 the death rate was 13 per 1,000. In 1898 it was as low as 8.66, thanks chiefly to the excellent water from Bull Run river, which it cost $4,000,000 to bring into the city. Denver has a death rate of 9.48, Los Angeles of 13.16 and San Francisco of 20.

PROBABLY not many people are aware that the coal mined in the United States annually is worth more than three times as much as the gold mined here. The product of the anthracite fields alone exceeds in value the output of the gold mines of this country, Canada and Alaska, which last year amounted to over $50,000,000.

A CURIOUS mode of catching turtles is practiced in the West Indies. It consists in attaching a ring and a line to the tail of a species of sucker fish, which is then thrown overboard, and immediately makes for the first turtle he can spy, to which he attaches himself. The fisherman then hauls both turtle and sucking fish in.

THE father of the late Col. Stotzenburg, killed at the head of the Nebraska regiment in the Philippines, writes to the war department: "I think it a consolatory that my son died as a soldier would choose to die, and it is a further comfort that the republic has many, many such sons who will work and die for its glory and honor."

A STRANGE flower has been found on the Isthmus of Tehauntepec. It grows on a small tree and gives forth a perfume only at noon, but this is not the queer part, for in the morning it is pure white, at noon red, and in the evening blue. If this red, white and blue blossom only grew thickly in the United States it would perhaps be the national flower.

APPENDICITIS is not the surely fatal disease it has been often regarded. Prof. Nothagel, of Vienna, finds that not less than 80 per cent. of the cases run a simple course, and recover under purely medical treatment. He states that opiates should be given, but no purgatives. There need be no uneasiness if the patient has no movement of the bowels for six or eight days.

WITHIN the past 95 years the population of Belgium has doubled itself, rising from 3,000,000 to 6,000,000. But the records of the larger cities make a still more interesting showing. Antwerp in a century has risen from 53,000 to 257,000, an increase of 383 per cent. Liege has advanced from 40,000 to 160,000; Ghent from 55,000 to 155,000, and Brussels from 66,000 to 187,000.

IN the United States circuit court at Dubuque, Ia., Judge Shiras rendered an important decision, holding that under the federal bankruptcy law innocent third parties can retain their securities. He holds that, where property has passed into the hands of the mortgagee before the institution of proceedings in bankruptcy, he can not be compelled to yield up possession.

SECRETARY HAY has received details of the new railroad which is to cross the Holy Land. The proposed capital is $50,000,000, but no shares will be put on the market, so it is said, until the line is completed as far as Nazareth. The road will run from Haifa, a seaport town 75 miles south of Beirut, to Damascus, a distance of 142 miles, and the project includes an extension from Damascus to Bagdad and the Persian gulf.

KING HUMBERT of Italy is a vegetarian. He lives entirely on vegetables and fruits. The doctors have forbidden him to drink coffee, and his beverage is Bordeaux and plenty of water. The king never feels so well as when his fare is bread, potatoes and oranges. Peaches are his favorite edible. The queen has made repeated attempts to become a vegetarian, but has finally given up in despair, being fond of a generous diet.

LONDON coroners are sticklers for their rights. A box held at a railroad station recently, owing to the railroad officials having lost the way bill, was opened, though it was consigned to a Hamburg museum, and the body of a young woman and two skulls were found inside. The young woman was a mummified Peruvian and the skulls were prehistoric, yet the coroner of the district insists on holding inquests on both mummy and skulls unless the museum people have them removed.

THE Indiana supreme court rendered a decision to the effect that where a woman marries a man to whom she is indebted the marriage cancels the indebtedness. A Montgomery county citizen lent a large sum of money to a widow, taking notes as security. Subsequently the two were married and a few years later the wife died. Gasnell presented the notes against the estate left by her, and, upon payment being refused, brought suit to recover. The court, however, decided that he could not collect the money, holding that the common-law rule had not been abrogated by statute in Indiana.

AMERICAN REGIME IN CUBA.

La Patria, One of the Best Edited Papers in Havana, Endorses It—Cuba Has True Liberty and Progress.

HAVANA, May 11.—La Patria, one of the best edited papers in Havana, came out Wednesday with an editorial strongly indorsing the American administration. It's utterances are regarded as representing the best thought of the thinking element of the community. The editorial says in part:

"If any shadow of doubt could remain as to the absolutely imperious necessity of the expulsion of old Spanish regime in order that Cuba might have true liberty and progress, it must vanish when one analyses the series of phenomena developed before our sight day by day. We are eliminating traditional impediments and getting rid of the apparently impassable obstacles which four centuries of evil training in political administration had thrown in our path."

La Patria goes on to contrast the American method with that of the "obstinate Spanish" in dealing with even the simplest reforms.

On this point it says:

"Formerly there was agitation among the people; oceans of ink and tons of paper were used; floods of oratory were poured out and then every thing ended at Madrid in the froth of Spanish promises. On the other hand in these days of fruitful though silent work we learn of the most radical forms when they are published in the Official Gazette, without being preceded by a magnificent conglomeration of oratory and colored fire. An order of six lines, with a very short preamble, will represent some bold and beneficent measure. I might say that for us a thin sheet of paper separates the medieval world from the 19th century and oftentimes the writing is not indispensable to enable us to pass from darkness to light."

As an illustration of its argument La Patria cites the separation of church and state and draws a picture of the "wild parliamentary scenes' that would have occurred if such a subject had been agitated in the 13th century.

"Yet this has been accomplished," it says, "by the Americans, and through this a thousand enormities have been effaced."

Senor Perfecto LaCoste, mayor of Havana, with the approval of Maj. Gen. Ludlow will issue a decree prohibiting the wearing of undershirts exposed—that is, uncovered by outer shirts or coats—in public places, doorways, windows or balconies under penalty of imprisonment at hard labor, in the discretion of the court. As teamsters, mechanics and most laborers are accustomed to work in undershirts with short sleeves the decree is likely to increase the use of profane language and harsh expressions among the lower classes. It is a revival of the municipal ordinance of 1894, which had not been enforced. Another decree has been issued prohibiting smoking in street cars and omnibuses. With reference to the latter La Lucha said Thursday that such an order is "petty and unreasonable among a population devoted to tobacco."

THE ADMISSION OF WOMEN.

The Old Fight Over the Question Renewed in the Annual Convention of the Catholic Knights of America.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 11.—The Catholic Knights of America, who met in annual convention here Wednesday with nearly every state represented, resumed the old fight over the question of admitting women to membership almost as soon as the convention had been called to order. The law committee came before the convention with majority and minority reports, the majority favoring the admission of women. After a debate that lasted until late Wednesday night, a vote was taken and the women were defeated. The final vote was 274 in the affirmative and 178 in the negative. As the proposed amendment required a two-thirds majority to carry the champions of the women were vanquished. An effort to reconsider the vote will be made Thursday.

HE SAYS IT IS GAMBLING.

The Iowa Supreme Court Decides That Notes on Board of Trade Deals Can Not Be Collected.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 11.—The supreme court of Iowa Wednesday decided that a note or account for moneys involved in board of trade deals can not be collected at law in this state. E. W. Clifford gave a note for $425 to J. T. James & Co., of Des Moines, to pay for margins advanced by the firm. The note was sold to the People's savings bank, which sued. The court holds that the transaction was purely gambling.

Sable Island in Danger.

BOSTON, May 11.—News received from Sable island states that the sea has made such inroads during the last winter that its very existence is in danger. Since 1802 a wreck register has been carefully kept, which shows more than 150 wrecks.

Injured in a Boiler Explosion.

TRENTON, N. J., May 11.—Three men were seriously and two probably fatally injured Wednesday by the explosion of a boiler at the works of the New Jersey Iron & Steel Co.

ADM. GEO. DEWEY

He Has Permission to Start for Hom Any Moment He Chooses.

New York Will Likely Be His Leading Place—The Great Admiral Will Be at Home in Time to Attend 4th of July Celebration.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—"Send Olympia's mail to B. F. Stevens, No. 4 Trafalgar Square, London, Eng.," was the notice given out at the navy department Friday. This is the first formal indication that the famous flagship is coming home immediately.

Upon inquiry it was ascertained that Secretary Long has cabled Adm. Dewey permission to return at once to the United States. He has been relieved of the obligation of remaining at Manila until the Philippine commission completes its work. He is not even required to await the cessation of hostilities, but may start homeward at once. The notice posted at the navy department indicates that the Olympia will not remain long enough to receive the next outward mail. Mr. Stevens, referred to, is the navy department's agent at London to distribute all of the mail of the war ships in European waters, so he will see to it that the Olympia receives hers as soon as she passes the Suez canal.

It is estimated at the navy department that Dewey will reach the United States in time for a national demonstration on the 4th of July next. The Olympia will not come under full steam, but, nevertheless, she should make the run to New York in about 55 days from Manila. That she is to come to New York is nearly certain, as shown by the following response made by Secretary Long to the urgent message of invitation to Dewey from Mayor Van Wyck, of New York. It may be stated that this was sent before the notice was sent to Dewey that he might come home at once:

"NAVY DEPT. WASHINGTON, May 11.

"SIR—I am in receipt of your telegram with regard to the return of Adm. Dewey, and expressing a desire that he arrive first in the country at New York. The time of his return has not been fixed and the department has taken no other action than to authorize his return whenever the condition of the peace commission shall permit. As to the route he shall take in returning, the department is inclined to leave that to him. He has served with great ability, and must necessarily so much feel the effect of his arduous labors in a trying climate, and under trying circumstances, that the department is disposed to let him govern himself in this respect largely by the consideration of his own personal convenience and wish. It is understood, however, that Adm. Dewey will elect to return to New York.

Very respectfully,
JOHN D. LONG, Secretary."

"Hon. Robert A. Van Wyck, Mayor of the city of New York."

WILL SAIL NEXT TUESDAY.

Adm. Watson Leaves San Francisco for Manila—Capt. Barker in Command After Dewey's Departure.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Adm. Watson will sail from San Francisco next Tuesday as a passenger on one of the regular Pacific mail steamships, but can not possibly reach Manila before the middle of June. Orders have been issued placing A. S. Barker in command of the Asiatic squadron after Adm. Dewey's departure until relieved by Rr. Adm. Watson. Capt. Barker is now in command of the battle ship Oregon and next to Adm. Dewey is the senior officer of the station. He is an officer of ability and discretion, has served as assistant chief of the bureau of navigation,

TIMBERS HURLED IN THE AIR

Powder Building at Kings' Mills Completely Demolished—No Employes On the Place at the Time.

KING'S MILLS, O., May 13.—With a terrific explosion that hurled timbers into the air, filled the atmosphere with flying debris and shook the country for six miles around, the pulverizing and glazing buildings of the King's smokeless powder plant at this place were completely demolished Friday morning at 6:30.

There were no employes in the plant at the time, but many were on their way for the day's work, and had the explosion occurred half an hour later, many lives would have been sacrificed. As it was, two employes were within 100 feet of the factory when the explosion took place. They were stunned by the awful concussion, but escaped injury. Houses in the vicinity were shaken almost from their foundations, not a whole window was left in the neighborhood, and other buildings of the great plant were damaged somewhat.

The explosion originated in the glazing mill, near the river road, about 200 yards east of the bridge, and was the result of a fire that can not be explained. It was an old frame structure, about ten feet square, and contained two barrels of smokeless powder. Another building, a little to the west, was destroyed by the resulting fire, and a third was badly shattered from the explosion. The buildings will be replaced within two days.

The cause of the explosion is unknown. The three men who were so close to the mills when the explosion came went on duty early and were supposed to start the machinery in the different buildings. They were the last employes at the works Thursday night, but are unable to give any cause. The loss is about $2,500.

TWO TRAINS COME TOGETHER

The Southwestern Limited Run Into by Pan-American Express in the Yards at Utica, N. Y., Saturday.

UTICA, N. Y., May 13.—At 2:35 Saturday morning New York Central train No. 33, the Southwestern limited, while in the yard in this city was run into by Pan-American express train No. 31, resulting in the destruction of a Wagner, an express car and the engine of the latter train. The wreck caught fire, but was extinguished by the local department. Harry Neat, of Buffalo, assistant superintendent of the Wagner Co., was so badly hurt that he may die. He is at a hospital. No one else was hurt.

Adm. Dewey Declines the Invitation of Chicago to Become Its Guest on His Return to the United States.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Judging from a cablegram received Friday from Adm. Dewey his health, despite medical assurance to the contrary, is none of the best, and to this fact is due his probable return by way of the Suez canal instead of the Pacific coast route. The message is as follows:

"Illinois Manufacturers' Association, Chicago: Many thanks. Impossible to accept invitation now. Condition of health necessitates rest and quiet.

"DEWEY."

The cablegram was in reply to one sent by the association asking the admiral to become its guest upon his return to this country, and strongly urging upon him the advisability of coming by way of San Francisco and across the continent.

TRUCE WANTED.

Request Comes Direct From Aguinaldo Through an Aide From Gen. Pilar.

It Will Confer With the Philippine Commission Appointed by President McKinley—Gen. Otis Says He Has No Objection to Parley.

MANILA, May 15.—The Filipinos have resumed the attempt to induce the Americans to discuss the situation. Reyes, a young lieutenent on the staff of Gen. Gregorio del Pilar, came to Gen. Lawton Saturday under a flag of truce. He was accompanied by a barefooted bugler. The two were escorted to Manila by Capt. Sewell, of Gen. Lawton's staff. Reyes told Maj. Gen. Otis that Aguinaldo desired passes for a military commission to come to Manila to confer with the American-Philippine commissioners. Gen. Otis replied that passes would not be necessary, as unarmed commissioners could enter the American lines. He would leave the matter, he said, in Gen. Lawton's hands. Lieut. Reyes returned Saturday evening to Bacalor.

MANILA, May 14.—Aguinaldo has issued orders that all foreigners must leave insurgent territory within 48 hours. There are only a few commercial men there, mostly English and German.

Aguinaldo believes that by refusing them the rights of non-combatants he can force their governments to recognize the belligerency of his so-called government, in order that they may treat for the safety of their subjects.

A Filipino priest, who had talked with the Tagal General Treas, has brought to Father McKinnon, chaplain of the 1st California regiment, a copy of a letter written by Aguinaldo to the General Treas, asking his opinion as to the advisability of surrendering, saying: "I fear that the long warfare that will be necessary to conquer the United States will drain the country's resources too much."

Mr. Holmes, a Canadian subject, who, with his partner in the sugar manufacturing business at Calumpit, Mr. Carrick, an American, was recently captured by the Filipinos, reports that he was informed by his captors that he might leave whenever he wished to do so. He refused to go unless Carrick was permitted to accompany him, and said: "We go or stay together."

The curtain will go down in a few days on the fighting in the island of Luzon. Workingmen are preparing for another act in the drama which will necessarily disperse the Filipinos. The rebels are so close to San Fernando as to make life in that place uncomfortable while they remain in their present position. The armies of the United States have advanced so far that the question of transportation has become the great problem. To solve it, engineers are repairing the Bagbag bridge so that it will be safe for the passage of trains and give railroad connection between Manila and San Fernando. In the meantime supplies shipped to Calumpit have to be hauled 15 miles to Maj. Gen. MacArthur, at San Fernando, and 20 miles to Maj. Gen. Lawton, at Bacolor, by bullock carts, and every cart has to be ferried separately on a raft across the Rio Grande two or three times. The roads are rough, and after the daily showers, which are forerunners of the rainy season, so soft that it is impossible to make more than a mile an hour. The few mules that are here have been found to be greatly superior to bullocks for this work. The latter die unless they are given frequent baths, and the heat killed so many that carting is now all done by night.

MANILA, May 15.—The civilian members of the United States Philippine commission are favorable to the meeting with a Filipino commission which was suggested on Saturday on behalf of Aguinaldo by Lieut. Reyes, of the staff of Gen. Gregoria Del Pilar, who came to Gen. Lawton under a flag of truce, bearing the proposal. It is thought by the American commissioners that the idea may have resulted from a recent meeting of the so-called Filipino congress at San Isidor. Definite information on this point, however, can not yet be obtained, though the local Filipino committee which is in close communication with the leaders of the rebelion is doing its utmost to secure peace.

Acquitted of Murdering Her Husband.

GEORGETOWN, Col., May 15.—The trial of Mrs. Jane Fish, accused of having murdered her husband, Gaylord Fish, by chloroforming him while he slept, ended in her acquittal. The murder charge was made by the Woodmen of the World, from which order Mrs. Fish sought to collect insurance on her husband's life.

SIX THOUSAND MILES OF RAILROAD.

It may be interesting to note the following statement of mileage of the New York Central, leased and operated lines, which shows the total miles of track east of Buffalo as 6,114.81.

It is, of course, generally known that some of the Western lines have a greater mileage, but their trucks run through a number of sparsely settled States, while the trackage of the New York Central and leased lines is all in the densely populated States of New York and Pennsylvania, accommodating, by its numerous trains, millions of passengers each year.

Here is the mileage of the New York Central leased and operated lines:

New York Central and branches	819.45
New York & Harlem	125.90
Spuyten Duyvil & Port Morris	6.04
New York & Putnam	61.21
Troy & Greenbush	6.00
Mohawk & Malone and branches	181.54
Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg and branches	624.35
Carthage & Adirondack	46.16
Gouverneur & Oswekatchie	14.08
New Jersey Junction	4.85
West Shore and branches	495.20
Beech Creek and branches	127.58
Walkill Valley	32.88
Syracuse, Geneva & Corning and branches	64.82
Fall Brook and branches	100.70
Pine Creek	74.80
Tivoli Hollow	1.23
St. Lawrence & Adirondack	56.40
Terminal Railway of Buffalo	11.00
Total	2,892.86
Miles of track	4,453.85
Miles of siding	1,660.98
Total number of miles of track and siding	6,114.81

The service of the Nickel Plate Road to New York City and Boston is a demonstrated success. The demands of the traveling public are met by providing three perfect fast express trains in each direction daily. These trains are composed of modern, first-class day coaches, elegant vestibuled sleeping cars between Chicago, New York and Boston, and unexcelled dining cars. Solid through trains between Chicago and New York have uniformed colored porters in charge of day coaches, whose services are placed at the disposal of passengers. If you want to travel comfortably, economically and safely, see that your ticket is routed via the Nickel Plate Road.

500,000 FAMILIES
RELY ON PE-RU-NA.

Mr. W. H. B. Williams, Columbus, O.

W. H. B. Williams, publisher of The Farmers' Industrial Union, in a recent letter to Dr. Hartman says: "I have used Pe-ru-na as a family medicine for several years. I find it of especial use for myself. I have had several tedious spells with systematic catarrh and before using Pe-ru-na I had tried several other remedies with little or no success. But in Pe-ru-na I found a prompt and sure cure. I always keep the remedy which promptly relieves any attack of the same malady.

"My wife also uses Pe-ru-na. She finds it of especial use for severe spells, to which she is subject. We always keep it in the house as a family medicine. We think it an excellent remedy for the various ills to which children are subject, especially climatic diseases. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book on family medicine.

NO OBJECTION.

Proposition That the Government Care for Confederate Graves.

An Effort Being Made to Bring About a Grand Reunion of Confederate and Union Veterans—The Matter Formally Presented.

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 12.—The committee on resolutions of the confederate veterans to which was referred Gen. Lee's resolution accepting President McKinley's proposal that the federal government should make provision for the care of the graves of the confederate dead, spent several hours discussing the matter Thursday and late Thursday night a compromise resolution was framed and was offered as a substitute Friday.

The resolution is to the effect that if the national government desires to care for the graves, the confederate veterans do not object to its taking charge of those in the north and in the neighborhood of the old war prisons. The resolution states that the south has voluntarily undertaken to decorate and properly preserve the graves in the south, and the association does not feel warranted in taking from them what they have grown to regard as a duty.

Gen. Lee's resolution is on the lines of the speech made by Mr. Busby Wednesday and who proposed the substitute to the committee. The modified resolution has been submitted to Gen. Lee, and he is understood to have accepted it. The sub-committee reported to the full convention Friday morning and the matter was then laid before the convention.

An effort is making here to bring about a grand reunion of confederate and union veterans, and the matter will be formally presented to the Confederate Veterans' association. In the city are Wm. Aiken, jr., mayor of Evansville, Ind., Wm. Field, representing the confederate veterans of that city, and C. J. Murphy, representing the G. A. R., who are here for the purpose of arranging a joint reunion in Evansville in the near future. They will lay the plan before the convention and urge its fulfillment.

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 12.—The second day of the confederate veterans' reunion opened Thursday, with Gen. Wheeler's speech on "The Men of '61 and '98." Wheeler paid an eloquent tribute to American soldiers and said that the military history of the southern people has been a prominent feature in history from the first settlement of the country. Gen. Wheeler touched upon the question of expansion by declaring that southern soldiers and southern statesmen had ever taken a prominent part in all movements looking to the enlargement of our territory.

The historical committee made report eulogizing Wheeler, Hobson and Blue. The report also made kindly references to President McKinley's suggestion about the graves of confederate soldiers, but made no recommendations.

THE GUNBOAT NASHVILLE.

The War Vessel Arrives at St. Louis and the Officers Were Given an Ovation—Thousands Visit the Boat.

ST. LOUIS, May 12.—The United States gunboat Nashville arrived at St. Louis early Thursday morning. Thousands of visitors were taken on board the vessel.

The officers of the Nashville, in carriages, escorted by a platoon of police and troops K and G, 3d cavalry, and followed by the crew of the gunboat on foot, paraded through the business section of the city to the Merchants' exchange, where the visitors were given a reception. Thousands of persons thronged the streets through which the parade passed. Following the reception, the officers were driven to points of interest throughout the city, and the sailors and members of the marine corps were given a smoker and vaudeville entertainment at Manion park.

THE TRESTLE COLLAPSED.

A Construction Train Hurled Seventy Feet and Eight Men Were Crushed Under the Cars—Some Fatally.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., May 12.—Two men were killed and six others badly injured Thursday morning by the collapsing of a trestle on a cut-off being built between Rock Point and Chewton for the Pittsburgh & Western railroad.

Earth was being unloaded from nine cars which had been run on the trestle. The nine men fell 70 feet to the bottom of the trestle, the cars falling upon them. The dead and injured were brought to this city on a special train.

Louisville After the Confederate Veterans.

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 12.—The Louisville delegation was Thursday night claiming that the selection of that city for the next meeting of the confederate veterans is practically assured.

NOT A SUCCESS.

Gen. Greeley Makes a Statement as to Wireless Telegraphy Progress.

For Signaling Between Ships at Sea and to Replace Flag Methods Between Naval Vessels It Should Prove Most Invaluable.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Gen. Greeley, Thursday, made the first authoritative statement as to the progress making in the development of wireless telegraphy under the auspices of the United States signal corps. The important conclusion is reached by Gen. Greeley that the wireless system is not likely to supplant the ordinary method of telegraphic communication.

Among other things Gen. Greeley says:

"During the experiments constant communication by heliograph and flag between the transmitting and receiving stations has been kept up by the trained men of the regular signal corps and this has greatly facilitated the work of experimenting. Signals, letters and words have been transmitted and received between those stations, but the great delicacy and constant adjustment required in the present receiver have made the transmission of regular messages as yet unreliable and uncertain.

The presence of large buildings and large masses of iron and material necessarily present in cities makes such places undesirable for carrying on experiments of this character. The distance over which signals may be transmitted by a given apparatus is a function of the height of the vertical base used at either end and this has naturally suggested the use of small gas balloons, such as have already been used for signal and other purposes by the signal corps. A supply of these balloons has already been obtained and will be used for this purpose in the near future.

"That there is a field of usefulness for space telegraphy is undoubted, but that it will supplant to any material extent the use of wire for ordinary commercial telegraphy is not believed. Its value for connection between light houses and light ships and the shore at points where cables can not now be permanently maintained, will be great. For signaling between ships at sea and to replace ordinary flag methods in use between naval vessels, it should prove invaluable, since no kind of weather, neither fog, darkness nor storm, will affect its use.

"The use of metal reflectors to augment and direct the radiation to particular points has already met with partial success and should be thoroughly investigated. At present the radiation proceeds from the transmitter in all directions and the same message can be received at any point within the proper radius at which a receiver is placed. A satisfactory directing reflector and a receivor of the proper electrical capacity or, in other words, tuned to the vibrations of the particular transmitter, would make a great advance in space telegraph and do much towards the extension of its field of practical usefulness.

"While secrecy of transmission is among the probabilities, the present stage of experiment does not justify its positive prediction."

THE WOMEN TO BE ADMITTED

A Controversy of Ten Years' Standing Settled by the Catholic Knights of America in Annual Convention.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 12.—A controversy of ten years' standing was settled by Catholic Knights of America when the delegates meeting here in annual convention voted to admit women to the order. Wednesday the resolution proposing this change in the constitution was voted down, failing by 34 votes to receive the necessary, two-thirds majority. Thursday there was a complete change of front. At Thursday after noon's session a reconsideration of Wednesday's action was motioned and carried, and a vote was retaken without debate. The result was the surprising total of 453 votes in favor of the women to 20 against them. The convention greeted the result with tremendous applause.

Accidentally Hanged Himself.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Three-year-old Lawrence Engein met death Thursday through a strange accident. The child was playing on a rear porch when he noticed a clothes line with a noose tied on the end, hanging from above. In playing with the rope the child in some way placed the noose about his neck and swung off the porch. In his efforts to release himself he was strangled to death before his mother could come to his relief.

Dewey Invited to Cincinnati.

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS.

President McKinley's Mind is Strongly Inclined Toward Calling One Shortly—Reasons Given for Move.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The revival of the talk of an extra session of congress has more behind it than idle gossip. The contingency of such a session has been discussed at a cabinet meeting, and a member of that body who was present for the time is authority for the statement that the president's mind is strongly inclined towards such a move.

Two reasons chiefly control the president in this matter—he wishes the policy of the government with respect to the Philippines defined and the currency question disposed of before the party enters the campaign of 1900. The president has declared his belief to his advisers that peace will be established in the Philippines within the next 30 days, and that the ownership and possession of those islands will no longer be disputed. This subject coming to him so soon, he does not care to formulate a policy with respect to their government the degree of home rule to be granted to them, etc., without the aid of congress in whose hands he placed the whole subject in his message to that body.

The president is unwilling to do anything that will lessen the present abundant prospects of success for his party in the coming campaign. He fears that anything looking like delay or indecision will have a bad effect. For this reason he wants the whole country to know before 1900 exactly what the policy of the government will be with respect to possessions in the far east.

Another powerful controlling motive that is actuating the president is his strong desire to have early and positive action taken with respect to the currency question. He is said to be not thoroughly satisfied with the results of the deliberations of the republican house caucus committee, which recently formulated a bill for introduction in the house when it convenes again. Although the members of that committee are unusually reticent it is understood that the committee has not in all respects followed the suggestions of the president. Four strong points were brought out by the president, and the committee was thoroughly acquainted with his position. These recommendations were:

First—A provision that will make the so-called endless chain caused by the redemption of greenbacks with gold and consequent runs upon the treasury reserve impossible.

Second—That national banks be permitted to issue circulation up to the par value of the bonds deposited to secure that circulation, instead of only 90 per cent., as at present.

Third—A reduction of the tax on national bank circulation, the present tax being 1 per cent.

Fourth—That national banks with a capital of only $25,000 be authorized to be established in small towns, the minimum now being $50,000.

THE "TIN CLAD" GUNBOATS.

They Clear the Entire Country of Rebels on the Rio Grande Up to Calumpit—Loyal Macabeebees.

MANILA, May 11.—The army "tin-clad" gunboats Laguna de Bay and Cavedonga, under command of Capt. Grant, steamed up the Rio Grande to Calumpit Wednesday, clearing the entire country of rebels from the bay upward.

When the vessels reached Macabebee, about a thousand of the inhabitants of the place assembled upon the banks of the river, cheering the expedition lustily. Capt. Grant was given an ovation when he went ashore.

Many of the Macabeebees expressed themselves as being anxious to enter the service of the American navy for the campaign against the Tagols.

The United States transports Puebla and Pennsylvania sailed for home Wednesday by way of Nagasaki. The transports Charles Nelson and Cleveland will leave on Thursday and Friday.

FOR THE LADRONE ISLANDS.

The Auxiliary Cruiser Yosemite Sails From New York—Capt. R. P. O'Leary Appointed Governor of Guam.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The auxiliary cruiser Yosemite, which has been fitting here for the last month in preparation for her voyage to the Ladrone islands, sailed Wednesday. Capt. Richard P. O'Leary, who has been appointed governor of Guam, and a garrison of marines for the post are on her and she carries a quantity of stores and supplies. After passing quarantine at 5:35 p. m., the Yosemite came to anchor in the lower bay at 7:30 p. m. She passed Sandy Hook early Thursday morning.

Ohio's Oldest Lawyer Dead.

Sailed for the United States.

PONCE, P. R., May 11.—The United States transport MacPherson, with Gen. Guy V. Henry and Mrs. Henry on board, sailed Wednesday afternoon for the United States.

A LAKE DISASTER

Schooner Nelson Founders Off Grand Maraias Island—Lives Lost.

The Schooner Became Unmanageable, Threw Her Stern Into the Air and Dove Straight for Bottom—The Bank in 300 Feet of Water.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., May 15.—The schooner Nelson, deeply laden with a cargo of coal, foundered in Lake Superior, off Grand Maraias, Saturday evening, and carried down all hands. So far as known here only one man, Capt. Haghney, escaped from this, the first disaster of the season. The crew consisted of the following:

Capt. Andrew Haghney, of Toledo; captain's wife; two-year-old child of Capt. Haghney; Fred Hawes, sailor, residence unknown; six sailors, names unknown.

The Nelson, which is owned by the Mitchell Transportation C., of Bay City, was in tow of the steamer A. Folsom, which also had the schooner Mary B. Mitchell as a consort. The Folsom and Mitchell turned back and arrived here Sunday afternoon without serious damage. Capt. E. A. White, master of the steamer, at once reported the disaster to the owners.

The Folsom and Mitchell and Nelson were laden with coal. At the time of the disaster the wind was blowing a gale of 50 miles an hour and freezing hard. The three boats were being coated with ice, and this added to their coal, made them ride very low in the water. Seas broke aboard constantly and the force of the gale was driving them toward the beach.

The beach at Grand Maraias was but seven lengths under the lee of the boats and Capt. White determined to try the dangerous expedient of turning the tow in the sea and running before the wind for White Fish point. Before the turn was finished the Nelson was seen to turn toward the shore and it became evident that the line had parted under the strain or had been cut. Soon it became apparent that she was sinking. There was no chance of rendering any assistance however. In a few minutes the Nelson threw her stern into the air and dove straight for the bottom. Where she sank there is 300 feet of water. The crew had no time to even lower their yawl boat, which hung on the davits at the stern.

REFUSED TO BUY THE DRINKS

CHICAGO, May 15.—Henry Reitz, a janitor at the Jefferson school, Elburn avenue and Laflin street, refused to buy drinks with two men whom he met in a saloon Sunday, and a short time later he was struck a fatal blow by one of his companions. He was found unconscious by two policemen and died in a few minutes without making any statement.

Reitz was the father of Henry P. Reitz, second baseman of the Pittsburgh ball club, and Edward R. Reitz, second baseman of the Sacramento, Cal., ball club.

Dr. John T. Greene, of Missouri, Elected President of the Southern Baptist Seminary Saturday.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13.—Dr. John T. Greene, of Missouri, was at noon Saturday elected president of the Southern Baptist seminary to succeed Dr. W. H. Whitsitt, whose resignation was accepted after a long and bitter struggle, Thursday evening. The election of Dr. Greene is considered a victory for the Whitsitt faction. Dr. J. H. F. Kerfoot was considered the candidate of the anti-Whitsitt faction, but he withdrew his name, as did also Dr. J. R. Sampey, a professor of the seminary.

An Absurd Rumor.

TOLEDO, O., May 13.—The special tug sent to Middle Bass island Saturday night to confirm or deny the rumors of the death of ex-President Cleveland reached Sandusky a few minutes before two o'clock. Mr. Cleveland is alive and very well indeed. When informed of the rumors of his death he was much provoked and said: "It is simply absurd." He turned around and walked into the club house.

Second Degree Murder.

OMAHA, Neb., May 15.—John Kerr, who killed his father-in-law, John Reid, at Valley, Douglas county, a year ago, was Sunday convicted of murder in the second degree. The murder grew out of an attempt of Kerr to secure a reconciliation with his divorced wife, during which he was severely beaten by Reid.

Wooden Stirrups Saved Him.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., May 5.—A horse ridden by Louis Johnson stepped upon a live broken trolley wire. The animal was killed instantly, and Johnson owes his life to wooden stirrups, a thick blanket and padded saddle.

FAILED TO FLAG THE TRAIN.

A Collision on the Philadelphia & Reading Road—Many Persons Were Killed and Injured.

READING, Pa., May 13.—A collision of passenger trains occurred on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad at Exeter, about six miles south of this city Friday night and a great number of people were killed and injured. There is no telegraph office at Exeter and details therefore are difficult to obtain at this writing. The number killed is variously stated to be from 15 to 25. Fully 50 others are injured.

The regular express train from Pottsville for Philadelphia is connected at the station in Reading with a train from Harrisburg, which was crowded with excursionists, who had been to the state capital to witness the ceremonies in connection with the unveiling of the Hartranft monument.

Many of the Harrisburg passengers at Reading went aboard the Philadelphia express, but it being found that all could not be accommodated it was decided to send an extra train to Philadelphia to run as the second section of the express. The extra train left 20 minutes later than the express. At Exeter the express stopped for orders and while standing still the extra train crashed into it while moving at great speed.
